Pupils at Prince Charles Public School, dressed as Indians and Pilgrims, enjoy a self prepared dinner during observation of Thanksgiving Friday. Dinner marked the conclusion of a language experience course to acquaint children with the traditions of Thanksgiving and the understanding of sharing and co-operation. Pupils of grades 1 to 3 helped with the preparation of the dinner, the special education group prepared the punch and the older children taped songs and did the decorations.

Eleventh Hour Panic: Lewis

Stole Our Platform - Nixon

OAKVILLE (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Friday night the job-creating projects proposed by Premier William Davis were similar to Liberal proposals made some weeks ago.

Mr. Nixon was commenting on a statement by Mr. Davis in Toronto earlier Friday announcing proposals to create 41,800 jobs in the province this winter at a cost of $93 million in federal and provincial funds.

"I believe what it does is that it reinforces what I was saying in the first few weeks of the campaign (for the Oct. 21 provincial election) while Mr. Davis was saying wait-and-see," Mr. Nixon said.

Referring to Mr. Davis's suggestion that the federal government cut personal income taxes, Mr. Nixon said the premier "should not call on another level of government to reduce taxes if he is not prepared to do it himself."

Mr. Nixon said the announcement that projects of the Ontario Housing Corp. would be speeded up contained "almost the same wording as the budget speech" last April.

He noted that the government earlier this year announced plans to create 30,000 jobs in housing construction and that it later was acknowledged these were not new jobs because the program was a continuation of previous programs.

The Liberal leader said the province would have been better off if the government had not spent millions of dollars on capital works projects during a period of high inflation three or four years ago.

HAMILTON (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said Friday night that job-creating proposals announced by Premier William Davis resulted from an "11th-hour panic to retrieve public favor" prior to the Oct. 21 provincial election.

"For 25 days (since the election was called) the premier has said absolutely nothing on the economy except vaguely that it was in difficult shape."

Mr. Lewis told a news conference:

The NDP leader said the premier had derided the opposition parties during the campaign for offering economic policies and now "suddenly with 13 days to go in the Ontario election there's a wholesale conversion."

"I suspect that in the minds of the voters it is going to raise a very real credibility gap."

Mr. Lewis said he believes the Detroit-based polling firm hired by the Progressive Conservative party has advised the Tories to do something in the latter stages of the campaign "to pull them out of the fire."

Mr. Lewis said the premier's job proposals were deficient and that there was no mention of housing except for the promise to speed up Ontario Housing Corporation projects. He said housing construction is the greatest job-creating sector of the provincial economy.

He also noted there was no mention of help for Northern Ontario and no details on where Mr. Davis would get the $93 million in provincial funds to provide 41,800 jobs.

He said the premier had made a "tactical shift" and was placing the blame for sluggishness in the Ontario economy onto the federal government.

HULL, Que. (CP) — The leadership convention machinery of the Social Credit party grinds into action today seeking a new federal thrust for its newly-reunited organization.

Paul Hellyer, the former Liberal cabinet minister who quit his party to form the Action Canada political movement, is addressing the convention by invitation today.

News Briefs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Black Panther co-founder Huey P. Newton, back from a trip to Communist China and a meeting with Premier Chou En-lai, says he hopes President Nixon's forthcoming trip there leads to peace and "freedom of the oppressed peoples of the world." Newton returned Friday from his 10-day trip. He is free on $50,000 bail, awaiting his third trial to begin Tuesday in the shooting death of an Oakland, Calif., policeman in 1967.

EDMONTON (CP) — More than 20,000 students in eight districts north and west of the city were assured an extended Thanksgiving holiday Friday when 8,00 teachers took strike action in support of contract demands. However as the strike started, the teachers and the school boards involved said they were ready to resume talks. However, there was only a remote possibility the talks would be resumed during the long weekend and as of Friday the two sides said they could not agree on the major issue in the dispute.

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia Medical Association has adopted a formula that will be used to reduce high incomes of some of its members. It will be applied to doctors whose incomes, after they have been investigated by committees of their peers, are found to be "excessively high." Dr. F. W. Arber of North Vancouver, chairman of the BCMA's cost quality study committee, said Thursday. He said it could involve about two per cent of the associations 3,300 members at most.

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor General Jean-Pierre Goyer says the penitentiaries service will try to organize a program of conjugal visits for married prisoners. However, he added in an interview, that doesn't by far solve the problem in federal penitentiaries. "If the intention is to say any inmate should have normal sexual relations instead of, for example, illegal homosexual relations, then we should also pay attention to those who are unmarried."

Argentine Revolt Boiling

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Alejandro Lanusse ordered 10,000 infantrymen and a squadron of tanks to move today against rebel troops occupying a city south of Buenos Aires.

A government announcement said the loyal units would attack "with the first light of day."

The rebels, about 1,200 soldiers backed up with a dozen tanks, occupied the city of Azul Friday and demanded that Lanusse resign. One of the young lieutenant-colonels who sparked the coup attempt said in a radio broadcast: "We have the firm conviction not to surrender and to fight to the end."

* * *

"The people have lost confidence and faith in Lanusse," said the broadcast from a private radio station taken by the rebels without violence.

Some observers saw the government move as a show of force seeking to frighten the insurgents into laying down their arms, but they also noted that Lanusse had promised to crush the revolt.

The government announcement said the rebels were responsible for endangering "the lives and interests" of the 100,000 civilians living in Azul. It listed the loyal force as 3,200 soldiers supported by 46 tanks and 88 artillery pieces.

Airport Crews Slow Down

TORONTO (CP) — A "work-to-perfection" slowdown by union workers has intensified the usual Thanksgiving weekend crush at Toronto International Airport but an Air Canada spokesman said today: "It has not slowed down our operations at all."

The spokesman, Dennis Barclay of Air Canada public relations, was commenting on Air Canada ground employees working by the book to protest against delays in contract negotiations.

Monday, October 11 is Thanksgiving Day. The Intelligencer will not be published.

Ho-Hum Reaction

Russia Retaliates by Expelling Five

LONDON (CP) — The Kremlin's decision to expel four British diplomats and one businessman in retaliation for the recent mass expulsion of Russian officials from England has produced only ho-hum reactions in the foreign office here.

The Soviet move, announced Friday, had been expected by the British government. The only question was how many British officials would be forced to leave Russia and how soon.

One leading foreign office spokesman said the only surprising aspect of the Russian reaction was the decision to cancel a visit which British Foreign Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home hoped to make to Russia next year.

British sources say three British businessmen who hold valid Soviet visas also will not be allowed to enter Russia in future.

An additional 19 Britons, not in the Soviet Union at present, have been declared prisona non grata and will be denied re entry.

Th Soviet action followed by two weeks Britain's expulsion of 90 Russian officials and London's decision to refuse re-entry to 15 others. All those expelled now have left London.

A note handed to Britain's newly-appointed ambassador in Moscow, Sir John Killick, by the Soviet foreign office said the Kremlin was forced to retaliate to "intensification of the atmosphere of spy mania and hostility to the Soviet Union."

Britain alleges that all Soviet officials expelled from here have been engaged in spy activity.

Some observers said British officials are likely to be relieved that Russia did not take even more drastic retaliatory action.

British intelligence forces are reported to be continuing their search for other Soviet agents engaged in espionage here.

The Kremlin declared Friday that future relations between Moscow and London "solely depends on the British."

The Soviet foreign ministry also cancelled the November visit to Britain of Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev.

Sir John told reporters after receiving the foreign ministry note that he "emphatically rejected the basis given for the Soviet action which was that members of my embassy had engaged in activity not compatible with their official status. I know this not to be true."

Sir John described his 45-minute meeting with Vasily Kuznetsov, first deputy foreign minister, as "calm," and added: "I would describe the measures as severe in nature."

Pitman Faces Quinte Students

Following in the footsteps of many politicians across the province, New Democratic Party deputy leader Walter Pitman went to Quinte Secondary School Friday morning for a bear pit session.

"This is the first time political leaders have had the opportunity to enter schools," he told the approximately 1,000 students who gathered in the school gym-assembly hall.

Mr. Pitman, the greying, 42-year-old member of the provincial legislature for Peterborough County, said government leaders must become increasingly aware of the youth across Ontario. Not only are there thousands of young people now on the voter's list, but with the recent surge in unemployment, the jobless figures can be found primarily in the 14-to-24 age bracket, he said.

But young people are not solely concerned with votes and jobs.

"You are penalized if you drive a car because you are young. We think this unfair and unjust."

Repeating his party's suggestions, he said the government could regulate the 200-odd commercial insurance companies who sell car policies. At the same time, he said an NDP government system could "pay back 80 to 90 cents on every dollar".

Concern for youth hostels and other youth services should become a major issue, he told the senior students at Quinte.

"You now have a very real opportunity to go out and work for the party you believe in. I hope you do get turned on because it directly affects the quality of life in your community, your society and your Ontario."

Answering questions concerning foreign ownership, Mr. Pitman predicted Canada would become a depressed country with an economy similar to the Appalachian Valley in the States, if the U.S. ever gained control of our country.

"We would become a spare parts economy."

The Trent University associate professor of Canadian history said his party is concerned that American "predits go back across the border".

"We should keep capital in Ontario, Canadians end up investing in the U.S. and this money is used by the Americans to buy up more of Canada."

Mr. Pitman vehemently denied that the government would sell natural resources if the need should arise.

"We will not allow any further export of these resources, especially water." He said what is needed are proposals of how much energy Canadians need for the future.

On the question of youth having a strong voice in the running of their universities, the visiting NDP candidate, education critic for his party in the legislature, agreed that "students should have a say. We have to begin a dialogue and get students involved in discussing what they will learn.

"Schools should have a council which includes students, parents, teachers, headed by their principals."

The future of large, all-powerful county boards of education would dwindle. "The only real democracy for the future is to put power in the schools," Mr. Pitman noted.

And on the same topic of power structure, the visiting candidate for Peterborough repeated party policy when he referred to "storefront politics and open books."

This is the only method in which people can gain confidence in government and country. "The idea has to end where the MPP is elected and you don't see him for the next four years. This has got to stop."

If more reins of power are turned over to local municipalities, Mr. Pitman added, "that's how to solve corruption."

Pollution is a topic most often dealt with at these student - politician rallies and Quinte Secondary was no exception.

"People did not really have concern for pollution until the past five years and solving this problem is a matter of muscle." In referring to Sudbury's barren wastelands, Mr. Pitman related past early-walks made by U.S. astronauts who had been looking for treeless landscapes much like the surface of the moon on which to practice.

He said laws which have been on provincial statute books for the past 20 years, have to be enforced, or companies such as International Nickel will continue "spewing chemicals all over the Sudbury basin, destroying trees and water."

Asked why these laws have not been enforced, Mr. Pitman replied, "you are asking me a question you should be asking the government in power." He cited the case of the Dontar organization that was fined $345 one day, for pollution violations, and were given a $500,000 forfeitable loan from the government the next day.

Mr. Pitman supported the government's position on the Spadina Expressway, which he referred to as "the ditch." "We can't allow the car to destroy neighborhoods and split cities. This concept was wrong to begin with," and he offered the NDP recommendations of mass public transportation systems, as a solution.

On the topic of women's liberation, after one student said that while attending the NDP federal rally in Ottawa, she had been given the distinct impression that women played a second fiddle role, the provincial party deputy leader replied, "there are more women running for the NDP party than any other party."

"I don't see the problem in that sense," he added, reminding the mini-skirted teenager that "we've gone out of our way to encourage women in politics. If we formed a government in this province, they would be given a role in the government."

Asked if fines for pollution would cut down further on employment levels, Mr. Pitman stated that the offending companies who have established pollution standards were not placed in a precarious position by doing so. He added, simply creating more goods would not help the economy at all. Overloads of goods drive prices down.

The final question in the 45-minge session, asked by student Brenda Symons, dealt with the Canada-Indian situation.

To this question, Mr. Pitman replied, "it's time to give the Indian an opportunity to say what they want." Native Canadians should be given the choice of selecting modern or old-culture ways of life, he said.

"We need to provide them with a structure to provide policy to help these Indians make decisions for themselves," he assured the gathered young people.

Dr. R. T. Potter, Conservative candidate for Quinte and Ontario cabinet minister addressed students at Manitoulin Secondary School during a flying visit to the island yesterday. With the school librarian and two students he discussed bus routes, some 38 miles long, and late buses, a situation common to both the island and Hastings county.

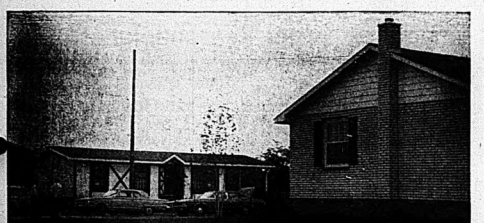
Santa Claus Needs Help

TRENTON (Staff) — If the downtown merchants do not cooperate in this regard, Santa Claus may not come to town.

Chamber of Commerce manager Jack Wilson said today Nov. 15 to give $15 to the annual Santa Claus Parade fund, adding that if sufficient funds are not accumulated the parade will be called off.

Mr. Wilson said he did not anticipate any difficulty in raising the money for the event because a number of commerce committee has already started to work on the project.

He indicated the hard line of fund raising being taken by the chamber is necessary because at times the chamber ends up footing much of the expense for projects here and this cannot be afforded now.



Trenton's Santa Claus Parade will be held Nov. 27. It is expected to follow the traditional parade route from the Dominion store to St. Peter's Church.

City police have asked the co-operation of the public in locating April Dawn Cota, 14, of Canniffton Road reported missing from her home Sept. 19.

She was wearing either a blue or maroon sweater, blue jeans, brown shoes, a shoulder-type brown purse, several rings on her fingers and a Timex wristwatch.

Running Jump Was A Long Step

TRENTON (Staff) — The first phase of Canada's largest military exercise in seven years finished Thursday with the last of 2,000 troops and 225 vehicles being airlifted to Fredericton, N.B.

Exercise Running Jump has kept CFB Trenton active around the clock since September 25 with Hercules aircraft from 436 Squadron flying out every hour on the hour. More than 500 individual flights have been logged by the six planes from the Trenton squadron involved in the airlift.

Eighty-five per cent of the resources of Mobile Command are committed in the exercise — a test of the forces' capability to fulfil obligations to the defence of NATO's northern flank. In the war games at Camp Gagetown a conflict is now raging between troops from two mythical countries.

Getting two of the 5,000 troops to the New Brunswick battle ground has been the job of Trenton's 436 Squadron and after 1,300 hours, the work is done.

In the last few weeks, portions of the Royal Canadian Regiment and a service battalion from Petawa, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry from Winnipeg, even a complete field hospital have been flown to Gagetown.

A 424 Squadron Buffalo from Trenton is now serving in the exercise field supporting the forces and handling light transport duties. Before the airlift formally began, 424 Buffalo also flew two flights a day from September 10 moving battle command headquarters units down to Fredericton as well as communications specialists from the signal corps.

As a sidenote to the exercise, the food services branch at CFB Trenton has been operating on a 24 - hour - a - day basis preparing an additional 5,000 in-flight meals, 4,000 more in the canteens and messes and 2,000 box lunches for the transient troops passing through Trenton over and above the 45,000 meals that are normally prepared here in such a period.

In the next few days the entire airlift cycle will be reversed as Trenton places start moving the forces back to their home bases. This there will be finished October 22.

Kenny LORDC Representative

Quinte Planning Board Thursday appointed planning director Bert Kenny to be representative on the planning department of the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council.

Because of its involvement in research and planning for Prince Edward, Northumberland and Durham, Haliburton, Victoria, Peterborough and Lennox and Addington, LORDC general manager Donald W. Kinglon requested the board elect a member.

Local Firm Is Awarded Contract

Stephens-Adamson here has been awarded the contract for equipment at the new Canada Cement Lafarge Ltd. in Bath opened in Bath in 1973.

Two contracts, totalling $1.5 million, contract to complete the material handling system, starting from the raw limestone in the pits to the finished cement loaded into barges.

A spokesman at Stephens-Adamson said the contracts will "go a long way" toward enabling the plant to maintain its present employment rate. It now employs about 350 people.

Production of the equipment will begin early in 1972.

Earlier in the summer, Stephen-Adamson was awarded a contract for the blending and reclaiming system at the cement plant, worth about $600,000.

Another order of about $900,000 was received recently for belt conveyors, part of a handling system for the raw, processed and finished materials.

The equipment will be installed at Bath late in 1972.

Hees Calls For Curbs

In a state of the nation address Thursday, U.S. President Richard Nixon said, "we will continue with wage-price restraints in an attempt to curb national inflation to 2.3 per cent a year, which should happen by the end of this year."

"The affect of this program could be monstrous if our national inflation increases more quickly than the United States, due to our high export rate to our southern neighbors," said George Hees, MP for Prince Edward - Hastings.

In a reply to the wage-price restraints, Mr. Hees said:

"Canadians rely heavily on exports for their standard of living and Canada sells 70 per cent of its exports to the United States market. If we are to have any chance of remaining competitive in that market, our price cannot rise faster than prices in the United States. If we do not match their efforts to control inflation, our prices will rise faster than theirs; our sales in the United States markets will decrease; and unemployment in Canada will rise proportionately. We therefore have no alternative but to at least match the United States program for controlling inflation which was announced by President Richard Nixon last night, and the Canadian government must announce such a program without further delay.

Mother and Litter Are Doing Well

A wayward charge belong ing to Mrs. Diane Baptiste of RR1, Deseronto, has returned to home stomping grounds.

On Sept. 22, one of the York Road families' sows disappeared and because of her oncoming precarious condition, Mrs. Baptiste was worried. She asked OPP officers to keep an eye open for the hog during her wanderings.

Reported to police yesterday, mother and litter are the ing fine.

"Mrs. Baptiste is more than happy over the results," one officer said.

Neptune Theatre Coming to Town

A well-known tourist attraction of the Maritimes, the Neptune Theatre of Halifax will present The Servant of Two Masters, a comedy by Carlo Goldoni in Belleville on November 2 and 3 at Centennial Secondary School.

Co-sponsored by the Quinte Arts Council and Auto Haus Bell/Trac Ltd., this will be the first public performance here by a professional drama company since the Canada Players staged Murder in the Cathedral in 1966.

As a special service to the schools, the Quinte Arts Council is also sponsoring a student show at 1 p.m. on Wednesday November 3 at Centennial School. This show, however, will not be open to the public.

In announcing the program, Robert Sherrin, artistic director of Neptune Theatre said that before coming to Belleville, The Servant of Two Masters will initiate the English theatre season at the National Arts Centre, Ottawa.

Mr. Sherrin is already known to some members of the Belleville Theatre Guild because in 1966 he conducted workshops here in acting and voice production.

The Servant of Two Masters is a 16th century comedy described as family entertainment, complete with the elements of star - crossed romance and mistaken identity. Neptune's version of this Italian play is the North American premiere of a new adaptation by David Turner.

The cast will include such well-known actors as Tony Van Bridge, one of North America's most widely respected actors and Douglas Chamberlain, known nationally for his stage and television performances.

Clinic Sought For Cloyne Area

NORTHBROOK (Special) — A new family physicians' clinic will be opened in Northbrook school if plans can be finalized.

The Get-the-Doctor Committee in the Cloyne-Northbrook area has obtained funds from the Physicians' Services Incorporated Foundation to provide medical service to this area over a three-year period.

Negotiations are continuing between the citizens committee and Dr. Richard Milne of Kingston. Dr. Milne and a group of doctors have been operating a successful clinic in Parham for the past two years.

Time Marches On

"It was now the beginning of winter, and I never saw a more cheerless prospect." Thus wrote the young Charles Darwin of the far southerly latitudes of Tierra del Fuego. As a naturalist aboard the hydrographic survey vessel H.M.S. Beagle, Darwin first voyaged to the Strait of Magellan in 1834 and over a two-year period roamed widely by mule and horseback across South America. In such fashion he crossed the Andes in 1835.

As far away from the soft, unchallenging, society in which we live today, dominated by affluence, easy riding in automobiles, and the something-for-nothing psychology of those of our youth who prefer to thumb their way through life than to walk or work.

But more immediately Darwin's words, from that same National Geographic article by Alan Villiers to which we referred yesterday, remind us of the gradual descent into winter in these parts. In Darwin's case it was in June while here the season comes into its own by the end of the year. The effect though is the same, whatever the latitude, and when the naturalist talks of a "cheerless prospect" we know exactly what he means. But winter is not all bad, not interminably grim, even if it often appears thus. There is the saving grace of crisp, lovely days, with sun and blue sky and a snow-capped landscape.

Meanwhile autumn is reaching its peak, but there are still flowers in gardens and parks — and even a touch of Spring in the young love of what we are sure must have been a honeymoon couple in town the other day. She was slim, leggy, dark-haired and she wore a mauve sweater and matching miniskirt; he was dark too, with a mustache, and he matched his girl with a purple shirt and floppy slacks. They came out of their hotel and walked hand-in-hand around the block; she was listening intently to him as they walked along and the street might have been crowded but really they were the only ones there.

Well, what could be more appropriate than to have the hometown favorite win over 15 others from across the continent. Donna Sawicky did just that in being chosen Miss Oktoberfest North America at the University of Waterloo. She had already won the Kitchener-Waterloo crown Sept. 21.

The contest places the focus on the German-Canadian fraternity and for us, makes for some nostalgic reading as we absorb some enticing material from the German national tourist office in Montreal. Winter sports go over well in Germany and the tourist people say that in addition to skiing, opportunities abound in ice-skating, tobogganing, bobsledding, ice hockey, ice sailing, skijoring and ice-shooting and if anyone can tell us what the last two activities are we will be grateful.

On the North Sea and Baltic coasts we read on, and in the wide plains of North Germany you can even climb over mountains of ice like an Arctic explorer; and in the marshlands, behind dikes, villagers will invite you to join in a game of curling. Or you can watch racing along frozen rivers from one town to the next.

There is something for every taste, from walking and climbing and guided mountain tours around Berchtesgaden and Oberstdorf, to such facilities as the beauty farm in Garmisch-Partenkirchen, reported recently opened after extensive renovation. Here the ladies may have treatment to give renewed beauty, charm and health.

Truly, a wide variety of activities may be enjoyed in Bavarian settings. We have heard this region mentioned often by a teacher friend in Lakefield who regularly takes to the mountains with his students. It is the kind of terrain we lack in this part of Ontario and we cannot help feeling envious.

A Warning Note

Half of the more than 40,000 poisonings reported annually in Canada involve household substances. This is one of the chilling pieces of information from the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs in connection with the new Hazardous Products Act.

The information is also contained in a leaflet issued by supermarkets, and notes for example that products such as bleaches and cleansers, when mixed together, may give off a poisonous gas. Glues, dyes and floor polishers, moreover, contain chemicals that can, if misused, injure people. An aerosol tin, if heated, can explode.

We hope as a result that the public will be more careful in this regard and warn children in particular of the dangers. Older children should be shown how to read the new labels and of course all such products should be kept out of the reach of younger children.

Government "A Conspiracy of Arrogant Men"

Stanfield Sheds Image of Sweet-Reasonableness

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You have to remember what the "Quiet Man" was like when the Conservatives named him national leader to know just what a cutting edge the last four parliamentary years have honed on Robert Stanfield.

If you have not seen and heard him as I have — on the shadow image on television does not really bring out the razor sharpness — you would not believe it was the same once so low-key man.

The very slice and slash of Stanfield could cut quite an election swath in the coming federal campaign.

Watch him as he comes alive at a luncheon meeting the other day of Ottawa's Confederation Club.

Listen to him as he hews and hacks away at what he calls the Liberal creed of "the divine right to rule."

The country, says Stanfield, is not only over its Trudeaumania fever, but is now suffering a touch of "Trudeauphobia," caused by a prolonged diet of Liberal meringue and whipped cream and a "desperate craving for some good solid Conservative meat and potatoes."

The Government, laments Stanfield, went into office in 1963 [illegible] and has been going downhill ever since. Was it the [illegible] tag clutch of expanding ministries [illegible] catching at cross purposes?

Not bad for starters, eh, especially for a "Quiet Man" who initially was so utterly "reasonable," he was willing to give the Government "every chance" — even second chances with a recount when the Liberal administration went down to defeat in a vote in the House of Commons.

But no more of that.

Instead, he puts the emphasis on Trudeau alone at shrill pan-ish the Prime Minister most mercilessly, his pride, his ego, his sense of self-excellence.

"Canada," charts Mr. Stanfield — Stanfield, with corrosive acidity, "deserves better than a Government that likens its failures en-dlighning handy [illegible] blames the people for inflation . . . the weather for economic [illegible] . . . the service demands of the taxpayers for their taxes . . . and the Opposition for the administration's own inefficiency in Parliament."

Can this be the "Quiet Man," dedicated to sweet political reason?

It is none other, and listen to him as he lays on the lash. . . .

"This Government has shown contempt for the jobless, contempt for the taxpayers, contempt for Parliament, and in refusing that payment of $20 million owed to farmers under an Act of this House of Commons, a contempt for the law of the land."

"This Government clearly is a conspiracy of arrogant men who hold themselves above Parliament, the people and the law [illegible] leading an example of lawlessness in setting aside the democratic process by even shrine the divine right of Liberals."

Getting down to specifics, Stanfield talks of Government inaction on unemployment.

"Where does he [illegible] station stand in the job crisis? [illegible] is [illegible] stand in line with the unemployed to see what their needs are. He need it stands on his head. Instead he stands on his own two feet and [illegible] stands on his own two feet and calls his head. Instead he stands on his own two feet and calls his head. Instead he stands on his own two feet and calls his head. Instead he

Affluent Dropouts Said Forerunners of Significant Trend

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three years ago Dan Dinello wanted to be a philosophy teacher when he graduated from the University of Illinois. Instead, he is a janitor.

Jeffrey Plack, a 21-year-old San Franciscan, studied premed at Berkeley, then graduated as a history major, Class of '71. Today, he's a machinist.

John Blumberg of Orange, N.J., is a Lehigh alumnus with a master's degree in engineering. Recently, he gave up a $14,000-a-year civilian job with the U.S. Navy and plans to buy a farm in Canada.

Why do these college-educated Americans choose to labor with their hands? What satisfaction do they find in swinging a mop or feeding metal into a machine or tilling the soil?

"Freedom is important to me," Dinello said.

"I realized I'd never get along with the AMA," said Plack, referring to the American Medical Association.

If you're not learning anything in your job, it's not worth anything," said Blumberg.

While most college graduates still follow traditional career patterns, others are opting for a life in which all-to-wall appliances do not define a man's success, and security has little to do with income. These dropouts from the affluent society hardly form a corporal's guard, but sociologists and college officials view them as the forerunners of a significant trend.

For most, the jobs are temporary, a romantic fling until the job market improves. A handful view the change as permanent.

"Having more money than your parents does not necessarily make your life better," Dinello said. "If I really wanted to be a philosophy professor, I'd go ahead and be one."

So five days a week, the 24-year-old Dinello hitch-hikes from his three-room apartment in Madison, Wis., to the University of Wisconsin where he mops floors from 10 p.m. until dawn for $80 a week.

"It gives me eight hours to think," said Dinello.

Plack said his job on the production line of a machine company gives him time "to daydream, to fantasize."

He said the $67.50 a week he earns "is plenty to cover my expenses."

Blumberg, who is 27 and has held down an engineer's job for three years, said he wants "to try and find out what's a necessity and what isn't."

So, he said, he's sold his sailboat and motorcycle and is trading in his car for a cheaper model.

"With the realization that you don't need these things, I won't miss them as much," he said.

Blumberg hasn't bought a farm yet, though he said he has "some money—not enough to live on forever" and plans to pick a site in Canada because land is cheaper there.

It's not the income, status or job which is important, said Blumberg, who has never farmed, but "a life where there's really a purpose, where what you do tomorrow might make a difference in what you eat."

While the percentage of college graduates turning to manual labor is small, college placement officers say it is symbolic of a shift of values among today's students.

"Many have seen a kind of bankruptcy and hypocrisy in their parents' lives and are dissatisfied with their own social models," said Robert J. Ginn, placement counsellor at Harvard University.

"The feeling many of them have when they graduate is that they can read Merleau-Ponty (an existential French philosopher), but they can't fix a doorlock. They want to be self-sufficient. They want to get away from the traditional career in a competitive, profit-making situation."

France Passes Father Law

PARIS (Reuter) — A controversial law that could result in an illegitimate child's being allotted several fathers —each paying child support— has been approved by the French National Assembly.

The new measure, the main aim of which is to upgrade the legal status of illegitimate children, enables a French judge to designate as father each and every male who had sexual relations with an unmarried mother during the conception period.

The assembly adopted the law in an overnight session marked by stormy debate.

The law leaves it to a judge to "appoint" a likely father—or fathers—when absolute medical proof of paternity cannot otherwise be established.

Canada Adopts Multi-Culturalism as National Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — The melting pot was junked officially Friday as Prime Minister Trudeau committed the government to support the preservation and development of Canada's many ethnic cultures.

Mr. Trudeau described the policy as one of "multi-culturalism within a bilingual framework."

He told the Commons in a statement that "although there are two official languages, there is no official culture, nor does any ethnic group take precedence over any other."

He said much money the government is prepared to put behind the new policy is not yet established.

At a news conference later, however, Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier promised that "a very substantial sum" will be available to fund a variety of programs.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield suggested cultural minorities may not have much to hope for in view of the government's past record of assistance of Indians and Eskimos.

He was also critical of the long delay which followed the release in April, 1970, of the fourth report of the royal commission on bilingualism and bicultralism which recommended assistance for the cultural development of the "other" ethnic groups in Canada.

Had the government reacted more quickly, he said at a news conference, it might have "eliminated some of the suspicion about its bilingualism program."

Speaking in the Commons, Mr. Trudeau claimed the new policy "should help to break down discriminatory attitudes and cultural jealousies.

"National unity, if it is to mean anything in the deeply personal sense, must be founded in confidence in one's own individual identity."

To promote such a development, he said, the government will provide grants for ethnic cultural projects, citizenship programs and multi-cultural meetings.

A one-year research inquiry into the role language plays in the preservation of cultural identity by various ethnic groups. Little now is known of the relationship, and the government hopes to use the research data as a basis for future programs.

—Extension of the financial support now given by Ottawa to English and French courses for adult immigrants to similar training for their children. The move should ease the cost burden on school boards which have special language programs for newly-arrived pupils.

—Meetings with provincial education officials to discuss development of teaching aids, particularly textbooks, for third-language courses in Canadian schools.

Referring to the new assistance to be made available for immigrant children, Mr. Trudeau said he has already written to provincial premiers asking for their co-operation.

Ireland Holds Political Dialogue

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (Reuter) — A delicate new phase appears to be unfolding in Ireland's struggle to come to terms with its turbulent history.

For the first time, a continuing dialogue aimed at political reconciliation is in progress among all three governments concerned with ending bloodshed and violence in Northern Ireland.

The search for a peace formula is hazardous, beset by difficulties rooted in history and conducted against a background of bombs and bullets.

Many observers view the present three-way process of contacts and consultation as a last hope of averting anarchy or civil war.

The latest stage in negotiations began with the two-day summit meeting in late September among the prime ministers of Britain, Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic—the first tripartite top level talks since 1925.

Prime Ministers Edward Heath of Britain, Brian Faulkner of Northern Ireland and Jack Lynch of the largely Roman Catholic republic concluded their 10 hours of talks without reaching any solutions. But their meetings were friendly and they agreed to go on talking.

The decision to hold further tripartite sessions was regarded as one of the few hopeful signs in a situation darkened by a growing threat from the outlawed Irish Republican Army, which is pledged to achieve the reunification of Ireland by violent means if necessary.

The IRA itself is split between the traditional (more moderate) wing and the more militantly extremist Provisionals. But it has spearheaded bombings and shootings in bloodstained Ulster, where more than 100 persons have died since August, 1969, when violence flared following civil rights demonstrations.

Basically, the Northern Ireland conflict arises from the apparently irreconcilable nature of its two communities—a one-million-strong Protestant majority that has held the reins of power for 50 years, and the Roman Catholic minority of 500,000 people who say they have always been treated as second-class citizens.

The Protestants say they could hardly share power with people who want to end Northern Ireland's links with Britain, which they cherish, and reunite Ireland, divided since 1921. The Protestants would also become a minority in an all-Irish republic, losing many of their privileges.

Nixon Runs Afoul of Unions

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon's plan for economic controls to fight inflation following the 90-day wage-price freeze appeared to be facing trouble with powerful union leaders today.

Union co-operation in the plan is vital. Labor is to provide five members of the pay board, a key feature of the plan, which will make sure wage settlements do not start a new upward spiral of inflation. The other 10 members of the board will be split between managements and the public.

But Friday two top union leaders—George Meany, chief of the AFL-CIO, and Leonard Woodcock, head of the giant Auto Workers Union—expressed serious reservations over the powers of the board on which both had been expected to serve.

Meany said that interpretations of the president's program given to labor officials differed from those later given to reporters in a briefing.

The 77-year-old union leader said in a statement that the interpretations raised serious questions that he believed had to be explored thoroughly by labor leaders.

He announced he was calling a meeting of the AFL-CIO executive council to discuss the question Tuesday. The meeting also will be attended by Woodcock and Teamsters Union leader Frank Fitzsimmons.

Labor officials said the administration had indicated the wage board would be free to act independently.

At a news briefing, however, administration officials made it clear the board would be subject to a White House veto if the board's guidelines were not having the desired effect of keeping inflation down to between two and three per cent in 1972.

Woodcock declared bluntly to reporters: "If the board is going to be subject to veto in the determination of policy, procedures, or whatever, then I doubt if any responsible member of American labor will serve on it, I would not."

Wage, Price Controls Not Needed Yet: Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Friday it would not be appropriate to impose wage and price controls in Canada "at the present time."

He told reporters, however, that such controls could become necessary if inflation became worse.

Mr. Benson also said he has no idea when the United States will remove its 10-per-cent additional tax on imports.

The minister was commenting mainly on President Nixon's economic statement Thursday night.

George Hees, Conservative MP for Prince Edward-Hastings and former trade minister, said if prices continue to rise in Canada it will become even more difficult to sell to the U.S. and more unemployment will be created in this country.

Davis' Low Key Campaign Switches to High Gear for Last 13 Days

TORONTO (CP) — The inherent advantage enjoyed by any government in contesting an election campaign was much in evidence this week with Ontario only 13 days away from a general election.

Premier William Davis departed abruptly from his "no promises" strategy to issue a series of announcements Friday topped by a two-part plan to relieve unemployment.

The first part consisted of a suggestion to Ottawa and the other provinces that their upcoming economic conference consider cuts in personal income tax, now planned for 1974, be moved up to January, 1972, to stimulate the economy.

The second part was a promise of a $3-million provincial program of public works and construction which would create about 42,000 jobs in the province this winter.

Liberal leader Robert Nixon and New Democrat Stephen Lewis immediately criticized the Conservative premier for leaving his job proposals to such a late date, and then using them as an election ploy.

Mr. Nixon said, "particularly bitter" because, he said, many of the Davis proposals were made by the Liberals weeks ago and the premier now is making political capital out of the employment crisis.

Mr. Lewis denounced the premier for saying "absolutely nothing" about the economy for the first three weeks of the campaign and then acting in an "11th-hour panic to retrieve public favor" before the Oct. 21 vote.

However, Premier Davis did say at the outset of the campaign that although he would have few promises to make there could be several announcements" before election day.

And that is where a ruling party has the advantage in a campaign: Its leader can announce where the opposition parties can only propose.

Premier Davis made his first announcements Sept. 13, the same day he called the election. They concerned the exemption of senior citizens from medical-care payments and financial aid to Ontario book publishers.

Mr. Davis did little in the way of active campaigning in the first week, and opened his formal campaign Sept. 21 with an appeal to the electorate to return the Tories on their record.

Since then, Tory strategy has been very much a low-key, meet-the-people approach aimed at making Mr. Davis familiar to the voters as a premier, rather than an education minister as he was prior to March 1.

During this part of the campaign — which Mr. Lewis branded a "presidential tour" — the premier spoke only generally on the issues.

With "Friday's major statements the Tory campaign is entering a new phase with the voters about to hear a whole raft of announcements."

Mr. Davis took the opportunity Friday to issue an "itinerary" for the coming week which provided as much hard news for reporters as any of his campaign forays.

In it, he said he would announce Tuesday some "visionary, exciting and realistic" proposals from Buckminster Fuller, the American creator of the geodesic dome, on how to use a section of the Spadina expressway which the government has decided should not be completed.

On Wednesday, he has promised an analysis of the cost of his opponents' campaign promises. One party platform has been costed at $2 billion "and we are still couting."

More economic policy will be announced Thursday; Friday will be devoted to detailing a program for youth and next Saturday will boast a statement on "government re-organization.

"This will take us to the week of Oct. 17, which is the week of the election . . ." the premier notes.

Granted, these policies will be put into effect only if Mr. Davis is returned to power.

But as the election draws near it can only be of benefit to a party leader to be able to issue his promises in a statement carrying the heading:

"Statement by the Honorable William Davis, prime minister of Ontario."

Shulman Says 'Vicious Campaign' Being Waged Against Him

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman said Friday he has complained personally to Premier William Davis about the "vicious campaign of hatred" the Progressive Conservatives are waging against him in Toronto High Park riding.

The controversial New Democratic Party incumbent in the west-end constituency blamed the Tory campaign organization of candidate Yuri Shymko and said he telephoned Premier Davis with details earlier this week.

"It's been an awful campaign in this riding," Dr. Shulman said in an interview. "My canvassers have had their lives threatened, I've had a brick tossed through my car window, and hundreds of my election signs have been torn down and stolen.

"We've been getting ugly telephone calls at the office. I've had to hire a team of detectives to catch the sign thieves. The Conservatives are going around telling everybody I'm a Communist. It's been a nasty, dirty business."

Dr. Shulman said he is satisfied that Premier Davis "knows nothing about what's going on here because he isn't that kind of man," and the problem lies at the riding level rather than with the provincial Tory organization.

A shocked and visibly disturbed Mr. Shymko flatly denied all Dr. Shulman's allegations. He said the New Democrat's charges were motivated by "fear and panic" over the possibility of losing High Park in the Oct. 21 Ontario general election.

"I have nothing but the highest respect for Dr. Shulman as a man," said the 31-year-old Ukrainian-Canadian high school teacher. "In my opinion, he's the furthest thing from a Communist and I can hardly believe he would resort to filthy muckraking tactics such as these.

"I would be an idiot to do these things he alleges. These sort of accusations victimize both of us and the people who live in the riding as well. I am emotionally broken by these charges."

Dr. Shulman said two of his canvassers infiltrated a meeting of Tory canvassers at Mr. Shymko's headquarters a few days ago.

The NDP candidate declined to release details of what his infiltrators told him. He would only say that the report dealt with a Tory organizer's instructions to Conservative workers on what tactics to use against Shulman had resorted to spying on his campaign organization.

"If I had any evidence at all that any of my people were involved in activities of this type, I'd fire them on the spot."

Mr. Shymko said Dr. Shulman has been going around the riding telling people "that I've imported 5,000 Ukrainian-Canadians from all over Ontario to canvass for me."

"The truth is that I have 56 people working for me."

Mr. Shymko added that he grew up in German-occupied Poland, lived through the destruction of Dresden and the post-war DP camps, and thereby earned an appreciation of fair play and the democratic process.

"I've never been in politics before This is my first campaign and I'm being hit with every dirty trick in the book. If this is politics, I don't want it."

The High Park riding, with about 40,000 eligible voters, is about 50 per cent Anglo-Saxon and 50 per cent ethnic minorities, mainly of Eastern European extraction.

Dr. Shulman first won the seat in the 1967 election with a plurality of 6,275 votes, one of the strongest NDP finishes in the province.

In addition to Mr. Shymko, Dr. Shulman is opposed by Liberal Laima Svegzda, a vivacious 23-year old student given little chance of upsetting him on Oct. 21.

THE FRUITS OF FALL

"In Autumn the last fruits turn mellow . . ."
— Herbert E. Palmer.

The Belleville Market Square on market days, now that it is Autumn, is a festive place to see.

Though "the cherry and clover are gone," the aroma of grapes, peaches and pears give the palate an anticipatory lift, while the colorful dahlias, asters, the bronze and yellows of marigolds delight the eye.

Yes the plant world has many clues — without having to glance at the calendar, — that, yes, definitely yes, Summer must go, and Autumn is coming and here. Just note little things like the Boston ivy, which slowly, slowly is turning to a deep wine-red. The birds. Their song is no more, many have left for the winter already. The evenings sounds. The rustle of tree-leaves is brisk and sharp.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Howard Moffatt (nee Creeggan) are pictured with the officiating clergymen, both great uncles of the bride, Very Rev. T. E. Downey (right) and Right Rev. J. B. Creeggan following their recent marriage in St. James the Apostle Church, Brampton.

Moffat – Creeggan

Two great uncles of the bride, Right Rev. J. B. Creeggan, formerly of Belleville assisted by Very Rev. T. E. Downey recently officiated at the wedding ceremony in St. James the Apostle Church, Brampton. The bride is the former Frances Lynn Creeggan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley A. Creeggan, while the bridegroom, Douglas Howard Moffatt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd J. Moffatt of Welland.

Robert Rist presided at the organ and played the traditional wedding music as well as accompanying the soloist Robert Back.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an Aline gown of matte satin with French chantilly lace yoke and long flared sleeves. Her headdress of matching material held in place a full length bouffant veil of silk illusion, edged with scalloped French lace and seed pearl trim. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses with rust daisies and white pompom mums.

Mrs. Joan Smith (nee McConnell) of Belleville wore a floor length printed floral chiffon gown over spring green material with matching green sash. Flowerettes adorned her hair and she carried a bouquet of white and rust Shasta daisies with yellow roses. Bridesmaids Miss Jayne Creeggan and Miss Lori Creeggan, sisters of the bride and Miss Betty Moffatt, sister of the bridegroom were dressed identically to the matron of honor.

Senior Citizens' Tea Successful

Fall decor and a large variety of home made goodies ranging from home baking and pin cushions to jellies and preserves made with home-grown fruit characterized the annual tea and bazaar held by the Senior Citizens group no. 94 held at Christ Church parish hall on Thursday afternoon.

All the items sold at the various tables were the handiwork of the members. Invitations had been sent to other senior citizens' groups in the area and busloads turned up from Madoc, Marmora and Carrollton, bringing the total number of guests to well over 200. Greeting guests at the door were Mrs. Kathleen Adams president, of the club and Mrs. Ada Acalee. In charge of door tickets were Mrs. Frank Bedell and Mrs. Elsie Jackson.

In keeping with the fall theme, the tables were appointed with brown, gold and white cloths with bouquets of fall flowers used as centrepieces. Tea was poured by Mrs. M. Taylor, Mrs. A. Sikes, Mrs. Irene Arnott, Mrs. A. Thurston Mrs. Edith Hanna, Mrs. L. Robinson and Mrs. Janet Gilroy. Tea room conveners were Mrs. G. Black and Mrs. J. MELROSE UCW

MELROSE — Mrs. Newton Demille was hostess for the September meeting of Melrose United Church Women. Seventeen women were present to take part in the discussion on the question of union with the Anglican Church.

Mrs. Charles Bates, Jr., was leader of the program and later in the meeting distributed pamphlets which were the first draft of the plan of union published in February 1971.

Several items of business were dealt with including the matter of requests for catering, all of the latter being accepted, the ball supper, wedding dinners for the Pascoe—Cosgrove bridal party and the Stratton — Way reception party.

The leader asked the members to make a study of the literature provided and stressed the importance of union is "the whole gospel for the whole world".

Refreshments were served by the hostess and social committee.

Pick up litter left by others. Don't leave it for somebody else to do.

WI Honors Couples At Potluck Meal

TWEED — A recent meeting of Chapman - Tweed Women's Institute was held in the form of a potluck dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, both celebrating their 50th wedding anniversaries this autumn.

The dinner was held in the basement of the Presbyterian Church, in Tweed, and many members and their husbands were present.

The head table was decorated with fall flowers and a beautiful anniversary cake.

After a delicious meal, the president, Mrs. William J. Woods, congratulated the couples and called on her committee members: Mrs. Harold Foster, Mrs. Samuel Dafoe, Mrs. Leslie Jardine, and Mrs. Milton Elliott. The ladies, at this time, presented each couple with a beautiful bag, let. Mr. and Mrs. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Elliott expressed their gratitude for the gifts and spoke of many happy memories of the past 50 years.

Mrs. Claude Barnett also offered congratulations. Mrs. Harold Foster called on Mrs. Albert McTaggart who gave two humorous readings.

Miss Elizabeth Gordon entertained with two of her favorite piano selections, Schubert's Serenade and The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise. She then played many of the old favorite songs and everyone joined in the singing.

A short business meeting was held following the dinner. It was decided to change the date of the next meeting to Wednesday, October 27.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

MELROSE WI

The September meeting of Melrose WI was held at the home of Mrs. Grant McLaren with all the officers and a number of members present to welcome the guest speaker, Miss Wilma Cassidy, a health nurse for the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward health unit.

A lengthy business period preceded the address and question and answer portion of the program.

A training school for a senior sewing class was announced for this month in the Branch. It was gratifying to hear of the numerous events and activities that the Institute have performed over the years.

In attendance was Mrs. Annie Milligan, Provincial board member for the area. She was also an ex-member of this branch. Mrs. Milligan gave an address and conveyed the congratulations and greetings of the Provincial board to the gathering.

Randall York then spoke briefly and thanked the women for their hospitality and delicious dinner. A pleasant evening of cards was then enjoyed by those wishing to participate.

BETA SIGMA PHI

The "round" meeting, in which this sorority is presented to prospective members, was held recently at the home of Mrs. G. Wishart.

Each member of the executive and each committee gave a resume of their responsibilities, to the invited guests.

It was announced by the social chairman, Mrs. A. Gray, that a preferential party will be held Oct. 26 at Mrs. N. Smith's home.

The chapter voted in favor of attending a play presented by the "Neptune Theatre" in place of a regular meeting Nov. 2.

After the business meeting, Mrs. A. Gray introduced Mrs. A. Gray who spoke on "Your Job Opportunities".

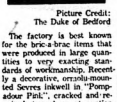
She was thanked by Mrs. Wishart.

Following the program, desserts were served by the hostess and co-hostess while Mrs. B. Bishop "poured."

During the social hour, members became acquainted with the guests, Mrs. D. Corre, Mrs. A. Boyd and Mrs. S. Deane.

Genuine Sevres Piece Extremely Valuable

On the 19th of August 1752, Eloi Brichard received from Louis XV a patent to manufacture "every kind of work or piece in porcelain, painted or not painted, gilded or not gilded, smooth or with raised pattern, in sculpture or in flowers" in a factory to be built for it in the village of Sevres. It was further decreed that the mark the porcelain was to bear was "a double L interlaced in the form of a monogram".



Not only did the King grant the patent but he also reserved one third of the profits for himself. A factory for porcelain already existed at Vincennes, In 1753 it was transferred to Sevres and in 1759 it himself took a personal interest, supported by Madame de Pompadour.

In 1759, Louis revoked Brichard's patent and took over the factory entirely. It was not a money making institution. The King subsidized it to the extent of almost 100,000 francs annually the equivalent of three million today.

Louis XVI inherited the factory and continued the personal interest in it. He ordered a service in 1783 which was delivered piece by piece. He kept his own record of delivery of each piece until he was executed. It appeared that the factory would close then but the payment of 96,000 francs owing by Catherine the Great kept it alive and a stable administration was appointed. The factory continued to complete Louis' service and finished the last piece in 1803 long after his death. Catherine's lavish payment enabled the factory to continue with the support of republican, emperor's and kings alike during the 19th century.

The early manufacturing period, supported by almost unlimited funds is characterized by the unerring taste of Madame de Pompadour prodigal articles of extreme beauty and virtuosity. There were many imitations, both at that time and subsequently. The genuine Sevres piece and frequently the imitation if well done, are extremely valuable.

Sevres was not always so precisely. In 1793 Louis XV sent a dinner service of 198 pieces to the Duchess of Bedford. The illustration shows one of the tureens. The gift was a subtle thank you to her husband for sorting out the Treaty of Paris which ceded Canada to Britain, among other things. Louis paid 18,774 livres for it. The Duchess was unimpressed and the elaborate service was found two hundred years later by the present Duke.

Picture Credit: The Duke of Bedford

The factory is best known for the pate-a-brae ornaments produced in large quantities to very exacting standards of workmanship. Revived by a decorative, ormolu-mounted Sevres inkwell in "Pompadour Pink", cracked and repaired, turned up at auction and brought almost £10,000.

Genuine Sevres pieces are clearly marked and are readily identified, including the year of manufacture. Even fakes as late as 1870 are valuable. Vases, cache-pots and pot-pourri jars of this period were meant to be looked at and not used. They are usually large, ornate and expensive. A modest price tag for any piece would be $250.

Danish Reader Appreciates Doris' Comments

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I finally got down to write you this note to tell you how much I enjoyed reading your nice, sensible articles about Denmark, which have appeared on several occasions in our paper.

I am Danish and it really gladdened my heart to see that somebody widely read like you seems to have fallen in love with our little pin prick of a country, which I love dearly. — Ruth J.

Dear Ruth J.: That makes two of us. From where I sit, the Danes have a lot going for them. Wish I could stroll into the Tivoli Gardens this very afternoon. Or sit in on a session at the International People's College.

* * *

Dear Doris: My 14th birthday is coming up but if you were to go by the way I'm treated it will be only about my fourth.

I have to go straight home from school. I can't even go to the store even though I could when I was 11. I asked why and my mother said I had changed. How? You can get pretty bored at my house from three to 10 at night.

Problem number two: My girl friend. There is a guy who likes me and when he stops to talk she wants to go on. Also she gets mad at me because when her brother is home she says I act strange and don't talk to him. What am I supposed to say? — Lost and Sad

Dear L. and S.: I know. All of a sudden you want to be grown-up, go where you want to, talk to a boy who meets you on the street.

I've got news for you: If you were suddenly to be given complete rights over your dating, walking, and boy-girl behavior, you couldn't handle it. These things have to come gradually.

Have you thought of helping your girl friend to feel included in the conversation when a boy stops you to talk?

Both your mother and the girl friend have noticed changes in you. If you can — all on your own — begin doing some grown-up, thoughtful things for your mother, she may change too. Try it!

Dear Doris: Please tell me if the indications in fashion are that black hose and shoes when worn with a pale blue are going to be high fashion this year? I have seen this combination in fashion magazines.

My legs are a little heavy, and I have purple spider veins particularly around my ankles. Hence my liking for dark hose. — Billie

Dear Billie: Dark, strong colors are good for fall. Also lacey hose and nose with various patterns in them, are going to be popular again.

With pale blue, you might use a pastel hose in a fairly opaque grey or blue tone, and a sheerer, lacey, dark style for dress wear. Shoes of a blue or grey tone, or even black patent, would go with these. I particularly like the idea of the patterned hose to disguise those spidery veins.

Talk it over with Doris. This Canadian social worker can shed new light on your problem.

Ann Landers

Theft of Flowers From Grave Common

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago marked the first anniversary of my mother's death. On that day I took an artificial floral offering and placed it on her grave. A few days later I returned to the grave, and to my astonishment the flowers were gone. The custodian told me this sort of theft is common, that drug users, desperate for anything they can convert into cash, come to the cemetery and take anything they can find. I asked if there was any way these dispicable ghouls could be kept out. He told me: "No—locked gate would keep every one out, and a custodian cannot tell by looking at a person whether he is a mourner or a thief." Is there a solution?—L.

Dear L.: I can think of no solution except a guard at the gate who might ask the name of the grave the visitor wants to visit. Your letter is one of the sorriest I have ever read. How tragic that a person would sink so low that he would steal flowers from a grave. This is the real tragedy.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: This chick has been my steady for four years. I make a good pay check and am not tight with the buck. We exchange gifts several times a year—birthdays, Christmas, Easter, Hallowe'en, St. Pat's (we're both Irishers) and like that. Three years ago I spent a wad on a piece of jewelry she didn't like. I couldn't take it back because I got it from a friend wholesale. She told me: "You're a nice guy but your taste is lousy. From now on give me the money and I'll buy what I want."

So, I've been doing just that. Now I have a hunch she hasn't been buying anything. Instead, she's quietly socking it away. She's got to have at least 200 bucks by now. Is this fair?—Hackles Up

Dear Hark: I think it's fair. If you don't like the idea, ask her to come along and help you select something she likes.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: All us cats at Omaha U. have a small beef. Lambie Pie. It's those adorable little names you tack on to the folks. We can all live without the chummy touch. In fact, it would improve your writing a whole lot. So cool the gooey handles, Baby, and just keep pourin' it on.—Gemini

Dear Gem: Thanks for the tip. I'll watch it. Chickadee.

The Original Green Tomato Pickle Recipe

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: My newspaper clipping of your green tomato pickle is yellow and frayed. I make it every year—you gave it when my daughter was born and now she is engaged. I think your other readers would like to see it — there are young wives in our village who are new to your column remember. — Sarah O'B

ANSWER: I am glad you gave me a nudge, Sarah. The date of the original Green Tomato Pickle was October 14, 1964.

GREEN TOMATO PICKLE

7½ lbs. (about 50 medium green tomatoes
6 large onions
¼ cup salt (but not iodized)
1 tbsp. mustard seed
1 tbsp. allspice (whole)
1 tbsp. celery seed
1 tbsp. whole cloves
1 tbsp. dry mustard
1 tbsp. peppercorns
½ lemon
3 sweet red peppers
2½ cups brown sugar
3 cups vinegar

Wash and slice tomatoes and peel onions very thinly and sprinkle salt over them in layers and allow to stand overnight. In morning drain thoroughly, rinse with cold water and drain well again. Tie all spices loosely in cheesecloth bag (including dry mustard); slice lemon thinly; remove stem and seed from peppers and slice thinly. Add spice bag and sugar to vinegar, bring to boiling, then add tomatoes, onions, lemon and peppers. Cook very gently for ½ hr., stirring frequently. Remove spice bag. Pack pickles in hot sterile jars and seal.

If you prefer a somewhat sour pickle reduce sugar by half.

Globe Executive Submits Bid to Bring Padres to Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — This city's dream of obtaining a major league baseball franchise has taken on a rosier hue.

R. Howard Webster, chairman of the board of The Globe and Mail, said Friday he has submitted a bid to purchase San Diego Padres of the National League.

Webster, who made two bids for the club in recent months despite the fact that Toronto does not have a stadium, did not reveal the value of his latest offer.

He said he expects to hear from Padres' director C. Arnholt Smith some time next week.

Toronto would be the second Canadian city with a major league baseball team if the deal was completed. Montreal Expos joined the National League during its 1968 xpansion the same year the Padres entered.

Webster said he is "acting alone but that "we may need a little help if our bid is successful."

He said he had discussed the problem of getting a stadium with Ontario Premier William Davis and hopes to delve into it with him again soon.

Premier Davis said Friday in Wiarton, Ont., where he is campaigning for the provincial election Oct. 21, that he had discussed baseball briefly with Webster during the summer.

"I know a little about it but no official plans about a stadium have been presented to the government," the premier said:

Smith, San Diego industrialist and banker, is co-owner of the Padres with E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi club president. The Smith and Bavasi groups each own 50 per cent of the Padres stock.

Bavasi said in San Diego Friday his organization received five offers of purchase last week, including at least one from Canada, but that he and Smith would prefer to keep the team in San Diego.

Bavasi has also said he declined an offer months ago to transfer the franchise to Dallas-Fort Worth, but that he would listen to offers out of "politeness." He has not put a price on the franchise.

Bavasi moved to San Diego from the Los Angeles Dodgers' organization in June, 1968. He was general manager of the old Montreal Royals, a Dodger farm club in the International League.

The Padres who finished last in the West Division of the National League, attracted only 540,000 fans this season. Attendance was 643,679 in 1970, up 130,709 from the first season of operations.

Weaver Feels Orioles Among Best in History

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles begin defence of their world championship today convinced they are the best team in baseball.

Now, all they have to do is convince Pittsburgh Pirates.

"They have a good ball club," conceded Danny Murtaugh, manager of Pittsburgh's underdog National League champions. "But I don't think there's any team stronger than the Pirates."

Earl Weaver, Orioles manager, figures his team is not only stronger than Pittsburgh, but ranks among the greatest teams in baseball history.

"I think we're as good a club as there has ever been assembled," contended Weaver. "We're the only club other than the Yankees to win four pennants in six years. This isn't a new dynasty. I believe it started in 1966."

That was the year the Orioles swept Los Angeles Dodgers in four straight games for their first world title. Slugger Boog Powell was on that team as well as the 1969 American League champs, last year's world champs and this year's club.

"I don't see how a ball club could be any better than this one," said Powell, who had his right hand heavily taped to protect torn fibres in the back of it. "The only thing that will help the hand is rest," he said, "and I don't have time to rest now."

Despite his painful injury, Powell ripped three home runs in Baltimore's playoff sweep against Oakland Athletics. And that's one of the reasons that Dock Ellis and Dave McNally, the opposing pitchers in today's opener, both expect a high-scoring series.

Ellis, a 19-game winner for the Pirates, surveyed Baltimore's Memorial Stadium Friday and solemnly predicted: "There's gonna be a lotta balls leaving here—on both sides."

McNally, who's learned to pay attention to Ellis' predictions, agreed: "It could be a hitter's series."

The laft time Ellis and McNally met was in spring training.

"He was using a whirlpool machine in our dressing room one day in camp," Ellis recalled. "I asked him, 'How do you win all these games?' He said, 'Oh, I just hold them to three or four runs.'

"I think I'll try that," Ellis told McNally. Then, as the Orioles left-hander was leaving the Pirates' room, Ellis hollered after him: "I'll see you in the World Series."

Murtaugh will follow Ellis with Bob Johnson, the last-minute starter and winner in the pivotal third game of the National League playoff against San Francisco Giants, for Sunday's second game against the Orioles.

"I'm pitching Johnson because of the outstanding job he did against San Francisco and because he pitched in this league last year and may be familiar with the Orioles," said Murtaugh.

The Pirates acquired Johnson in a winter inter-league trade with Kansas City Royals.

Murtaugh said when the Series shifts to Pittsburgh Tuesday he will start Steve Blass. The Orioles will counter with Jim Palmer against Johnson Sunday and Mike Cuellar again? Blass on Tuesday.

While he was liberal with his pitching information, Murtaugh was much more close-mouthed when it came to naming his starting lineup for today's opener.

"My decision is based on how I feel the morning of the game," said Murtaugh, who celebrated his 54th birthday Friday. "I just make up my lineup the way I feel. I always have and I always will."

Speculation centred on whether Murtaugh would bench centre fielder Al Oliver and third baseman Richie Hebner, heroes of the third playoff victory against the Giants. Both are left-handed swingers and Murtaugh often platoons them with Gene Clines and Jose Pagan against southpaws such as McNally.

"I know its against Series custom not to name your lineup," said Murtaugh, "but I'm sticking with my own custom."

Weaver, on the other hand, quite willingly released his starting lineup. The Orioles' batting order had Don Buford in left field, Merv Rettenmund in centre, Powell at first base, Frank Robinson in right field, Ellie Hendricks catching, Brooks Robinson at third, Dave Johnson at second, Mark Belanger at shortstop and McNally pitching.

Big Guns Due for Hits

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Robinson and Willie Stargell, who helped bat their teams to league championships, opened the World Series Saturday in hitting slumps.

"I don't know why everybody is making such a big thing over me not getting a hit against San Francisco," said Stargell, who was 0-for-14 as Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Giants for the National League pennant.

"I've gone longer than that before," Stargell said. "All I know is we won.

"I hit in the playoffs last year, and we lost. The fact that I didn't hit is secondary to winning.

Robinson contributed a run-scoring double in the third game of Baltimore Orioles sweep over Oakland Athletics, his only hit in 12 trips.

"I think that's the rule, rather than the exception," Robinson said Friday as Baltimore club held workouts at Memorial Stadium.

"The guys that play big roles in getting a club to the series usually don't do well in there," Robinson said. "It has nothing to do with pressure."

Robinson said the Athletics' pitched him differently in the playoffs than during the regular season.

"Still," he said, "I was fouling off or popping up pitches I should have hit."

Bringing Him to His Knees

Belleville Quinte's Lorne O'Donnell and George Godson (9) give Kingston goalie Mike Lovett some hard times during OHA Senior A game at Memorial Arena Friday night while Aces' playing-coach Tom Thurlby rushes into help. They didn't score on this play, but the Quintes opened their 40-game schedule with a come-from-behind 5-4 win over their perennial Eastern Ontario rivals.

Perras Spelled 'Goal' In First Quinte Game

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Paul Perras doesn't really care how his name is pronounced . . . just so long as it's spelled properly on the scoresheet.

It went down correctly three times Friday night, the most important occasion being at 15.31 of the final period as Belleville Quintes won their first game of the OHA Senior A schedule, a 5-4 verdict over Kingston Aces.

"It's actually pronounced 'Perasv'," the North Bay native grinned in the dressing room. "But I use 'Paris'."

The 1,468 paid customers who watched the first appearance of Belleville's new-look hockey entry had no special pronunciation preference particularly after the 20-year-old centre beat Kingston goalie Mike Lovett on the short side to cap a come-from-behind Quinte effort.

The play was set up by some dogged cornerwork by linemate Ray Johnston, who also fed Perras on a two-on-one break early in the second period. That was another big goal, coming after the Aces had run away with a 3-1 first-period edge.

"Ray really did all the work on those two goals," Perras praised. "We were both with Peterborough Petes for a while, before they traded him to Niagara Falls. I've been with Peterborough the past three seasons, but just missed being able to play junior by a couple of months this year."

Perras passed up a chance to go to Oakland Seals' training camp to finish his first-year course at Trent University while working part-time in a men's wear store.

Much of his three Junior A seasons were spent on "checking lines", but Perras' performance against the Aces belied that fact.

The five - foot - seven, 175-pounder also earned an assist on the second of Al Ferguson's three goals that sent the two teams into the final period tied 3-3.

Ferguson came up with another one of his demonstrations of the fine art of opportunism, clicking twice on Quinte power plays, and deflecting a point shot by Mike Rexe for another goal.

Coach Gene Poirier's little red book revealed that the burly right winger, who played on two all-Ontario juvenile championship teams for the new Belleville senior hockey pilot, was on the ice for all five Quinte goals, and absent for all four Kingston scoring plays.

Defensive miscues led to first period Kingston goals by Pete Lollar, Al Duncan, and John Mercer.

Bob Clayton's third period power-play goal tied the score at 4-4 less than a minute before Perras got his game-winner.

In between, sensational goaltending by Steve Rexe kept the Quintes in the game. Rexe particularly held the fort in the second period in which the Quintes scored two unanswered goals despite being outshot 17-11 by the Aces.

Other key factors in the win were strong penalty killing displays by George Godson, a late signer skating with equipment for the first time this season, and some policework by Greg Marchen and rookie winger Perry Chitick, whose second - period scrap with John Ford consumed the Aces this year's Belleville entry is not about to be pushed around.

The Quintes repay the Kingston visit Sunday night in the Limestone city.

Fairways Fire Blanks

KINGSTON (Special) — The defensive squad went both ways for Belleville Fairways Friday night, as the Eastern Ontario Junior B circuit opened their exhibition season with a 6-0 whitewash of Kingston Frontenacs.

In addition to helping rookie goaltender Bob Harris on and Bill Cormier record the shutout, the Fairways defensive corps accounted for five of the team's six goals.

Harrison played a strong game, in which the only scoring play was Peter Knapman's goal at 2:26 on "PP" as the scoreless final 20 minutes.

Cormier played the middle frame in which the Fairways potted five goals, three of them from blueline stalwart John Mulvihill, another from Tweed rookie defenceman Doug Perry, and the other from holdover Cliff Jandzik.

Hampered by first - week training camp injuries, the Fairways dressed only 11 players in addition to their two goalkeepers, while the Frontenacs threw a 24-player lineup at them.

The two teams hook up in a return bout Sunday night at 7:30 in Belleville's Memorial Arena.

Seals Might as Well Enjoy Division Lead Now!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

California Golden Seals, who were sunk in the West Division cellar of the National Hockey League last season, found themselves sharing the lead in that division Friday night as the NHL opened its 56th season.

The circumstances were special of course—the Seals were in the only West Division game played Friday and it ended in a tie.

The Seals blew a chance for sole possession of first place when they allowed Los Angeles Kings to come from behind for a 4-4 tie.

In the only other NHL game, Toronto Maple Leafs edged Vancouver Canucks 3-2 in a contest of East Division clubs.

In the Kings-Seals game eight different players scored, six of them in the third period.

After exchanging second-period goals, the Seals took a 4-2 lead and held until three minutes were left in the game.

But Al McDonough tallied at the 17-minute mark, then Mike Byers scored with 35 seconds left to give Los Angeles the tie.

Only 5,594 fans watched the contest at Oakland.

Darryl Sittler scored at Vancouver with less than six minutes in the game to win for Leafs.

The Leafs, playing without captain Dave Keon, out with a knee injury, took the lead twice before finally winning.

Bernie Parent was brilliant in Toronto's goal in the first two periods when the Canucks outshot the Leafs 17-12.

Then the Leafs turned on the pressure, beating Canuck goalie George Gardner twice on eight shots while Vancouver counted on one of four shots as Parent.

Chicago Black Hawks shipped forward Dan Maloney and defenceman Rick Foley to their Dallas farm club in the Central Hockey League. Maloney scored 12 goals with the Hawks last season while Foley, who played for Portland of the Western Hockey League last year, saw limited action in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

At Philadelphia, the Flyers cut Lew Morrison, sending the veteran right winger to Richmond Robins of the American Hockey League.

Bobby Orr, Boston Bruins star defenceman, suffered a back muscle spasm in practice at Boston Friday but a club spokesman said Orr could be ready for the Bruins' opener against New York Rangers at Boston Sunday.

At Montreal, the Canadiens traded goalie Ed Carter to the Golden Seals in exchange for left winger Randy Rota. Carter played with Montreal AHL farm team, Nova Scotia Voyageurs, while Rota was with Providence Reds of the AHL.

North Stars goalie Cesare Maniago was injured in a practice at Minneapolis and will not start in Minnesota's opener Saturday at Detroit against the Red Wings. Maniago caught a puck in the mouth and needed seven stitches to close the wound.

In other weekend games, the Rangers visit Montreal Saturday, the Black Hawks tangle with the Blues in St. Louis and Philadelphia Flyers play the Penguins in Pittsburgh.

Toronto visits the Golden Seals, Detroit goes to Chicago, the Penguins travel to Buffalo to meet the Sabres and the Kings invade Vancouver.

Hornets Lose Hurley Early

The start of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A season was a pretty shortlived affair for Galt Hornets' netminder Boat Hurley.

He suffered a broken ankle when he was knocked into a goal post during the first period as the Hornets were edged 4-3 by Oakville Oaks.

In other action, Orillia Terriers downed Barrie Flyers 5-3, Owen Sound Crescents defeated Woodstock Royals 4-0 and Belleville Quintes edged Kingston Aces 5-4.

In Oakville the Oaks went ahead on a third-period goal by Ken Kampton. Cal Russell added two more and Paul Ashair scored the other.

Bill Hway, Bruce Reier and Moe Galand scored for Galt.

Each team had 33 shots on goal.

In Owen Sound, the Crescents fought back from a 3-0 deficit in the first period to pick up their victory.

Orillia travels to Barrie today and Oakville plays at Galt Sunday sees Belleville at Kingston and Owen Sound at Woodstock before Barrie play at Galt Monday.

Tigers Trim Napanee

TRENTON (Special) — One of the weaknesses of the 1971 edition of Trenton High School's senior football squad is that the 32-member roster includes only seven holdovers.

But judging from Friday's 31-8 trouncing of Napanee, one of those weaknesses is not to be found at quarterback.

Junior team graduate Dave Harvey tossed three touchdown passes, and romped for one himself as the Tigers picked up their second win in three Bay of Quinte starts.

Flanker Duncan Armstrong started the Trenton scoring avalanche when he galloped 35 yards for a major on his team's first offensive series.

Armstrong also scored Trenton's second touchdown, a 43-yard pass play from Harvey.

End Eldon Garrett and flanker Colin Slimmon also hauled in Harvey passes for major scores. The other Tiger touchdown came on ground gains by halfback Don Armstrong and flanker Gord Kelly, and defensive halfback Richard Barratt's third quarter fumble recovery.

Napanee's points came on a touchdown reception by Hay ter in the second quarter, and the subsequent two point conversion.

Trenton Juniors rode the four touchdown performance of first-year flanker Steve Beecroft to their third straight win a 42-26 verdict over Napanee.

The grade niner scored what proved to be the decisive major on an 81-yard romp in the fourth quarter.

Quarterbacker Dave Lewis and end Dave Rodgers also contributed touchdowns for Trenton, who led 29-0 at one point in the second quarter.

Napanee quarterback John Sargent ran for one touchdown, and connected with Bob Hollins and Dave Stacy for two more. Halfback Tim Griffin accounted for the other two Napanee majors, one of them an 18-yard effort on the final play of the game.

VOTING IN CANADA — A selection of papers edited by John C. Courtney.

How and why we vote as we do is the concern of this small volume. A number of studies on elections, voting patterns and electoral behavior in Canada. They are presented in three parts — Elections and by-elections; Voting patterns; and Group influences on voting behavior.

POLITICAL PARTIES AND THE CANADIAN SOCIAL STRUCTURE — by Engleman and Schwartz.

The authors of this study have been concerned with the shaping of political parties and their effects. Of particular interest is a discussion on how the action of of public opinion affects Canadian political parties. The active force as manifested in mass media, elite and interest groups. Later chapters turn to the shaping of public opinion by political parties.

CANADIAN PARTY PLATFORMS, 1867-1968 — by D. O. Carrigan.

An attempt to put together some of the raw material of history has resulted in a compilation of platforms and policy statements issued by Canadian political parties or their leaders for federal elections from 1867 to 1968 with a breakdown of election results for each province included. Not only a collection of past election platforms but also a sample of the thinking that dominated certain political organizations at certain points in time.

For reviews of parliament and politics over recent years on both federal and provincial levels, the Canadian Parliament Review is a lively and informative record. The Review for 1969 includes several essays on the Ontario scene. "The medicare mess" and such other problems as Indian Development Branch, regionalism, amendments to the Police Act and the Animal Research bill. Highlights of the year for each of the political parties are also discussed.

In the Annual Review for 1968 a summary of the legislation to provide for French language secondary schools in Ontario is included as well as the discussion leading to Parcoft drug prices and the campaign to win greater fiscal concessions from Ottawa.

To round out your working knowledge of Canadian systems of government and of who is at present included in that government, two other bodies may be of interest. Canadian-Democracy At Work by Greason and King, studies government at three levels, and the Canadian Parliament Guide lists names of representatives to federal houses and all provincial governments.

Be an informed voter, understand the background as well as the issues

Making Self Vomit Can Be Dangerous

By G.C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A recent question by a mother whose daughter deliberately made herself vomit after eating (to lose weight) brought to mind a similar case in our family.

My sister, now past 30, started doing the same thing several years ago. What started in fun became a daily eating-and-vomiting habit. She has emaciated from 100 pounds to a mere 98 (she stands five-feet-eight) over the last two or three years.

She is a source of constant worry to my retired parents. She is still single and working as a secretary. She gets absolutely no enjoyment from life. She lives from day to day with little energy for anything else.

Since this has been going on so long, is there any possible cure for it? If so, how do we proceed, as she lives 750 miles from us? What is the best way to approach her?—Mrs. E.L.

A doctor can't say that this is what will happen to everyone who adopts this eat-and-vomit routine, but here's the evidence that it happened in one case.

It's not a new idea; the gluttons of ancient Rome used to do it so they could keep on gorging themselves.

But I keep getting letters from or about people (it always seems to be girls) who think it's a clever way of reducing while still eating too much.

A cranky, nervous stomach is one consequence that occurs to me first, but there can be others. The frequent retching can damage muscles or other tissues.

And here's another point to consider: not all forms of food, including vitamins and minerals, are absorbed in the same part of the digestive-tract. Eating and throwing up permits absorption of some nutrients in the stomach, but can result in a most unbalanced diet.

In the case of Mrs. E.L.'s sister, I would say that the result has been a very obvious case of malnutrition. I don't like to think what might happen if that emaciated, tired body had to combat some serious illness.

How to approach her on the subject, I am not sure, but it occurs to me that in her case, this eating-vomiting routine has gone past the dimensions of a "habit," and a genuine emotional disturbance is part of the picture.

I'd like a psychiatrist's appraisal of the situation—but unfortunately I don't know how to suggest that it be accomplished, at a distance of 750 miles.

All I can say is that this practice of eating and throwing up isn't wise, and can be really harmful.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What would insulin do to a person who had been taking one to two pills a day for 2½ years but did not have diabetes?—Mrs. M.J.

First, let's get this straight: Insulin has to be injected, and the pills taken for diabetes are not insulin. They are a medication that lowers the blood sugar level. Insulin, taken by mouth, would merely be digested, and would not be insulin any longer.

If a person without diabetes took the pills, they could lower the blood sugar level to the point of making him quite uncomfortable—tired, groggy, sweaty, confused. Or there might be no effect at all, if the person ate enough to offset any drop in blood sugar.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard that if you are on birth control pills for about a year and then get off because you want a baby, that the child will be deformed or die. Is there any chance of this?—Mrs. H.C.

No. And I wonder who starts such false rumors. Or why.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 10

Your birthday today: This year brings you a choice: being specialized and submerged in large scale groups, or doing something simple all by yourself. Whether you specialize or go it alone, there is excitement, much to learn, extreme adjustment to achieve. Today's natives always have strong motivations to achieve victory, usually a great hope for public recognition as well.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): This Sunday you are quite visible in all you do. Dodging issues doesn't work at all. Your community is surging with projections, latent controversy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Final outcomes do not change much, but short-range plans are readily upset. Be prepared to improvise or go along with a quick switch.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): At best it's a mixed Sunday with a good chance that somebody taking you up on what he thought you said will land you in a moment of indecision or contradictory circumstances.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): A premium on thinking things through a higher than usual. Your own situation can be deepened, made more enjoyable with a thorough analysis and action to follow up conclusions.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Exotic places, people who've been there, distant relatives, long lost friends all offer tall stories. Make notes, ask questions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Surprise, great, or small, promises to overtake you. Where you've neglected distant or long standing matters, the impact may be considerable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The chores may be between extra room and no company or lots of company in not-enough space. Delay in starting could land you in the least-wanted spot.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): It's a great day so long as you say exactly what you mean and are willing to stay with what you've said. Temptation is to overstate your case.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Make this an occasion of serenity, peaceful enjoyment of the simplest living. Your favorite pastimes are plenty of exertion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): For once a late start is desirable. Do what you must after it's clear you have to; explain nothing that is irrelevant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Try a novel recreation, particularly anything with moderate physical exercise. You may be neglecting health-protection.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): A survey locates for you assets and resources you hadn't expected to find. Put everything to use as fast as you get control of it.

For October 11

Your birthday today: Begins a three-year cycle of experiment and search, redevelopment consolidation. Learn to take nothing for granted, to base your morale and self-image on your natural human dignity, what you are, rather than on what you have or control. Today's natives eventually settle in some specialty and seek full mastery of it.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Asking for anything only generates needless refusal. Just keep careful records and notes; ask for much more tomorrow.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Trust your intuition, ignore distractions, personal competition, interference. Focus mainly on social contacts and progress.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Avoid extremes; have no hesitation at changing plans and schedules to get around last-minute conditions. Some ideas turn out unrealistic and bound to fall through.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Accumulated, belated information comes piling in and you have little time to make decisions or adjustments.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your special abilities, technical experience stand you in good stead for momentary earnings. Today's beginnings are only stopgaps, however.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Bring in only what you know you need, avoiding excess. Self-expression on the spur of the moment is the key to happiness today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): It's up to you what level you will achieve. Your motivation and hard work create your tools and attract materials with which to build.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Problems dwindle, so it's a moderate day of reasonable progress with a compete tour of duty. Enjoy home life in the evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Clarity of view and purpose permits you to strike forward into an energetic phase. Enjoy the striving and your daily progress — there's quite a run of it ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your journey may turn out longer than planned or provide better results than expected. Rouse yourself to make more changes feasible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): The past comes back to you in piquant nostalgia; perhaps old scores to settle, perhaps people trying to stir long-gone dissension.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Bargains are to be approached with skepticism and an expect's opinion. If it's still a bargain, stretch a bit to take advantage of it.

For October 12

Your birthday today: A great amount of what you do this coming year has little to do with material gain, but concerns it self more with the pursuit of an ideal for which you can develop intense powers of persuasion and salesmanship. Today's natives have a propensity for organizing in such a way as to bring everybody into their own way of life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Co-operation flows more readily. Present your accounts with courtesy and assurance. It's a long day — give yourself an extra rest break.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Move promptly to cover your share of group finances. Keep matters simple; never mind exploring side issues until after you have thought them all through.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Mark this out as a family-friends - neighborhood day. Make the most of the experience by sharing hobbies, comparing notes, etc.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your chances are excellent for a comfortable advantage. Good Transformation time — put your best skills at persuasion.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Whatever you do, avoid impairing a friendship by misuse or presumption. There's planning and arranging to attend to.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Transformation time — put yourself in a fresh context; try a different approach, particularly where your previous system hasn't produced good results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): A brand new start is ever so much easier than working out the overdue or neglected chores of old jobs. A good balance is the hardest of all to find.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Younger people are busy, may intrude somewhat. Patience must be its own reward for the moment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Optimism opens expressed attracts support. Steadily pare your way through favorable conditions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan 19): Constructive changes are in the air. Anticipate them where you can, be ready to make a fair trial of unfamiliar tools, materials.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Part of our mission should be given over to others for the time being. Select what and how much pressure will be best balance rather than spread your self too thinly.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Compromise is inevitable so the sooner you can see where the adjustment can be made, attend to it and go on in cheer ful co-operation.

We're all in this together.

On October 21st, more than four million Ontario citizens will select, from among themselves, 117 people to represent them. And, at the same time, they will select one man as their Premier.

Bill Davis has said to the people of Ontario: "You have no need to judge us on our promises. We are asking you to support us for our performance...for the decisions we have made, for the policies we have introduced, for the more than 130 items of legislation we have implemented."

Consider that record.

The establishment of a Department of the Environment, and assistance to firms investing in pollution control equipment. The banning of logging in Quetico and Killarney Provincial Parks. Summer employment for students in clean-up operations (Project SWEEP). The Endangered Species Act. A tougher line with corporate polluters. With clear decisions and vigorous action like this, Ontario can breathe a little easier.

The Davis government's decision to halt the Spadina Expressway, coupled with a pledge to provide greatly expanded assistance to mass public transit, has brought us closer to a rational solution of our transportation problems.

The Provincial conference on economic and cultural nationalism reflects and also contributes to an expanding awareness of the potential of our country and our people.

Davis decisions have helped the Canadian publishing industry; special provisions have been written into Ontario Development Corporation loans to encourage Canadian effort, to preserve and enhance what is distinctive about our society.

And there have been a great many other Davis government decisions... good decisions: No-fault car insurance. The task force for off-track betting. Expanded grants to day-care centres. Detoxification centres. Expanded housing on a rent-geared-to-income basis. Free medicare for the needy, and for people 65 and over. And lowering the age of majority.

Which brings us back to your decision, at the ballot box.

For democracy to succeed, it's not enough to talk about change. Change must be made to happen. That's why Bill Davis is doing things. And doing things—for people—is surely what leadership is all about.

In his first seven months as Premier, Bill Davis has demonstrated the kind of leadership and government Ontario needs. With your support on October 21st, he will continue. He can do much more.

On October 21st, do something for Ontario.

Vote for the Progressive Conservative candidate in your riding and elect a Davis Government.

Benson Silent About Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Mystery and government silence today surrounded the Chicago Tribune's publication of a U.S. document listing concessions Washington is said to demand from Canada for removal of the 10-per-cent import surcharge.

The concessions reported by the newspaper range from expansion of the Canada-U.S. auto pact and easing duty restrictions on Canadians shopping in the U.S. to lowering taxes on income of foreign controlled Canadian companies and purchases of a new U.S. anti submarine aircraft.

Government officials refused comment or even acknowledgement of the list of demands. "I haven't seen any list and therefore I can't comment on it," was all Finance Minister Edgar Benson would say. As well, there was no official confirmation from Washington that it indeed was an official U.S. paper.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), Opposition financial critic in the Commons, said that if the demands were authentic and Canada acceded to all of them "it would knock the hell out of us."

The concessions, said to originate from a confidential Nixon administration memorandum titled Grievances against Canada, Major Items, were revealed in a Washington report which appeared in the Monday editions of the Chicago Tribune.

Louis Dombrowski, the reporter who wrote the story, said in an interview Monday night that the memorandum was "leaked" by a "very high source" in the U.S. government and the contents it mentions are "one step from policy."

Why the memorandum was "leaked" remained a mystery. Dombrowski said Washington did it because of Revenue Minister Herb Gray's assertion last week that Ottawa would not accept changes in the auto pact in return for removal of the surcharge.

The document places first priority on the auto pact, the Chicago Tribune says. The newspaper quotes it as saying the U.S. believes used cars and all terrain vehicles should be allowed into Canada duty free. In addition, it says, automobiles should be removed from the agreement.

These actions would result in an improvement of the U.S. balance of trade of from $75 million to $120 million annually, the memorandum says.

Another major benefit item for the Americans is an increase in the number of duty free items Canadian citizens will be allowed to bring into the country after visits to the U.S., the document is quoted as saying, and adds:

"The Canadian balance of payments position enables Canada to liberalize the allowance and the U.S. gain could reach $100 million."

Lambert said that if the U.S. were able to gain these concessions "it would be very serious for us—especially expansion of the auto pact."

"Extension of the tourism allowance also would be very serious," he said, "especially in regard to the Canadian textile industry which has been going through a difficult time recently.

"Extending duty free status to any part of the textile industry would be counter to everything Canada has been trying to do in this regard from the last year."

John W. Hetherington, marketing vice-president for Bombardier Ltd., said in Montreal that a duty on snowmobiles would only hurt American manufacturers.

"All other major snowmobile companies in Canada besides Bombardier are U.S. owned," he said. "They would be cutting off their nose to spite their face."

As well as concessions on the auto pact and duties, the memorandum is quoted as asking Canada to —Unilaterally reduce its tariffs on manufactured goods because Canada's tariffs on many manufactures and semi-manufactures are among the highest of the developed countries.

—Loosen provisions against foreign companies in Canada to encourage domestic production, serve export markets and reduce imports. The memo is quoted as saying the Canadian government should allow market forces to operate on investment decisions and trading patterns.

—Reverse its proposed tax reform plan which calls for foreign controlled Canadian companies to get substantially higher tax rates on the first $100,000 of income than Canadian owned firms.

—Increase its defense purchases from the U.S. and allow the U.S. to receive preferential treatment of Canada under the defence production sharing agreements.

Real Caouette Stays As Socreds' Leader

HULL, Que. (CP) — Social Credit leader Real Caouette Monday buckled down to the nuts and bolts of organizing for the next federal election after bowing to victory at the party leadership convention here Sunday.

He told a news conference former Liberal transport minister Paul Hellyer, leader of Action Canada, has been asked to join the Social Credit party. Mr. Hellyer said in an interview later he is not interested.

Mr. Caouette also told reporters he took part in an open-line program on Montreal radio station CKAC discussing Social Credit policy, and helped brief party organizers on political strategy.

The 34-year-old Rouyn, Que., auto mobile dealer trounced three leadership opponents on the first ballot.

The leadership contest received four hours national television coverage which Mr. Caouette said was "worth a million bucks" in publicity.

He received 310 votes to 104 for his nearest challenger, Phil Cossette, 42, of Cap de la Madeleine, Que.

Dr. James McGillivray, 42, of Collingwood, Ont., a party vice-president, drew 69 votes while party research director Fernand Bourret, 31, of Montreal got only nine.

In a rousing victory speech, Mr. Caouette told convention delegates and a national television audience

"Trust me. I am your servant for the realization of Social Credit in our country."

Mr. Caouette told reporters Monday he is willing to sum up anyone as a new member as long as he accepts Social Credit policies.

Party vice-president Leonard Alsbanese of Coquitlam, B.C., said he made the offer of party membership to Mr. Hellyer's executive assistant after the Action Canada leader outlined his movement's policies at the convention Saturday.

Mr. Hellyer said he had not heard of the invitation, but was not interested.

And he said he was not sure whether he would continue waving Social Credit to Join Action Canada in a common front for the next federal election. Mr. Caouette showed little enthusiasm for the proposal.

Mr. Hellyer said it is obvious Social Credit party is a regional party. "This came through loud and clear from the convention."

More than 650 of the 979 convention delegates were from Quebec. The party's only MPs — 15 of them — are from Quebec.

U.S. Thinks Russian Orbit-bomb Missiles Are Now Deployed

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (Reuter) — U.S. air defence commanders believe the Soviet Union has operationally deployed its orbit-bomb missiles — among the deadliest weapons in the Russian armoury.

The weapon is known in the West as FOBS—the fractional orbital bombardment system. A mainly offensive system, it would launch a nuclear-armed missile into orbit, then bring it down on its target before it had completed a revolution of the earth.

The Russians are known to have made at least one test launching of FOBS each year since 1967., a defence department spokesman said. But the Pentagon never has said the Soviet Union had the weapon deployed in its silos, ready for attack.

"We feel they have deployed it operationally," an executive officer of the USAF Aerospace Defence Command at the air force base here told Reuter. "In what numbers is another topic, but we feel they have deployed it operationally."

The officer, Maj. Charles Rhoades, executive officer in the plans directorate, said FOBS "poses a threat to this nation of a weapon which can approach us from virtually any direction and without detection."

Maj. Rhoades was speaking during a briefing session of a tour of the headquarters of the North American Air Defence Command inside Cheyenne Mountain, near Colorado Springs.

"FOBS is a very interesting weapon," he said, "because it does not come under the purview of the space treaty which we have with the Soviets. This refers to orbiting weapons—and that means the completion of one orbit, by definition and so they do have this deployed operational capability which is within that constraint.

"FOBS, of course, is the ideal. It's a turn it on, turn it off kind of thing.

"You send it, you know what orbital path you're going to put it in, you know where you want to de-target it, and so you just turn it on and turn it off.

"And the system itself, the rat velear how the General Assembly itself would be persuaded to modify the long-standing system, especially as such a change would make China, India and Russia the major UN contributors.

Stafford Smythe Critical

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd. and Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, is in "critical" condition today following an emergency operation Monday night, Dr. R. I. Mitchell, Mr. Smythe's physician, said today.

Dr. Mitchell said in an interview Mr. Smythe suffered a massive hemorrhage last evening of veins in the esophagus, the tube that leads from the throat to the stomach.

"Although it appears to be under control at the moment, we are seriously concerned whether his lungs and kidneys will have necessary reserves to recover," Dr. Mitchell said.

Dr. Mitchell said the operation lasted "several hours."

Mr. Smythe, 51, was admitted to Wellesley Hospital last Wednesday with a bleeding ulcer, Dr. Mitchell said, and "was coming along fairly favorably."

The hemorrhage "happened quite suddenly," while Mr. Smythe was still in hospital, Dr. Mitchell added.

UN May Be Denied Funds If Taiwan Is Expelled

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Important members of the U.S. Congress, which has the power to withhold funds from the United Nations, are threatening to use that power if Taiwan is expelled from the General Assembly to seat Peking.

The crucial debate on Chinese representation comes next Monday, and many delegates believe the U.S. plan for dual representation of the People's Republic of China and Taiwan faces an uphill battle.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush is to hold talks today with Republican Senator Robert Taft of Ohio on the problem.

Monday he met conservative Senator James Buckley who said after the meeting that he and 28 other senators would agree immediately for a "dramatic reduction" in American funds to the United Nations should Taiwan be expelled.

He denied to reporters that this would in any way be punitive. Rather, he said, "It would reflect in our judgment the downgrading of the role of the United Nations which would result from its abandonment of principles in order to allow the entry of Peking on Peking's terms."

Some sources said they believed the intervention of legislators at this time could make the American delegation's task more difficult because its critics would seem to appear responsive to pressure.

A delegation spokesman, Nicholas Kitz, denied that any pressure or blackmail was involved. He said congressional figures had the right to express their views, and that there visits to New York in the week before the debate were not initiated by the delegation.

The U.S. contributes about one-third of the budget of $200 million for all UN activities, on the basis of assessments arrived at according to the gross national product of member states.

A group of House of Representatives members is said to be working to revise this formula, to make the basis population rather than GNP. It was

Chicago Tribune says the memorandum says Canada to end its "buy Canadian" preference in purchasing defence equipment and stop "the game of seeing how much 'sourcing' they can get."

"We have evidence Canada tried to buy off Lockheed (the Rockheed (a British aircraft manufacturer) and now is trying to buy off Lockheed Hoeing and McDonnell Douglas," the memo is quoted as saying.

The newspaper says the document notes Canada has a need for an anti-submarine warfare aircraft and that the best on the market is Lockheed's Orion.

"The Canadians should be told to stop the game of seeing how much 'sourcing' they can get in return for the ASW (anti-submarine warfare aircraft)," the memo is reported to say. "If the Lockheed plane is bought it would close the gap under the defence production-sharing plan by $200 million or so."

Revenue Minister Gray made his announcement about the auto pact at an economic conference in Toronto last Thursday. He said Canada would refuse to make "one-sided concessions" in return for the withdrawal of the 10-per-cent import surcharge.

On Friday, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons that the changes in the pact could not be considered a bargaining point because the agreement effect approximately 25 per cent of Canadian goods sold on the U.S. The Chicago Tribune also says the memorandum urges Canada to eliminate surcharges on imports of used aircraft and criticizes the government for providing "subsidies" to Mr. Chelin, the giant French tire manufacturer, which is aiming its products at U.S. markets from a Canadian base.

365 Attend Ethni-fest

A Greek fraternal organization AHEPA, staged an ethnifest Sunday night, the first for the newly - formed association in this district.

The gala banquet, entertainment and dance was not confined to members of the Greek community here. Everyone was invited, and 365 came, including a group of Indians from Tyendinaga Reserve, the candidates for Quinte riding in the coming provincial election, a magician, and the religious leader of Canada's Greek community, Bishop Theodokos from Toronto.

The bishop was an unexpected visitor who moved among the crowd to meet the members of the Greek Orthodox faith present.

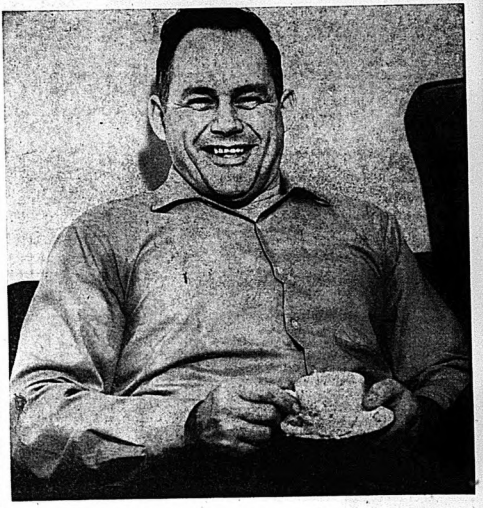
A feature of AHEPA happenings is the participation of children, and about 70 of them were on hand at Club Cedars for the entertainment arranged for them before the banquet.

The Mohawk dancers from Tyendinaga entertained first with their social dances. The 16 youngsters were accompanied by their teacher, Mrs. Lorraine Hill, Chief Earl Hill and David Maracle, who chanted for the dances.

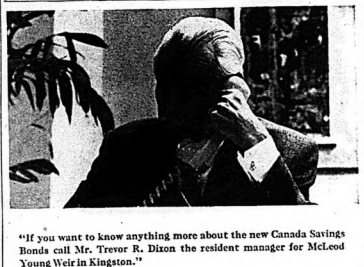
A magician followed, to delight the children with his tricks, and a special banquet was served for the youngsters before the adults sat down to eat.

Earlier in the afternoon, sessions of the fraternal organizations were held, and a women's auxiliary, the Daughters of Penelope was formed.

Festivities continued until the early hours of the morning, with Greek and conventional dancing to music provided by the Melody Men.



Reserve Now Has Constable



For the first time in its history, Tyendinaga Mohawk Reserve will have its own full-time police constable.

Richard Brant began his duties Tuesday morning, enforcing all laws and acting as truant officer as well.

Until Constable Brant's appointment, the reserve was under the jurisdiction of the RCMP. Now that the new constable has taken over law enforcement on the reserve, he will draw upon the resources of both the Ontario Provincial Police and the RCMP when assistance is needed.

The constable's headquarters will be in the Band office opposite the fairgrounds.

Future of Planning

Human nature, human frailty, call it what you will, is entering the democratic arena more and more these days in the affairs of the Quinte planning board. An amalgam of nine municipalities, among them Belleville and Trenton, the board has not been long in operation, yet its meetings are marked by lively debate and occasional acrimony.

This may say a lot for democracy, but the element of jealousy and rivalry so apparent in these deliberations gives rise to public fears that progress in Quinte planning as a whole will be hard won.

Man in the middle is planning director Bert Kenny and he summed up the situation well last week when he said, relative to planning for the official chapter and other controversial issues: "This situation (conflicting arguments) will probably exist every time the board meets. It's the nature of a board such as this."

Earlier Mr. Kenny had said that "much of the problem means distilling information already on hand."

But with so much information on hand, waiting to be processed, and with the interests of nine municipalities at stake, the distilling process will be very much in the nature of building a bridge over troubled waters.

Currently there is controversy over the hiring of consultants — a decision taken last month — to prepare an official plan and accompanying zoning bylaws for Belleville. Fears centre around the prospect of each municipality wanting its own consultants at a cost to the taxpayer that would be out of sight.

Which leads us to the thought that the hiring of consultants should not be a decision taken lightly, if in the ultimate the recommendations conflict with the ideas of the different municipalities and become just another document for the academic scrap heap.

Hiring of consultants has become a sort of fetish, a reaching out for the pot-of-gold at the end of the rainbow, but with the prize remaining always out of the municipal grasp.

The Quinte board has no easy task, that is certain. It might be argued that progress would be better achieved solely by an enlarged professional staff working full time, not only here but in every planning region across the province, and without recourse to the democratic process; but then quisling planners do not grow on trees, and who would dare dispense with the democratic element — the laymen who are the board members who come together and, hopefully, decide what is in the best interests of all?

They Need Rain

A year or so ago, Belfast experienced heavy flooding following prolonged rain. Not only did this cost the province a bundle, but anarchist elements in the city, it also effected a brief reconciliation between the opposing religious factions so that there was the unusual spectacle of Protestants and Catholics, assisted by the army, helping each other in face of the common threat.

Since then, however, things have gone from bad to worse and embattled Ulster's woes have been aggravated this year by drought conditions which, to say the least of it, is unusual in a land which generally does not lack for precipitation. Thus water rationing has been in effect for some time, a factor now aggravated still further by the perverseness of the guerrillas in blowing up a pumping station.

Probably nothing would be more welcome at this melancholy stage in Ulster's history, and in Belfast in particular, is rain, and plenty of it. Whether it will make the army's lot any easier of course is another matter.

Nixon Acts

Unlike Canada, its government as well as people, the Nixon administration in the United States apparently means business when it introduces price and wage restraints. Certainly that is the impression the President himself gave in his address last week. Canada for its part may have no choice but to follow suit, which will be a change from past experience when calls for voluntary restraint were simply ignored and even the government itself failed to take effective action. Now it looks as if we are going to be saved from ourselves — by the firm action of the Americans.

Commons Gamesmanship

Opposition's Stanfield and Lewis Tangle with the P.M.

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — What gamesmanship goes on in the House of Commons between the team captains, Pierre Trudeau of the Liberals, Robert Stanfield of the Conservatives, and David Lewis of the New Democrats.

As a spectator sport it could rank with the CFL or NHL, since there is daily action in a five-times-a-week playing schedule, the pace is fast and furious, and as a box-office commodity, you cannot beat it — the admission is free.

There are two basic ways to score points.

By way of the humiliating put-down or the ego-inflating one-up.

Captain Trudeau of the defending champions, Liberals, has to be — no matter what team you fancy — the current political league stand-out.

So it is on him, almost to the exclusion of all others, that the other team captains zero in.

After all, if you are a team captain and feel the need of scoring a few points against some of the others on the Liberal front line and defence, like minister John Turner or perhaps Health Minister John Munro, you signal the play for one of your own front rankers who will be the big men on the Cabinet team if you ever win the election play.

So most of the time the action — the real, gutsy, old-college - try stuff — is between the three team captains. That is where the scoring counts.

Name of the Stanfield - Lewis game has to be "Get-Trudeau".

Fascinating, then, to study their individual styles.

Robert Stanfield comes in on Pierre Trudeau very carefully and quiet, low-key enquiries during the fast-breaking opening plays of the Daily Question Period.

Sonicitous, too. Extremely courteous. Questions invariably well thought out and entirely reasonable.

Gives very convincing appearance of being more than well aware of the dignity of the office of the Prime Minister and the decent, civilized attitude and proper respect due the man of responsibility occupying it.

Stanfield's handlers — and some of the game's observers whom he sometimes calls "frustrated sports writers" — for three years and more have been urging him to show more "aggression," as he puts it, and fire up a little anger.

He has got nothing against "passion", he insists, but says he has his own style and is convinced he is beginning to score points with it.

For when Pierre Trudeau responds in his usually courteous questions, it is sometimes in the form of the patronizing put-down with a cutting edge on it.

But Stanfield, looking a little disappointed, patiently tries again, reminding Trudeau he was "only attempting to solicit information" and had "no intention of irritating, much less offending" him. Comes close to apologizing for seeming too "bother" Trudeau, but persists in asking for an answer.

Then sometimes, Trudeau, impatient, gives him the verbal judo chop, and Stanfield, looking sad, subsides—the winner.

For the reaction in the Gallories of the Commons, on TV and radio that night, and in the detailed press accounts next day reflect an image of a bystander-united, often petulant and impatiently arrogant intellectual cutting up a nice guy who was only trying to do the best he could in a decently reasoned way.

Now watch David Lewis. Entirely different.

Comes barrelling in on Trudeau, aggressive, abrasive, sometimes insulting, and worst of all, condescending.

You do not even talk down to Pierre Trudeau — not unless you know, and really know in your secret mind that you are his mental match — and not everyone even comes close.

So it is slam-bang Lewis sledge-hammering away at the agile, graceful, lightning-quick thinker Pierre Trudeau who operates with a verbal stiletto or razor honed to such a hungry edge it can peel the skin off any Opposition face before the victim begins feeling the pain.

Lewis' handlers — his aides and advisers in his own and New Democratic headquarters offices — have reminded him that it is the Prime Minister he is rough-housing, and Prime Ministers, by Canadian political tradition, are due some courtesy.

But somehow, try as he might to show some consideration for the office of the Prime Minister if not, obviously, for the man, David Lewis cannot pull it off.

He persists in giving a loutish impression that he regards Trudeau as a political hypocrite, as he has called him even a hooligan to be routed in some street-corner party rally. To be barked at and barracked.

So David Lewis comes through as a ruffian, mulishly fouling a player of elegant expertise and expertise.

And worst of all, being caught at it and whinied down by the "frustrated sports writers" who daily watch the game, or exquisitely cursed up and then micro-oven-baked by the intended victim.

Greece: Courtesy, History Blue Skies and Clear Air

Richard Needham in the Globe and Mail

I've been in many cities of this world . . . but Athens next to Toronto and with the same two million population — is the one that pleases me most. Why? Well . . . those low prices have something to do with it. But there's much more to it than that.

There's the gaiety and vitality and courtesy of those gorgeous Greeks. There's the sheer color — the blue and gold — of the sprawling city; white buildings climbing up the hills and mountains; deep blue skies, deep blue seas; the great golden ball of the sun bounding out of the Aegean each morning and hurtling down into the Ionian each night.

There's the sense of history, 3,000 years of it — to stand where St. Paul preached the Gospel to the Athenians, to sit on a marble bench where Plato and Socrates might have sat, to walk along streets named after Homer and Pericles and Sophocles and Xenophon, to go under Hadrian's Arch, to climb (as the ancient Greeks climbed) up the long side of the Acropolis and mosey around the ruins of the Parthenon — the most perfect building, so one is told, ever created by human beings.

There are the outdoor cafes, where the Greeks perch at all hours of the day and night, drinking powerful coffee and the even more powerful ouzo — which is vaguely similar to kummel. There are the wide, sandy beaches with warm, shallow water, such as the one at Asteria, a 40-minute bus ride from the heart of Athens but said ride costing only 13 cents. There's the feverish buying and selling in the streets, which reminds you that the Greeks are and always have been great traders.

Because Greece has title in the way of medium or heavy industry, there's the almost unbelievable clarity and purity of the air, especially as you get out into the mountains and the islands. I've seen nothing like it, nothing like those pinpoint vistas, since my days in the foothills of Alberta. There's a realization that you're at the crossroads of the world — where Europe and Asia and Africa meet each other where all the colors and races are seen, where the languages heard, all the airlines connect,

Mary Wows The Japs

BBC London Letter

Mary Hopkin, the young Welsh girl with the long fair hair and still longer following of fans, who represented Britain by singing the BBC entry in the Song for Europe contest last year, has added Japan to her conquests. She has recorded My Name Be Sorrow' in Japanese. Not that Mary lays any claim to be fluent in the 2-her latest single record 'Let panese language. When she visited the British exhibit at the Tokio Faile in 1970, she had many requests to record something ain Japanese. To a girl who already has a command of English and Welsh, practically nothing is impossible, so she learned the words phonetically from a recording which had already been made for the Japanese market.

Senior Citizen's Praise For Hospital and Staff

Letter in
The Peterborough Examiner

Having been on the staff of Civic Hospital for eight years, I always gave it preference to any other in the city. Then came the day when I needed an eye operation, May 14, and for this I went to St. Joseph's Hospital. Dr. C. J. Must, a wonderful doctor operated. He came every day to see me. While there, nurses (graduates) who know their business, took over, and with such care and attention there is no wonder that citizens (the sick) get well as soon as it is at all possible.

Can you imagine, Mr. Editor, a nurse coming around every day to ask you what you would like for breakfast, lunch or dinner? And that's what you get. Not something shoved in front of you to eat or leave as you see fit.

But at this hospital, busy as bees, the dietitian must satisfy all, or try to. Doctors come in also every day. If you need attention you get it promptly. You don't have to nurse your sick-ness, those long drawn out several days before your doctor is available.

Oh, what a difference in care you get for your money at St. Joseph's!

In many instances I have found the order of medical help here, and found out the main ingredient is what everyone has in heart. Aspirin tabs?No. In other words, you've had your life, now 85. Why don't you pass out . . . Personally, I wish I could.

But many times my mind goes back to the wonderful treatment I received at St. Joseph's Hospital. I am so grateful I had that experience. May the good Lord bless that hospital and all the staff that make it tick.

Finally, this same staff seems to have an evangelical approach about the tensions of living.

Final Stages of Election — Two Parties Three

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

As the election goes into its last furlongs with no clear winners in sight, though the government does seem to be ahead, the question of interest is what, if anything, will the three parties try to do, to be ahead for a final surge.

This election is unique in that never in many years have there been three parties apparently so close and never an electorate which apparently is so undecided that it could be open for last minute swings.

On the surface it could be an inviting situation for the imaginative and enterprising politicians.

Just get minds concentrating, think of what the electorate is really worried about, come up with some appealing approaches and sell some votes.

However, the possibility of any party being able to do this appears remote.

For another unique feature of this election is that there seem to be no issues or questions about which the public generally is concerned or about which it can be excited.

There hasn't been evidence of any one question which grips the voting community across the board.

There have been some issues to date: the economy, separate schools, the Spadina Ave.

But none of these have had the widespread interest of the health issue in 1967 or organised crime or pensions in 1963.

And there is no indication that the public generally can be aroused about them in the time remaining before election day.

Some people will be influenced by them and the opposition parties will continue to work on them. And it is for them the NDP has an issue in automobile insurance which does have fairly broad impact. It will be pressing this. But it can hardly be considered a main issue.

Which means the last days of the campaign will probably play into Premier Davis's hands.

At the start the premier said the fighting ground of the election should be who was the best leader for this time.

This should be the big question of the final days.

And the core of the question will be whether Mr. Davis has convinced the electors that he is the man.

Australian Agrees With Immigrant

Richard Needham in The Globe and Mail

Roy G. Johnson, formerly of Brantford, has given up on Canada and is now in Australia (Clayfield, Queensland; whence he writes). After two weeks I started looking for a home here and have now bought a home and have a job which I enjoy very much. The only thing I have been told to do is take my time and do it right. The words unknown in Canada any more. I hated my job there because of the attitude 'Good enough, let it go.' I have yet to enter a man's office, whether boss, manager, oil company executive or whatever, that hasn't spent a minimum of an hour talking, and the attitude is always 'What can I do to help you?" Riding home on a bus from work, if 20 school children get on the bus you would never know they were there. They all wear uniforms to and from school and are very courteous and well-mannered. It reminds me of Canada of 30 years ago."

Provincial Police Demonstrate School Bus Passing Laws

With co-operation between the Hastings County Board of Education and Ontario Provincial Police in Belleville's district nine, the week of Oct. 3 to 15 has been designated Stop for School Bus Week.

In an effort to educate both school children and motorists, police last week delivered thousands of leaflets and information to all public schools in this area. Only the city of Belleville and Trenton were excluded because laws pertaining to highway-school bus traffic do not apply.

Laws requiring motorists to half for buses only apply where speeds are more than 35 miles per hour.

OPP Constable Brian Turner explained, "a considerable number of motorists will be made aware of what to do if they meet buses with their lights flashing."

The three photographs reproduced here illustrate the four situations most often encountered.

Number one (left) features cars stopped on a two-lane highway, divided by broken white lines. Although children are supposed to wait for the bus to move away before crossing the highway, "children might do anything," the OPP officer said. With no sanctuary zone on a section of highway such as this, cars are required to stop on both sides of the bus.

The second and third situations, as illustrated in the centre photo, concern four-lane highways with either a painted centre line or a rough cement centre section. Cars must also stop on this type of highway.

The third and last picture, taken on Dundas Street East at Herchimer Avenue, represents the only situation wherein cars are not required to stop in the oncoming lane. While cars are halted at the rear of the bus, children can cross to the grassy median and wait for vehicles to pass in the oncoming lanes of the four-lane highway.

However, although motorists are not required to stop in the latter situation, or when they encounter school buses with flashing lights in under-35-mph zones, due caution should be followed.

"There is some responsibility for the motorist to stop anyway," Constable Turner noted.

Ann Landers

'So Much For So Little in A World Lived in by So Many'

Dear Ann Landers: I remember when girls owned one Sunday dress and one pair of good shoes that were soled and resoled until the upper gave out. There were no "teen-agers." (That word was invented 30 years ago.) The transition from childhood to adulthood was not made easy with fads and fun. Young americans worked a 48-hour week for a modest sum and when they finished they had a lifetime trade.

Today's youth has been petted, pampered piled with toys, bikes, transistors, cars, boutique fashions and spending money. They are overschooled and undereworked. Despite the boom that resounds from nationwide rock festivals, they are grossly out of tune. They know little of good music or literature or poetry. Their enemy is affluence—not the hard-core wealth of the very rich, but the bountiful patchwork of the middle class. They wallow in sugar and spice and everything thrice.

When the fun of youth fades and the years pile up, when indulgent parents are gone, what resources will be theirs? What inner strength to draw on in time of crises? What gifts to give the world? What legacy to leave to those yet unborn? True, elders have criticized "hopeless frivolous" youth throughout the ages, and the world has gone on, but has any generation ever had so much for so little, in a world lived in by so many?—Mosty Reader

Dear Mosty: You raise some provocative questions. Does anyone out there have answers? I'd like to see them.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 22, single, female, no run-around. I work for a large company—about 1,000 employees. The cafeteria is pleasant and I eat there every day. I'm a friendly person and say hello to dozens of people whose names I don't know.

Saturday, I was shopping downtown. A cloudburst hit as I was waiting for a bus. A familiar face from the cafeteria pulled up in a nice car and asked if I'd like a lift. I said, "Sure," and hopped in.

When I got home Mom was on the front porch. She saw me get out of the car and asked who the man was. I told her I didn't know his name. She blew her cork—lectured me for 15 minutes about the dangers of riding with strangers. She almost called me a pickup. When Dad came home she told him, and I got more of the same. Were they wrong? Please settle this. —Akron Passenger

Dear AK: Yup, they were wrong. The man was not a stranger. He was a familiar face from the cafeteria. But why didn't you get his name when he gave you a ride? It would be nice to greet him personally, between the macaroni and the chipped beef.

Dear Ann Landers: Does a landlady have the legal right to enter the apartments of her tenants when they are at work or away on vacation? None of us has anything of great value—nor do we have anything to hide—but the idea that this old battle-axe can come in whenever she feels like it and rummage around in the bureau drawers, desk papers, clothes closets (not to mention refrigerator), makes us mad.

We don't want to move, so don't suggest it. The location is ideal and the price is right. What do you say?—The Triplets

Dear Trip: The landlady has the legal right to have a key to your apartment in case of emergency—(fire, flood, etc.) but she has no right to enter unless there is an emergency. Some leases say so. If yours doesn't, perhaps it should—before you sign it next time.

Women's Institutes

RYLSTONE — Home economist for Hastings County, Mrs. Elaine Struthers was guest speaker at the October meeting of Rylstone Women's Institute held in the Institute hall recently.

The meeting was opened by the president Mrs. Jack Watson under the convvership of Mrs. Carl Reid convener for home economics and health.

A number of business items were discussed including a decision to donate to Campbellford Memorial Hospital Auxiliary for their annual bazaar. Mrs. Paul McKeown and Mrs. Maurice Owens were chosen to attend leadership course training school dealing with "The Knack of Sewing with Knits" to be held in Foxboro and Madoc in the near future. An invitation was read to attend a centennial tea at Hoards United Church on Oct. 27. There was also a discussion on holding a rummage sale this fall and Mrs. Hector Arnold and Mrs. Wayne Wildman were asked to arrange for the location and date available.

Mrs. Reid as convener took over the pregram and introduced Mrs. Struthers of the Stirling Agricultural Office, who gave a most instructive talk on "Sewing with the New Fabrics". She illustrated her talk with samples of seams, piping, stitching, pockets and so on, on the new stretchy fabrics. Two booklets regarding this subject were distributed and other materials shown.

On expressing thanks to the speaker, Mrs. Reid presented her with a small gift.

Mrs. Maurice Owens and Mrs. Ellis Jones gave readings and Mrs. Eldon Anderson conducted a contest on "Song and Story Titles".

Fancy sandwiches, cheese and pickles were served by the hostesses Mrs. Hector Arnold and Mrs. Joel Watson assisted by Mrs. Gerald Barnum.

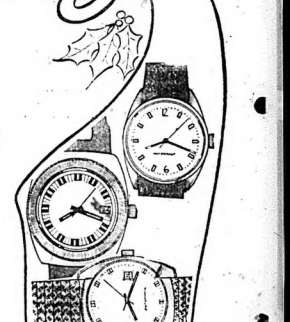
HOW LONG SHOULD IT TAKE TO SELL A HOUSE?

Ed McKINNEY
J. E. McKINNEY Realty Ltd.

It may take only a few days or it may take months. While some "luck" may be involved, it is usually intelligent planning and consistent effort that makes the difference.

All properties have a range of potential buyers who are "right" for them and if they are correctly appraised and presented to those buyers, pleasing results may follow.

Of course some homes sell more readily than others because of natural advantages. They may have a style or be in an area that is currently in demand so that the number of potential buyers is much greater than for other properties.



But even if this is not the case, a competent Realtor will recognize the property's most salable points and feature those in his selling efforts. His task is to find the buyer seeking those particular features.

Home buyers can help themselves by following the Realtor's suggestions as to decorating or alterations. Perhaps a property's "good points" can be considerably enhanced at modest cost. An outside expert in the marketing of homes he is in the best position to guide the home owner.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

BY MARY BRYSON

Sometimes it seems as if teen-agers ask for parental advice or opinions simply for the purpose of disagreeing with them. Actually, this is not the case. Often the young need a sounding board, someone to discuss the pros and cons of a subject to help them come to their own decisions.

Weight Losers Are Really Winners

By DORIS CLARK

A member of Canadian Calorie Counters reports that the more she put into her branch activities the more she got out of it — or off her. She lost 52 pounds in seven months.

A doctor addressed one branch on causes of obesity. He took no stock in diet pills nor in the practice of omitting certain foods. Stressed that adults find it difficult — overnigh impossible — to change their eating habits, and felt that weight loss could only be obtained by cutting down on food in general, and counting calories.

(Wouldn't this require changing the worst habit of all — eating too much? Our Simple Reducing Diet, which limits not eating, but food selection, has chalked up a lot of triumphs.)

One successful weight loser received a lovely bikini from her husband as a gift. In one branch people who held their weight received a special 5 C's coffee mug.

In another group a winning loser was awarded a wooden lazy Susan — and in yet another, a member of a group who turned out to be a pat- on instead of a take-off had to wear a four-inch-tall pink felt elephant for a week.

The girls have a lot of fun. And that helps you lose weight too, believe it or not.

Dear Doris: What a pleasure it was to read your advice to the mothers of rebellious daughters! I too had a beautiful young plant to tend and encourage the growth of. I must admit it was not always easy, because the high winds of those rain, hail and sleet storms were sometimes pretty hard to weather.

But together we mastered them and now that my own little plant is fully grown, has bloomed beautifully and is starting a little plant of its own, it gives me great pleasure to recall a particular sentence of a letter from her in which she said, "It's hard to put into words my appreciation for work done through love, as yours was." A Happy Grandmother to he

Dear Happy: Congratulations! So glad you enjoyed our thought about children being like plants, needing gentle encouragemnte without too much "push" or punishment; and friendly talk instead of temper.

Dear Doris: I have been invited to a wedding, or at least to the church service only. What is expected as far as a gift is concerned? I have already attended a shower. — Co-Worker

Dear Co-Worker: Let your conscience be your guide. You are not expected to send a wedding gift when you are just asked to the ceremony. Since you have already given a shower gift this might well satisfy your urge to make a friendly gesture.

Confidential to Lonely Without Him: Since you don't get an answer when you ask out- right how this boy feels about you, why keep asking? Assume that he doesn't want to hurt you by admitting that he isn't serious. If he were really enthusiastic, he'd say so.

Asking such a question is poor business anyway. Send 20 cents and a stamped, self- addressed envelope for a copy of my leaflet "What Is Love?"

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Fresh Flavor of Delicacy Retained

By MARY MOORE

An all Canadian company in New Brunswick is picking and packaging and freezing fiddleheads for consumption by Canadians. They have perfected their technique to such a high degree that all of the fresh flavor of this gourmet delicacy is retained.

Fiddleheads are indigenous to the Maritimes. They grow in wet soil on riverbanks that have flooded and receded and are cut by local folk — often Indians — when their little curled heads appear through the soil. They are rushed to the plant in Fre- neceville, New Brunswick and flash frozen and packed in jig time. Add these delicacies to your green vegetable file for guest occasions

FIDDLEHEAD GREENS

Buy a 10-oz. pkge. frozen Fiddlehead Greens. Bring ¾ cup water to boil with ½ tsp. salt. (Add ½ tsp. sugar if desired.) Tip in unthawed fiddleheads. Cover. Bring to boil, reduce heat to simmer and cook until thawed and barely tender. Do not overcook. (See rules for cooking vegetables below.) Drain, add butter and serve to appreciative guests. Wonderful.

LESSON IN COOKING GREEN VEGETABLES

In some of the older recipe books it is suggested that adding baking soda to green vegetables will enhance their color. These were written before it was known that the baking soda, being an alkali, destroys both the ascorbic acid (vitamin C) and food flavor acids by neutralizing them. The color, flavor and vitamin C of these vegetables is best retained by cooking in a small amount of boiling salted water with the lid on until just done and a hint of crispness remains.

Unfortunately too many people use too much water on their vegetables, cook without a lid and overcook. Most of the same people will tell you that they enjoy Chinese food due to the color and crispness of the vegetables. The salted water should be boiling in the saucepan before the vegetables are added. In this way the pot, too, is hot and the water may be brought quickly back to the boiling temperature. Then reduce the heat to prevent the vegetable pieces from knocking against each other and destroying texture. But do keep the water boiling. High heat will not raise the temperature. It just hastens the formation of steam.

Trudeau Promises Ukrainians He Will Ask About Prisoners

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau placated Ukrainian Canadians during an eight-hour visit to Winnipeg Saturday.

The prime minister was enthusiastically received by delegates to the Ukrainian Canadian Congress when he indicated he will discuss the treatment of political prisoners in the Ukraine with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, who visits Canada later this month.

At the conference, Mr. Trudeau outlined a program to develop Canada's ethnic cultures which he had announced Friday in the Commons.

But delegates were more impressed when he departed from his prepared speech and promised to convey to Mr. Kosygin representations from students who had held a four-day hunger strike to protest treatment of political prisoners in the Ukraine.

As a result of a meeting with the students before his speech, Mr. Trudeau told delegates at the congress banquet he will make "certain representations" to Mr. Kosygin if he receives an agreed-upon letter from the students suitably outlining their grievances.

George Boshyk of Toronto, a spokesman for the protesters, who ended their hunger strike after meeting the prime minister, said he understood Mr. Trudeau had agreed to make representations on a "humanitarian basis" in the case of Valentyn Moroz, an imprisoned Ukrainian intellectual.

In his prepared speech, given to a group which has in recent years voiced fears that an emphasis on bilingualism may destroy other cultures in Canada, Mr. Trudeau said the establishment of French as the second official language with English will help cultivate use of other languages.

He expressed recognition for French is "support for the cultivation and use of many languages because it is a breach of the monopoly position of one language and an elevation of the stature of languages that are 'different'."

Trade War Danger Seen

TORONTO (CP) — A suicidal trade war will result if the United States soon does not remove its 10-per-cent duty on Canadian imports, Barnet Danson, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau told a group of American businessmen Monday.

Temporary damage to friends and trading partners of the U.S. would be worthwhile if the duty was removed quickly and the result was a healthy and dynamic U.S. economy, he said.

But, should the duty remain, "we are all in for a trade war and a ism which can only be suicidal for all, both in economic and political terms."

Mr. Danson addressed a breakfast meeting of U.S. delegates to the annual conference of the International Iron and Steel Institute.

Warnings May Have to Be Issued For Seven Million Chevrolets

DETROIT (AP) — Warnings may be issued in the near future on some seven million 1963-to-1969 model Chevrolets, says a United States government official.

Douglas W. Toms, director of the national highway traffic safety administration, said in an interview with the Detroit News that his investigators have been studying reports of rusting frames in 1963 Chevrolets and engine mount failure in 1965-to-1969 Chevrolets.

Toms said such a warning could lead to a recall order by the company.

General Motors said it has been checking on reports of rusting and engine mount failure. A spokesman declined further comment, however, on the reported mount defect.

Toms said his investigators have been studying a complaint from Connecticut about "dangerous corrosion" on 1963 Chevrolet frames. He said because of that investigation, "it looks like there will have to be a consumer information warning on these cars."

Toms added: "It looks like there has been a fairly high failure rate from frames rotting out by the back wheels. This happens where the rear axle control arms are attached to the frame."

Without the axle in place, the brakes and transmission ordinarily fail to work and often there is a crash, Toms reported.

He said there have been no deaths reported due to such problems, but there "have been some very serious accidents with complete loss of control."

A General Motors spokesman said its engineers believe heavy use of salt on wintery roads caused the rusting. He said the firm has developed a visual inspection method to check for damage and has a means of repairing the problem, if necessary.

Union Seizes Policemen And Wiretap Equipment

TORONTO (CP) — Leaders of a union local say they think their telephone had been tapped for at least 10 days before they discovered the tap last Friday.

Members of Local 688, Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union, seized two Metropolitan Toronto policemen and recording equipment Friday night outside their strike headquarters in east-central Toronto.

The police department says the equipment is not its own and no police wiretaps had been authorized at the union office. An investigation has been started within the force of the union's allegations against the two men.

Deputy Police Chief John Ackroyd is scheduled to meet today with County Crown Attorney Peter Ritkehy and Clayton Ruby, lawyer for Local 688.

About 180 members of Local 688 have been on strike for six weeks at the Redpath refinery of Canada and Dominion Sugar Co. Ltd.

Union leaders said Monday the first indication they had that their information was getting to the company was Sept. 28 when a picket was organized outside the plant.

They said that since the beginning of the strike, office and supervisory personnel had come into the plant by car, and they planned to block the cars. However, they said, on the day of the mass picket half the employees came by transit and were escorted into the plant on foot by policemen.

Last Wednesday, 12 men were gathered to picket an undisclosed location that turned out to be another warehouse. When they arrived, truckers loading sugar said they were expecting them.

Union leaders said that after such coincidences and finding the tape recorder, they felt bitter about being told there were not enough police available for surveillance of the building to see who picked up the recorder.

The two plainclothes constables questioned in the investigation are John MacDonald, 29, and Barry Chapman, 32. Both are assigned to 31 division in North York, seven miles from the union office, and were on duty Friday night.

Staff Supt. Adolphus Payne, the department's senior detective, has been investigating the matter since early Saturday. He said the two officers questioned were assigned Friday night to normal plainclothes duties out of their home detective office and had no assignment relating to Local 688 or its strike.

Mr. Forsey said the tape recorder was hidden under an upturned soft-drink case in a lane beside the local's office. The machine was the noise-triggered kind which starts automatically at a sound such as a voice.

The union set up a trap with 10 members and when two men came, apparently to replace the machine with another recording machine, the union members surrounded them.

Patrol Sgt. Ronald Sutherland was off duty when he saw the scuffle. He put handcuffs on the intruder.

"It was about this time that the guy we grabbed started saying he was a policeman and showing what he said was his police identification," Mr. Forsey said.

Supt. Payne said the two officers questioned remain on duty.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

GM Asked To Aid Men Laid Off

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers union urged General Motors Corp. in a top-level meeting here Friday to ease the financial burden of 2,000 workers GM announced last month it is laying off in its Canadian plants.

The UAW, among other things, urged GM to permit any Canadian workman with 30 years of service to retire, regardless of age, under its "30-and-out" plan at $500 a month.

It also suggested that similar privilege be extended women who have 25 years' service.

Under the "30-and-out" plan written into new three-year contracts in 1970, a person must be at least 58 years of age and have 30 years service to step out at $500 a month. The age drops to 56 next year.

The UAW said it also urged GM to "cut out overtime before we do," in effect threatening not to work overtime and thereby hoping to increase employment.

Jerry Hartford, public relations director of the UAW's Canadian region, said today at Windsor, Ont., that the union also told GM it is "capable of providing price competition for Japanese imports, but is not doing it, partly because GM already has bought into the competition."

He said the UAW also urged GM to quit adding chrome, stripes, air conditioning and other options to its minicar, the Vega, and "consider it a stripdown job and leave it that way."

Hartford said the union also suggested that GM join it in pressing the Canadian government to exempt automobiles from that country's 12-per-cent sales tax, which he says was applied "when automobiles were considered a luxury."

Hartford said it also was pointed out to GM that announcement of its intention to lay off 2,000 in Canada, came while the company was "having its second-best September in history."

GM said that George Morris, vice-president for labor relations staff, told UAW representatives he would comment "after I look at what you're interested in."

Besides Morris, Robert Clark, GM's director of labor relations, also sat in on the meeting, as did several of the company's experts in such fields as pensions.

Irving Bluestone, chief of the UAW's GM department, and his aide, Frank James, headed the union's representatives, who also included Dennis McDermott of Toronto, the UAW's Canadian chief; Steve Nimigon of Oshawa, chairman of the Canadian GM council; Paul Larking, council secretary, and Bob Longway of Windsor, council vice-chairman.

Federal Department Called 'Orphan'

FREDERICTON (CP) — The Atlantic Provinces Economic Council today called for a re-organization of the federal department of regional economic expansion on a regional basis to bring the department "closer to the people it is designed to serve."

The recommendation comes in APEC's fifth annual review of the Atlantic economy which says the department is "an abandoned orphan, shunned by its bureaucratic playmates and supported only grudgingly by Canadian taxpayers."

APEC, a non-profit, non-political organization that promotes the economic and social development of Atlantic Canada, says DREE's record during its first 30 months of operation is "disappointing". It attributes this to the department's structure and approach, its failure to establish and adhere to firm policy lines and "the government's inept handling of the national economy" which has made regional progress difficult.

Transfer of planning, implementation, industrial intelligence and promotion for the Atlantic provinces from Ottawa to a regional office headed by a deputy minister is the main recommendation in the 118-page report.

A field office subordinate to the regional office should be maintained in Newfoundland because of distance and "somewhat different problems." A single Maritime operation should be the goal of regionalization, but APEC says it may be necessary to retain small provincial offices for an unspecified period of time.

Administration, co-ordination and evaluation functions of the department and the Regional Development Incentives Act would remain in Ottawa.

The report says the regional approach would bring about close co-operation between various levels of governments and private business and development of home-grown businessmen. It would also make it easier for the department to participate in more imaginative programs and permit it to co-ordinate its activities in the region.

Seven reasons are given by APEC for its recommendation of regionalization. It says the "Ottawa-based bureaucracy" is central Canadian-oriented and that regional planning carried out thousands of miles from the areas it is designed to assist is difficult. Also:

—Industrial intelligence must be focused on a regional basis;

—Programs appropriate for one underdeveloped region may not be appropriate for another;

—The national political climate may not be favorable for types of innovation needed in the Atlantic provinces;

—Closer co-operation is needed between the three levels of government and between government and the private sector;

—The present structure of the department has not functioned to the best advantage and is not likely to do so.

APEC concedes that its recommendations, which would remain in effect for at least 10 years, would result in a temporary slowdown of department activity. "The alternative, however, would be infinitely less desirable: an ill-organized and only partially effective department destined to incur increasing criticisms and perhaps to be dismantled with its job undone."

Under the present setup, there is an assistant deputy minister for the Atlantic provinces and field officers in the provincial capitals.

In the absence of any long-term commitments by Ottawa, APEC says, the provinces regard the department as a "temporary comucopia to be plucked as quickly as possible before Ottawa snatches it away." Examination of statements by department officials has failed to produce indication where regional development fits into the government's priorities and how long the department will remain in existence.

"Ottawa must assure the provinces that DREE is going to remain for at least 10 years and that the department will have certain stated sums of money available to it over the period. . . ."

West Coast Cargoes Moving

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A court order has cargo moving in West Coast ports. But longshore leader Harry Bridges says he's seeking an alliance with striking East and Gulf Coast dock workers that would cut off virtually all American shipping commerce when the "cooling-off" period ends.

"It may well be that the present situation will bring about the tieup of all ports," Bridges said Monday in his column in The Dispatcher, official newspaper of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

After the federal government obtained a court order under the Taft-Hartley Act to halt the 100-day West Coast strike, Bridges ordered his 13,000 ILWU members back to work last Saturday.

The order was good for 10 days and a hearing seeking to extend it to 80 days will be held Friday.

Stevedores and other workers returned to 23 Pacific Coast ports by Monday but not to the large Los Angeles-Long Beach complex, where a hiring dispute is expected to keep facilities idle at least until Friday.

World Steelmakers Meet

TORONTO (CP) — The non-Communist world's top steelmakers opened a three-day meeting Monday with a call from their new chairman for international co-operation on resources to assure the future of the industry.

Yoshihiro Inayama, in his first speech as chairman of the International Iron and Steel Institute, said the industry faces two major problems — an enormous increase in energy consumption and uneven distribution of the world's energy supply sources.

Mr. Inayama, president of Japan's giant Nippon Steel Corp., said these problems "cannot be solved by any self-seeking, exclusive campaign for resource acquisition imprudently pushed ahead by one country or by any single company."

He said it was common until a few years ago to take for granted an assured and plentiful supply of energy resources. This was no longer realistic.

An example was the limited supply of coking coal, used in ironmaking by blast furnace.

Harold Griffith, chairman of Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., welcomed the 250 delegates from 27 countries. He reviewed the history of the Canadian steel industry, 12th largest in the world and producing two per cent of the world's output.

Henry Wingate, chairman of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., told a luncheon meeting that Canada is the world's sixth-largest trading nation.

"For many years Canada was looked upon primarily as a vast frontier country — a storehouse and exporter of primary products. This is no longer the case.

"Canada is a sophisticated country and has become an important industrial and commercial power."

Opening day of the institute, whose members represent companies producing about 60 per cent of the world steel output, featured a symposium on world energy resources.

August W. Eitz of Leopoldshafen, Germany, predicted that nuclear power would account for 18 per cent of the free world's energy capacity by 1990. This would increase to 50 per cent by 1990, and about two-thirds by the end of the century.

Nixon Proposes Trusteeships to Stop Foreign Firms Closing

SARNIA (CP) — Government trusteeships to save small industries from being closed at the whim of foreign owners were proposed Monday by Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon.

In a major policy statement, Mr. Nixon, campaigning for the Oct. 21 provincial election, emphasized at a news conference that there was no intention to take over wholly-owned foreign subsidiaries.

He said trusteeships would be a short-term emergency effort to keep a plant going until ig foreign owner could be convinced it was viable or, in the extreme, until it could be sold to private Canadian concerns.

In an earlier talk with reporters and at a morning television appearance in Hamilton, Mr. Nixon also announced that his party would undertake a new, enlarged role for the provincial savings office. The office now accepts deposits but does not lend money.

He said that under a Liberal government, the office would work with the Ontario Development Corp. to provide loan capital for industry.

The Liberal leader toured fall fairs at Burford in Brant riding, near Brantford, and at Bridgen near Sarnia. He spoke to a workers' rally Monday night in London before returning home.

Mr. Nixon said the trusteeship plan was designed for such cases as the recently-announced shutdown of a toboggan plant in Stratford, largest in the world, which is owned by Leisure Group of Los Angeles.

The plant employs 150 persons and was ordered closed by its Los Angeles owners despite the fact that its Stratford management had been contemplating an expansion program based on advance orders, Mr. Nixon said.

He said a trusteeship could operate the Stratford plant so that its Christmas rush of orders could be completed. The plant would be operated on behalf of the owners, with profits going to them for a short period of time.

"It would be an emergency measure to keep the plant running at a crucial time when there are orders to fill," he said.

The government trusteeship would not be imposed unless the move was felt to be in the public interest, Mr. Nixon said.

He said it would not apply to major companies such as General Motors.

Mr. Nixon said branch plants in Ontario will come under strong pressure from new United States economic policies such as the present supplementary import duty and the proposed tax bill to encourage U.S. industry to purchase equipment at home.

These pressures, plus the revaluation of the Canadian dollar that was likely to follow, made the trusteeship plan vital.

Earlier, in his pre-recorded television broadcast in Hamilton, Mr. Nixon said the scheme would prevent cases where "some boss from the back of his yacht in Los Angeles says we've got to cut back" and a small Canadian branch plant suffers, even though the plant may be viable in Canada.

Mr. Nixon said the trusteeship plan would require special legislation. He declined to be specific about how long a trusteeship would continue to operate, telling reporters he will make a fuller statement in a television appearance at 8 p.m. today.

He also said his plan for the savings office would be more clearly enunciated in the television statement which was prerecorded Sunday.

Mr. Nixon also announced at the news conference, attended by James Bullbrook, Liberal Sarnia, that he intends to contact federal trade minister Jean-Luc Pepin about the announced layoff of 250 men from Crown-owned Polymer Corp Ltd., a manufacturer of synthetic rubber in Sarnia.

Mr. Nixon said the federal government has a higher responsibility than private enterprise to the community to ensure that the decision does not unfairly disrupt the city economy, which is 95-per-cent dependent on the petro-chemical industry.

The Liberal leader also spoke on economic nationalism when he held a news conference in Kitchener Saturday during a visit to that city's Oktoberfest celebrations.

Mr. Nixon said he does not want to lead an anti-U.S. crusade, but that "it must be made clear to the U.S. that their economy will recover, that they will want to do business in Canada and that they will want our exports."

Mr. Nixon also said in Kitchener that the CBC does not reflect Canadian culture and interests sufficiently and should resist becoming "a re-run network" for programs originating in the U.S.

He said it is his personal opinion that the CBC's program content be entirely Canadian and that it be free of commercials. People could watch U.S. programs on private Canadian networks but they should have the choice of watching an all-Canadian network.

Lewis Says Taxes Unfair

WELLAND (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, concentrated on criticism of government economic policies and spending programs as he campaigned in southwestern Ontario during the weekend.

He told a public rally attended by about 700 persons at Centennial high school here Monday night that the Conservative government would not have had to introduce deficit financing in its April budget if it had made corporations pull their weight in taxes.

Earlier Monday, he told a meeting of party workers in St. Catharines that the $10 million that Premier William Davis has promised to spend on day-care centres would be better used as grants to provide these facilities in locally-run centres in hospitals, churches, schools, factories and old houses.

On Saturday, he told a meeting of local citizens' groups in Windsor that Ontario will be "in desperate trouble" by early next year unless immediate action is taken to deal with new United States import policies.

The Welland rally was the first large-scale public rally of the NDP campaign and marked a planned change in strategy as the Oct. 21 voting date draws near.

"The whole strategy in the early part of the campaign was to meet our voters and workers," Mr. Lewis told reporters in his campaign bus enroute to an NDP motorcade through Fort Erie earlier Monday.

"It's all safely launched. Workers were fired up and our campaign also reached the public through good press coverage around the province."

Mr. Lewis told the Welland audience that an NDP government would call a three to four-week session of the legislature before Christmas to introduce five of its programs.

One would be the party plan to create jobs by rescinding the five per-cent tax credit to corporations for equipment purchases. The money saved would be used to create jobs in the housing and service industries.

Other programs on the pre-Christmas list: Public auto insurance legislation; coverage of prescription drugs by medical insurace; anti-pollution regulations; and regulations governing corporate behavior, particularly that of branch plants.

Mr. Lewis said Premier William Davis would not have had to introduce deficit financing if he had not given corporations the tax credit and allowed a decrease in corporation income taxes.

Mr. Lewis said he does not fault the U.S. for wanting to improve its economy nor for controlling so much of Canadian industry.

"By and large we invited them here," he said. But Ontario had the means to reclaim its economy so that its relationship with the U.S. would be one of partner, rather than dependent.

Trudeau Defended By Stephen Lewis

BELLE RIVER, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, found himself defending Prime Minister Trudeau Saturday as he campaigned for the Oct. 21 provincial election on the main street of this tourist town near Windsor.

Mr. Lewis was stopped as he walked along a sidewalk by a young couple, Norman and Patricia Vanier, who expressed concern about Communist literature in Canada.

Mrs. Vanier said she had read that Mr. Trudeau was a Communist.

"Mr. Trudeau is many things," Mr. Lewis said. "He's a Quebecer, a Liberal, an aristocrat but he is definitely not a Communist."

French Students Warmly Welcome Davis

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP) — A crowd of more than 1,000, most of them students, gave Premier William Davis a warm welcome Monday as he opened a French high school in this predominently French-speaking, Northern Ontario community.

The warmth of the welcome in a packed auditorium of the Cite de Jeunes high school, opened Sept. 20 for 725 students, was in marked contrast to the chilly reception he has received on many occasions during the campaign for the Oct. 21 provincial election from separate school supporters, many of whom are French-speaking.

There was no protest here against the premier's decision not to extend grants to separate schools beyond Grade 10, and the audience cheered and clapped for Mr. Davis and Rene Brunele minister of lands and forests who represented Cochrane North in the last legislature.

The difference here was that Cite de Jeunes is a non-religious public school and receives provincial assistance through Grade 13.

Mr. Davis noted that a recent controversy over demands for a physically separate French-language school in Sturgeon Falls was "not typical of the situation in this province."

He said the government does not seek to make everybody bilingual but that the French must have equal rights in areas where that language is predominant.

Daniele Grenier, 16, a Grade 12 student, said in an interview that Kapuskasing does have a problem similar to that in Sturgeon Falls but that the people here are more understanding.

"We all work together," she said. "And look what we have now—a beautiful school."

The premier flew back to Timmins, 100 miles southeast of here, after the opening ceremony.

In Timmins, he told a news conference he is optimistic about a proposal to use a lignite deposit at Onakawana, 180 miles north of Timmins, as a source of electric power.

He said the government and Ontario Hydro are negotiating on specific details with Alberta Gas and Coal Co., which owns the rights to the deposit. He foresaw a capital expenditure of about $200 million should the plan come to fruition, and said he expects to make a decision on the proposal within five months.

The premier later spoke to an enthusiastic crowd of about 1,000 at McIntyre Arena in Timmins, telling them the government is studying the feasibility of equalizing hydro, fuel and gasoline prices across the province. A favorite complaint of Northerners is that they pay more for these items than do residents of southern Ontario.

The premier flew north last Sunday night after a cabinet meeting at Queen's Park in Toronto. He declined to comment on what was discussed.

On Saturday, the premier visited the Oktoberfest celebrations in Kitchener - Waterloo, mainstreeted in Woodstock and Tillsonburg, and joined more Oktoberfest festivities in Aylmer and London.

In Kitchener, he told a news conference that he has written to the United States-owned Douglas Aircraft of Canada Ltd. and the United Auto Workers union concerning contract negotiations involving 8,000 workers at the company's plant in Mississauga, Ont.

The negotiations have been held up because the wage-and-United States President Nixon have halted similar negotiations at parent plants in the U.S.

"I just don't think negotiations here should be governed by the economic policies of the United States," Mr. Davis said.

CAHA Listening To Bunny Again

by Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

WHAT IN THE NAME of Bunny Ahearne's going on here?

I, for one, couldn't believe my eyes or ears to read and hear that the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is upholding a player suspension imposed by the International Ice Hockey Federation, also known as Ahearne's Father.

I believed my nose, though, because the situation smells strangely similar to many others in which Canadian hockey spokesmen have eaten Mr. Ahearne's oft - served menu of crow.

Previous sacrificial lambs for Mr. Ahearne have included the Canadian National Team. This time the victim is 18-year-old Bob Smulders, who was handed a two-year IIHF suspension for leaving the penalty box and threatening a referee while playing for the Netherlands National Team last winter.

Smulders, who had played all his minor hockey in Toronto Township before his father was transferred to Holland, was advised to seek an OHA Junior A tryout this fall and so impressed Peterborough Petes he was immediately signed to a contract.

THE PETES were delighted with their windfall—until OHA secretary-manager Bill Hanley telephoned to inform them of the suspension. To rub it in, CAHA executive Gordon Juckes didn't even deem it necessary to argue Smulders' case when it came up at an IIHF meeting he attended Sept. 18.

"It is hard to believe that neither the CAHA nor the OHA is backing this boy," said startled Petes' president Herb Warr. "Both groups are prepared to let this boy sit out for two years and this will hurt his chances of making professional hockey."

As for the Smulders, they have hired Alan Eagleson, the most important mouthpiece since the helmet was invented, to fight their case. "I'll take it all the way to Parliament, if need be," said Eagleson in his inimitable baleful way.

WE THOUGHT the CAHA had finally decided to treat the IIHF with the proper respect when it cancelled plans for the Winnipeg World Hockey Tournament and threatened suspension of any teams that so much as handed souvenirs with IIHF teams.

At issue, you may recall, was Mr. Ahearne's double-dealing in secretly agreeing to permit Canada's National Team to use a handful of semi-professional players to try and beat the all-professional Russians.

The CAHA went a trifle overboard, we felt, when they suspended a team of Toronto eight-year-olds for a Finnish reception last year, but the spirit of their stand still rang true: Ahearne and Co. would not condone for Canada the ground rules for a game she invented.

With the Smulders case, the CAHA appears to be making a tragic reversal of field.

In the first place, a two-year first-offence suspension for leaving a penalty box and threatening an official hardly seems called for.

And in the second place, if Smulders had speared Bunny Ahearne himself, we wouldn't think Canada should tow any Holland lad down by Europe's hockey tyrants.

A PROPOS to the situation is a recent statement by Jack Kelly, president of the United States Amateur Athletic Union.

"Pros and amateurs should be able to cooperate together in the Olympics," Mr. Kelly said. "The public doesn't want to have to divide its sports heroes into factions on the basis of whether or not they take money."

"The public wants to see the best swimmers, the best track and field stars — regardless of their classification."

Kelly said so - called amateurs should be reimbursed for salaries lost while they practice and compete, and should be able to endorse and to write books about their competition without being penalized.

"Some athletes have to cheat nowadays to participate in sports. And when you have to cheat — that's the time to change the rules."

DON LEE'S smile was his umbrella.

The familiar Quinte sports personality passed away over the weekend, and many will miss the anecdotes he always had on hand to try and elicit a smile from the gloomiest companion.

One of Don's favorites the former Ontario Amateur Softball Association president would tell deal with the two inebriates who were careening along in their automobile down a country road.

"We must be getting closer to the city," exhaled the passenger.

"Oh. And how can you tell that?" queried the driver.

"We're hitting more people," his companion replied.

Belleville Quinte's captain Ralph Plane and Les Farkas cross paths during Monday night Memorial Arena workout. Farkas, a 22-year-old former Hungarian National Team defenceman, is trying to catch a berth on the roster of Belleville's OHA Senior A hockey entry.

Quinte Runners Carry Flag

MASSENA, N.Y. — Quinte Secondary School managed to carry the Canadian colors with distinction at the Can - Am Cross Country Championships at Massena, New York Saturday.

The Belleville high school runners managed a fourth place finish in the senior event to rank as the top Canadian team in the event. New York State teams from Norfolk and Potsdam nailed down the top two spots with Burlington, Vermont preceding Quinte in the final standings.

Gerard Farrell was the top individual for the locals placing 12th in the field of 131 runners. Other members of the senior squad included Roger Ray (20th), Ron Bell (23th), John Sheppard (40th), Ian Hayman (46), Ivan Robinson (78th) and Justin Farrell (82nd).

In junior competition Quinte was 12th in a field of 27 teams and had the second best standing of teams from north of the border.

Joe Carroll made the strongest single showing for the Belleville runners placing third in the 1.0 strong field. Barry Fay finished 29th with other team members including Peter Kennelly (60th), Brian Batchelor (100th) and Wilbert Lavecque (111st).

The Quinte team will be in Trenton Thursday for a relay meet and will travel to Watertown, N.Y. Saturday for another cross country competition.

Mavety Wins Top Honor

In the individual awards, Larry Mavety of the Cement men was chosen as the league's Most Valuable Player, and also copped the batting honors with a .464 average during the regular season. Cobourg Cops 4

While no Belleville teams managed the march to an Ontario Amateur Softball Association title at least one eastern Ontario centre made sure this district was well represented.

Cobourg has claimed a quartet of OASA champion ships in the "B" section of the provincial playdowns. Capturing the four champion ships were the Cobourg entries in junior, juvenile, midget and bantam age divisions.

Kingston Power Play Too Potent for Quintes

KINGSTON (Special) — A clicking Kingston power play helped put Belleville Quintes out of contension in an OHA Senior A game here Sunday.

The Aces scored on four of five manpower advantage situations in the game, which they won 6-1 to offset a season - opening 5-4 loss Friday in Belleville.

Rookie centre Pete Kennedy, former Queen's University standout, included two power play goals among his three scores. Hardrock defenceman Bob Olajos scored twice for the Aces, with the other goal coming from another college hockey graduate, Mike Flanigan, last year with New York State's St. Lawrence College.

Al Ferguson, who scored three times in Friday's Quinte win, notched the lone Belleville goal on a second-period power play from Ray Johnston and Paul Perras. It was the only time the Quintes could capitalize on seven man-power advantages.

"It was just one of those nights when everything we did went wrong and every thing they did went right," observed coach Gene Poirier. "It hurt when we outshot them (11-10) in the first period and they led the score — they got two goals. After that we just died."

The Aces scored twice in each period. Ferguson's goal at 6.01 of the middle frame kept the Quintes on the short end of a 2-1 score before Olajos' second goal with Pete Stoutenburg sitting out a high sticking penalty, gave the Aces extra breathing room.

Stoutenburg and rookie Perry Chittick each required stitches to close woods from errant Aces' sticks.

Of greater concern to coach Poirier was a knee injury late in Friday's opening game that kept defenceman Mike Rose out of Sunday's lineup.

"It looks like cartilage trouble — I'm afraid he could be out for a while," Poirier revealed.

That gap could be filled by Les Farkas, smooth-skating former Hungarian National team member who arrived in Belleville Friday from Dayton Gems' International League camp.

The 22-year-old defenceman who defected from the Iron Curtain country when his team was on a European tour last winter, skated with the Quintes for the first time Monday night, and Poirier said he would be inserted into the Belleville lineup in next weekend's home - and - home series with Owen Sound if he looked impressive enough in mid-week workouts.

The Quintes travel to Owen Sound, Friday night, with the Crescents repaying the visit in the Belleville season's first Saturday game the following night.

FAIR WAYS

Fairway Newcomers Make Friends Fast

Newcomers to the Belleville Fairways' Junior B lineup shouldn't have much trouble making friends.

New faces accounted for six goals in an 8-2 Fairway exhibition win Sunday over Kingston Frontenacs.

Mark Woodward, last year a stalwart of the now-defunct Trenton Golden Lions, scored three goals his former Eastern Ontario League opponents. Another Fairway goal came from former Trenton player Jeff Howard. Howard is being wooed by Picton's Junior C entry in the six team Eastern Ontario League, but the Fairways hope to sign him this week.

Belleville rookies Jim Cain and Louie Doucet contributed goals while the remaining two were scored by familiar hold-overs Dave Smith and Pete Ackerman.

The Fairways ,who blanked the Frontenacs 6-0 Friday, led 2-0 after Sunday's opening 20 minutes, and held a 4-1 edge going into the final period.

Rookie goalie Bob Harrison played the first and third periods and gave up one Kingston goal, while Arnie Istead gave up a second-period score.

Their task was made considerably easier by the fact their teammates' defensive efforts limited the Frontenacs to only 18 shots on goal.

The Fairways drew 15 of 28 penalties assessed in the chippy contest, including majors to Bill Jackett, Pete Ackerman, and Cliff Janitsch in three separate fighting incidents.

The two games with the Frontenacs marked the beginning and end of the Fairways' exhibition season. A contest originally scheduled with Cobourg for tonight has been cancelled.

The Fairways open their 30 game schedule this Friday when the defending provincial champion Peterborough Lions are in town.

Etcheverry Not About to Go Way of Other Montreal Coach

MONTREAL (CP) Head coach Sam Etcheverry of Montreal Alouettes plans to read the riot act to his players today as the result of recent grumblings made by some team members.

"This is not like hockey," Etcheverry said in an interview Monday. "A few hockey players don't have had things to say last year and they wound up getting rid of the coach.

"This isn't going to happen in my case. If some guys want to run off at the mouth, then they are going to soon find that I'll get rid of them."

Etcheverry is facing his second crisis in as many years as head coach of the Als. Last season, he suspended Dennis Duncan and Bob McCarthy for the balance of the 1970 season when the two players went out on the town before a ball game.

"I told these guys earlier that if they want to keep on, the way we've been losing football games, then their jobs are going to be in jeopardy.

"I don't deal in contracts and I don't know what most of them are making but I know they are a well-paid football team."

They have no complaints. I'll meet with J. L. Ahrnelt (personnel director) and Red O'Quinn (general manager) in the morning and we'll go over some possible changes."

Reports Monday said that dissension has hit the defending Grey Cup champions. One of the main causes of the dissension was John Carlos, the former United States track star who joined the team last month.

Pass keep saying "throw more to Carlos'," one unnamed player said. "Damn it, he can't catch the ball. The more you throw to him, the more we give up our dirt game—the game that won the Grey Cup for us."

"The quarterbacks don't throw to him unless they're ordered to," another player added. "He doesn't know how to catch or run pass patterns. The other team knows it too."

Carlos said earlier last week that he wanted to be used more as a pass receiver.

"I can see some of the players being unhappy over things John was quoted as saying last week," said Etcheverry. "But, anyone who says John Carlos' play is what is wrong with the Alouettes is being ridiculous. It certainly hasn't been his fault that we haven't been scoring touchdowns all year.

"I'll admit it's possible I've been trying to bring John along too fast by playing him to give him experience. That might be, but not the rest."

But the Carlos comments did not irk Etcheverry as much as the insinuation that some players have not agreed with Etcheverry's play-calling from the bench.

"Dissatisfaction breeds contempt," growled Etcheverry. "I'd like to see the players who said something like that come forward and own up to it. That might not happen, of course, and I'm going to pry with the reporters and try and find out who."

"If John John Carlos is getting too much press then who is it who is writing about him all the time? That's you people. Every time he opens his something.

"This certainly isn't the first time this sort of thing has happened in football. It happens to most losing teams. But, every time players start popping off, about the management, it becomes like a disease.

"I think what's bothering most of the guys can be written off as simple frustration, but I'm just not going to let anything get out of hand."

Cowboys Survive Fumbles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was fumble, fumble, who got the fumble in a sloppy National Football League contest that saw 11 turnovers with Dallas Cowboys finally prevailing 20-13 over New York Giants Monday.

"There were so many fumbles it got to where you started looking around on every play wondering who was going to come up with the next one," said Dallas linebacker Leroy Jordan.

Cust Knight scored field goals of 15, 36, 13, 17 and 39 yards to lead the undefeated Washington Redskins to a 22-13 triumph over Houston Oilers Sunday and their fourth straight victory, a feat they had not achieved at the start of a season since 1943, when they made it to the NFL championship game.

In Sunday's other games, Cleveland Browns beat Pittsburgh Steelers 26-17, Detroit Lions edged Green Bay Packers 31-28, Chicago Bears walloped New Orleans Saints 35-14, Los Angeles Rams upset San Francisco 49ers 20-13, Baltimore Colts bombed Buffalo Bills 45-10, Oakland Raiders topped Denver Broncos 27-24, Minnesota Vikings muffled Philadelphia Eagles 13-0, St. Louis Cards whipped Atlanta Falcons 26-9, New England Patriots silenced New York Jets 20-0, Miami Dolphins turned back Cincinnati Bengals 23-13 and Kansas City Chiefs overhauled San Diego Chargers 31-16.

The Cowboys fumbled seven times Monday and the Giants recovered five. The Giants fumbled five times and the Cowboys collected all five. New York also intercepted on Cowboy pass.

Dallas now is 3-1 and trails the unbeaten Redskins by a full game in the NFL's East Division. The Giants are 2-2.

Dallas took a 13-6 halftime lead on Roger Staubach's fourth touchdown pass in the third period to give Dallas a 20-6 lead and it withstood a late Giant surge which had Frank Tarkenton whipping a 24-yard touchdown pass to Clifton McNeil to make the final margin respectable.

Mike Clark kicked field goals of 42 and 41 yards for Dallas and Pete Gogolak hit field goals of 35 and 26 yards for the Giants —all in the first half.

The Browns, taking sole possession of first place in the American Conference's Central Division, got a superlative performance Sunday from tight end Milt Morin, who hauled in eight passes for 126 yards and a touchdown against the Steelers.

Greg Landry of the Lions had his best day as a pro, completing 18 of 29 passes for 302 yards and four touchdowns, including two covering 10 and 60 yards to wide receiver Larry Walton.

Kent Nix of Chicago completed 15 of 27 passes for 242 yards and two touchdowns against the Saints.

The Rams took over the NFC West Division lead from the defending champion 49ers on a game-winning 64-yard touchdown run up the middle by Larry Smith.

Buffalo fumbled four times, had four passes intercepted and gained a measly 49 yards as they lost to Baltimore.

Ken Stabler, subbing for injured Raiders quarterback Daryle Lamonica, climaxed a pair of third-quarter drives by running for one touchdown and passing for another to turn back the Broncos.

Vikings recorded their second successive shutout for the first time in their 11-year history, ruining the debut of new Eagles coach Ed Khayat on Dave Osborne's touchdown run and a pair of Fred Cox field goals.

Jim Bakken kicked four field goals and MacArthur Lane and Roy Shivers ran for touchdowns in the Cardinals' victory over the Falcons. Rookie Jim Plunkett fired touchdown strikes to Randy Vataha and Ron Sellers and Jim Nance galloped 50 yards for a touchdown in the Patriots' shutout over the Jets.

The Dolphins turned costly Bengals' mistakes into a pair of Bob Griese touchdown passes

Coffey Only Season Away From 1,000-point Plateau

Tommy Joe Coffey is one season away from becoming the first Canadian Football League player to crack the 1,000-point barrier.

The 32-year-old place-kicking defensive end scored a touchdown and kicked a field goal, a single and four converts for 14 points Monday as B.C. held the Hamilton Tiger-Cats crushed British Columbia Lions 36-3 in an interlocking game.

Coffey's performance Monday moved him into the lead of the EFC's scoring race with 67 points, one more than Gerry Organ of Ottawa Rough Riders and increased his lifetime points total to 914.

The Ticats have three regular-season games remaining and unless Coffey, in a 12th CFL year, has an incredible finish the 1,000-point mark will not fall until next season.

Ironically, the player closest to Coffey in lifetime points is Jackie Parker, B.C. general manager, who racked up 750 points in 13 seasons with Edmonton Eskimos, Toronto Argonauts and B.C. before he moved to his present post.

The win, before 25,097 Hamilton fans, left the Ticats alone in second place of the EFC standings with 8 points, two ahead of Montreal Alouettes but eight behind Toronto, who clinched first place Sunday when they whipped the Alouettes 33-5.

Ottawa, who dumped the Lions 45-21 Saturday, are two points back of Montreal.

Defensive end Dave Baker, defensive halfback John Williams and flanker Lewis Porter got Hamilton's other touchdowns Monday with Joe Zuger and Doug Mitchell adding singles.

Ted Gerela's first-quarter field goal that evened the count was the only time B.C. hit the scoreboard.

The Ticats were leading 12-3 in the third quarter when Baker grabbed a loose ball at the B.C. 30 yard line and romped for a touchdown.

Zuger let Porter early in the fourth quarter with his second touchdown pass of the day, then about two minutes later Williams intercepted a Don Moorhead pass and raced 80 yards to cross B.C.'s goal line.

The remaining Texas points came with less than three minutes in the game when Doug Dersch broke through the Lions' defence to throw substitute quarterback Rusty Clark into the end zone for two points.

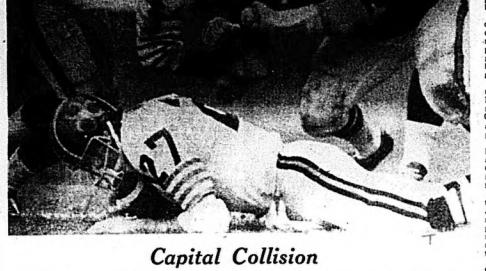
Zuger completed nine of 15 pass attempts for 111 as he directed the Ticat offence. He had one interception.

Moorehead hit on three of 11 attempts for 50 yards and had two interceptions. Clark completed one of his two attempts and had the other intercepted.

The Lions outrushed Hamilton 203 yards to 138 with B.C. fullback Jim Evenson gaining 80 yards in 20 carries. B.C. held the edge in first downs, 13-12.

At Montreal Sunday, the victory gave the Argos their only first-place finish since 1960.

Toronto quarterback Joe Theismann ripped Montreal's defence apart with an overpowering aerial attack. The former Notre Dame star completed 14 of 20 passes for 331 yards and was Toronto's top ground gainer with 46 yards in seven carries.



Flanker Mike Eben, who snared a Theismann touchdown pass in the first minute of play, suffered a bruised back in the first quarter but returned home with the team after a visit to hospital.

Montreal quarterback Sonny Wade left the game in the second quarter with an injury and was replaced by Jim Chasey. However, Wade returned in the second half and completed the contest.

At Ottawa, the Riders retired sweater No. 11, the jersey Ron Stewart wore for 13 seasons as their star halfback, then went on to register the most points ever accumulated in one game this season.

Dennis Duncan and Billy Cooper each scored a pair of touchdowns to pace the Rough Riders. Stewart, Jim Yong and Ken Sugarman got six-pointers for B.C.

Stampeders Couldn't Find Key

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Underdog victories in the Western Football Conference during the holiday weekend kept Calgary Stampeders from locking up first place and left British Columbia Lions and Winnipeg Blue Bombers tied for the last playoff spot.

Second-place Saskatchewan Roughriders defeated first-place Calgary 24-17 Monday, setting up another game between the same clubs next Saturday in Regina that may decide the real title season champion of the WFC.

Last-place Edmonton Eskimos, who had nine new players in the lineup, ruined their third victory in 13 games with a 22-14 win over Winnipeg Sunday in Edmonton.

Eskimos, with only faint hopes of gaining a playoff berth, are five points behind Winnipeg and British Columbia Lions who have 11 points each with three games to play.

Calgary remains first with 18 points on a 9-4 record but Saskatchewan, whose defensive line stymied the Stamps, is only two points back.

The Roughrider line limited the Stamps to 161 yards passing and 33 rushing while Ron Lancaster led the visitors to 137 yards rushing and 246 passing.

The Roughriders, eight points behind early in the game, got a touchdown from Silas McKinney, two converts and a field goal from Jack Abendschein, a single on a field goal try and a touchdown pass to Al Ford.

Calgary scored the first time they got the ball, quarterback Jim Letsberg marching from the Stampeder 42 yard line and passing 13 yards to Jesse Mims for the touchdown. Larry Robinson made the convert, the 100th of his career.

The Stamps did not score again until the third quarter when Lindsey touched a seven-yard pass to Rudy Linterman.

Calgary's final two points came when Ford conceded two points rather than punt from his end zone into a 30 mile-an-hour wind.

Lancaster's two touchdown passes gave him a career total of 167, breaking the record of 165 set by Russ Jackson in 12 seasons with Ottawa Rough Riders.

Edmonton seemed to be cast in the role of spoilers in their victory. They would have to win all three remaining games while Winnipeg and B.C. lost all theirs to gain the last playoff position.

The club ran and passed well and was tough on defence as it dished Winnipeg's hopes of pulling ahead of the Lions.

Gene Foster scored two touchdowns and Bobby Taylor one as the Eskimos kept the Bombers from reaching scoring territory until late in the third quarter. Dave Cutler kicked three converts and a single for the Eskimos.

Gee-Gees Only Unbeaten Team

Although Ottawa Gee-Gees encountered stiff opposition Saturday, they stretched their winning streak to six and remained the only undefeated team in the Ontario Universities Athletic Association football league.

The Ghee-Gees rallied in the last half to defeat Waterloo Lutheran 17-10 at Waterloo and lead the Northern Division with 12 points.

In other games, Western Ontario whipped Windsor 40-7 at London, Ont., Queen's trounced York University 42-7 at Toronto, and Guelph humbled Laurentian 49-23 at Sudbury.

Ottawa trailed Lutheran 3-1 at the midway mark, but quarterback Norm Lickay's 14-yard touchdown pass to Mike Gratton and a 35-yard field goal by Dave Gibau brought the Gee-Gees from behind. Dave White scored Ottawa's other touchdown, converted by Gibbs.

Willy Parker scored all Waterloo's points on three field goals and a single.

Western took the lead in the Western Division with halfbacks Dave Kerr, Bruce Murray leading the way against the Lancers with two touchdowns each. Pete Quigley, Bud Wilson and Terry Harve, provided the other touchdowns for the Mustangs, while Paul Kittl added a field goal and five converts.

Doug Middleton got the Windsor touchdown, converted by Jim Wilkinson.

Queens had an easy time against York Yeomen, who are winless in six starts.

Gord McLelland scored three touchdowns, Dave Bell and John Billingsworth added one each.

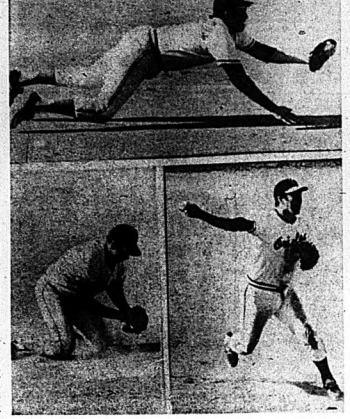
Movers Make Hay

SAULT STE. MARIE (CP) — For the second time in two years, Sault Ste. Marie Movers are Ontario Amateur Softball Association Senior A champions.

The Movers defeated St. Catharines Blue Boys 5-4 Monday to complete a comeback that saw the Sault Ste. Marie team win the last two games of the best-of-three series after an opening-game 5-4 loss to the southern Ontario representatives.

WELLAND (CP) — Welland Dycks defeated Chelmsford Athletics twice Sunday to win the all-Ontario Senior B softball championship.

The Dycks won the opening game of the best-of-three final 14-0 and the second 16-3.



Veteran pitcher Ken Rhora threw a one-hitter for Welland in the first game. The three runs given up by the Dycks in the second game were the first in eight Ontario Amateur Softball Association playoff games.

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Owen Sound J. J. Crafter Real Estate won the all-Ontario Amateur Softball Association Intermediate AA championship Monday night by walloping Sudbury Flion Furniture 19-1 in the third and deciding game of the series.

Owen Sound took the opener Sunday night 4-3, but Sudbury came back to tie the series Monday afternoon with a 2-1 victory in 18 innings.

SAULT STE. MARIE (CP) — Sault Ste. Marie Steelers edged Windsor Local 444 Sunday in two straight games to win the intermediate industrial division championship of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association.

Sault Ste. Marie won the opener 4-3 and the final 5-4.

Superstop

Brooks Robinson, Baltimore Orioles third baseman, dives for liner hit by Manny Sanguillen — regains feet and throws him out during eighth inning of second game of World Series Monday in Baltimore. Plays like this during last year's series was one of the reasons he was named the most valuable player. (AP Wirephoto)

Birds Repel Pirate Boarders

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates, their pitching staff worn and torn, returned home for today's third game of the best-of-seven World Series hoping to stall what seems to be march to a second straight a determined Baltimore Orioles world championship.

Steven Blass got the starting assignment today in Pittsburgh after the Orioles had battered six Pirate pitchers for 14 singles and an 11-3 victory Monday for a 2-0 lead.

Brooks Robinson and Frank Robinson each collected three hits in the romp that had the Pittsburgh bullpen relief cart operating like a shuttle bus.

The damage absorbed by the Pirate staff was reminiscent of the 1970 series when Cincinnati Reds pitching fell apart and the Orioles won in five games.

But there is another parallel: The Birds took 14-game winning streaks into the World Series both last year and this—11 straight at the end of the regular season followed by three-game playoff sweeps.

The streak reached 17 games before the Orioles lost in the fourth game of the 1970 series and was at 16 today. But the current string doesn't dominate Baltimore's thinking.

"We concentrate on what's next," said Frank Robinson. "Next for us is the third game of the series. After that, we'll think of the fourth and a sweep."

Frank, who has had five hits in Baltimore's two victories, said that the Orioles approached this series with a quiet confidence that stamps them as a mature ball club.

"We were sure about ourselves before the playoffs and before the series," said Robinson. "But we're not over-confident. We're happy to have won two games but we know we need two more.

"We're a mature ball club. We're professionals. When we get going like this, we're tough to stop."

The Pirates found that out Monday when a blitz of base hits—eight of them in the fourth and fifth innings when Baltimore sent 10 men to the plate and scored nine runs—put the game out of reach early.

It was a distinct contrast to Saturday's opener when the Orioles used home runs by Merv Rettenmund, Don Buford and Frank Robinson for a 5-3 victory.

The Orioles got gritty pitching Monday, by Jim Palmer, who worked eight innings and left in Pirates stranded on base. Richie Hebner's three-run homer in the eighth accounted for the only Pirates runs and that was much too little much too late.

By the time Hebner connected, the Orioles had singled Pittsburgh into submission. In the second, hits by the Robinsons sandwiched around a walk to Ellie Hendricks made it 1-0.

In the fourth, Frank Robinson singled and a walk and hit batsman loaded the bases. Dave Johnson singled for two runs, finishing Pirate starter Bob Johnson.

Bruce Kison relieved and walked two batters, forcing in another run before Bob Moose came on to get the Pirates out of the inning.

Moose didn't make it through the fifth as the Birds bunched six more singles—two by Rettenmund, tying a single-inning series record—two walks and an error for six more runs.

Brooks Robinson, who had three runs batted in, added two walks to his three singles and tied a series record shared by Babe Ruth and Lou Brock by reaching base five times in a nine-inning game.

And to cap the performance, Brooks made a sensational stop to throw out Manny Sanguillen in the eighth inning. Again it was reminiscent of the 1970 series when the Reds couldn't get anything past Robinson at third base.

It was enough to discourage the most optimistic manager and Pittsburgh's Danny Murtaugh was understandably reserved.

"We're going back and regroup," he said. "We've been in these situations before."

A morning-long rainfall Sunday forced the first series postponement since 1962.

Dave McNally's fast ball was just fine in Saturday's opener as he throttled the Pirates on three hits and retired 19 consecutive victory.

The muscle in that game was batters during a 5-3 Baltimore provided by Rettenmund's three-run homer and solo shots by Frank Robinson and Don Buford.

McNally shrugged off an early 3-0 Pirate lead, then settled down to give Baltimore its 1-0 series lead.

"My arm felt good," said Dock Ellis, losing pitcher Saturday, after he was shelled out after 2 1-3 innings. "Outside of my curve ball, everything was going good."

Weaver Gets Chuckle Out of Singles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles took their 11-3 World Series victory in stride Monday and manager Earl Weaver was being facetious.

While the players streamed into the locker room with hardly a murmur, Weaver was telling writers assembled in another room:

"In the playoffs, my finger stuck on the long-ball button. Today, I pushed the base-hit singles button and couldn't get it off."

The reference was to Baltimore's attack of 14 singles, which prompted owner Jerry Hoffberger to ask: "Where's our power?"

"What would you rather have, bees?" pitcher Pete Richert asked. "Two taters (homers) and a loss?"

Third baseman Brooks Robinson, like the other Orioles, declined to predict a four-game sweep and suggested that Steve Blass, Pittsburgh's starter today, "is probably their best pitcher."

"I'd be crazy to say we'd win four straight," first baseman Boog Powell said. "We scored 11 runs today, not tomorrow. We can't take anything for granted."

The Orioles take a 16-game winning streak into today's game. They reached 17 straight last year before losing the fourth game of the World Series to Cincinnati Reds.

Jim Palmer, winning his third World Series game, threw 168 pitches before being lifted for reliever Dick Hall at the start of the ninth.

"He was starting to get tired," Weaver said, "and he had a twinge of pain in his elbow. We may have to use him again."

Weaver, a relentless driver who hates to lose, said of the 2-0 lead in the series: "What's past, is past. Tomorrow we play our most important game of the year."

Red Sox Trade Six

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Lane, 74-year-old general manager of Milwaukee Brewers who has spent his life in baseball creating big winds, made a 10-player deal with Boston Red Sox Sunday night. Officials of the teams were here for the World Series.

The Brewers receive slugging first baseman George Scott, outfielders Billy Conigliaro and Joe Lahoud, pitchers Jim Lonborg and Ken Brett and catcher Don Pavletich.

The Red Sox get pitchers Marty Pattin and Lew Krausse, outfielder Tommy Harper and minor league outfielder Pat Skrable.

Scott and Lonborg were heroes of Boston's 1967 American League pennant drive as Scott hit .303 and Lonborg won the Cy Young Award with a 22-9 record. Lonborg has spent time back in the minors after a skiing accident hurt his pitching motion.

Scott ended the 1971 season with a .253 batting average, 24 home runs and 72 runs batted in. Lonborg was recalled from Louisville in the International League May 14 and finished the season 10-7.

Conigliaro spent much of the season in controversy after he feuded with fellow-outfielders Carl Yastrzemski and Reggie Smith. He accused Yaz of controlling the club and receiving special treatment from manager Eddie Kasko. He was platooned with Lahoud in centre field and hit .262 with 11 homers and 33 RBI.

Lahoud hit 14 homers and got 38 RBI in his first full season with the Red Sox.

Brett was used in relief by Kasko and finished the year 0-3 for the Red Sox. Pavletich, a journeyman catcher and 12-year veteran, hit .259 in just 27 plate appearances.

Pattin ended this season 14-14 with a 3.22 earned run average, leading Milwaukee with 265 innings and 169 strikeouts.

Krausse was bumped from the rotation and ended the season as a spot starter and main relief pitcher with an 8-12 record.

Harper is a speedster who has played both infield and outfield for the Brewers since he was one of the original draft selections of the Milwaukee forerunner Seattle Pilots. He hit .258 in 1971, along with 14 homers and 52 RBI.

Skrable, 23, is a left-handed batter, who played 1971 with the Evansville team of the American Association.

Henderson Well Ahead of Last Year's Pace

MONTREAL (CP) — Eleven players were grouped with three points each today following the initial weekend of action in the National Hockey League.

Listed first in the early scoring race was forward Paul Henderson of the Maple Leafs. He held the lead by virtue of his three goals scored as Toronto defeated Vancouver Canucks 3-2 Friday and then earned a 3-3 tie with California Golden Seals in Oakland Sunday.

It took left winger Henderson 13 games to score three goals last season.

In addition to the Toronto-California tie Sunday, New York Rangers beat the Bruins at Boston 4-1; the Black Hawks beat Detroit Red Wings 2-1 at Chicago; Buffalo Sabres proved poor foils as they defeated Pittsburgh Penguins 2-1; and Los Angeles Kings handed the Canucks their second straight loss at home 4-2.

In four games Saturday, Montreal Canadiens played host to New York and the Rangers earned a 4-4 tie; Minnesota North Stars beat the Red Wings 4-2; Chicago defeated St. Louis Blues also 4-2 and Pittsburgh edged Philadelphia Flyers 3-2.

Two games are scheduled for tonight when the Sabres visit the Bliers in St. Louis and Philadelphia journeys to Vancouver.

Grouped along with Henderson at the three-point level were Bobby Hull and Chico Maki of Chicago, along with defenceman Carol Vadnais of the Seals. All three had scored two goals and assisted on another.

Forwards Bob Sheehan of California, Rod Gilbert of New York, Wayne Maki of Vancouver, and Ralph Backstrom of Los Angeles all had one goal and two assists to their credit.

Defencemen J. C. Tremblay of Montreal and forwards Walt McKechnie and Tom Williams of California, all had three assists.

In addition to the 11 co-leaders, five other players each scored two goals—Wayne Carleton of California; Danny O'Shea of Chicago; Danny Grant of Minnesota; and Yvan Cournoyer and Frank Mahovlich of Montreal.

Bryan Watson of Pittsburgh found himself the penalty leader and $150 poorer, the result of a game misconduct penalty Saturday, assessed for being first man off the players' bench into an altercation, and a 10-minute misconduct penalty Sunday.

Generals Winning Junior War

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oshawa Generals solidified their position atop the Junior A series of the Ontario Hockey Association Monday by defeating Toronto Marlboros 4-1.

In other league action, Peterborough Petes beat London Knights 5-3 with two third-period goals.

Oshawa leads the league with 10 points, followed by Kitchener Rangers with seven and Ottawa 67s and Peterborough, tied with six each.

The Generals had suffered their first loss of the season 3-1 at the hands of Montreal Junior Canadiens while the Marlboros were losing 9-6 to Kitchener. St. Catharines Black Hawks downed Peterborough 6-4, London defeated Hamilton Red Wings 6-4 and Ottawa grounded Niagara Falls Flyers 6-3 in other Sunday games.

Oshawa defeated Montreal 7-5 Saturday.

The Generals broke a 1-1 second-period tie at Oshawa with three unanswered goals to down Toronto.

Oshawa scorers were Tom Simpson, Doug Ferguson, Bill Lochead and Steve West. Steve Shutt replied for the Marlies.

Generals lost their top points man, Rick Middleton, early in the second period with a concussion. He was taken to hospital for observation.

At Peterborough, the teams entered the third period tied 3-3 but Paul Raynor sent Petes ahead 4-3 just 10 seconds into the final period. About 16 minutes later Rick Chinnick scored the insurance goal.

Doug Gibson scored twice for the winners and Ron Lalonde once. London marksmen were Dennis McCord, Reg Thomas and Dennis Ververgaert, each counting on power plays.

Rookie Montreal goaltender Nick Sanza stopped 43 Oshawa shots Sunday to give his team the chance for victory. Montreal fired only 30 at Oshawa netminder Giles Gratton.

Lochead, Middleton and West each scored two goals for the Generals in the Saturday game and Dennis Howard got one. West got Oshawa's only goal on Sunday.

Bogdan Podwysocki and Ian Turnbull scored two of Montreal's goals Saturday and Firmin Royer the other. On Sunday, it was two for Rover and one for Podwysocki.

In Kitchener, the Rangers scored four unanswered goals in the third period and outshot Toronto 48-34 for their 9-6 victory.

Rookie Gerry Evans scored two goals seven seconds apart to lead the Rangers' third-period attack. Other Kitchener scorers were Bill Barber and Bruce Herridge with two each. Mike McKegney, Les Burgess and Jerry Byers.

For the Marlboros, Shutt and Gino Goldup each scored two and Billy Harris and Fred Prosser one.

Beechey Beats Flyers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Beechey's second goal of the game with less than five minutes remaining in the third period gave Galt Hornets a 3-2 decision over visiting Barrie Flyers Monday in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A action, in which every home team to date has been a winner.

Beechey's decisive goal was scored on a rebound after the first shot hit the goal post during a power play.

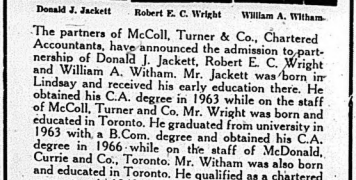
Ron Smith was the other Galt scorer,

Mike Dubeau scored both Barrie goals.

Woodstock Royals skated to an 8-2 drubbing of Owen Sound Crescents Sunday. Kingston Aces recorded a 6-1 win over Belleville Quintes, and Galt defeated Oakville Oaks 5-1 Saturday.

Orillia Terriers eked out a 5-4 win Saturday over Barrie.

In Woodstock's triumph, Bob Ruthig, Steve DeGruse and Dan Mahoney each scored two goals, and Bill Buston and Don Kudcha netted one each.



Don Vigond and Mike Cain scored for Owen Sound.

In the only close game of the weekend, Doug Acomb scored what proved to be the winning goal in Barrie's 5-4 win over Orillia. Bob Baird scored two goals for the winners and Bob Cunningham and Jim McCloskey had one each.

Orillia marksmen were Mike Draper, with a pair, John Weeks and Jim Keon.

Defenceman Pete Speyer scored two to lead Galt to victory over Oakville. Bill Hway, Bruce Reier and Skeeter Teal each scored one goal.

Ter O'Neil Adair was the only marksman.

Stoke Stops Sheffield

LONDON (CP) — Sheffield United's seven-week reign at the top of the First Division of English League soccer came to an end Saturday when it was upset 2-1 by Stoke City—its second successive defeat.

Manchester United, the team which ended Sheffield's unbeaten record a week before, took over the league leadership with a 3-0 victory over Huddersfield. The win gave the club 19 points from 12 matches. Sheffield, which slipped to second place, has 18 points.

Manchester's three goals came in the second half. Irish international George Best headed the first in the 65th minute. Scottish ace Denis Law fired in the second and England World Cup veteran Bobby Charlton completed the scoring seven minutes from time to celebrate the 15th anniversary of his debut for the club.

Stoke came back after conceding the first goal to edge Sheffield in thriller.

Alan Woodward opened the scoring from the penalty spot after only three minutes before John Ritchie equalized for Stoke 13 minutes later.

Stoke then went ahead in the 52nd minute through Denis Smith, only for Tony Currie to level with 17 minutes. It was left to Jimmy Conroy to hit the winner eight minutes from time to send Sheffield slithering to its first home defeat of the season.

Manchester City moved into third position on 17 points, with a 1-0 victory over Everton, but its win was marred by an injury to defender David Conner, who was carried off in the 20th minute with a suspected broken left ankle. City's winning goal came from a second-half penalty taken by Francis Lee, the England World Cup striker.

City led Derby County on goal average after Derby was held to a 2-2 draw by Tottenham Hotspur in an exciting match watched by England manager Sir Alf Ramsey.

How's Your Hearing?

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

Try it to see how it is worn in the privacy of your own home without cost or obligation of any kind. It's yours to keep, free. It weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit. No wires lead from body to head.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Write to Dept. 7285 Beltone Electronics, 3637 Metropolitan Blvd., E., Montreal 38, P. Q.

Downs Retires After Nine Years

NEW YORK (AP) — Hugh Downs, after nine years as host of NBC's Today show, turned over the reins to Frank McGee Monday morning in a tv-hour program dedicated primarily to farewells.

The usual form of the daily program was maintained, with frequent breaks for news summaries and weather reports plus, of course, the commercials. Downs, in fact, handled a pitch for a dog food as his final chore on the show.

The departure of Downs is bound to be a wrench for viewers for whom the program has become part of a morning ritual. His low-key personality somehow seemed nicely gelled to the time of day.

McGee, whose public image is that of a brisk, no-nonsense reporter with a hard news background—recently as anchorman for NBC coverage of space flights—undoubtedly has his work cut out for him. He moves into a group—Barbara Walters, Frank Blair and Joe Garagiola —whose members enjoy an easy working relationship based smooth by years of teamwork.

Hogan's Goal, a television adaptation of William Alfred's 1965 off-Broadway play, was presented as a two-hour drama special on the Public Broadcasting Network Monday night.

The play, as melodramatic as an afternoon soap opera, was set in Brooklyn 30 years ago when the Irish ruled the community. It was the story of an ambitious young politician, Matt Stanton, and his effort to unseat Quinn, the mayor of 30 years.

Robert Foxworth of last season's Storefront Lawyers played Stanton, with Faye Dunaway as his wife. They were supported by a strong cast of New York stage actors. There was much strong language, forbidden except in meaningful drama, but the plot itself would not have been out of place in any series on the commercial networks. Of course, in that case Miss Dunaway would have reconciled with Foxworth and they would have lived happily ever afterwards. Since it was the educational network, she fell down a flight of stairs, broke her neck and died.

He Likes Our Halls

LONDON (CP) — A British music critic, travelling with the London Philharmonic Orchestra on a tour of North America, has saluted two new concert centres in Canada and the audiences that patronize them.

Concert facilities at the Saskatchewan Centre of the Arts "would be the envy of many European cities 10 times the size of Regina," writes critic Trevor Gee in The Times.

Referring to the Centennial Theatre at the Regina centre, Gee quotes several players in the London orchestra as saying "that this is one of the halls they have most enjoyed playing in anywhere in the world."

The British critic describes the audience there as "attentive, enthusiastic, grateful for a form of live music that is still a rarity."

He reports that Kingston, Ont., "is handsomely possessing only an ice hockey arena to do duty as a concert hall."

But London, Ont., "can be justifiably proud" of its 3,000-seat Alumni Hall at the University of Western Ontario.

Gee says more might be done by concert organizers in Canada to provide background information on musical works being performed there.

Besides the lack of such information as part of the programs distributed at concerts, there also is a need "for a better-informed standard of critical coverage in newspapers at least," Gee adds.

Sedative for Heavy Drinker Can Bring Personality Change

By G. C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband was a heavy drinker, never a day without it, although he never missed a day's work because of drinking.

Then it happened; he was told he had cirrhosis of the liver. He went from one doctor to another trying to convince himself that each one was wrong, and his stomach is so distended it is horrible.

He was given pills and told to take one a day. Well, it's three years now and he hasn't drunk a drop, but he takes three to five pills a day. How he gets them I don't know.

He still works, but a sit-down job. At times he is so stupid looking and talks blah! Then other times (when not sleeping) he is normal. Then at times he hurts mean.

Is there something I can get or do to get him off this?—Mrs. M.B.

The medication you mentioned is one of the sedatives, and in this case intended to relax your husband in his struggle to stay away from alcohol. It can have undesirable side effects, and that isn't surprising when he is taking three to five times the amount he was told to take.

In the final analysis, pills won't do it all for him. An alcoholic sooner or later has to make up his mind that he is losing the battle of booze, and his only resource is to stay away from it entirely.

Perhaps by now he can give up this medication and still stay off liquor. But anyone, with too much sedation, can be "stupid looking and talk blah."

If he still finds he can't get along without medication of some sort, he might discuss this with his doctor. There are other medications, the best known being Antabuse, which has the property of making the patient violently ill if he drinks any alcohol.

But if he finds he can't cope with his craving without medication, I hope he will consider joining Alcoholics Anonymous where he will be with others who understand his problem because they've been through it. And they know how to help him.

Dear Doctor: This is the fourth identical letter I have sent without seeing your answer in the paper, so I am sending this by registered mail hoping you will receive it.

I have noticed lately that the urine flow is somewhat diminished. Is it due to hypertrophy of the prostate gland? Could it be cancerous? Will the flow remain the same indefinitely or will it continue diminishing? I have no pain and am over 70.—P.A.M.

Nobody can answer those questions with 100 per cent certainty. Enlarged prostate is the likeliest cause; maybe cancer, too, maybe not; the flow will probably continue to diminish. But instead of asking me to make guesses, see your doctor before the trouble gets worse.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My wife has a tear in her vaginal wall from which the intestine can be seen protruding. Should this not be repaired? What are the dangers of not having it done? She is 60 and in good health, and has had three children.—P.B.M.

I question your description of the problem. She probably has a cystocele, which is a sagging (not a tear) in the vaginal wall. The urinary bladder is contained in the sagging area.

This can be readily repaired by what is called a vaginal plastic procedure. Danger in not having it repaired is that under such conditions complete emptying of the bladder does not occur, and the result is risk of a chronic urinary tract infection.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 13

Your birthday today: The questions you ask of yourself and life change this year. What was challenging shrinks to routine while ideas that seemed subtle and remote become spirtives often pursue a vocation with a dogmatic fervor.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Be alert for sudden incidents, willing to think as you go and stick by decisions implied by your immediate reactions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Try a wide range of projects—and no recriminations offered or accepted for those which go astray or fail.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Little you say or do will go unnoticed or unremembered. Discretion preserves future options. Seek serious objectives, change.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Listening brings more information than eager questioning. What you need to know comes from unlikely people, casual strangers.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Present your finest, most lucid public image. Accept invitations at face value, presuming no special status in those who seek your attention.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your special skills and dogged knowledge come to critical focus. Decisions worked out early tend to clear the air.

LIBRA (Sep. 23 — Oc. 22): The middle road goes farthest today. As you bear inspection you have a deeper insight into the qualities of those observing you — react accordingly, but gracefully.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Find something good in whatever news there is. Like as not you have a personal triumph to cheer about as well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Mind your manners; let nobody get an impression that you've taken him for granted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Be versatile. You still have more adjustments to make; this time they're even fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Hopefully you can take the light approach without getting funny or patronizing. Much depends on your real attitudes this complex and busy day.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Hit on the right note and all goes rather smoothly. Do your utmost to make home life harmonious.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"My horoscope said today was a most favorable day for making purchases. Unfortunately, Herbert read it, too."

P.G. Wodehouse Ninety Friday

REMSENBURG, N.Y. (AP) — P. G. Wodehouse, who practically invented the butler when he created Jeeves, turns 90 on Friday in a Long Island home where there's not even a live-in maid.

"We cope," he said in a rare interview recently as he relaxed in his study after completing Jeeves and the Tie that Binds, the latest in his series of novels about the inimitable genius man's gentleman.

Since 1902, Wodehouse has averaged a book a year, all inspired by a clear-cut philosophy:

"I like to make people feel good, and they seem to like that. I don't have any deep theories about humor; I think the purpose of humor is to make people laugh."

Almost 70 years on the bestseller lists has proved his theory and has also left him calm, serene and in great good humor with life.

The lack of a butler doesn't get him down any more than it does his wife.

"We had 11 in-help when we lived in London," laughed his slim, elegant and blonde wife Ethel.

"Yesterday I wasn't off my feet for 11 hours while I scrubbed bathrooms, polished floors, cooked meals and did all the other things you have to do around a house."

But she, after all, is a bright young thing of only 86 and not about to settle in front of a fireplace with her knitting.

As for the new outburst of critical praise crowning a lifetime of work, Wodehouse said with typical British understatement: "It's delightful, isn't it?"

He was last in England in 1939 to accept an honorary degree of doctor of letters from Oxford University and has been a United States citizen since 1953.

Four dogs and a multitude of cats share the Wodehouse estate.

"They're all strays," he said, "except the dachshund who came from London."

Wodehouse is pretty tough on most fiction being written today.

"I think these modern things irritate one more than anything else. All this dirt that's going around."

"I dislike the modern dirty novel very much—I'm thinking of Portnoy's Complaint—how they're going to make that into a movie beats me."

What he does like are mystery stories—particularly those of Rex Stout and Agatha Christie.

Many critics have called Wodehouse a classic writer in the sense that all his works are as balanced, symmetrical and well-made as an Adams fireplace.

His work plan shows why.

For each novel he plots a "scenario" which sometimes runs to 30,000 or 40,000 words. These take months to complete as he outlines every twist of the plot. Some take much longer. Wodehouse spent 20 years, between other tasks, working out the plot of last year's The Girl in Blue.

But then the writing comes very easily—the hard work is done.

Level of Mercury In Humans Falls

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Recent concern over mercury levels in fish and later may be unwarranted because mercury levels in human tissues have declined, United States researchers say.

Reporting findings of their study to the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association, the researchers Monday blamed part of the mercury scare on "emotionalism and ignorance."

Their study was done at Saratoga General Hospital in Detroit and involved analysis of tissues taken from human organs at autopsies between 1913 and 1970 and preserved at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

The tissues were taken from the bodies of 59 Michigan residents who had died of causes unrelated to mercury.

The authors said that concern over mercury contamination "had produced social reverberations in the form of mass anxiety leading to . . . action—often with little or no scientific basis —resulting in chaos, fear, and the economic pain of damaged or killed sectors of industry and commerce."

While research has been conducted on mercury levels in fish, little has been done on mercury content of human tissues, they said. It is presumed that high mercury levels result in damage to the central nervous system of human beings.

At the news conference, Dr. Jerry Cranklin, one of the researchers, criticized the Food and Drug Administration for setting a standard of 5 parts per million of mercury in fish as the maximum permissible level.

There is no data to support such a standard, he said, and added that it is based on "emotionalism and ignorance." Sweden permits a level twice as high, he noted.

The study found that the level of mercury in human tissue, which ranged upward to 24 parts per million, does not remain constant but reaches peaks in early childhood and again in middle age, indicating that it does not accumulate in the body. Tissues were studied from persons ranging in age from the newborn to 81 years.

Terrorists Told They Cannot Win

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath issued a "you will never win" warning to Northern Ireland's guerrillas Monday night in a television broadcast. He said British troops were beginning to prevail in the Ulster struggle.

"We are determined to get on top of the gunmen, . . ." Heath said. "We are gradually doing it.

"It will take time, but with more and more forces, we will be able to do it."

The main point of his message was that British has no intention of giving up control of the situation in red wracked Ulster, where a 25th British soldier died Monday. The soldier was hit in the head by a bullet two weeks ago.

The prime minister pledged that if Protestant terrorist organizations were uncovered by security forces, their members would be interned in the same way militants of the outlawed Irish Republican Army have been.

Council Tightens Apartment Control

Canada Lacks Needed Facts

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau says the government is not getting the answers it wants — or any answers at all — from the U.S. government about the future of U.S.-Canada trade relations.

He told the Commons Tuesday the problem is not communications.

He told the Commons Tuesday the problem is not communications.

"The difficulty lies with insurling that the communications are put to use so that we know what the Americans intend doing. in their future policy. . . .

"It is not American policy now to put the proper stuff into the channels which would satisfy the Canadian people," he added in another reply to opposition queries.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the House the government has received no shopping list of U.S. conditions for lifting its 10 per-cent import surcharge imposed Aug. 16.

"We would be happy to receive such a list. So far we have not received it."

The Chicago Tribune reported Monday that U.S. government has drafted a list which includes, among other items, revision of the U.S.-Canada auto pact to remove benefits that have flowed to Canada.

Mr. Sharp said there were points the U.S. has been wanting to negotiate with Canada—outside the surcharge issue—"but we have a list of points that we wish to raise with them." Both sides want their own way, he said.

State and treasury officials in Washington denied responsibility for the memorandum, but said it might be a U.S. government working paper.

Outside the House, Mr. Sharp said he also had a list too. "But it's in my head not on paper."

"I do not think that we want to be exchanging lists at this time through the public press and I do not think that the United States administration intended that either."

Law Covers Parking And Size of Lots

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

City council yesterday took action to provide more stringent regulations with respect to apartment house construction in the older parts of the city.

Specifically council gave three readings to a bylaw to amend bylaw 6493 setting out allowable lot coverage and parking requirements for multiple family housing.

The amendment generally updates existing standards and although the bylaw still has to have Ontario Municipal Board approval, in all interim the new regulations will go into effect.

The bylaw requires that 1.25 parking spaces be provided for each of the units in a multiple family dwelling; it also requires that the multiple dwelling not cover more than 50 per cent of the lot area and sets up stiffer front, side and rear yard requirements.

The bylaw rules out parking between the street line and the exterior wall of the apartment structure; sets 12 feet as a minimum front yard requirement and calls for a rear yard with a depth equal to the height of the building and in no event less than 25 feet.

Where the land abutting the lot is used or zoned for single family dwellings no parking will be permitted within 10 feet of the lot line.

The bylaw calls for a driveway of at least 10 feet in width for multiple family dwellings with up to four units and an 18-foot double driveway for structures with more than five housing units.

Where there are windows to habitable rooms, the driveway or parking area must not be closer than 25 feet and in any event parking or driveways must not be closer than five feet to the building.

Harvest Cuts Living Index

OTTAWA (CP) — Fresh fruit and vegetable prices fell sharply last month with the 1971 harvest, helping to pull down the official consumer price index for the first time this year.

Statistics Canada reported that the index declined to 134.7 in September from 135 in August, but still remained well above last September's 129.2. The index is based on 1961 prices equalling 100.

The food index fell to 133.7 from 135.9 in August, but it for remained above the 130 index figure for September last year.

In dollar terms, it meant that it cost only $13.37 last month to buy what $14.59 bought in food in August — a reduction of 22 cents. That same food basket cost $13 in September last year, and $10 in 1961.

In the over-all price picture, covering an average urban family's living expenses ranging from theatre tickets to new house and new car prices, the September reduction was a good deal less.

For $10 worth of family expenditure in 1961, the bill last month was $13.7, down just three cents from $13.73 in August and 43 cents higher than in September last year.

It was the first drop in the over-all index since December last year.

Detailed Tax Study Will Begin

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's tax-change bill received a boost in its race against the calendar Tuesday when the Commons gave it second-read ing approval.

But what New Democrat House Leader Stanley Knowles called crunch debate was scheduled to begin today. The House becomes a committee to consider the 207-page bill clause by clause.

The government's deadline for passage is Dec. 31, which would automatically make it the basis for 1972 income tax returns.

There has been considerable conjecture that the government won't reach its time goal.

The bill is three inches thick, complicated, and has to get report-stage and third-reading approval from the Commons after committee analysis before going on to the Senate and subsequent royal assent.

There is also the question of whether the government is anxious to rush a new tax base into effect when U.S. Canadian economic relations remain so uncertain.

If the government is forced into making the fundamental reassessment in its relations with the U.S. that Mr. Trudeau and other government leaders have said it might, Canada's economic structure would undoubtedly have to undergo drastic changes.

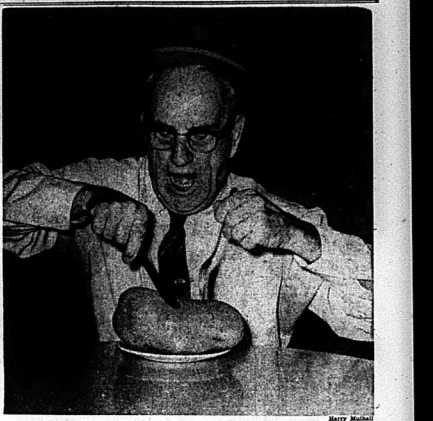
Revolt Possible - - Hellyer

TORONTO (CP) — A bloody youth revolution in the streets is possible in the next few years if unemployment continues to rise, Paul Hellyer, leader of the fledgling Action Canada political party, said Tuesday night.

Mr. Hellyer, former federal Liberal cabinet minister, told the Toronto Junior Board of Trade: "I've talked to a lot of young people and I know a lot of alienation and resentiment exists.



"I warned that unless his party's economic formula of full employment and an end to inflation through wage and price control is enacted, one of the serious alternatives to the present economic situation[y]" would be "revolution in the streets."

Stafford Smythe Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Smythe, 50, president of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd. and son of Conn Smythe, the man who built the Gardens and started Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, died early today.

A spokesman at Wellesley Hospital said death occurred at 5:25 a.m. EDT.

Smythe underwent emergency surgery Monday night after suffering a massive hemorrhage of the veins of the esophagus, the tube that leads from the throat to the stomach.

Dr. Robert Mitchell, who performed the operation that took several hours, said the bleeding had been controlled. However, he said, there was concern whether the kidneys and lungs had the necessary reserves for recovery.

Smythe entered hospital a week ago with a bleeding ulcer. Dr. Mitchell said today Smythe was not undergoing surgery when he died.

"There had been no further bleeding at all," Dr. Mitchell said. "Smythe put up a terrific fight and I'm sorry we couldn't save him."

Smythe had a 40-year career in hockey, ending as president of the Gardens and the Leafs.

His career was highlighted by four Stanley Cup championships by the Leafs, two major power struggles in the Toronto hockey organization, and two recent court actions against him and his executive vice-president, Harold Ballard.

"We've been together 25 years and we've never had an argument that amounted to a hill of beans," Ballard once said.

Relations between Stafford and his father, who appointed him head of the Gardens hockey committee in 1957, were less amicable.

Stafford provoked the 1961 raid in which he, Ballard and John Bassett, publisher of the Toronto Telegram, bought the Gardens and the Leafs from his father. He resigned from the hockey committee and threatened to leave Toronto if his father didn't sell.

But when Stafford encountered his next major power struggle in 1969, his father was there rooting for him.

During his 10 years as president of the Gardens and the Leafs, Smythe pursued a policy of expanding the Gardens seating capacity and the schedule of events.

Nixon Will Seek Accord on A-bomb

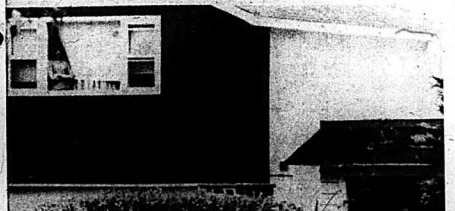
WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon will seek an agreement limiting the use of nuclear weapons and the outlines of a Middle East peace settlement when he visits Moscow next May, U.S. officials believe.

Nixon will be the first U.S. president to go to Russia, and he follows in the footsteps of Prime Minister Trudeau, who was the first Canadian prime minister to visit the Soviet Union when he made the trip last May.

Nixon announced Tuesday he will visit Moscow for talks with Soviet leaders which, he said, could significantly improve relations between the two countries.

The U.S. officials said his talks with Communist Party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev and other Soviet officials will scan the entire international horizon, but they feel the Middle East and nuclear weapons are the most likely avenues of agreement.

Nixon made clear he will not be going to Moscow—to follow his China visit—if he did not expect significant progress in one or more areas of Soviet-American differences.



Blast Flattens Brockville House

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — An explosion in the north-central section of the city today flattened one house and heavily damaged two others, sending five persons to hospital with undetermined injuries.

Mr. Norman Mielke and her daughter Janet, 19, along with three children she was baby sitting, were taken to hospital after the explosion, which followed a reported gas leak in the area, levelled their home.

Basil Casselman, whose home next door to the Mielke house was heavily damaged, said he reported to the Brockville Gas Co. that he smelled gas and suspected a leak.

He said a repairman arrived and was telephoning the company to report an apparent leak when the explosion occurred, about 9:30 a.m.

Hostage Stares at Police

Quebec Girl Hostage Freed By Man Sought for Slaying

STE. THERESE, Que. (CP) — A 13 year-old girl held for more than eight hours by a man suspected of slaying a police man was released unharmed early today and her captor gave himself up.

Helene Sanche was seized about 4:30 p.m. Tuesday when a man sought by police in the slaying of Constable Gabriel Labelle of the Ste. Therese police burst into the Sanche home.

The girl's mother was also home at the time but escaped the man, who was armed with a rifle.

Constable Labelle, son of the Ste. Therese police chief who had been a policeman for two years, was shot to death when he tried to question a man about a bank robbery Tuesday in nearby St. Augustin.

During the girl's eight-hours in captivity, the gunman was said to have proposed several plans for her release.

The suspect finally agreed to give himself up after Maurice Hebert, a lawyer, entered the house to talk with him.

Mr. Hebert was unreachable when the suspect first asked for him.

Before he arrived, Evelyne Letellecur, who runs an operation for French-language radio station CKVL, entered the house with two lawyers who were in Mr. Hebert's office when he was called for.

They emerged after 15 minutes but there was no discernable progress in getting Helene released.

In telephone interviews with reporters, Helene said at one point: "I'm just a little hungry and I'm starting to feel tired."

But she said, "everything is all right and I'm fine."

Police said she was in the bath or shower when the man entered and could not flee.

The man spoke in interviews of war and confirmed in answer to a question that he was "upset with society."

"Look at the newspapers," he said.

Dick James, a Broadcast News reporter asked in an interview from Toronto if the girl was afraid.

"No . . . she likes me," was the reply.

"Is there anything the police can do?"

"Find me a country," said the man, "find me a Shangri-La, find me something better than this goddemned life."

Up to 300 spectators and 50 or 60 reporters milled in the area around the Sanche house, a quiet, residential neighborhood in the town 15 miles north of Montreal.

Moira Principal Seeks More Help

A request for a second vice-principal for Moira Secondary School was tabled by Trustings county board of education last night.

"This has been a good discussion, but I sense this board is not prepared to vote," said director of education Eric Runacres before the tabling motion was carried.

Crun of the trustees' Indication was the matter of precedent. At present, policy calls for the appointment of a second vice-principal when enrolment at a secondary school reaches 1,200. Moira's enrolment now stands at 1,135.

But principal Ernest Shipton asked for the second vice-principal because of unique programs now under way at Moira.

They include: a system by which some students attend school half the day and work half the day; plans for some students to attend Moira half the day and Loyalist College half the day; a student volunteer program in the elementary and retarded childrens' schools; parent volunteers; about 20 non-credit interest courses in the school; and supervision of student activities by 18 - year - old students.

Mr. Shipton requested the second vice - principal to take over some of his duties and thus free the principal to head up the pilot projects now under way.

"When Mr. Shipton goes out to talk to doctors, businessmen and industrialists he gets a reaction that someone without his authority does not," said Mr. Runacres, in giving the reasons for the principal's request for assistance. "Why this is so I'm not prepared to say."

"This is a wonderful thing, it's important," commented MacDonald Smith on the pilot projects at Moira.

But, trustees noted, "everyone will now develop a pilot project and ask for a second vice-principal when enrolment stands at 1,135."

After an hour of what trustee Robertson Collins called "a big discussion about nothing", the issue was tabled, pending further talks with Mr. Shipton.

Mohawks to Meet

Tyendinaga Mohawks will meet tonight at 7:30 at Quinte Mohawk School for a general discussion of reserve issues.

The band council will be on hand to field questions from members of the band on any matter that may arise.

An issue of importance that cannot be settled tonight is the question of a new, central school on the reserve.

The federal government's department of Indian affairs has jurisdiction over education on the reserve, and is considering building of a new school.

One of the questions yet to be resolved is whether to build a new school for all the reserve's 220 elementary pupils, or whether to put an addition on the existing Quinte Mohawk School. As well as Quinte Mohawk, the reserve now has two outlying small schools that will be closed when the new school is built.

As well as its 220 elementary pupils, the reserve has 80 secondary pupils who are bused to Belleville schools.

Idle Hands Speak Out

Contractor for the apartment being built on the corner of Bleecker Ave. and Bridge St. rallied the wrath of local tradesmen this morning in the face of out-of-town labor. "The project is being done with scab labor and management is cutting every cost it can," said Gary Cole (left) electrician and spokesman for the group. Job supervisor for the project claims, "It is cheaper to pay men's expenses plus their pay, than it is to hire overpaid union men."

Engineers to Prepare Pinnacle Bridge Plan

Despite an objection from Alderman Ben Corke, who termed the firm's north-south corridor study as being "unimaginative," city council yesterday approved a traffic and light committee recolution authorizing the firm of Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates Ltd. to proceed with a conceptual design study for a proposed new bridge over the Moira at the end of Pinnacle Street.

The alderman wanted the matter tabled until council received minutes of the traffic committee meeting.

He said the report of the north-south corridor study failed to bring out anything new and rejected proposals for a grade separation across the tracks on Cannifton Road as being "totally inadequate".

The report of the consulting engineers was heard by council two weeks ago and was referred to the traffic committee for consideration and recommendation.

But Mayor J. Russell Scott asked for council approval of the traffic committee recommendation and stressed the urgency of conceptual plans being prepared so the city could get on with the work next year.

The engineering firm will draw preliminary plans for the proposed Moira Street bridge to link up either with Cameron Street or North Front Street with council to decide later which alternative to accept.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey also wanted the matter tabled, stating that she also would like to see the minutes of the traffic committee meeting.

She said the engineering firm's proposals should be studied by the downtown businessmen before further action was taken.

Council defeated the tabling motion on an 8-2 vote but the proposer and seconder of the motion at least gained a partial victory.

A second part of the traffic committee recommendation called for the engineering firm to proceed with an engineering study for an overpass and an alternative underpass for the Cannifton Road route over the CN tracks.

But council felt the overbridge had first priority and the Cannifton Road part of the recommendation was tabled for two weeks.

U.S. Investment In Nursing Homes 'Cause for Alarm'

American influence has infiltrated another area of Canadian life — nursing homes.

"A great many American dollars have been invested in some Ontario nursing homes, and this is cause for alarm," said Dr. E. T. Potter today in an address to members of the Associated Nursing Homes Inc. of Ontario.

The minister without portfolio in the Quinte cabinet and Conservative candidate for Quinte riding spoke at the association's 12th annual convention at the Skyline Hotel in Toronto.

The minister said he is concerned with what appears to be a growing financial motivation in nursing home operations.

"Formerly an individual developed a private nursing home as a community service and to provide self-employment. It seems to be an unfortunate sign of the times that more people are becoming interested in the financial return than in the service they are providing— a natural development, I suppose, when people can purchase stocks in larger homes and chains for homes. At this point their own personal input ceases and it becomes strictly a business venture."

"This is an area where our concern over economic domination by our American neighbors is justified," Dr. Potter added. "The quality of care may well deteriorate and become less personal under these circumstances." He said he believe that practising physicians, chiropractors or osteopaths should be specifically involved in nursing homes, any more than they are allowed to operate a pharmacy. I am convinced that there could be a conflict of interest in these cases, and it is therefore an undesirable situation."

With nursing home care coming under coverage of Ontario Health Insurance Plan by April 1, 1972, Dr. Potter outlined 'areas of concern' to medical administrators.

Some nursing home operators are not properly trained to direct their operations, the nursing staffs comprise a variety of personnel "making it difficult to assess the adequacy of the nursing staff in terms of numbers and qualifications," there has been concern about the lack of regular medical supervision and about a lack of appreciation of the need for "activation programs" for residents.

"For some time now a course has been offered to qualified nursing home administrators," said Dr. Potter.

"Perhaps this is an area in which community colleges could become interested."

Vote Count Worries Candidate

Alan Deacon, New Democratic Party candidate for Quinte, said Tuesday night that he is worried about the legitimacy of the polls which will be used for the Oct. 21 provincial election.

Answering questions from members of the Quinte District Labor Council, he said he was particularly concerned with the possibility of ballot thefts and tallying with the number of names stroked off enumeration lists, the method normally used to keep track of eligible voters who have cast ballots.

The NDP would, if the manpower was available, post scrutineers in all polling stations, he said.

Four NDP candidates were originally scheduled to address the meeting but Deacon was the only one able to attend. Art Cockerill, Northumberland candidate, and Bryan Beaver, running in Prince Edward - Lennox, both had prior commitments while Hastings-Frontenac-Lennox was suffering from a slipped disc. He was represented by Loyalist College teacher Richard Williams.

Deacon was also critical of local cheese factory shutdowns which, he said, were attributed to unfair milk quotas. These limits curtail production and result in larger, unhindered companies such as Kraft posting high prices due to lack, of competition. He cited the recent closing down of Shannonville Dairies of Stirling as an example of government inequity and declared that the NDP will end the quota system.

In reply to a question concerning municipal government, Mr. Deacon said the NDP will alleviate local tax burdens and terminate "unrealistic property - based taxes" if successful Oct. 21.

Following the question period, council voted to contribute $100 to each local NDP candidate's cagpaign.

There's No Doubt How Bill McLaren Will Vote

MELROSE — If chances of Liberal victories in rural Hastings were as bright as the impish twinkle in Bill McLaren's eyes, you'd see the glow for miles — and years — around.

At 84 he's one of the oldest Grits in the area.

Yet he carries his years lightly — and brightly — and when he casts his ballot in next week's provincial election, his mark will be as firm as ever.

A widower now living alone in the farmhouse he bought as a young man on Tyendinaga township's fourth concession north of here, he's not exactly sure how far back Liberalism dates in his ancestry. But it's been for many a long year.

"I remember my grandfather," he recalls, "and I know he was Liberal."

As with many long-established county families, party political commitment dates back generations. For the more ardent, this also has led to a long record of public service on one level or another — a sphere in which the McLaren family is one of the most distinguished.

The founding meeting of Tyendinaga's first township council was held in the McLaren homestead in the early 1800s.

Two McLarens have been wardens of the county. They have fought in provincial government elections. A cousin of Bill's, Alex McLaren, ran about a half-century ago for the United Farmers' Organization, and wrested the riding of East Hastings from its Conservative supremacy in a three - way fight, says Bill.

As for Bill himself, he was acclaimed a township councillor in 1925. He sat on county council until 1929 as township reeve.

In party politics he has been president of East Hastings Liberal Association; president of the Tyendinaga association seven years and a director in later years. Although he hasn't played an active party role in years, the era when he was part of the backroom political scene is still lively enough in his memory to make comparisons with today's events.

Among the biggest differences is the dilution of bitterness that party politics once aroused along the concessions.

Also, some voters expected more — even when the law prohibited it.

Both parties were at times expected to meet the demands of certain of the electorate who possessed the ballot — and thereby greater expectations.

These usually involved liquor, sometimes money.

Both parties engaged in the surreptitious liquor traffic when necessary.

"You had" to have it," recalls Bill, "on both sides. One (party) wasn't a bit better than the other as far as that went."

One provincial election — he can't recall which — prohibition laws had put a strain on party stocks and "some of the fellows" came to him worrying over the problem. Bill recalls with a grin.

He solved it — by seeking out a bootlegger miles away in Hungerford, who operated his own still.

"It was just as white as snow," says Bill with a roguish chuckle, "and had to be diluted by four times as much water.

"On top of that," I said to the wife: "I don't like the looks of that. So we took brown sugar and colored it. It looked better then."

He dropped it at a pre-arranged rendezvous, where he was around and "where it went from there I don't know."

However, when it came to cash, he was obdurate in refusals.

"One thing I never bandled — was a cent of money," he says, suddenly turning serious in the midst of his merry flow of recollections.

Modern elections are an improvement over such earlier, freewheeling days, says the nonagerian. For one thing, the emphasis is much more on the issues.

In an age when a vote was actively canvassed as soon as the voter was old enough — 21 years — Bill voted from younger than most he admits.

He was only 19 and some how his name got on the voters' list, he chuckles. Over his father's warnings, he decided to present himself at the polling booth.

"In those days it was different than it is now — they didn't watch you so close," he explains.

He wasn't asked to take the oath that he was of legal age.

"So I went in. And they gave me my ballot. And I voted," he laughs. "They didn't swear me . . . If they'd given me the oath I couldn't have taken it."

He can't remember the name of the candidate, but Bill lost his vote. That was 1895, the year Laurier came to power, ending the national Conservative supremacy that had begun with Confederation.

Now, well qualified in years to cast his ballot, Bill will be voting next week the same way he's done since that nervy day nearly three-quarters of a century ago: Liberal.

His family has been Liberal, he reminds. He himself is a Liberal "born . . . and bred."

And, he adds drily: "It'd be pretty hard to change now — at my age."

Bill McLaren's A True Grit

Julius Bedore's Been A Tory For More Than Eighty Years

There may be a brand new ballot in next week's provincial election.

But as far as Julius Bedore is concerned, his vote will be marked where it always has for more than four score years — in the Conservative candidate's slot.

At 103, Mr. Bedore is one of the oldest Canadians living, the oldest Tory in Quinte riding and a patriarch of Canadian Conservatism.

He's been voting Tory in every election since he was 21, — back so far in the days when John A. Macdonald was the party's chief.

"No matter what they did I'd never change my mind," says Julius, now somewhat arthritic and hard of hearing but a living reminder of more easily-defined political days — when you were either a Grit or Tory.

Particularly where Julius was born — near Marmora, in central Hastings County, a formidable fortress of Conservatism, where political creeds were almost genetic, passed down through the generations:

Yet there is an enigmatic touch about Julius' Toryism. All his family were Hastings Liberals.

"My father always was a Liberal. And all my (four) brothers and five sisters . . . were all Liberals. And I was a Conservative. So one spoke up my mind to that effect and I stayed right by it," recalls Julius. "I'm master what they did or tried to coax me. No Good. I was a Conservative right straight through."

Reasons for his decision to become Conservative are mainly his friends.

"I just made up my mind when I became 21. I was my own boss. I had some good neighbors and good people who were great friends of mine. They were Conservatives and we talked together and I took their advice and stayed right with it — never changed since I was 21."

With a memory understandably now not working with its stant recall, the Tory centenarian can't immediately remember for whom he cast his first ballot. But he does recall voting in a federal election in which Sir John A. Macdonald campaigned — like he'd done in 1891, the aging Conservative leader's last contest, the demands of which were later blamed as fatal to his health.

"I remember John A. well — and I voted for him," says Julius.

His first vote was at a rural riding just outside Marmora. His handerman, he lived most of his life in Marmora, some years with his kin in the Whitby area and is now resident of Hastings Manor (for the aged) in Belleville. But while the polls have changed his ballot has remained the same.

Not so with election campaigns, recalls Julius.

"They were a lot hotter in election days in those times than they are now. Everybody was just digging in for their own party. Nowadays there doesn't seem to be anything like that going on at all. They just wait in quietly and vote. There's no fit. (In times past) you'd hear men talking outside and almost coming to blows in my young days when elections came on."

If blows were struck among the supporters, the votes themselves often ended up for grabs by the contesting parties. Surreptitiously, there could be cash available from either side for a man who changed his ballot. (John A. himself was booted out of office by foreign gold, not trafficking with CPR funds).

"Sometimes they did offer me money," Julius recalls, "but I refused it. The Liberal offered me money for a horse. But . . . nothing doing . . . They wouldn't say exactly how much they'd pay say they'd give me a good thing."

But for years nobody knew which way he voted, he says. His father eventually found out — he doesn't know how — but little was said.

Politics and society have changed greatly since those days — for one thing there are more government social services, says Julius.

What hasn't changed — and never will — is his vote.

It's still guaranteed Tory.

"Well, I guess so," reaffirms the 103 - year - old Conservative. "You couldn't change me."

Julius Bedore Expects Victory

Minister Heads United Appeal

The Rev. A. L. Sutherland, minister of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, has been appointed chairman of the United Appeal campaign and says, "the appointment gives me an opportunity to meet people not only as a clergyman, but as a businessman.

"I'm a property owner, which is somewhat unique in the ministry, and through this and the fact that my children are very active in the community, I adopt a keen interest in civic affairs," said Mr. Sutherland. "This interest in the city makes the United Appeal particularly important to me because of the broad range of services it provides to the city as a whole."

The minister's civic - duties and interests go against the grain of some of his congregation who still feel, says Mr. Sutherland "a minister is the privileged property of his congregation and should have no time for outside functions."

"Part of this feeling comes from the phase that is so often used to the minister, 'I know you're busy but . . . and through this, it has become extremely easy for the minister to say, yes I am busy, whether he is or not," said Mr. Sutherland. "It is very easy for a minister to exclude himself from society. This particular principle of isolation has been the cause of many young men leaving the clergy after learning how little they can do in the community."

The Presbyterian Minister has been on the Board of Directors for the United Community Services for the past four years and in that time has also been the president of the Ministerial Association.

"The United Appeal takes up a lot of my time but I can't think of any better way to help the community as a group than to devote a part of my time to helping with the campaign," he said.

Mr. Sutherland, the minister who prefers not to wear a clerical collar, said he feels influence the people around him unless on official business, says, "as well as a minister in the community, I am a resident of the community and in what goes on inside it affects me and my family, and if I can be some help, I am more than pleased to give up some more time."

As well as taking an active role in the United Appeal, Mr. Sutherland's time is spent taking care of his home and family, working on his congregation and he is also a member of the city Rotary Club.

"Traditionally ministers have no leisure time because of their commitment to their congregation, but this obligation is no more acute than the obligation of a doctor to practice," said Mr. Sutherland. "But let's not be artificial. We don't have to. I have a family and I'm going to put it to its best use and at the moment that is seems to be working for the United Appeal because it happens to be the best single money gathering organization."

The United Appeal, organized through the United Community Services, brings together, under one roof, 13 of the most needed agencies in the city and, says Mr. Sutherland "keeps things going by getting the money into the right hands where it can be used to its maximum.

"I could neither afford nor justify my time spent on the campaign if I did not have such strong feelings for the merit of the community need, and the way that the need is handled through the appeal," he said.

Three Candidates Seek Directorship

Three candidates are in the field for election as Zone 4 director to the Ontario Milk Marketing Board.

They are Allen Ketcheson of Madoc township, who has represented the district as director for the past six years; Harry Evans, member of the Prince Edward Milk Committee and columnist for the Picton Gazette, and Mrs. Helene Lang of Shannonville.

Kenneth Wright, press representative for the Prince Edward Milk Committee, in his newspaper column, gives the background for each of the three district candidates.

Harry Evans, a Group 2 pool producer shipping to cans, is an outspoken critic of the market sharing quota plan, believing that by order of short supply, farmers need encouragement to produce more milk.

On the other hand Allen Ketcheson believes in the dairy industry and the OMMB and is convinced that four policies of the board, 1. gradual entry, 2. market sharing quotas, 3. plant supply quotas and 4. classified pricing, are directly responsible for the increased Group 2 prices.

He says controlled market production allows farmers to increase or decrease production according to market demand.

The Langs milk a large herd of cows and are Group 1 pool milk producers.

Plans have been completed for the annual Prince Edward county milk producers' banquet to be held October 23 at the Prince Edward Collegiate.

Off-season Promotion Needed for Tourists

TWEED (Special) — The Land O'Lakes Tourist Association must do more to promote off - season activities if the region's growth potential is to be realized.

Retiring president Roy Holtshauer told a meeting of the association last Wednesday that "we must accept the responsibility of doing much of the work ourselves, and not rely entirely on government agencies to do the work for us." He stressed the necessity of expanding winter use wherever possible and thus increasing the earning power of lodge and motel owners, service stations and stores.

Harold Kring, chairman of the Forestry and Wildlife Committee of the Napanee Conservation Authority, discussed the possibility of opening snowmobile trails in the Arden area.

He suggested that help for winterizing facilities might be obtained as a make-work project to stimulate local employment.

Snowmobile owners are having trouble finding places to operate their machines in heavily populated areas, he said. Many of the proposed trails would be on land now owned by the Napanee Conservation Authority.

Authority Negotiating For Trent River Isle

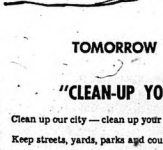
FRANKFORD (Staff) — The Lower Trent River Conservation Authority is negotiating with Bata Industries for the acquisition of a nine - acre island in the Trent River here.

The chunk of prime recreational land is located at the north end of the village and has been owned by the company for 30 years. Access to the mid - river property is across Ontario Hydro's number six dam.

Officials of the LTRCA have called upon professional planners with the department of energy and resources management to assist them in developing land use proposals for the site.

The authority is scheduled to submit its plan to Dr. C. K. Hertz, personal assistant to Bata president Thomas Bata, within two weeks.

One thing is certain — the LTRCA's proposal is not to turn the island into a recreational park. Possible uses include a picnic site, swimming and fishing areas.



Bata spokesmen indicate the company may provide the authority with a lease on the island at a nominal sum or else donate it to the conservation group, if it finds the plan for its development acceptable.

While local conservationists work on proposals for this island, they are completing purchase arrangements for land parcels elsewhere in the watershed. Announcements about these sites are expected shortly.

Kosygin's Way

Television pictures in recent days showed Soviet Premier Kosygin going through the mechanics of a visit to Morocco. For a man who seldom smiles, says anything, or impresses one as a national leader, this excursion was even more of a non-event than usual.

Kosygin strode past an honors guard without so much as a how-do-you-do, ignored the head man of an auto assembly plant he visited, returning for a handshake only when reminded by an aide, and capped the whole dismal performance by leaving treaty-signing ceremonies to a deputy.

The so-called "cult of personality" which in part was behind the downfall of the lively Nikita Khrushchev has never had such a lean time as it does under the current Soviet leadership. To say that Mr. Kosygin is a moderate man would be to put it mildly. Peaceable too, and we salute him for that, among his accomplishments being his personal diplomacy in cooling down the India-Pakistani hostilities over Kashmir a few years ago.

We might point, contrariwise, to Soviet arms shipments to the North Vietnamese and the Arab countries, but then that is power politics and is matched by the United States in favor of the South Vietnamese and Israelis. All in all Mr. Kosygin may be regarded as a responsible politician, if a little dull.

Soon there will be a further opportunity to observe this enigmatic man — he comes to Canada later this month.

Then and Now

The other day we ran an article on noise pollution and how it was affecting the hearing of people. Yet in this situation do we have one more example of there being no new thing under the sun. Consider some lines of the great English poet William Wordsworth whose span covered a period in both the 18th and 19th centuries (1770-1850). "But oft," he wrote, "in lonely rooms and mid the din of towns and cities I have owed to them in hours of weariness sensations sweet, felt in the blood and felt along the heart. . ."

Wordsworth was speaking of the joys of nature from which he derived so much pleasure and solace. Come to think of it those days could have been noisy enough in ways different from today. The rattle for instance of farm carts, the banter of the market place, the revelry of the taverns, the distant shots of the hunter or even the highwayman.

Those days too were beset with international incidents, wars and rumors of war, with accompanying tension and neurosis. Human nature does not change. What then, as now, there would have been marital difficulties and family squabbles, mischievous youngsters and all the rest of it. The poet's lines give more than a hint of the emotions that strike us all and the desire to be free of them — or simply to get away from it all.

Sales Pitch

One of the sales techniques of the day, and we suspect it is standard training for sales as well as repair personnel, is to subtly give the impression you need a new one when the old one will do just as well. A housewife had this experience recently when a repair man came to fix the telephone. The trouble was on the outside line, possibly from an old lightning strike, and not in the phone itself, but the lady says she was shown an array of expensive new phone equipment before getting the message across that her old black wall job was good enough thank you.

Money Saved

It is satisfying to note areas of government where a close watch is kept on the public purse. Among the many responsibilities of the public works department of the Ontario government, for example, is the telephone system at Queen's Park. Involved here are 20,000 phones and the minister, James Auld, anticipates a saving of $150,000 this year through expansion of the leased line system. Mr. Auld, the member for Leeds, revealed this in a recent interview in Brockville where he makes his home.

All Sorts

You don't have to have an Oxford accent anymore to get into the diplomatic service in Britain. That is clear from television interviews with both male and female members of the British embassy staff being expelled from Moscow. Oxford and other British universities now reflect all walks of British life. Regional accents abound and they are showing up in what some years ago would have been unlikely spheres of endeavor for anyone unable to speak with the "right accent."

Belfast's Economic Loss

Britain Sends More Troops to Embattled Ulster

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — The British troop reinforcements now being sent to Northern Ireland may make the manpower problems of hard-pressed security commanders in Ulster somewhat less bothersome.

But the situation in the long-troubled six counties shows no sign of becoming less critical in the immediate future, with further eruptions on both the security and political fronts a certainty.

The extra military help wrung from British Prime Minister Heath by Ulster chief Brian Faulkner is another in a long series of manpower increases which have added steadily to the numerical strength of the Ulster-based soldiers since they first took up what were originally billed as peacekeeping duties two years ago.

The whole process of stepped-up military strength reminds some observers—especially those on the political left in Britain —of the fruitless magnification of army might which was Washington's answer to the Vietnam problem in the last decade.

The scale of forces is vastly different and the degree of violence is much less in Ulster than in the Southeast Asian battleground.

Yet the sense of futility is to some extent similar and Faulkner himself is currently faced with expressions of discontent on the right wing of his own party as well as among the Roman Catholic minority.

The Catholics continue to demand not only an end to the controversial policy of internment but also an intensification of social and political reforms in Protestant-dominated Ulster.

The over-all situation is not helped by the worsening economic plight of Ulster cities like Belfast.

Harassed by prolonged dry weather as well as by political violence in recent months, Belfast is having to clamp tight controls on the consumption of water from its municipal reservoirs.

Unofficially, Ulster industry is estimated to have lost about £40 million ($100 million) this year as a result of terrorist activities.

Belfast's social life, especially its pubs, has suffered too and large amounts of public money have had to be channelled into paying compensation for bomb and fire damage. Meanwhile, private businesses generally are being forced to spend thousands of pounds on security precautions.

One mass-circulation British newspaper, which suffered damage evaluated at more than $1 million from a bomb blast at its new Belfast printing plant, finally decided to close the press —with the result that 100 additional Ulstermen joined the lengthening lines of unemployed in Northern Ireland.

One estimate is that even if violence stopped in Belfast immediately, three years would be needed for the city to regain its normal level of life.

With such considerations causing increasing alarm even among the governing unionists, the Conservative government at Westminster has indicated that it plans a greater emphasis on economic help for Ulster in future—an initiative which in any case would be imperative if the stepped-up attention to security considerations is not to alienate the Catholic minority into new forms of radical opposition.

Kosygin Guard Shows Increase Among W. Germans

Kolner Stadt-Anzeiger

Gout was an almost forgotten disease up to a few years ago but there has been an alarming spread of cases of this type in West Germany recently. It must now be considered as one of the most widespread complaints of the modern age.

After the Second World War no more than two Germans in every 1,000 suffered from this painful disease of the joints with its often fatal effects.

Medical experts now estimate that the number of known at least tenfold as a result of over-eating.

Ten per cent of the tot population are liable to have gout cases alone has increased features that foster the development of the complaint.

Professor Arnold Gries, one of the leading West German researchers in this field, points out that not all of these people are necessarily taken ill from the disease.

But the danger facing them is great. The over-eating prevalent in this country is one of the main features leading to an outbreak of gout which is a disease of the metabolism.

As painful as the disease may be, it is not gout itself that the main danger for patients. The effects of the complaint are much worse and sometimes cause fatality.

The rise in the incidence of gout is also one of the causes for the alarming increase in strokes and heart attacks.

Another ailment closely connected with gout and equally fatal for patients is the complete breakdown of kidney functions.

The destruction of the 200-year-old Order of Knights Templars began 664 years ago today—in 1307—when Paris members, including the Grand Master, were arrested. Templars had become independent and powerful in financial, religious and military matters, which accounted for their suppression. Under torture, many members confessed to horrible blasphemies and crimes, which in the eyes of the public merely justified torture to find and purify such wickedness. The leaders of the order were burned at the stake in 1314.

1832—Winston Churchill won the Nobel Prize for literature.

1912—Indonesians staged an uprising in Java.

1943—Italy declared war on Germany, her former Axis partner.

1946—Princess Elizabeth made her first radio broadcast, addressed to the children of the world.

1948 — J. W. Black took what was probably the first air photo from a balloon over Boston.

1845—Texas ratified the United States constitution.

1813—Joachim Murat, king of Naples, was executed by court-martial.

Strength of the Economy Is Vital to Us All

Ottawa Journal

William Davis alone among the three Ontario political leaders talks sense about conquering the unemployment problem. The NDP and the Liberals would make jobs out of thin air — or government edict. Stephen Lewis proposes vague make-work projects and the incredible thesis that Ontario can go it alone economically. Robert Nixon is not so naive as to believe that governments can spend their way to prosperity; but his idea of a foreign investment review board is a long way from being a constructive approach to getting the economy of the province moving.

Davis has had the courage and good sense to say it flatly: "We must lend support to the private sector so that it can stay sound and profitable." Courage, because it is intellectually out-of-fashion to have a good word to say for business; good sense, because an expanding and prosperous private sector can create jobs in sufficient numbers to absorb an expanding work force.

Tax credits or loans to business are only one way of supporting business, perhaps not even the most important way. It is largely a matter of confidence, of the private sector coming to believe that a government will stay out of areas where it does not belong and will not intervene with still more costly bureaucratic welfare-state programs.

In those cases where government does support business directly, the investment is not one gift to increase the dividends of shareholders, it is helping business do what business does infinitely better than the state: to create new jobs, for the winter or for six months, but permanently.

The province, as Mr. Davis said, will get its money back. The private sector will pay more taxes as markets and incomes rise. It will pay back the original investment tenfold.

Not the government's approach provides a refreshing contrast with that of the Trudeau Government. As the Financial Times reports this week the result of business is bad, damaged more by serious uncertainties over the tax bill, the foreign takeover bill, and the new unemployment insurance bill than by President Nixon's economic policies.

One expert, the Toronto lawyer W. A. Macdonald, is quoted as saying that "the way things are in Ottawa today are almost uniformly bad for the health of the private sector." Mr. Macdonald is not the least of us all. Even those academics who believe business a something unclean depend for their salaries on tax money taken from business.

No issue in the Ontario election is more basic than each party's approach to the problems of the economy. The more William Davis reveals about his government's economic philosophy the more he stands above his opponents.

Predicting A Winner Difficult In Current Ontario Election

By DON O'HEARN

This is the ninth Ontario election I have reported on.

There has been an old occupational habit in the newspaper business that as you get towards the end you predict how the election will go.

In some of our votes since 1943 this has been somewhat difficult. In most of them, however, it hasn't been that hard.

The situation has been such that a man with a reasonable know-how and some political perspective capacity could name the probable result within margins of half a dozen seats or so.

Over the years there was never a personal reluctance for me to do this, and the resulting forays into speculation never left me with the feeling that a more proper occupation for my talents might be serving beer.

With this election, however, there will be no such excursions.

The man who trys to predict the results of this election is a man of rashness.

There has not been such an unpredictable election within our memory.

To take some of the unknown, and unpredictable, factors:

There is the mood for change in Canada today. What impact may this have on our election?

The NDP has always been able to do better at byelections than general elections. This has been because in these it has been able to concentrate its forces, particularly with its saturation polling techniques. This election, for the first time it has the resources to apply this approach in a general campaign. What will this mean?

The Liberals have had a low-key campaign.

But they have two major things going for them. One, a good old sitting members who have serviced their ridings and done their homework. Two, in some ridings they have outstanding candidates. Their best chance probably rests with their candidates. Though as the middle-of-the-road party they might have appeal.

Who can judge how they might do?

Then the government has a new leader, a young man but one running an old-fashioned campaign.

It has been a "snow" campaign. Just plaster the province with pictures, messages and appearances of the leader. Will this work these days? It used to. But will it with today's audiences?

And really the presentation hasn't been that smart. When a friend saw Davis and P.C. candidates being interviewed by Ward Cornell on Television, he said: "Now I know, it's the NHL Old Stars!"

So if you want a prediction or, a bet I will talk to you about the first man to reach Mars, the potential egg production next year in the south end of Thurlow County or when priests will be able to get married.

But this election, no. Really, the way it's stacked, or more properly unstacked, it is a test for wagering fools.

This Is Week to Houseclean Belleville

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

While everyone sits around and talks about what should be done to clean up the environment, PACE (anti-pollution group in the city) has pulled enough strings to have this week declared as anti-pollution week and is asking that all members of the community pitch in and help in any way they can.

It began with a student project on sign pollution. Each day of the week will feature a particular facet of pollution, winding up the week with a mass cleanup of the Moira River as it flows through the city.

"Sign pollution is something that is not noticed by many because signs are accepted as commonplace and little attention is usually paid to their existence or their message," said one member of the group.

Today is Don't Throw It On the Ground Day.

"There is no telling how long the impression will last in the mind, but some attempt should be made to help people to become aware that they are adding to the pollution simply by throwing a candy wrapper on the ground," said Mrs. Smith.

Thursday will be clean up the yard day, which will be one of the most influential days of the week," said one member of the Downtown Businessman's Association, co-sponsors of the week.

"People must remember that without people there would be no pollution," said the same member. "Pollution control must start in the home. If everyone helps out, the friendly city might also be a clean one."

Make A Compost Pile will be the theme for Friday, to urge residents of the city to do something worthwhile with the buildup of leaves starting to gather from the fall season.

Through provincial legislation it is illegal to burn the leaves in an attempt to curb air pollution, and municipal bylaws require that the homeowner dispose of his leaves in garbage bags rather than allowing them to blow onto the roadway.

PACE suggests that the leaves be gathered into a pile and humus, or remains be spread over flower beds for increased growth in the coming season.

The most energetic of the week's activities will be the river cleanup which will draw participants from all over the city to do as Mrs. Smith advises, "their fair share in the cleanup of one of the city's major interest areas.

"If residents of the city care about the place at all, they will come down to the river Saturday morning and will pitch in to help in some small way to collect the garbage that seems to be flourishing in the Moira," she said.

"Hopefully," said Mrs. Smith, "the week will become an annual affair, even though it should be a daily one. This year the amount of garbage will be tremendous, but if the scheme is adopted as an annual thing, gradually the environment will become clean. It won't happen overnight, but if we start now, it will get done sooner."

"Belleville Public Works will be handling the garbage pickup with a long list of other agencies and groups helping out," said a spokesman for the group.

The Belleville Harbor Commission will also be providing two rafts to facilitate in the cleanup of the river and the Emergency Measures Organization and St. John Ambulance will be helping anyone in their respective capacities.

Anyone interested in attending the mass cleanup of the river should be at the Federal Building, Saturday at 9 a.m. for instructions. They will also be asked to take part in the parade which will travel north on Station St.

"Through the co-sponsorship of the City of Belleville, PACE and the Downtown Businessman's Association, Anti-Pollution Week may really accomplish something for the area," said Mrs. Smith.

Council

Also the bylaw calls for parking areas and driveways to be paved, with the final grade leading through internal drains to storm sewers.

The new bylaw corrects a number of budgetaries which were permissible under existing regulations.

Under bylaw 6605 there was in some instances no requirement for front yards; parking against the buildings and structures and parking was permitted close to side yards.

Alderman Jean Smith was mainly responsible for the bylaw amendments.

She made the move last spring after residents complained loudly of lack of parking at many new apartment structures and about structures being permitted close to lot lines.

Two weeks ago she brought in her proposed amendments, but passing of the bylaw was delayed to allow members of the subordinate planning advisory committee to check the new requirements.

Yesterday Alderman E. A. Orr as chairman of the committee, proposed several changes to the amending bylaw which ultimately was approved by council.

Mayor J. Russell Scott asked if members of the Quinte Home Builders had been consulted on the terms of the bylaw amendment. He suggested it would only be courtesy if this were done.

Alderman Smith said the amendments had not gone before the builders' association as a body but said she had checked with one builder.

This builder, she said, had felt the amendments do be "acceptable".

The Only Gift Is A Portion of Thyself

By DORIS CLARK

Emerson says: "Our tokens of love are for the most part barbarous, cold and lifeless, because they do not represent our life. The only gift is a portion of thyself. Therefore let the farmer give his corn; the miner his gem; the sailor coral or shells; the painter his picture and the poet his poem."

To persons of refined nature, whatever the friend creates takes added value as part of themselves — part of their life, as it were, having gone into it.

Mere costliness does not constitute the soul of a present; it is the kind feeling that it manifests which gives it its value. — Our Department, 1879

• • •

Dear Doris: Help! Love problems! I have failed for a man 32 who makes deliveries to our office. If I try to make conversation with him all I get out of him is a yes or no. Yet I know by the grapevine that he has asked questions about me.

One of the other men says this man is a skirt chaser and will take any girl out to see how far he can go with her.

Is it possible that he is like this, in spite of the fact that he is very, very shy — so much so that he is afraid to even say "Hi" to me? — Puzzled

Dear Puzzled: Anything is possible. Perhaps there are some girls he would not be a bit shy with; but if he is attracted by you he may have you up on a pedestal as "a nice girl". That makes him shy— with you.

However, I don't think much of this kind of talk. It may be the man you have your eye on needs encouragement to be outgoing, and perhaps he only needs to find someone he can talk to comfortably. Once you get to know him you can be your own judge of his character.

The way you behave will have a good deal to do with whether you can bring out the best in him or not.

• • •

Dear Doris: I'm 16 and cannot date. I'm tall and haven't got a very good figure so I figure that I cannot afford to refuse the few boys that do ask me. My parents do not believe a girl should marry earlier than 24. They think I have 10 years yet to find a husband. Also, if a friend comes to take me somewhere, my kid brother (12) always comes. He is very spoiled. He usually is allowed to.

How do you explain to parents how he is? He is always acting retarded whenever anyone watches him. Our parents are always saying that I am just trying to tell them how to raise their kids.— Caged

Dear Caged: Now if you and your parents could just strike a compromise! No need for you to be so desperate, but no need for them to hold you back, either. At 16 the occasional date, properly arranged and with a boy your parents know, would be a step in the right direction.

• • •

The Little Monster should not be in on your date. There comes a time when a girl has a right to her own friends — otherwise how does she ever get grown up? -

Is there an aunt or grandmother or close family friend who could put a bee in your parents' ear? You need an intermediary. Or you could show Mum and Dad this column.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

BY MARY BRYSON

A baby of 6 months smiles at the world. At a year, he may be suspicious of strangers, bury his face in his mother's neck, or glower at his own grandmother. He'll become friendly sooner if you advise visitors to leave him alone and let him get acquainted on his own.

Sr. Citizens Enjoy Tour

MADOC — About 38 members of the Madoc and District Senior Citizens' Club enjoyed a bus trip to Campbellford recently, where they were guests of the Senior Citizens' Club there.

Upon arrival, they were met by club president, Rev. Smith of Campbellford. He took the Madoc group on a guided tour of the many points of interest of the town and briefly described interesting facts as they travelled.

At noon, lunch had been arranged in a restaurant there for the guests. Afterwards, visits were made to the Bata Shoe Factory, the sewage disposal plant and the large, well-equipped and modern hospital.

Ann Landers

Husband Chatters Continuously

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I just celebrated our 25th wedding anniversary. He's a good provider, no bad habits, a wonderful father to our children and everyone who knows him thinks he's great. So what am I complaining about. The man does not stop talking. The first thing I hear in the morning is his voice. At night when I turn out the lights he's still talking. He asks me a question and answers it himself. He tells me he wants an opinion and then he gives me one. He repeats a conversation and before I can comment he tells me what he thinks. When we're out socially I never get a chance to open my mouth.

People must think I'm a blooming idiot. Some of our friends don't know I have vocal cords. Any advice?—Wed To A Talking Machine

Dear Wed: After 20 years, accept the fact that this man is not going to change. It will save wear and tear on your blood vessels. And please read the next letter.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been married for 22 years to a man who will not talk to me. He refuses to discuss family problems and makes no comment whatsoever when I present family problems with which I need help. I've tried every approach imaginable—from the nonchalant, casual, "What do you think about this, dear?" to the impassioned request, "I need your help desperately," and finally the screaming anguished plea, "For God's sake will you answer me?" His response is a blank look and stony silence. Once in a while he mumbles, "I hadn't thought about it."

My husband is an intelligent professional man who has a lot on his mind, but who doesn't these days? I ask very little of him. I am tired of making all the decisions alone. I'm on the verge of blowing my mind. Any suggestions?—Wife Of The Great Silent Man

Dear Wife: After 22 years, accept the fact that this man is not going to change. It will save wear and tear on your blood vessels.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy of 16 and have been going with a girl who is 14 but very mature for her age. We have been seeing each other for six months.

My girl's mother will not let her date—at least not me. So we decided to get together anyhow. Her best friend, Ginny, would invite her over and we'd meet there. Ginny goes with my buddy so it worked out neat because her parents are strict and they don't have any crazy rules.

Saturday there was a party at Ginny's house. It was supposed to start at 7:30 and end at 11:00. I got there at 8:00. It was pretty boring so my girl and I decided to spin off for a couple of hours. When we got back at 10:30 the party had busted up but my girl's mother was there—waiting for us. Somebody finked.

I'm in big trouble. My girl's mother doesn't believe a word I say. She won't even let me talk to her on the phone. What should I do?—Black Day At Black Rock

Dear B.D.: Quit while you're behind. Your name is Mud with your girl's family which should come as no shock to you since you behaved like a rat. I don't blame your girl's mother for labelling you "off limits." Turn over a new leaf with a chick who doesn't have to sneak out to see you—and better luck next time, Romeo.

General Information Re Leather

TORONTO (CP) — Home-sewing enthusiasts are taking to leather and fashion directors of the major paper-pattern companies have discovered that Canadian hides can be sewn as easily as fabrics.

Naturally there are differences. Sewers are advised to avoid patterns that call for gathers or pleating.

For the first time this fall pattern companies are offering general information about leather including the often-asked question of where to buy leather. The answer is hobby and craft shops and fabric sections of large department stores.

Unlike yardage fabrics, leather is sold by the square foot. The sewer has to translate from yards to square feet.

Not difficult, say the pattern companies. Simply a multiplication factor. If the pattern calls for two yards of 36-inch fabric, multiply 2 by 9 which equals 18. Then multiply 18 by 20 per cent for 3.6. Total leather required will then be 18 plus 3.6 or 21.6 square feet.

If the pattern calls for three yards of 54-inch, multiply 3 by 13 and add the 20 per cent for total of 46.8 square feet. It's also a wise precaution to take the pattern along when leather shopping, to make certain of the right amount.

Most of the lighter weight garment leather is made from small animal skins such as lamb, goat, calf, approximately six to eight square feet per skin. Larger animal skins such as the cow and steer are sold as half hides or in half pieces called sides.

Suede is the tanning and napping of the inner or flesh side of the skin. The flesh side of lamb skin or sheep is sometimes called chamois, a term often used today in speaking about high fashion leathers.

Mrs. Patricia Cooper, fashion director of McCall's Canadian office, says those who have never sewn with leather before, should start with a simple vest or skirt, and select the most uniform skins for the front and sleeves of garments.

Cut out one skin at a time with sharp shears, clipping notches out, never in. She advises that 3-0 or 3-ply mercerized cotton or silk thread and a fairly heavy needle, size 4 or 5, should be used for sewing. Use eight to 10 stitches to the inch on the machine and proceed slowly, being sure not to pull the leather, as it may stretch.

Also leather garments need lining. Suggested linings are [illegible] or china silk.

Another important point is that when securing seams, use only pure rubber cement. It won't crack or become brittle at the seams.

Pie Ingredients for Dumplings

By MARY MOORE

There is something yummy about the name of Apple Dumplings. I love making them and eating them.

All of the ingredients are apple pie ingredients but just assembled differently.

APPLE DUMPLINGS
(Serves 6)

PASTRY:
2½ cups stirred but unsifted cake and pastry flour
1¼ tsps. salt
¾ cup plus 1 tbsp. shortening
3 tbsps. butter
2½ tbsps. cold water
FILLING:
6 med. Duchess apples (or other early apples) pared and cored
¾ tsp. cinnamon
¾ cup sugar
SYRUP:
1 cup sugar
¼ cup lemon juice
¾ cup water
3 tbsps. margarine

Make the Pastry first by cutting the shortening and butter into the flour and salt with pastry blender until size of peas. Drizzle in water, tossing with fork until you can pack pastry between your palms. Roll out on large floured board into a 12 x 18" oblong. Cut into six squares approximately 6 x 6".

Pare apples and core them, being sure to remove little sharp seed cases but do not puncture bottoms.

Place a prepared apple at centre of each square of dough. Mix together cinnamon and sugar and fill centres of each apple with them. Bring opposite corners of pastry together on tops of apples and pinch to seal. Prick with fork in two places. Place 2" apart on greased baking pan. Bake at 450 deg. F. for 20 min. Meanwhile bring just to boil in small pot the sugar, lemon juice, water and margarine. Spoon evenly over apples and reduce oven heat to 350 deg.

Women's Institutes

READ CWL

TWEED — The first meeting of the season of the Read Catholic Women's League was held recently at St. Mary's School, and opened by the president, Mrs. J. Jordan.

Reports from the conveners of the standing committees were read which brought all up to date on parish activities during the summer months and also items scheduled for the coming 12 months.

Mrs. Dan who attended the fall executive meeting held in Kingston in mid-September gave the highlights of that meeting. She mentioned there would be a change in the fees for the coming year.

The members were urged to attend the regional meeting to be held in Marmora on November 7.

Immediately following, Mrs. J. Murphy introduced guest for the evening, Mrs. Herbert Brown of Picton. She showed slides and explained the highlights of her trip to India last year. She and her husband are on the Development and Peace Program. She noted this money would go a long way in helping out in places of need in India.

She was thanked by Mrs. F. McGurn on behalf of those present. Lunch was served and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Tabernacle UCW Hold Meeting

(Tabernacle UCW)

Mrs. Nelson president of Tabernacle United Church Women opened the regular meeting of the group with an appropriate reading.

Following opening routine, Mrs. Wessels introduced the speaker Rev. Petergen who is the council of services head for Warkworth prison as well as preaching in the surrounding area United Churches. He spoke on the theme "Reach out and try to understand each prisoner." He also noted that prison reform has improved but there is still need for further improvement. In referring to years ago. Mr. Petergen told how in 1700 the Pope formed a detention home in Rome and that 200 years previously severe punishment was given out for the simplest crime. For example, a ten-year old boy was flogged 27 times for smiling, and speaking French, the only language he knew.

The new system is to try to teach the prisoner to relax and try to understand others. It is the aim of those in charge to keep people out of prison by trying to understand why they break the law. He explained that at Warkworth prisoners are encouraged to learn a trade and to prepare them for the outside world to have sincere group relationships and are also encouraged to do accomplish something on their own.

Thanks was expressed to the speaker by Mrs. Matier and by Mrs. Nelson.

A devotional was conducted by Mrs. Pickell who used a record of sacred hymns for all to join in the singing.

Lunch was served at the close.

MRS. EDITH A TREVERTON, daughter of Rev. Robert A. Tufts and Mrs. Tufts of Warkworth graduated at recent ceremonies for the first graduation class of the new Edith Cavell Nursing School, Belleville General Hospital.

Club Enjoys Tour of Algonquin Park

STIRLING — Last Tuesday, 42 members of Stirling Senior Citizens' Club No. 240 enjoyed a color tour of the Algonquin Park. They travelled by chartered bus and their first stop was at Bancroft for a coffee break. The group arrived at Algonquin Park in time for the noon meal in the form of a box lunch.

All marvelled at the colored foliage in its wide range of beautiful browns, yellows, reds and greens. One half of the group took in the scenic water trip of 18 miles through Canoe Lake and Ox Tongue River. The Miss Algonquin Park is an all-weather steel boat which carried the passengers on a memorial tour of Tom Thompson who was a noted artist and woodsman. He was born at Lieh, Ontario in 1877 and died in Algonquin Park in 1917. Many of his sketches and paintings were made on Canoe Lake.

The group travelled home by way of Muskoka district at Minden with a stop at the Lookout look-out at Dorset. There were dozens of small lakes enroute and detours at Buttermilk Falls where construction men were busy. All enjoyed the scenic tour which covered a 350-mile scenic route.

Mrs. George Heasman, treasurer of the club was in charge of arrangements with president Fred Heasman assisting.

Laurier House Flourishes

OTTAWA (CP) — Laurier House, a comfortable reminder of Canada's political heritage, still flourishes amid high-rise downtown development here.

The former residence of W. L. Mackenzie King and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, this four-storey light-brown brick house on Laurier Street was bequeathed to the people of Canada along with $225,000 for its upkeep.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier bought the six-room house from a successful Ottawa jeweller in 1897. Two years after his death in 1918, Lady Laurier willed the house to "Willie" Mackenzie King, a celebrated bachelor, a scholar and a man who politically worshipped her husband.

Stripped of its Laurier grandeur, Mr. King's friends renovated the house, refitting it with elaborate furnishings.

Mr. King named it Laurier House in 1923, when he moved in to what had become 16 rooms.

Helen Brown, curator of the historic site for the National Archives, says "the treasures of the house are mainly gifts." But an advertisement in the Montreal Gazette led her to buy Laurier's piano.

"It was heavy," she recalls. "It took six men to lift it."

"Replacing the drapes was a problem," she admits. "But finding wallpaper typical of the period was just like running into a brick wall."

The drapes were loomed in London to match the original King curtains.

Everybody's favorite is the library. Bordered by myriad political and history books, it is an arm-chair-styled room. A portrait of King's mother hangs in the corner.

"Mr. King practically lived in his library," Miss Brown says.

The house, which attracts about 3,000 tourists during the summer months, was officially opened August, 1951, by another prime minister, Louis St. Laurent.

Baha'i Faith Growing Fast

TORONTO (CP) — There are in Canada about 10,000 members of the Baha'i Faith, a religion that stresses idealism and common courtesy.

There are "many millions of Baha'is throughout the world, but "it's growing so fast we can't keep track," says Mrs. Laura Davis, secretary of Toronto's 200-member community.

The religion was founded in 1863 when Baha'u'llah, the son of an official on the government of Iran, declared he was the new messenger from God promised by a prophet a few years earlier.

The teachings of Baha'u'llah —that all religions are one, that wisdom is revealed by founders of previous religions, including Christ, Moses, Mohammed, Krishna and the Buddha—are contained in more than 100 volumes translated from Arabic.

Several Moslem countries persecute Baha'is, viewing the religion as a heretical branch of Islam. Members are still subject to the death penalty in Iraq.

In Canada, chairmen and secretaries of local Baha'i groups are recognized as ministers, with the right to perform marriages.

UEL Members Attend Pilgrimage

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence S. Bird of Maitland Drive, RR 5, Belleville, Ontario, members of the Bay of Quinte branch, The United Empire Loyalists Association of Canada, and Mrs. Mary Mackey of Frankford, member of the Trent Branch, were among the 75 Canadians of UEL descent who attended the home-coming pilgrimage to the Mohawk Valley near Johnstown, New York, USA over the Thanksgiving weekend.

Mr. Bird is a descendent of Sir William Johnson, First Baronet of New York, who was the founder of Johnstown, N.Y., and at time had land holding of some 150,000 acres in present day Fulton, Herkimer, Montgomery, Otsego and Schoharie Counties.

The group whose ancestors were among the thousands of British Loyalists who fled the United States nearly 200 years ago, celebrated Canada's Thanksgiving Day with a turkey dinner on Sunday evening.

The weekend pilgrims came from nine branches of the United Empire Loyalists Association of Canada—a name reflecting their ardent rejection of such "prejudicial" terms from old American books as Royalists and Tories — even traitors.

Membership represents today's three million Canadians who are descended from Americans "Loyal to the Crown". Most of the visitors came from Ontario where 10,000 Loyalists settled. Others came from as far away as British Columbia, New Mexico and Puerto Rico and included descendents of the 26,000 who settled in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

The homecoming Canadians saw the place where the Mohawks moved their council fire to the area in front of Johnson Hall. Sir William "Indianized" himself to hold the Iroquois Nation in check and build up Loyalist strength against the rebellious and land-hungry colonists.

Queensboro Couple Honored On 48th Anniversary

MADOC — The family of Henry and Lena Rosaboro of Queensboro enjoyed a happy gathering at Glen Allen Park near Marmora on Sunday, August 15, in celebration of their 48th wedding anniversary. Also celebrating an anniversary was their grandson and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Summers, who have been married one year.

Present that day were four generations without a break, including Mr. and Mrs. Rosaboro, their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Summers of Queensboro; their granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Harold MacDougall (nee Arlene Summers) of Bramalea, and their three MacDougall grandchildren.

The bride and bridegroom of 48 years have been lifetime residents of Queensboro, with the exception of a few years spent at Stirling. They raised six children, all of whom are married and living fairly close to the old homestead in Elzevir Township. They have 17 grandchildren and six great grandchildren. Both are enjoying fairly good health at the present time. Their greatest joy is when their families and the little ones visit them.

Watson Admits Slayings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles (Tex) Watson, who coolly testified that on Charles Manson's orders he shot or stabbed six of the Tate - LaBianca slaying victims, was convicted Tuesday of seven counts of first-degree murder and one of conspiracy to commit murder.

He was the last of four defendants to be convicted in the slayings of actress Sharon Tate and six others in August, 1969. Manson, 36, and three female co-defendants already have been convicted and sentenced to death.

Heath Faces Divided Party

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — Lets' challenges built up today inside and outside the governing Conservative party against Prime Minister Edward Heath's policies. Projected British entry into the European Common Market was at the centre of the protests.

As delegates assembled for the party's annual convention, anti-market MPs and others organized a series of demonstrations designed to force changes in Heath's foreign and domestic policies ranging from Rhodesia to the restoration of the death penalty.

Police clamped down the tightest security precautions for years in case of attempts by Irish guerillas to attack cabinet ministers. Authorities got word that the convention headquarters might be blown up, but bomb searchers found nothing.

On the Common Market, Heath seemed assured of a massive majority vote from the 4,500 delegates when the debate gets under way later today.

The aim of Heath's supporters is to do more than swamp the protests of party opponents. They want also to counter the anti-market posture adopted by former prime minister Harold Wilson's opposition Labor party.

The Laborites last week, at their own annual convention here, voted by a five-to-one margin to fight British entry on the terms Heath has obtained from the six-nation continental grouping.

The convention kicks off with a debate on crime and punishment with a rank-and-file effort expected aimed at winning conference backing for the restoration of the death penalty.

TV News Said Pared For Profit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former television news executive told a Senate group Tuesday that the profit motive, not government harassment, has led to de-emphasis of news and documentary programs by United States broadcasting networks.

Fred Friendly, former president of CBS News, testified it is more profitable to televise an "intellectual ghetto" of night entertainment rather than sometimes-controversial documentaries and news specials which sponsors are less willing to support.

WHAT CAN BE FROZEN?

No. 1 IN A SERIES OF 4

WHAT TO FREEZE

FRUITS

Berries, sour cherries and rhubard are particularly good frozen. Peaches, apples and apricots require special treatment to prevent discoloration. Pears do not freeze well.

VEGETABLES

Some vegetables freeze better than others. Asparagus, beans, peas, spinach and whole-kernel corn, for example, are particularly good when frozen. Corn on the cob, while a special treat during the winter, has a tendency to develop off-flavors during storage and is therefore not always palatable when frozen. Celery, lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers and other vegetables usually eaten raw, do not freeze well. Root vegetables such as carrots and parsnips may be frozen but it is seldom practical to store them in valuable locker or freezer space which could be used for other foods.

MEAT

Good quality beef, pork, lamb and veal may be frozen successfully.

POULTRY

Top quality, freshly killed poultry may be frozen with good results. Birds should be eviscerated, washed and dried (but not stuffed).

PREPARED FOODS

Prepared foods should be freshly made and cooled to room temperature before freezing. Most baked foods such as bread, cakes, cookies, pastry shells, tarts and some pies freeze satisfactorily. Sandwiches, sandwich fillings and canapés are easily frozen. Whipped cream, sauces, cooked meats, as well as combination dishes that require long preparation — for example, soups, baked beans, chow mein, meat sauce or meat balls and stews (without potatoes) — are all good for freezing. In general, family-tested recipes can be used for these prepared foods.

THE CHAFING DISH BOOK — Helen Evans Brown

Chafing dishes are widely used today as entertaining becomes more relaxed. The author gives us a short history of the chafing dish as a cooking utensil and how to use it correctly, along with dozens of recipes from appetizers to desserts.

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF HOME FREEZING — Ann Seranne

ICE CREAM, SHERBERT AND ICES — Linda McDonald

Frozen desserts are becoming more and more popular, and here is a book devoted to the making of home-made ice cream, sauces, low calorie desserts, sherbets and frozen pies to delight the eye and the palate.

THE DIET DELIGHT COOKBOOK — Myra Waldo

Is it possible to eat well and keep calorie intake down? Myra Waldo says "yes" and has produced 300 low calorie recipes to prove it, from family fare to gourmet and foreign recipes.

COOK IT QUICK — Arthur Hawkins

The author begins by reorganizing your kitchen, and then proceeds to show you how to produce over 200 gourmet-type dishes in half an hour or less. His motto — cook it quick — eat it slow.

THE SOMETHING WENT WRONG — WHAT DO I DO NOW COOKBOOK — John and Marina Bear.

What to do about salty soup, fallen cakes and other kitchen catastrophes. John and Marina Bear begin their book where most others leave off after the dish has been prepared and something has gone wrong.

YOUNG AND HUNGRY — Suzanne Taylor

An unusual cookbook in the form of a memoir. The author spent her childhood summers in Norway, and recalls golden days of pleasure and discovery. Her recipes, many of them Norwegian, are delectable.

SWISS KITHEN — Eva Maria Maria Boser

This is not a fondue book (although there is a whole section on fondues) which is the dish most people associate with Swiss cooking. Many regional dishes are included, such as "Kirsch Cherry Tart" and Bernese "Rosti".

THE CANADIANA COOK BOOK — Mmr. Jehande Benoit

This is more than a cook book. When you have tried some of these truly Canadian dishes, you'll know why they have survived for generations.

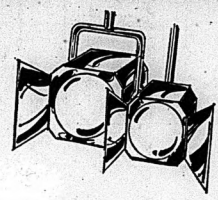
THE PLAN AHEAD COOK-BOOK — Cell Dyer

How to be a gourmet cook with lef-overs and save time spent in preparing meals is the theme of this book. The author has tested, all the recipes and invented some, but all are accurate and easy to follow for the novice cook.

COOKBOOK FOR DIABETICS — Ontario Dietatic Association

The need for palatable, appetizing and enjoyable food for the diabetic on a normal family budget is the reason for this cookbook compiled at the request of the Canadian Diabetic Association. The recipes stress accurate measurements but are suitable for general family use.

HOMEMADE BREAD — Food Editors of Farm Journal



What is as good as the smell of new made bread? But "I haven't the time to bake bread" you say. Well Here are short cuts and up-to-date methods in this book of recipes for even the busiest homemaker to treat her family to home-made bread.

THE GRAHAM KERR COOKBOOK — The Gallop Gourmet

ANAF News

A short month from now the annual sale of poppies and wreaths and Remembrance Day will be here. The Poppy Fund, over the years, has assisted thousands of needy veterans and dependents of those who did not return and those who have since passed on. So wearing a poppy or laying a wreath means honoring those who have passed on, helping the disabled veterans who make the poppies and wreaths and assisting those in need. These latter years it seems that the words of the French poet, Roland Dorgeles, are so idle surmise but a dire prediction coming true:

"We will forget. The crepe of mourning will fall much like the leaf in autumn. The memory of the fallen servicemen will slowly vanish from the hearts of those who respected them so well. And all the dead will have Died A Second Time." Let all Canadians disprove the aforementioned paragraphs with their tragic meaning and honor the memory of those who died and those who did so much to keep the many able to enjoy the four freedoms in peace. Wear a poppy or lay a wreath in humble proudness of these gallant servicemen. Lest we forget.

The sports chairman is all set to start the Saturday afternoon single and double dart matches next Saturday providing enough players with to compete but maybe too many will want to watch the world series, especially if it is a tight fight for the championship. If this is the case the matches will start the following Saturday afternoon.

Chairman of the sick committee reports that Cde. R. Mills is still in Douglas 236, Kingston General Hospital. The following comrades are in the Belleville General: C. Marriot, room 535, H. Burley, room 612, K. Hulland, room 701, C. Kellar, room 716 and W. Shepherd, extended care. Three comrades recently discharged from BGH are recuperating at home. They are G. Wallace, A. Tuck and T. Adams. All have been visited.

With the two reunions being held out of town over the weekend, the crowd attending the Friday evening social was one of the best yet and were treated to a great evening. With the stirring sound of the pipes at intervals and the dancing music, entertainment and songs in the inimnical way of the always welcome Marg Flett trio it was plain to see that everyone was enjoying the evening in a big way. Marg Flett trio will again be on hand this coming Friday for another big evening. Bring your guests for a lively evening of mirth and jollity.

It is with deep regret, that the news of the passing of that lovable comrade, Don Lee was learned. The president and members extend their sincere sympathies to his bereaved family. His merry smile and comical quips will be sorely missed.

Minds Differ In Shape

It is true that minds are of different sizes, just as bodies are of different sizes. But it is also true that minds are of bodies are of different shapes. And the shape can be as important as the size.

A considerable number of different shapes just as people feel inferior or inadequate in the mental department, when they compare minds. This is mistakenly placing too much value on mere size, and not enough attention to shape. A mighty mind can also be mighty dull, mighty ponderous, and mighty closed in its frame of reference. I have known many intellectual persons, with massive brainpower, who had ungainly "shapes" to their minds, and were not nearly as interesting, amusing or stimulating as persons with smaller but more shapely minds.

There is no reason to feel inferior because God has seen fit to give us a mind less vast and powerful than some others. We can do nothing about that; but we can do something about the shape of the mind, just as we can make the shape of the body more graceful and attractive.

The people I most enjoy are not necessarily those with the largest mentalities, but those who know how to use what they have with charm, humor, and individuality. A four-cylinder mind, properly tuned and expertly driven, can generally run rings around an eight-cylinder mind that is cumbersome and self-satisfied.

A nicely-shaped mind, like a nicely - shaped calf, need not be large. It is the, brinkness and the curve that are appealing, not the bulk. And anybody who sincerely tries can improve the shapeliness of his or her mind, by getting rid of the superfluous fat of banality and conformity.

Indeed, what I personally would call an "intellectual" mind has little to do with brain size, and even less to do with formal education. It is much more a matter of shape — of a kind of grasp, a kind of attitude, a kind of approach to the world and one's self. It involves a humorous detachment from the obvious, and a profound awareness of the personal equation in all "objective" opinions.

Many large minds are muscle-bound, just as many large bodies are. Our aim should not be to "expand" the mind, for this simply cannot be done, but to improve its contours, to enhance its charms and graces and whimsies, to trim off the ugly fat deposits of encrusted nonthinking. Given the proper exercise, our minds, like our bodies, are capable of twice as much activity — and appeal — as we ordinarily display.

Tweed

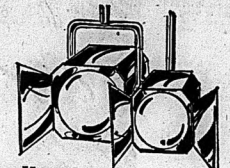
TWEED — The oldest gentleman on the grounds at the Tweed Fair last Saturday was John Preston, 95 years of age, who was attending his 58th consecutive Tweed Fair. He was a former resident of Thomasburg, later lived in Belleville and is now a resident of Hastings Manor. The second eldest gentleman was W. A. (Bert) Donnelly, 89, of Tweed, and third place was ranked by Will Johnston, of Stirling and Mr. Harrington of Napanee, both 88 years young.

The oldest lady on the grounds who registered, was Mrs. Aleta Coon. 2nd prize went to Mrs. Dora Martin, and 3rd to Annie Harrington.

James Maracle was the best step-dancer, with 2nd prize going to Mrs. Eva McConnachie and 3rd to Ed O'Coin. A special prize was awarded to Mark Ross, two years of age, who was the youngest person to take part in the competition.

Prizes for the largest family on the grounds, also at Tweed Fair was claimed by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Prevost, with 13 of their 18 children present.

Mrs. Leo Rashotte and Mrs. J.-Desjardins also of Tweed, spent a weekend recently with Mrs. Rashotte's sister, Mrs. Joseph Lafreniere in Lancaster, N.Y., and with Mrs. Mat. Jansen, of Niagara Falls, N.Y.



Mrs. Reggie Barker of Mountain Grove, has returned to her home after being a patient in the Kingston General Hospital.

A number from Northbrook, motored to Kingston on Tuesday evening, for a surprise party for Mrs. Ellery Thompson, (formerly a resident of Northbrook) in her new home in Kingston. They presented Mrs. Thompson with a very lovely piece of Cranberry glass.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

Cold weather and the associated difficulties in starting your car is again here.

There's more to starting a car than simply turning the ignition switch until the engine fires. A lot of motorists simply don't realize that a certain co-relation between fuel and spark must be present before an automobile engine will start.

Leaner fuel mixtures to overcome exhaust emission and specially calibrated carburetors and distributors require proper presetting of the automatic choke before, or in conjunction with, cranking the engine.

Starting proccedures vary for different makes and models, and here, briefly, are the procedures recommended by the major manufacturers:

American Motors: Depress gas pedal about halfway, then release. Turn ignition key and hold until engine starts.

Chrysler: Depress gas pedal to floor and release. Turn key and hold until engine starts.

Ford: 6-cylinder engines — Depress gas pedal to floor and release. Depress pedal about half way, turn key and hold until engine starts. V-8 engines — Depress pedal to floor and release. Turn key and hold until engine starts.

General Motors: Depress pedal to floor, release and turn key until engine starts. Remember that GM cars with manual transmissions from 1969 on cannot be started unless the clutch pedal is fully depressed. This also applies to some Chrysler models.

Volkswagen: Carburetor-equipped engines — Depress gas pedal to floor and release. Depress clutch pedal, turn key and hold until engine starts. Gear selector must be in neutral. Fuel injection engines — Place gear selector in neutral. Depress gas and clutch pedals, turn key and hold until engine starts. Release key and clutch pedal; then release gas pedal promptly to avoid racing engine.

So much for the specifics, but then there are some general suggestions and precautions:

1. Don't repeat starting procedures in quick succession if the engine fails to catch on the first attempt. Flooding will likely result if the gas pedal is pumped in successive crankings. Wait for 15 to 20 seconds, then turn the key without depressing pedal.

2. Never hold the ignition key in "start" position (engine cranking) for more than 15 seconds. Overheating and possible damage to the starter motor can result.

3. Observe the correct polarity when starting engine with a boostered battery or damage to the diodes of alternator-equipped cars will result. Connect positive terminal from booster battery to positive terminal of car battery.

Don't race a cold engine with transmission in neutral. Contrary to popular belief prolonged idling is not the best way to warm a cold engine. Most manufacturers recommend that the engine be allowed to idle for one-half to one-and-one-half minutes, then driven off immediately, maintaining moderate speed until the engine reaches operating temperature.

Stop before you sign the dotted line for a new or used car.

1. Don't sign any papers without reading them carefully or before you test drive the car.

2. Don't trust verbal guarantees; the salesman can guarantee you the moon.

3. Always have a witness (wife, friend) along during contract negotiations.

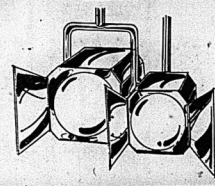
4. The contract should list make, model, body style, color, licence number, serial number, options, mileage, date of delivery, guarantee (period, terms) warranty, work to be done by dealer before delivery, terms of payment, dealer's price, cost of transferring license, amount of sales tax.

5. Make sure that all blanks on the contract are filled.

6. Don't trust figures on a separate or unsigned sheet of paper. They don't mean anything unless they appear in the contract.

7. Check engine number and body plate to make sure that they correspond with those on the contract, certificates of ownership and registration.

8. Make sure you understand all the financial arrangements and how much you will pay monthly. Once you sign an offer to purchase it becomes a binding legal document and is subject to acceptance or rejection solely by the dealer or his authorized agent.



9. Your deposit shouldn't exceed five per cent of the net difference.

10. Pay nothing without getting a receipt.

11. If the car is still within the warranty period, check the warranty closely to determine what you must do to keep it in effect.

Fancy Figuring

While performing figure skating feats, such as this one by Gail Ann Ellis, may be foremost in the minds of competitors in the Quinte Skating Club, officials will be more concerned with the number of members turning out for Saturday's registration. Last winter the club had enrolment of 175 members. The registration will take place at the Belleville Memorial Arena beginning at 6 p.m.

O'Donnell Gets Chance In Owen Sound Game

Rick O'Donnell has been showing up at Belleville senior hockey camps the past three years, and it appears his persistence is paying off.

The Preston native, who had Junior A experience in St. Catharines, didn't get a tumble in his first Belleville try-out, then got into about half the Mo-Hawk regular schedule last—year before pre-playoff cuts were made.

Today, Quinte's coach Gene Poirier announced the signing of O'Donnell, who could make his 1971 debut in a grand way.

Poirier indicated O'Donnell may start at centre between Ray Johnston and Perry Chitick in Friday night's road game in Owen Sound, taking the place of working Paul Perras. The Perras line accounted for two goals in the Quintes' opening 5 - 4 win against Kingston, including the third-period game-winner.

Meanwhile Poirier said former Hungarian National Team defenceman Les Farkas isn't what he had in mind to fill a gap created by Mike Reze's knee injury.

Belleville is the latest in a long line of training camp stops by the 22 - year - old Farkas, and Poirier felt the main reason is his inability to adapt to the heavier-hitting North American game.

RICK O'DONNELL

A possible blueline stopgap could be Meehan Bonnar, the Quinte right - winger who did see some defence action in his International League days.

Saturday night the Quintes are home to Owen Sound, who are still licking their wounds after an 8-2 shellacking at the hands of Woodstock Royals last weekend. Game time in the Memorial Arena is 8 p.m.

Game Off!

Due to the death of Stafford Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, Ltd., tonight's scheduled game at the Gardens between Leafs and Detroit Red Wings has been postponed to a later date.

The game was to have been televised on the CTV network.

Also cancelled was a reunion dinner for members of the first Leaf Stanley Cup team of 1931-32.

Junior Trojans Trample Picton

Bayside's attack came alive in the second half, the Moira seniors' attack died in the second half and the Trojans juniors continued to tear the opposition in half in a trio of high school football bouts last night.

Bayside rallied from a 12-10 halftime deficit to gain a 28-12 decision over the junior Saints of Quinte Secondary.

Al McIntosh engineered his team's comeback win, counting three touchdowns and turning in a strong defensive effort, while teammate Bruce Hoyle also gave a standout defensive performance.

Terry Marek collected a pair of touchdown passes from Dave Bird in the first half to give Quinte their only points.

Moira seniors rallied to a 24-0 lead at half time and then coasted through a scoreless second half to gain the decision over Picton.

Peter Hart, Bob Raycroft, Dave Rutherford and Peter Stailkovich all counted majors in the first half, while Stailkovich had an 80-yard touchdown sprint erazed by a penalty. Rutherford was the individual standout for the winners.

In junior action the unbeaten Trojans steamed to a 44-0 victory over Prince Edward. Mike McClelland led the winners with a pair of majors while Mike Meagher had a touchdown and two two-point conversions. Other touchdowns were scored by Bernier, John Loder and Rick Rowden, while Brian Calnan hauled in a pair of two-point converts.

Quarterback Dave Hilborn turned in a superb offensive effort for Moira with Mike Olsen and Brian Spencer drawing defensive plaudits.

The number 175 is probably the most prominent figure in the minds of Quinte Figure Skating Club officials at the moment. That was the number of competitors enrolled in the Belleville club last winter and officials are hoping to equal or surpass that mark Saturday when they hold registration.

Of the total number taking part in the skating program last year, 100 were in the junior division with another 75 seniors enrolled.

The skating club will be on the ice Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 4-8 p.m., although because of the large number of skaters taking part, the classes are run on a staggered system.

Last year the Quinte group participated in skating competitions in Oshawa and Trenton, while already plans are being made to have the more advanced performers compete in the Canada Games trials to be held in December. It is also hoped that the organization will be able to stage an ice festival this winter, a total of six instructors will be available for teaching duties this year with Bonnie Boundy, Gordon Crossland and Dwight Carpenter working full time and Anna Forder, Jim and Helen Nicholson providing part time instruction.

The skating program will begin Oct. 18 and run through until March 31. Cost is $7 per month for one skater, $13 per month for two skaters and $16 per month for three.

Registration will be held Saturday at the Belleville Memorial Arena from 6-7:30 p.m.

The Quinte Skating Club will hold all sessions at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Rugger on Display

Sports fans who prefer the action to be of a rather violent nature will have a chance to take in a rugged game of rugger this weekend.

The game, which is some what similar to American football but minus the padding used by CFL and NFL players, has not had a representative from the Quinte area. However, the sport is popular in local high schools and officials are hoping that a Belleville team may be formed in future years.

The contest will be a regularly scheduled game between Kingston and York County and will be played Saturday at Moira Secondary School beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Nobody Counted

The Centre Hastings juniors received into sole possession of first place in the eastern division of the Bay of Quinte OSSA soccer standings last night on the strength of a 0-0 tie with BCI.

A wet field hampered the scoring efforts of both teams, while BCI goalie Barry Hicks was the game's individual standout.

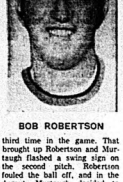
Overlooked Bunt Sign Gave Pirates First Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Left-hander Luke Walker, who has spent much of the season in manager Danny Murtaugh's doghouse, has the job of keeping Pittsburgh Pirates rebounding against Baltimore Orioles tonight in the first World Series game ever played at night.

The Pirates, stung for two straight losses in Baltimore, bounced back with a 5-1 victory Tuesday behind the three-hit pitching of Steve Blass—who left his personal scouting report 250 miles away—and a three-run homer by Bob Robertson, who missed a bunt sign and swung away.

If Walker can make a couple of mistakes like that, Pittsburgh will really be back in business.

Walker has a deceptive record. He was 10-8 during the regular season but won four of those decisions in the final month.



But Murtaugh suspected that he was working with a sore arm —a cardinal sin in the Pirate manager's mind. So Walker was passed over in the playoff series against San Francisco Giants and in the first two Series games at Baltimore, when the Orioles belted the Pirate pitching staff.

"Sure, I've wondered a lot about why I haven't been used," said Walker. "But I just keep my mouth shut. No. 40 (Murtaugh) has the answers."

Meanwhile, Murtaugh hoped Walker was the answer for the Pirates against Pat Dobson, the fourth 20-game winner the Orioles have thrown at the Pirates.

Pittsburgh finally caught up with one of the Birds' aces in the third game when Robertson rifled his homer against Mike Cuellar to put the icing on Blass's strong pitching job. The funny part of the homer was that it was supposed to be a bunt.

Roberto Clemente opened the seventh inning by reaching first on an error by Cuellar. Then Willie Stargell walked for the third time in the game. That brought up Robertson and Murtaugh flashed a swing sign on the second pitch. Robertson fouled the ball off, and in the dugout, Murtaugh decided to switch signals.

"We saw that Brooks Robinson was playing him deep at third," said Murtaugh, "so we decided to bunt."

Third base coach Frank Ocvak dutifully passed the bunt sign along and both runners saw it. But Robertson didn't. He swung away and the ball soared over the 335-foot sign in right centre for a three-run homer.

When the red-haired slugger crossed home plate, Stargell greeted him with a grin and said: "That's the way to bunt."

That's when Robertson realized he had missed a sign.

"It's the first time I've missed one all year," he said. "If I had seen it, I would have bunted. But a bunt was the farthest thing from my mind. I wanted to swing the bat."

When Robertson got to the dugout he went over to Murtaugh.

"I guess I fouled up." the slugger said when he got to the dugout.

"Possibly," replied the laconic manager, just a hint of a smile curling his lips.

The three-run cushion was plenty for Blass, who had been in a 2-1 pressure cooker until Robertson connected.

"I was so excited about being in a World Series game, that I didn't sleep all night," Blass said. "I kept lying awake, thinking about lots of things. The weather . . . Frank Robinson . . . Brooks Robinson . . . Boog Powell."

Blass said he had watched the first two games of the Series on a monitor television in the dressing room at Baltimore.

"I made some notes. And to show you how much they helped me, I forget them and left them in Baltimore."

"I was totally confused about what to do after they hit all those homers in the first game and all those singles in the next one," said Blass.

"Danny (Murtaugh) told me to pitch my own game," Blass said. "If I got beat, I wanted it to be against my best stuff."

"The streak is over, but we're not going to hang our heads," Frank Robinson said, analysing the loss that ended a 16-game winning streak for the Orioles. "We'll just have to start over and win two in a row."

"When you go into a World Series, you don't expect to win four straight . . . and we didn't think that, even after winning the first two. If we had won the third game, then we would have been going for four in a row."

Robinson made two of Baltimore's three hits off Blass, including a home run.

Not This Time

Series Briefs

Birds' Win Streak Stopped at 16

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Baltimore Orioles praised Pittsburgh pitcher Steve Blass after losing to the Pirate right-hander Tuesday and declined to offer any excuses.

"Tge loss had nothing to do with the field or the crowd," manager Earl Weaver said. "Blass was the total effect, and Bobby Robertson applied the crusher.

"Blass had a great fast ball and mixed it with good breaking stuff."

Weaver contended that loser Mike Cuellar didn't pitch badly. "Until Robertson broke the game open in the eighth inning, Mike did all right."

Robertson hit a three-run homer after Roberto Clemente reached base on a Cuellar error and Willie Stargell walked for the third time.

Weaver said an eight-day layoff between starts could have affected Cuellar, who last pitched in the second game of the American League playoffs.

Frank Robinson, who had two of the three hits off Blass, including his eighth World Series home run, said he hit a fast ball "up and in."

"We would have liked to keep winning," Robinson said of a 16-game winning streak which ended, "but we're not going to hang our heads. We'll have to start over tomorrow and win two in a row."

Fine Unlikely

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "Atta way to bunt the bat!" Willie Stargell said as Bob Robertson crashed home-run plate after hitting a three-run homer.

Robertson didn't know until he was greeted by Stargell that he had been given a bunt sign with a 1-1 count in the fourth and runners on first and second and none out. But he missed it, and hit a home run to right.

"I fouled on didn't I?" Robertson acknowledged to Murtaugh when he reached the bench.

"Possibly," was Murtaugh's reply.

"There won't be a fine under those conditions," Murtaugh said later.

Robertson, who had been hitless in nine times at bat, is the second Pirate to hit a homer in this World Series. He hit a Mike Cuellar screwball.

* * *

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steve Blass not only saved Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday, he also rescued his father.

Blass's father, Bob, a plumber in Falls Village, Conn., had talked about his son playing in a World Series first. Steve was six years old. And when young Blass pitched his three-hitter against the Orioles, father Bob got carried away.

He leaped onto the top of the Pirates' dugout, attempting to congratulate his son, only to find guards barring his way.

"They were trying to run him off the field," the pitcher said later in the Pirates' dressing room. "But they didn't hurt him and I got him down."

Thomas Like Old Self

DALLAS (AP) — Duane Thomas, no longer the popoff who called his coach "a plastic man . . . no man at all," made his 1971 playing debut with the Las Cowboys Monday night and the coach he verbally attacked, Tom, Landry, said "Duane looked like his old self."

Thomas ran for 60 yards on nine carries in the second half of Dallas' 20-13 National Football League victory over New York Giants.

He showered, dressed and quickly left the Cowboy dressing room after the game.

He refused to go into his money hassle with the Cowboy management which prompted him to threaten retirement and ask to be traded. Dallas dealt him off to New England Patriots, who gave him back just as quickly when Thomas had some problems with his physical examination.

Thomas was the National Football Conference offensive rookie of the year in 1970.

Cowboy quarterback Craig Morton said Thomas has been accepted by the team despite what he said about Landry.

"Everyone has a right to believe what he wants to—all we ask is that he perform," Morton said.

Martin Scores First

Calder Trophy Sabres' Again?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

To hear it from Punch Imlach, his Sabres have another National Hockey League rookie of the year on their hands this season—this time Richard Martin, Buffalo's No. 1 draft pick this summer.

The 20-year-old left winger didn't exactly burn up the ice in St. Louis Tuesday night but he did score Buffalo's only goal—and his first in professional hockey—as the Sabres dropped a 4-1 decision to the Blues.

In the only other NHL game Tuesday, Vancouver Canucks nipped Philadelphia Flyers 3-2.

Even before the NHL exhibition season opened, Imlach was calling Martin, who scored a record 71 goals with Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association last year, "our biggest capture."

And at the Sabres training camp this month, the Buffalo coach said Martin had "all the qualifications to become an all-star."

Gil Perreault, chosen first by the expansionist Sabres when they had No. 1 pick in 1970, copped the top rookie honors that season when he set NHL records with 38 goals and 34 assists for 74 points.

Martin's goal Tuesday pulled Buffalo into a tie with the Blues at 3:09 of the first period. But then, to the cheers of the 17,580 hometown fans, the Blues took the lead before the period ended.

The Blues added single goals in each of the remaining periods as they peppered Buffalo goaltender Dave Dryden with a total of 27 shots.

Ernie Wakely in the St. Louis net turned back 19 shots.

Andre Boudrias paved the win for the Canucks comeback when he lined wn at Vancouver with a pair of second-period goals, his first of the season.

The Flyers jumped to a 2-0 lead before the game was five minutes old before Boudrias counted his first marker.

Vancouver sophomore defensive star Dale Tallon tied the score midway through the period.

The Canucks turned on the power for the first time against two losses in regular-season play, firing 34 shots at Philadelphia goaltender Doug Favell. Vancouver goalie George Gardner faced 19 shots.

Minnesota North Stars said Tuesday defenceman Fred Barrett and right winger Buster Harvey have been sent to their Cleveland farm club in the American Hockey League.

At Boston, Bruin general manager Mit Schmidt ordered his team's players to cancel all public appearances and commitments "to concentrate strictly on hockey."

The Bruins, East Division champions last year, lost their season opener to New York Sunday 4-1 and had a disappointing 3-6-1 win-loss-tie record in exhibition play.

Montreal Canadiens were told that defenceman Serge Savard will be unable to scrimmage with the club for some time. Savard broke his leg for the second time last Jan. 31.

In tonight's action, Detroit Red Wings visit the Maple Leafs at Toronto, Boston travels to New York, Chicago Black Hawks play host to St. Louis, the Flyers meet California Golden Seals at Oakland and Pittsburgh Penguins waddle to Los Angeles to meet the Kings.

Campbell Welcomes Rivalry

By IAN MacLAINE

The proposed World Hockey Association hasn't inspired any radical moves by the National Hockey League to block organizing groups.

On the contrary, so little is known of the WHA and its foundations, that owners and club officials of the 14-team NHL have been inclined to look upon it not as a rival, but in some cases as a benefactor.

"As far as the NHL is concerned they're welcome," said NHL president Clarence Campbell after hearing of the WHA's founding meeting at Los Angeles in September. "There are four leagues representing 35 cities in professional hockey now which evidently is not sufficient to satisfy the demand."

Bill Hunter of Edmonton, one of three Canadian cities expected to have franchises in the WHA when it begins operations at Miami, Fla., in September, 1972, has been appointed to head a player committe to guarantee parity among the WHA teams and ensure competitiveness with the NHL's expansion-lit West Division.

Winnipeg, Calgary, New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Cincinnati, Milwauke and Chicago are the other centres besides Miami expected to ante up the $1-million franchise fee.

The WHA is the brainchild of lawyer Gary Davidson and Dennis Murphy, both of whom were in on the spadework that set up the American Basketball Association several years ago.

David Molson, president of Montreal Canadiens, says the NHL board of governors is aware of the WHA's existence and is studying it.

"We're not brushing them off lightly."

However, he was adamant in that he doesn't want to see anything that might damage the game, such as a raiding war for players experienced by the NBA-ABA and National Football League-American Football League confrontations.

Lanier On Limp

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Muscular Bob Lanier, the hulking centre who helped Detroit Pistons get off on the right foot in the 1971-72 National Basketball Association season, will undergo x-rays today for a possible fracture of his little left toe.

The 6-foot-11 Lanier was told that his toe was broken Tuesday night after he had led the Pistons to a 91-84 victory over New York Knickerbockers in the season opener for both clubs.

In other openers, Seattle SuperSonics overwhelmed Buffalo Braves 123-80, Cincinnati Royals trimmed Atlanta Hawks 127-113, and Philadelphia 76ers beat Chicago Bulls 114-108.

Lanier finished the game, playing a total of 46 minutes, and wound up the game's high scorer with 29 points.

"It was all right against the Knicks," he continued, "until somebody—either Willis Reed or Dave DeBusschere—jumped on it with five or six minutes left in the game."

Etcheverry Fails to Root Out Dissidents

MONTREAL (CP) — Attempts to turn up the dissident faction that has rocked Montreal Alouettes since their loss to Toronto Argonauts last Sunday failed despite a series of meetings Tuesday night.

The crisis arose when several unnamed players told Ted Blackman, sports editor and columnist of The Gazette, that John Carlos, former United States Olympic track star, had been a disruptive factor on the club since his arrival last month.

Both Etcheverry and general manager Red O'Quinn expressed dismay and general disgust with the published reports and vowed to track the griping back to its source and take punitive action.

It's Magic Number Time in CFL

TORONTO (CP) — With only two or three games remaining for most Canadian Football League teams in the regular schedule and some playoff spots still undecided, the league statistician has gone to work on his magic numbers.

The magic number for a team seeking a certain playoff spot is the combination of victories by that team and losses by competing teams necessary to clinch the spot.

CFL statistician Greg Fulton has come up with three as the magic number for Hamilton Tiger-Cats to clinch second spot in the Eastern Conference ahead of the defending Grey Cup champion Montreal Alouettes.

The Ticats have a record of six wins and five losses for 12 points and three games remaining.

The Alouette's, two points behind the Ticats, have a magic number of two to make the playoffs ahead of Ottawa Rough Riders and a number of four to take second place ahead of Hamilton. The Als have three games left.

The Rough Riders, meanwhile, have only two games remaining and would have to win both while counting on at least two Montreal loses to grab a playoff position.

Toronto Argonauts have clinched first place in the EFC but out West, the conference title is still in question with Calgary Stampeders holding a two-point lead over Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The magic number for Saskatchewan to take first place is four and their number is one to clinch second spot.

Calgary can nail down first place with a win at Regina this weend, otherwise its magic number becomes three.

British Columbia Lions are still mathematically in the running for second, but would have to win their final three games and hope for a collapse by Saskatchewan. Otherwise, the Lions' number is two to be assured of the third playoff spot.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers must win their last two games and hope for two B.C. losses while Edmonton Eskimos could still make the playoffs by winning their three remaining games provided Winnipeg and B.C. keep losing.

Winnipeg halfback Mack Herron tied a CFL record during three kickoffs against Edmonton, giving him a total for the season of 37. That tied the mark set by Pete Thodos of Calgary in 1952.

Herron's yardage total of 928 yards on the kickoff returns is only two short of the record set by Dave Ralmey with Winnipeg in 1968.

Herron also ranks third in the WFC rushing race with 806 yards gained on 132 carries. Jim Evenson of B.C. leads the race with 1,158 yards on 227 carries, followed by George Reed of Saskatchewan with 974 on 186 attempts.

Leon McQuay, despite missing the last two Argonauts games with a knee injury, still leads the EFC in rushing with his 900 yards on 121 carries. Dennis Duncan of Ottawa is next with 727 yards.

In the passing department, Winnipeg leads again. Quarterback Don Jonas of the Bombers has gained 2,797 yards through the air, well ahead of Saskatchewan's Ron Lancaster with 2,138 yards.

Jim Thorpe, one of Jonas' favorite targets, is the leading WFC receiver with 1,325 yards gained on 63 passes. Herm Harrison of Calgary is second with 837 yards on 56 receptions.

Joe Theismann of the Argos is the leading EFC passer with 1,959 yards on 115 completed passes while Montreal's Terry Evanshin is the top receiver with 702 yards on 43 passes.

Government Abandons Farm Income Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Rather than go to court, the government abandoned its prairie farm income stabilization bill Tuesday night.

Hours before, it had accepted in principle a Conservative proposal for a compromise that would have enabled the bill to pass this week.

But four Saskatchewan farmers, who had been encouraged by federal and provincial New Democrats to sue Finance Minister E. J. Benson, blocked the compromise solution by not agreeing to an adjournment of their court case. The case was to resume this morning.

The four are suing Mr. Benson for not making payments to the Canadian wheat board as required under Temporary Wheat Reserves Act, which the stabilization bill would have repealed retroactive to Aug. 1, 1970.

With shelving of the stabilization bill—a form of income insurance—the reserve payments were to be made today. But farmers will get neither the stabilization fund nor the $100-million lump-sum payment intended as compensation for repeal of the reserves act.

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board, said, "It's a tragic day for the western farmer."

Conservative spokesmen regretted the bill not coming to a vote, although some of their prairie backbenchers were privately pleased. New Democrats welcomed the death of the bill.

The reaction of farmers is expected to be revealed in the Nov. 8 byelection in Assiniboia a prospect all parties had kept in mind throughout the debate on the bill.

The legislation died after a day full of huddled conversations between party House leaders, most Commons huddles involving cabinet ministers, and many long-distance telephone calls to Regina.

Liberal House Leader Allan MacEachen told the Commons the government would agree to a compromise provided the four farmers agreed to the postponement of the court case by Tuesday evening. Failing an adjournment, the government would make the wheat reserves payment and not proceed with its bill.

Mr. Lang later told reporters he talked unsuccessfully to Saskatchewan Attorney-General Roy Romanow and others in the NDP government to see whether an adjournment could be obtained.

He said however, the provincial government now appeared sympathetic to the federal effort to pass the bill.

It was believed an adjournment—to be obtained without argument before a judge—would have needed agreement from all four farmers: William Surdia of Assiniboia, Clarence Lucas of Mazenod and Roy Ames and James Bradley of Milestone.

Mr. Lang said the federal government did not want to seek the judge's order for an adjournment. The judge would have had to make a decision based on political considerations —the proposed repeal of the wheat reserves act.

"Boy, that's telling it like it is!"

Russian Bid Low

Vancouver (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority said Tuesday a Soviet trade organization submitted the lowest bid on a contract to supply and install four 595,000-horsepower turbines and governors for Hydro's Mica power project on the Columbia River. Energomashexport of Moscow quoted $9 472,000 for the job, nearly five million dollars less than the next lowest bid.

You and The Law

You Do Not Have to Leave To Be Guilty of Desertion

Desertion has long been a ground in Canadian law for the obtaining of a legal separation. Under the new divorce laws introduced several years ago, it is now a ground for divorce as well.

What exactly is desertion? Basically speaking, it involves four elements — the fact of separation of the two spouses, the intention of the deserting spouse to desert, the lack of any reasonable cause for the desertion and the lack of consent to the desertion by the deserted spouse. If any of these elements are missing, there is no desertion.

Desertion can take a number of forms. We tend to think of it in its literal sense — the act of leaving home and spouse and possibly disappearing. However, the law recognizes at least two other forms of desertion as well.

Firstly, there is what is known as constructive desertion. In this type of situation, one spouse makes continued cohabitation impossible for the other to endure and so the other moves out.

The one who remains behind is still considered to be a deserter.

For instance, a man drinks excessively, treats his wife and children with abuse and refuses to maintain them properly. The situation gets so bad that the wife finds it intolerable, and she takes the children and moves out. This is constructive desertion by the husband, and he is deemed to be the one who deserted the wife.

Secondly, there can also be constructive or actual desertion even though the husband and wife continue to live under the same roof. The question is whether their marriage has continued as a marriage or are they merely living in the same building? If they do not sleep together, eat together, have any common interests or social activities, etc., they can be considered as being separated, and the party responsible (if just one of them was responsible) can be considered as having deserted the other.

There are reported cases in which the courts have held desertion to have taken place although the parties continued to live under the same roof. There are also cases in which the courts have held that parties living under the same roof were separated without one party having deserted the other — that is, they had separated by mutual consent without either of them changing his or her place of residence. As indicated above, the question is not where they are living but how they are living.

However, it can easily be appreciated that even though separation or desertion can be established in spite of the fact that the parties are still living under the same roof, it can be established much easier if they are not.

That's the law!

Ontario Northland Strike Is Settled

NORTH BAY (CP) — A one-week walkout that disrupted transportation and communications for about 100,000 residents in northeastern Ontario ended Tuesday as employees of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission voted to return to work.

A spokesman said in a statement issued after the vote that employees expect improvements in pensions but "all hell could break loose" if demands are turned down.

The 1,900 members of 18 unions booked off sick last Tuesday to back demands for pension-plan parity with other government employees.

Most telephone, telegraph, railway and bus service from North Bay to Moosonee on James Bay, a distance of about 400 miles, were tied up by the work stoppage.

The union spokesman said 70 per cent of 600 ballots cast here and in nearby Englehart favored the return.

The vote was taken after proposals from the commission management and the provincial government were presented to employees.

Chief proposal, said the union spokesman, was for an inquiry group to "enter serious discussions on pension matters."

Five union representatives will meet with this body no later than Nov. 1 and present the views of workers, the spokesman said.

The inquiry group then would make specific recommendations to the government no later than Dec. 1 "and will furnish the unions with a rationale for their recommendations."

The investigating body will be headed by chairman W. A. T. Anderson of the Ontario Civil Service Commission. Other members of the group will include A. T. McNab, deputy minister of transportation and communications, and E. A. Fritz, general manager of the ONTC.

Trade Moves Likely

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario cannot unilaterally make decisions on the issues of foreign investment and foreign control of the economy in the absence of federal policy, Premier William Davis said Tuesday night.

Canadian and Ontario companies have been hard hit by the United States supplementary duty on imports and if Congress approves tax credit legislation affecting Canadian exports, then "it seems to me Canada will be obliged to take similar measures."

"Certainly Ontario would have to co-operate in the implementation of such a policy" in the event the U.S. legislation is approved, Mr. Davis told more than 200 executives from 27 countries at the annual dinner of the International Iron and Steel Institute.

"I think it important to realize that the basic decisions as to how we respond to the present circumstances and how we measure our goals for the future, await the inspiration of national policy."

The premier said he likes to believe that the U.S. supplementary duty "will not have much longer to run" and that . . . Canadians will not resort to protectionism, anti-Americanism, or any other impulse which can only be emotionally satisfying in the short run, but counter-productive in the long run."

Nevertheless, the U.S. economic measures cannot help but have an effect on Ontario, which has 70 per cent of Canada's machinery and equipment manufacturers.

A tax credit for U.S. corporations investing in American-made machinery and a bill which would permit U.S. corporations to avoid income tax on exports above 1968-70 levels now is before Congress.

Mr. Davis said these two measures, if approved, added to the supplementary duty, would mean a 24-per-cent disadvantage to Canadian exporters of machinery and equipment relative to their 1970 position.

In view of this, Canada would have to take similar measures for the benefit of its export industries even though it would be "contrary to the objective of freer international trade, an objective we have supported."

Subsidy Aid Pledge By Nixon

WINGHAM, Ont. (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Tuesday an Ontario Liberal government would be prepared to pick up the balance of the subsidy tab not covered by federal aid to industries hit by the United States supplementary duty on imports.

The federal government recently announced plans to cover 66 per cent of the losses relating to the surcharge and incurred by Canadian firms exporting to the U.S. The surcharge was imposed Aug. 15.

And in a speech prepared for delivery later Tuesday, Mr. Nixon promised a Liberal provincial government would pick up the remaining one-third of surcharge losses.

In announcing a nine-point program for creating jobs in the province, the Liberal leader said his proposed provincial subsidy would involve spending about $10 million.

Spadina Housing Proposed

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis offered his alternative Tuesday to Metropolitan Toronto's cancelled Spadina Expressway.

The plan, on 46 acres of prime land which was part of the expressway route, includes a subway, 4,000 apartment and mail-sorting units housing 10,000 to 12,000 people, approximately 250,000 square feet of commercial, office and institutional space and comercial underground parking facilities for 3,500 cars.

The plan, conceived by internationally-famous United States planner R. Buckminster Fuller, would cost about $75 million. The investment would come mainly from private investment, Mr. Davis told a news conference at Queen's Park.

Mrs. Cullen who shops for three, says "I enjoy shopping at Loblaws. The store is always so nice and clean and also I find Loblaws prices are lower. I've tried other stores but some of the things I buy all the time are lower at Loblaws. Also I think Loblaws quality is better especially the fresh fruits and vegetables and the meat. The meat department here is really very good—there's a lot of variety so I can always find what I want without having to ask. I've never been disappointed with any of the meat I've bought at Loblaws. Same thing with the produce, it's always excellent—and the displays look so nice. I'm really pleased with Loblaws, if I wasn't I wouldn't shop here".

Jobs Come First

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Democratic Party government in Ontario would refuse to participate in sham constitutional conferences based on legal niceties because they ignore basic economic issues that "make or break Canada," party leader Stephen Lewis said Tuesday night.

"The issue for economic independence and our stand for economic independence is the strongest contributing factor to keeping Canada united," he told about 800 persons at a local high school.

If the NDP forms the provincial government after the Oct. 21 general election, he said, Prime Minister Trudeau can expect a different attitude to such conferences than that shown by the Progressive Conservatives.

An NDP government would want to know exactly what the federal government planned to do about unemployment, backed up with figures on manpower and growth trends, and what it was left for Ontario to do.

The NDP also would ask Ottawa plans to regain economic sovereignty "and what Pierre Elliott Trudeau will not do, then an NDP government in Ontario will resolutely perform.

"And we'll consult regularly with our sister provinces . . . "

The 38-year-old leader said that as an observer at the last constitutional conference, he watched "with amazement the political obsession with an amending formula everyone knew was doomed in advance to failure."

"Dominion-provincial conferences based on constitutional amending formulas are strong devices to raise the separatist bogey . . . and they're strong devices to distract attention from basic social and economic problems," he said.

But the underlying problems remained—economic crisis for unemployed persons every where in Canada.

Campus Pub Is Forum For Nixon

WINDSOR, ONNT. (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon had a tough give-and-take session Tuesday night with beer-drinking students at the University of Windsor campus pub.

But he earned several rounds of applause from most of the 500 students who packed the room. Pub hours were extended for the appearance of the Liberal chief, who arrived shortly before 10 p.m.

Mr. Nixon, his voice hoarse from 29 days of campaigning for the Oct. 21 provincial election, asked for questions after apologizing for reading a prepared five-page statement on his party's economic policies released earlier in the day to the press.

The most heated exchange came when Mr. Nixon said the enumeration of students at the university for the election had been inadequate.

"It's a lie," several students shouted. Mr. Nixon replied that he had been informed the enumerators had set up a table to collect student names but had not gone from door to door.

The students shouted down one of their number who said he had done the enumeration for the university. He said that by setting up the table he had enumerated 25 per cent of the 1,200 students at the university.

"Who do you represent, the Conservatives or the NDP?" Mr. Nixon asked him. Under the Election Act, the two parties that receive the most votes in a riding name poll clerks and enumerators, in the next election.

"The Conservatives," several other students shouted.

"If you're not going from door to door, I don't see what you're being paid for," Mr. Nixon said.

Mr. Nixon said chief electoral officer Roderick Lewis should order a new enumeration at the university.

To another student's question, Mr. Nixon blamed violence in a strike at the Tempack Ltd. plant in Brantford on outside strike-breakers and "well-wishers" from the Waffle wing of the New Democratic Party who "insisted they be arrested" on the picket line.

Mr. Nixon said Tempack now has moved its operation to Toronto.

"But you didn't say what you would do about it," the student shouted.

"We' . . . not going to nationalis . . . pack," Mr. Nixon replied.

Barbed Wire Issue Again Before Council

The question of barbed wire atop fencing around property inside the city limits was again the topic of discussion at city council yesterday.

Frost Steel and Wire Company Ltd. a letter to city hall, said the firm had received a request from Wilks Sporting Goods Ltd. to erect an industrial chain link fence with three strands of barbed wire at the top, and asked approval of council members for the installation.

But despite the fact that the city has barbed wire fencing in contravention of its own bylaw, the request was denied with directions that the firm be forwarded a copy of the city bylaw.

Alderman E. A. Orr said the action "embarrassed" him in view of the city itself having barbed wire fencing, and asked that the city manager report on all such installations around city property.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said the bylaw covered all "new" fencing installations.

Alderman Jean Smith commented a bit further on the apparent inconsistencies in the policy of barbed wire fencing, noting that the Simpson-Sears store at the new Quinte Mall had erected barbed wire around some of its property.

She wanted to know how this could be done.

"They didn't come to council," she noted.

The city bylaw bans erection of barbed wire, although consideration can be given by council under special circumstances.

Council recommended that Simpson-Sears be forwarded a copy of the city bylaw with an appropriate letter pointing out that barbed wir eis illegal.

Indians Prepare Rebuttal to Paper

The department of Indian Affairs' policy outlined in the two-year-old White Paper is coming under attack from Tyendinaga Mohawks.

Members of the Mohawk band have spearheaded preparation of a brief in rebuttal to the white paper, and will present it in November.

The brief will come from the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians, an organization of about 19,000 Indians from eight reserves in Ontario.

The Tyendinaga Mohawks were leaders in the formation of the Association and are taking an active part, with their colleagues, in preparing the brief.

"This is our submission in answer to the present white paper on Indian policy," said Chief Earl Hill of Tyendinaga, vice-president of the Association.

The chief said the association's board of governors and committees have been drafting the brief for the past nine months. It will be reviewed and approved at a general association meeting later this month.

It is concerned with economic development, reserve administration, housing and every other aspect of Indian life on Ontario reserves.

Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien is expected to meet with the Association's executive to accept the brief.

"He will be coming to us, as a reserve, to accept the brief," said Chief Hill. "We won't be going to Ottawa."

A definite date for the presentation of the brief will be set later this month.

Houston to Handle Convention Bureau

Because of the progress made in the formation of a convention bureau for the city, and the increased work load on the committee members, the board of directors for the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, meet the Pat Houston, present manager of the chamber, be employed also as an acting manager of the convention bureau.

Under the leadership of George Van de Water, CN Rideau Area Manager, the convention bureau "really got off the ground," said Frank Murray, Chamber president, and because of this the amount to be done has increased.

Members of the board agreed that it was imperative that something be done with the idea but at least one mentioned that it might not prove financially sound to take on such a program in the present budget.

Mr. Van de Water admitted the most we could look in the project would be in the area of $2,500, but never would the project fall through to the tune of $9,000" as one member suggested.

In the bureau setup, there will be a chance for the chamber to make money to offset the cost of increased staffing.

"The convention bureau is designed to help the city of Belleville in general but direct benefits would fall into the hands of the merchants," the hotel owners," said Mr. Van de Water. "It is because of the obvious benefits to the various hotels and key tourist businesses that a remuneration would be paid to the bureau by these people for their name to be entered into the travel booklet."

Mr. Houston agreed. "It would be in the best interest of both the chamber and the city that something along these lines be started to get the bureau on its feet and operating."

He stated that he would soon have to leave the chamber to allow someone else to take his place.

In a remark to the board he said, "come the end of January I am going to have to leave the chamber and one of the biggest reasons I am staying that long is because I want to see the winter carnival go through without a hitch."

The winter carnival falls in the last week of January.

Further remuneration is expected from the city to help in financing the bureau, which members of the board feel "will be quite acceptable to city coun: l because they initiated the project in the first place."

Iodine May Cause Salivation

By C. THORESTEON, MD

Dear Dr. Thoresteon: I have excessive salivation to the point that I awake two or three times a night and find I have to wipe my face. This has been happening for six to eight months, during the day as well as at night, but has become more frequent in the last month or two.

I'm in my 70s and have worn full dentures about 20 years, but I have the habit of squeezing down on them during the day, especially in the evening when I'm reading or studying something. It's not a grinding of the dentures, but more an unconscious pressing down to squeeze the saliva out and swallow.

When I become aware of it I try to stop and that helps for a while. Even though this pressure action has been practised just about all the years I've worn dentures, the excessive saliva flow has started only in the last six months or so.

I've wondered whether the copious salivation is a result of the constant pressure on the dentures.—H.S.

With dentures it is better to have a generous flow of saliva than a dry mouth as is rather common at your age.

Things that come to mind first in cases of excessive saliva are smoking, medications such as those containing iodine, inflammation of the mouth, and nervous disorders, chief of which is Parkinsonism.

You give no hint that any of these is involved. Keep in mind, though, that some of the complex vitamin-mineral preparations contain iodine, and you might be unduly sensitive to iodine.

You say the dentures fit comfortably. There could be a sensitivity to materials you use with the dentures. Have you changed in the last six months or so?

It is also possible that squeezing down on the dentures initiates a reflex flow of saliva. You may, perhaps, have gradually increased the habit of doing this. Think so? What happens if you do not wear the dentures at night? That could offer a clue.

If any of these suggestions turns out to be helpful, that's fine, but I can add also that there are medications to lessen salivary flow and might be tried if your physician concurs.

Dear Dr. Thoresteon: Is it possible to absorb any amount of salt and soda where used as a dentifrice? I have high cholesterol, hardening of the arteries and angina, so that thought came to me when I remembered how quickly a nitroglycerine tablet takes effect when placed under the tongue. Could salt get into the blood stream in like manner?—E.M.F.

You keep the nitroglycerine tablet under your tongue so it can be absorbed; you don't keep the dentifrice materials in your mouth. You spit them out, and probably rinse your mouth afterward.

I would doubt that there would be any significant absorption of sodium. If you're still worried, give your mouth an extra rinse.

Dear Dr. Thoresteon: I am a great believer in your leg exercise for poor circulation. It has helped me so much, but I would like to know how often you can do the exercise, and how many times to raise each leg? I am 67 and have real good health for that age.—Mrs. E.S.

I assume you use the leg-raising exercises to prevent leg cramps at night. You can do them as often as you feel a need for them. Each evening at bedtime is often enough for many individuals, but this is governed by how much help your leg circulation needs.

Raising each leg three or four times will suffice in many cases, but again the answer has to depend on whether that's enough to do the job.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 14

Your birthday today: Events this year make you more of a leader among your associates, probably increase your earnings and responsibilities. Today's natives tend to candid expression, detailed knowledge of narrow fields of personal interest, great charm.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): This is your day to show off and display the qualities you are specifically noted for. After your regular work is completed something is added to spice the evening's program.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Self-confidence is a great but do not confuse it with taking current affairs for granted. An eager rival encroaches. Assert if you are serene. Think what you are doing.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): At worst, you'll find yourself left out of a social arrangement. No harm done and a good chance to learn by reflecting on what has been going on.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Firm, consistent approaches pay. Unfinished business must be resolved along with an urgent need for opening a new venture.

LEO (July 23—Aug. 22): Insisted breaking or trying to change the rules, try letting well enough alone for the moment. Let others take the initiative.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Teamwork makes all the difference for you. Accept help and give in kind when it's your turn. Top off the day with a merry "thank you" party.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Dissension is easy to drift into, people shouldn't be drawn into any differences if you are to prevail.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Being unreasonable is a common fashion for a moment — means nothing, unless you take it up too. Get your work done.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Miracles come small today, but none they do. Exciting news is accompanied by interminable talk. Keep busy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): If you've done your homework and know precisely what you have and what you can do, you may cash in on the current situation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Getting personal is the last thing to do now. Give a top-notch performance in diplomacy. Avoid detailed negotiations.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The comforts of life are to be used fully, but share them readily. Other people have delays, inconvenience to cope with and may use your resources gratefully.

War Measure Act Inquiry Holds Its First Public Hearings

MONTREAL (CP) — Observers at the first public hearings of the citizens' commission of inquiry into the War Measures Act Tuesday heard testimony ranging from ordered legal briefs and philosophical statements about Quebec society to sudden glimpses of prison life a year ago.

At one point, commissioner Richard Dunbar, a law professor at the University of British Columbia, leaned over his table and asked witness Jacques Larue-Langlois, a former CBC producer, what was the reaction of Quebec lawyers to the War Measures Act.

"I didn't really have too much contact with lawyers after the War Measures Act was declared," Mr. Larue-Langlois said.

For about a month, he said, "I was in jail and the only lawyer I saw was Robert Lemieux for most of that period. And he didn't have any better idea than I did what anybody on the outside was thinking."

Mr. Larue-Langlois had just finished reading a critique of the War Measures Act from the legal point of view on behalf of the Committee of 36, a group of people arrested during the October crisis.

He was acquitted of charges of seditious conspiracy in June.

Serge Mongeau, of the Movement for the Defence of Political Prisoners, also spent a period of time in jail last October. He said that of the 30 people imprisoned in his wing of Montreal's Parthenais Street cells, only one person saw a lawyer in the first eight days of imprisonment.

But legal-aid lawyer Francois Dorval said that while he knew of cases where lawyers were not allowed to see their clients, he personally experienced little difficulty.

His office had been asked by friends, relatives, or the Human Rights League, to intervene in about 100 cases where people were arrested under the emergency legislation.

"Aside from the first few hours after the act was invoked, we had little difficulty from police and prison authorities in contacting prisoners," Mr. Dorval said.

He said that Paul Rose was arrested at about 4 a.m., Dec. 28. The prisoner's mother asked Mr. Dorval to intervene at about 9 a.m. and by about 11 a.m. Mr. Dorval was in Rose's cell.

Mr. Larue-Langlois' brief charged that the executive and legislative authorities illegally assumed judicial responsibilities and said that the War Measures Act was put into force because a complacent judicial apparatus granted police blank search warrants.

Bullet Killed Man In Fire

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's jury was told Tuesday that a man pulled from a burning farmhouse in nearby Acton in July died from a single bullet wound in the head.

Pathologist Dr. Vern Waldorf testified that death had come from the bullet wound, and that the absence of carbon monoxide in the dead man's blood indicated he inhaled no smoke and must have been dead before the flames reached him.

The jury is investigating the death of Joseph Roger LaPoint, 32.

Firemen found Mr. LaPoint's body in a bedroom of his farm with a .22-calibre rifle nearby July 10.

Kathleen Gillespie of the Centre of Forensic Science in Toronto said a hose was found in the driveway of the farm. It contained traces of gasoline, and gasoline also was found on the dead man's boots.

The inquest continues.

Milton is about 25 miles west of Toronto.

Investment Curbs Opposed

PEMBROKE (CP) — Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand said Tuesday he would not want any government limitation of foreign investment applied to economically-depressed regions of Canada.

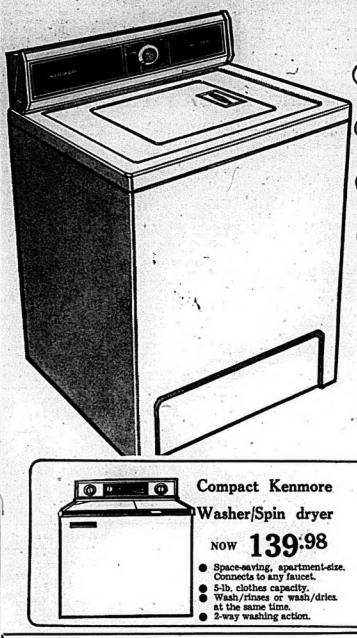
He told the Chamber of Commerce he is not opposed to regulation of foreign-owned business operations, but does not want to discourage any investment in areas such as Pembroke with high unemployment and slow growth rates.

PM Thinks Job Plan Vote Lure

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau suggested Tuesday that the Ontario government's winter make-work program should be regarded as a vote-catching promise in advance of the Oct. 21 Ontario election.

William Davis, Conservative premier of Ontario, announced a plan Friday to stimulate the economy and generate about 45,000 jobs through public works projects.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) asked the prime minister Tuesday whether his government plans a job-making program similar to the Davis program.



"We're not on the eve of an election," Mr. Trudeau replied.

Acheson Dies

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — Dean Gooderham Acheson, the former state secretary who was one of the architects of NATO and a long-time friend of Canada, died of a heart attack Tuesday night. He was 78.

Acheson's death came 18 years after the left the post he used to establish policies that still serve as the foundation of much of American diplomatic strategy. His policies to contain communism led to criticism from both left and right, and he was called the commissar of the cold war.

Are friends "shocked" when they enter your apartment?

Frequently static electricity will shock you into realizing that you have a low humidity problem.

Does your apartment suffer from unhealthy "Desert Dryness"?

When the air in an electrically heated apartment is low in humidity, it seeks out all available moisture. Your skin may become dry and cracked, your fingernails brittle. Furniture will dry out and often books fall apart from dried bindings.

For a healthy atmosphere, get to the heart of the problem, "THE LACK OF HUMIDITY".

The best way to prevent "desert dryness" is with a humidifier. An efficient room humidifier produces tiny water droplets that are absorbed by the dry air in your home, producing a healthier atmosphere and reducing the possibility of respiratory problems in your family.

Shoppers Drug Mart is currently featuring the DeVilbiss Humidifier at a low low price of $14.49. Reg. Floor Price $17.99 This model has many extras found only in high price humidifiers.

- large capacity 18 hour operation
- easy cleaning
- replaceable air filters
- durable construction
- 3200 RPM lifetime lubricated motor

Freeze Brings Malton Walkout

Malton Aircraft Workers Walk Out Over Pay Freeze

Nixon Ruling Behind Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Douglas Aircraft Co. of Canada Ltd., hit Wednesday by a strike of its 4,500 employees, says workers should get wage and benefit increases "consistent with the economic environment in Canada."

R. D. Richmond, company president, sent a letter to workers Wednesday indicating the company was ready to bargain on monetary issues.

The 4,500 workers left their jobs at noon Wednesday, charging the company would not make any monetary offers and was trying to impose United States President Richard Nixon's wage and price freeze on Canadian employees.

The firm makes wings for DC-9 and DC-10 aircraft of the U.S. parent company, McDonnell Douglas Corp., which along with other U.S. aerospace companies employing about 100,000 workers entered into bargaining with the United Auto Workers and International Association of Machinists last summer.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock has said a strike at the Douglas plant here would stop work at the company's U.S. assembly plants in southern California and eventually affect the jobs of 20,000 U.S. employees.

Bargaining in the U.S. reached a standstill after Mr. Nixon's announcement Aug. 15 of a freeze on wages and prices.

Shortly before bargaining got broke off Tuesday, Archie Wilson, chief negotiator for Local 1067, said the company was "using the Nixon freeze on the Canadian people."

The company blamed the suspension of negotiations on the Union and said it was ready to continue bargaining.

A union spokesman said later the company demanded discussion of such matters as union stewards, classifications, seniority and overtime before discussing money matters.

No wage and benefit offer had been made, he said.

Inquiry Critical

Officials Under Fire At Millhaven Prison

OTTAWA (CP) — A board of inquiry into last April's riot at Kingston Penitentiary is expected to hold some senior prison officials responsible for events later at Millhaven Penitentiary, it was learned Wednesday.

Currently eight guards have been committed to trial charged with common assault as a result of allegations by some prisoners that they were beaten when transferred to Millhaven after the riot.

An informed source says the board of inquiry will inculpate some superior officers as well in a report expected to go to Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer later this month.

Mr. Goyer, in appointing the board last spring, said its job would be to investigate the causes of the riot and assess responsibility for what happened before, during, and after the violent outbreak.

Charges of non-capital murder were placed against 17 prisoners in June for the fatal beating of two other prisoners during the period when Kingston was under convict control.

In July, charges of assault were placed against 11 guards as a result of the alleged aftermath at Millhaven, where most prisoners were transferred from Kingston's wrecked cell blocks. Eight guards have been committed to trial.

The board of inquiry interviewed most of the 500 prisoners, as well as guards and their superiors, it has been learned. However, the fact that charges were before the court apparently posed some problems for the board of inquiry.

The charges against the guards are unprecedented. The composition of the board of inquiry, with two of the three members from outside the prison service, also sets a precedent.

Normally boards are made up entirely of penitentiary service officials.

Four Dead, 12 Missing In Blast

LIMA (Reuter) — Four oil men were confirmed dead today, with 12 others missing and believed killed, after an explosion and fire wrecked a supply barge off the northern coast of Peru.

A gas leak was blamed for the explosion, which blasted the barge Wednesday night as it stood alongside a rig on an offshore field worked by the U.S. Terenco Co.

The Peruvian navy ministry said 54 men were aboard the rig. Thirty-eight survivors were picked up by rescue boats. Four bodies were recovered.

The dead included three Americans.

Survivors were taken to hospital in Tumbez, a few miles from the scene of the tragedy, near the border with Ecuador.

All the victims worked for Terenco.

Commandos Raid Cuban Village

MIAMI (AP) — A commando group in two boats attacked a small fishing village on Cuba's northeast coast Tuesday, killing at least two persons and injuring four, Havana radio said today.

The broadcast monitored in Miami said the night-time attack was carried out "from the north" and blamed it on "the government of the United States and its accomplices."

After the assault by what the radio said were heavy and middle calibre weapons, the two attacking crafts "departed toward the north," the broadcast said.

It described one of the boats as a "mother ship" and the other "a speed launch."

The broadcast indicated villagers and army patrols had fired back, but apparently there was no attempt at a landing

Roads Dynamited

Civil Rights Body Fills Huge Holes

BELFAST (CP) — Members of a civil rights group said today hey havet started filling in the huge craters British troops made with explosives Wednesday in minor roads leading to the Irish Republic's border.

The operation, aimed at blocking off about 200 unauthorized roads linking Northern Ireland with the republic, started early Wednesday as troops moved in with explosives and made craters about 10 feet deep.

The army has suspected for a long time that the Irish underground is using the roads to transport large amounts of arms, ammunition and explosives for the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

The army will be out later today to check if any of the holes have been filled in. An officer commented that if they had been, "we will just have to blow them up again."

A man died from gunshot wounds in the Roman Catholic Suffolk district of Belfast early today.

Ambulancemen found his body about an hour after British soldiers had opened fire at a civilian who threw a nail bomb at a military patrol in the same district.

But an army spokesman said: "It was too dark to see if anyone was hit. There is no official link-up between the two incidents."

Unemployment Soars

Jobless Number Falls But Seasonal Rate Up

OTTAWA (CP) — An estimated 434,000 were jobless in September compared with 455,000 in August and 308,000 in September last year, Statistics Canada reported today.

The estimated total was five per cent of the labor force of 8.62 million, down from 5.1 per cent in August.

The year-earlier rate was 4.7 per cent.

However, on a seasonally-adjusted basis—using figures that have been adjusted by the statisticians to show the underlying trend, apart from the effects of seasonal influences on working conditions in Canada—the unemployment rate last month shot up to 7.1 per cent, the highest since 1961. It was 6.8 per cent in September last year.

The statistics bureau said the underlying trend showed higher unemployment in both the under-25 and the 25-and-over age groups, and higher unemployment was more pronounced in the latter group.

Referring to the unadjusted figures, the bureau said the decline in the unemployment rate to five per cent from 5.1 in August was "a much smaller reduction than usual for this time of year."

There was an about-average decline in the number of people employed, as summer jobs disappeared, but fewer people left the labor force than usual in September. The August and September figures usually show the dramatic shift in the employment picture as students leave summer jobs and go back to scool.

The employment picture in brief, showing estimates in thousands, not adjusted for seasonality:

	Sept.	Aug.	Sept.
	1971	1971	1970
Labor force	8,622	8,972	8,304
Employed	8,188	8,517	7,996
Unemployed	434	455	308

Regionally, the unadjusted unemployment rate improved in the Atlantic provinces, Ontario, and the Prairies, but worsened in Quebec, rising to 6.8 per cent of the labor force from 6.7 per cent in August, and in British Columbia, rising to 5.5 per cent from 5.4.

The seasonally-adjusted figures, however, showed unemployment in the Atlantic provinces rising dramatically to 10.3 per cent from 9.4 in August and eight per cent last May. Quebec's rate rose to 9.3 per cent from 8.2 in August and 7.7 per cent last May.

The other regions all showed increases in the underlying trend of unemployment, though less dramatically. Ontario was up to 5.6 from five per cent in August, matching last May's figure.

Nixon Will Outline His Economic Plans

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon is expected to present Congress today with a full-face picture of the legislative authority he wants to back the second phase of his program to restore order to the U.S. economy.

After nearly a week of profile images of what he is seeking, and an end to a brief revolt by labor, Nixon is believed ready to send the House of Representatives a five-point package of his requirements.

These include legislation to support the wage and price control boards the administration wants to set up, another panel that would review wage-price disputes and money to run the operation.

Organized labor backed off from a showdown with the White House after Nixon gave a written pledge that he would respect the independence of the wage control boards on which labor will have five of the 15 seats.

Congressional sources said that apart from possibly insisting on direct curbs on interest rates, the House and Senate seem likely to give Nixon just about what he wants to back the administration's efforts to curb inflation and mounting prices and wages.

Royalty Visits Belleville

Children at Prince Charles School had a unique chance yesterday to study their theme for the next two weeks — wild animals. Their guests for the day were the king of beasts and his consort, Bess, posing regally. The pair are Royal Ethiopian lions, originally sent to Canada by Emperor Haile Selassie for exhibition at Expo 67 and now residents of Gananska Game Farm near Peterborough. For story see Page 2.

Candidates' Calendar

Candidates for the provincial riding of Quinte will be touring the Belleville and Trenton district at the following times and locations:

DR. R. T. POTTER, Progressive Conservative MP for Quinte, will be touring Belleville's industrial plants this afternoon, after which he will join Ontario Minister of Agriculture William Stewart at the 5 p.m. opening of the Quinte Fruit Growers Ltd. new apple packaging and storage warehouse in Trenton.

On Friday, he will be visiting in the Trenton area. From his afternoon meetings with Batawa shoe workers and employees at the Trenton Pyrotexax factory, Dr. Potter will be maintaining his downtown area, visiting with evening shoppers. Also in the evening, he will be present at the Trenton's Dundas Street committee room.

* * *

Liberal candidate GERALD WEAVER will spend most of today in Belleville. This afternoon, he will be in his Campbell Street committee rooms from 12 noon until 1 p.m. Between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m., he will attend a coffee party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Armstrong, 11 Marmora Street, Trenton.

Back to Belleville at 4 p.m., he will accompany Douglas Bell on an industrial tour. On Friday, he will interview his industrial tours, starting at American Optical at 10 a.m.. At 8 p.m., he will be the guest of honor at a coffee party being held at the 7 Vine Crescent Home of Mrs. Katherine Doherty.

* * *

Following today's teaching schedule, N D P candidate ALAN DEACON will speak to students at Belleville Collegiate Institute at 3.30 p.m. after which he will spend some time at his 411 Dundas Street West committee rooms.

Sometime after 4.30 p.m., he will be visiting Bayview Mall, unveil a full-length barn sign. At 6 p.m., Mr. Deacon will be donating a pint of his blood at Club Canara and will be campaigning in the area for the rest of the evening.

On Friday, he will be conducting his tours of door-to-door canvassing.

Consultants' Fees Come Under Fire

Fees paid by the city to first of Dennis and finds the consulting engineering Ltd. over the past five years came up for criticism at City council Tuesday.

Alderman Zoltan David, who on September 13 asked for a list of the payments to the engineering firm, said that the high charges were unwarranted, unjustified and highly inflationary.

The list of payments showed that the Toronto engineering firm since 1966 had been paid $334,536 by the city.

The payments covered design work and supervision for the three-phase construction in connection with the Dundas Street bridge and roadway, design work for the proposed Sidney Street overpass, and several other smaller studies.

The alderman observed that the work had been done on an open-end basis with fees and expenses for on-the-job supervision totalled and then doubled.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said the total of the payments to the engineering firm was "astounding" and noted that for the amount the city could have had quite an engineering staff.

In fairness, however, he admitted that the total cost of the various projects involved should have been included in the payments report.

But City Solicitor Wilbur Purcell came to the defence of the firm in question.

He said all accounts h a d been passed by city hall staff and assured that the city received full value for the money paid.

He said the 100 per cent on top of salary costs and on-the-job expenses was a "normal and legitimate" charge by consultants. The 100 per cent markup was to cover overhead and administration costs.

Mr. Purcell said it disturbed him to hear consultants criticized in council when they were not present to explain.

Lions' Visit Big Yawn

Men, the biggest meat eater among all animals on earth the world, has an instinctive dislike of his competitors — the other species that devour prey.

That's the theory two naturalists believe explains the accelerating depletion of the world's carnivores.

The meateaters are on the decline — many, such as the cheetah and the tiger — are facing extinction.

Charles and John Thrasher are doing their bit to preserve some of the fast disappearing carnivores at their Cavanarasta Game Farm 17 miles from Peterborough on Highway 115.

They are specializing in collecting and preserving only the most endangered, with the aim of ultimately housing all 258 species now living in the world.

Very few game farm operators and zoo directors share the brothers' love of carnivores and the Cavanarasta Farm may be unique on this continent.

They have a prime drawing card among their first acquisitions — a regal pair of lions from the Lair of the Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia.

David and Bess were stars of the Ethiopian Pavilion at Expo '67 in Montreal as cubs, and have been the property of the Thrasher brothers for about four years.

The Thrashers are taking their royal pair to schools this year to preach their doctrine of conservation of environmental care — and to instill some of their love of big cats into the children who will ultimately control their preservation or destruction.

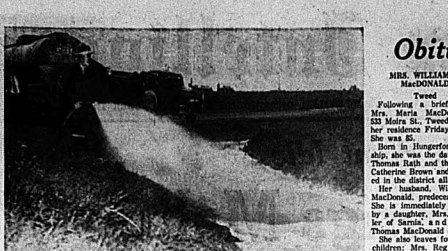
Many of the big cats and other carnivores breed in captivity and are relatively easy to come by — at least for Thrasher Brothers. They have a accommodation is something else again.

Chief problem the brothers face, says Charles, is the expense of enclosures. On their farm they house their animals in unrestricted roaming areas surrounded by moats for protection of visitors.

On tour, David and Bess travel in a large portable cage, larger than many zoo enclosures, where they sleep away the day.

As children at Prince Charles School learned yesterday when David and Bess were their guests, lions are nocturnal animals.

Yesterday, the pair yawned their way through the experience of being on exhibition, worn out from their previous night's roaming and roaring at their farm.



Male lions, the children learned, are lazy creatures, despite their ferocious look and leave most of the hunting and killing of prey to their consorts.

But there was some disappointment too. The pair refused to come through with a proper MGM lion roar.

Big cats, like their domestic relatives, are independent creatures who cannot be coaxed to perform on command.

Nitric Acid Spilled on 401

While police cordoned off a complete half-mile northern section of Highway 401 late yesterday afternoon, firefighters from Belleville and Thurlow Township Fire Departments poured thousands of gallons of water onto the road surface in a hurried attempt to dilute 1,500 gallons of highly potent, 100 per cent strength nitric acid which had spilled from the rear of a transport truck.

Driver Leonard Yull was transporting more than 3,000 pounds of the acid from Montreal to Toronto, when he spied white smoke or gas billowing from rear of his Armille Co. Ltd. truck. When firemen and Ontario Provincial Police arrived on the scene, just east of North Front Street overpass, stretches of the highway wetly glistened with the liquid acid.

Underneath the parked truck, police report the grass had already turned a bright orange as firemen began hosing down the road surface. Flames and smoke which were shooting up from an accumulation of the volatile material in a ditch next to the truck.

"They were turning every kind of color," OPP Constable Gary Roberts reported.

While firemen began hosing down the road, police were busy trying to contact any Belleville area firm which would supply a neutralizing agent.

Newsman Newsmaker

TRENTON (Staff) — What do you do when caught in the middle of a break and enter incident? Call the police, concluded one newsman this morning.

The Intelligencer's Trenton bureau reporter Ken Smith had dropped by his office in the Bank of Nova Scotia block shortly after 1 a.m., minutes before a prowler forced his way into the building through a skylight in an adjacent office.

The reporter heard doors of office suites along the hallway being tampered with and telephoned the police.

Constables Roger Dingman and Gary Davis were dispatched to the scene and entered the second storey office through a door at the end of a fire escape opened for them by Mr. Smith.

Preliminary police investigation revealed lights on in the Liberal Association offices and the open skylight. Immediately a small web of volunteers surrounded the King - Dundas - Division - Market St. blocks to check that no one could come down from the rooftops over which it was first thought the intruder had fled.

However thorough combing of the office suites revealed of the visitor hiding in the office of insurance adjuster William Norman.

Police report that during the incident a quantity of petty cash was removed from the Liberal Association office.

A lock had been forced on the Norman suite door and an attempt had been made to break into the CJBQ radio station on the 4th floor.

Police are holding Tim Intelligencer's Trenton bureau.

Charles Rogerson, 19, of Trenton has been charged with two counts of break and enter and one of attempted break and enter.

Proposed Legislation Described to Realtors

Provisions of the federal government's fair practices act have aroused concern on the part of real estate salesmen and brokers.

But they will not kill the real estate business, members of the Belleville and Trenton Real Estate Boards were assured Wednesday.

James Richardson, education administrator of the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards and a former registrar under the real estate and business brokers act, addressed the local board on implications of recent and pending legislation.

Real estate boards should be concerned, said Mr. Richardson, but not frightened, by proposed federal legislation on competitive practices. He termed the proposed competitive practices tribunal as "another bureaucracy" and outlined sections of the competition act that affect the real estate business.

If the act is passed, Mr. Richardson said, "it would appear to be a criminal offense for two persons to agree to fix commissions.

"The multiple listing service will no longer be the exclusive property of a real estate board," added Mr. Richardson.

Real estate boards might lose their right to refuse admission to persons not properly qualified to accept those not worthy of continuing membership, he said.

But real estate boards need not be unduly concerned about this section of the pending legislation because it may force some boards to take a second look at their operations and become "more effective, efficient and fair".

"Under the act, membership procedures must safeguard the individual all along the line," Mr. Richardson said.

Also of concern to the real estate business is the new unemployment insurance legislation that becomes effective Jan. 1, 1972.

Real estate salesmen are now eligible to pay unemployment insurance premiums and collect benefits, but "how do you arrive at the average earnings of salesmen on commissions?" he asked.

"In dealing with Ottawa, the right hand doesn't seem to know what the left hand is doing." Mr. Richardson observed.

"We're entering the welfare state," he said. "Those of us who are willing to work are concerned about the extent the government is willing to pay those who don't want to work, and the extent to which it is willing to allow them who do work to pay for those who don't."

Now before the provincial department of financial and commercial affairs are two briefs, one calling for setting up a compensation fund for repaying misappropriated funds, and another setting out mandatory educational requirements for licensed salesmen.

"No other profession that handles public money as a trust has had as good a record as the real estate business," said Mr. Richardson. "But you suffer as a result of some salesmen's carelessness and the money is not recoverable because of the meticulously low bond on real estate salesmen."

The $300,000 in real estate salesmen in Ontario pay each year in bond premiums should be contributed to a compensation fund, which would soon become self - sustaining through interest. This recommendation has been accepted by the minister of financial and commercial affairs, but has yet to go before the legislature.

Another brief recommends an introductory course of 20 lecture hours for all those entering the real estate field before they can apply for a licence. A continuing education program for licensed salesmen and brokers is also proposed.

"These courses will be instituted at community colleges where you people are," said Mr. Richardson.

"Real estate salesmen are involved in the most important business in the world, because you deal with two of this county's greatest resources: land and people," he concluded. "You are in the business of bringing land and people together."

Correction

Stopped-school-bus laws apply to highway zones marked with speeds of more than 35 miles per hour. Motorists encountering stationary buses with lights flashing in these zones, are required to stop in both oncoming and following lanes, except where a large median strip divides the highway and provides a sanctuary zone for children. In this situation, oncoming cars do not have to stop.

Although drivers are required to slow down, they do not have to stop for school buses in zones marked 35 mph or less, regardless of whether lights are flashing or not. It is only in the 35 mph or less zones that children are supposed to wait for the bus to draw away before crossing; and not in any highway situation, as incorrectly stated in our Oct. 12 edition.

VON's Expanding Task

The recent report in our news pages of the expanding work of the Victorian Order of Nurses was eloquent of the vital role this organization plays in the care of the sick and convalescent, and of the need for continued public support of that work.

Such an opportunity is afforded as United Appeal time comes around once again, the VON being one of the organizations to which public funds thus obtained are applied.

While amalgamation of the Belleville and Trenton VON has made for greater economy, as well as much wider territorial coverage, the organization's budgeting is tight. The fee of five dollars for a house call for instance is flexible and offsets only a percentage of the actual cost of the visit. Moreover, if a patient cannot pay, the VON assumes the cost.

But most significant is the fact that with amalgamation nurses are now travelling as far as Bancroft, as well as to Marmora and Deseronto and all parts of Prince Edward County.

All this widening of the VON's service stems from the Home Care Program initiated earlier in the year and the work load will increase still further with the opening of the convalescent home in the Queen's motor motel.

Obviously this means extra nursing staff will be required. As it is, the work load for the existing staff must be heavy, given the additional patients and the much wider territory being covered. It would be an unhappy, not to say ironic, situation if their health were to suffer as well through overwork. Their devotion to the needs of the sick and convalescent, in their homes, is performed without fanfare, and goes unnoticed for the most part by the general public. Without them our health services at large would be incomparably poorer.

TV Electioneering

The CBC is presenting a series of short television films relating to the Ontario election. They are in effect party propaganda for the opposing parties which of course is fine when all three are featured.

Was the CBC displaying its usual leftist bias, however, Tuesday night, when it led off with a piece about Stephen Lewis for the NDP, followed by Liberal leader Robert Nixon with film pointing to alleged government shortcomings, and finally a short bit for the PCs?

Or is it just that the CBC regards the NDP as the underdog in this election? Certainly, to hear Mr. Lewis talk there is no "underdog" philosophy in his campaign. But nor is there much meat in it either.

What the PCs have, which neither of the Opposition parties have, is experience, and plenty of it. And while no one and no party is perfect, the PCs would not have been returned to power on so many occasions if they were not a government which had performed well and produced the goods in Ontario.

House Guests

Assistant U.S. Secretary of Commerce Harold Scott, quoted elsewhere on this page, puts the current economic dilemma of his country rather well when he says: "We have too many house guests. The domestic prosperity of some countries, Canada included, is often based on U.S. sales . . . Canada has been building an economy dependent on the U.S. market. They are sharing in our market. It is a conscious decision. . ."

This seems like a good time for Canada to start expanding its markets outside the United States, for we are indeed dependent on our neighbor to a great extent. Now that the economic ships are turning we cannot complain if the U.S. decides it must take measures to protect its own interests.

Hitch-hikers

Why do some young people regard a lift in a car as a sort of divine right? It would not be so bad if they did not spoil it all by making rude gestures after you pass them by, as a young woman student did while attempting to thumb a ride from Wallbridge Road the other day. It rather makes you wonder what has happened to good manners these days, among both sexes. Hitch-hikers may have chances of a ride even less likely by this kind of behavior. Others do it by standing in places where it would be hazardous for any car to stop — but then that is another story.

'Restore Capital Punishment'—Alkenbrack

Parole: A Growing Menace in Our Permissive Society

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Within two days of the same week in two chambers of the same building, the Centre Block on Parliament Hill — in the Commons and the Senate — there was both Liberal and Conservative worry about increasing crime and decreasing punishment.

In their all but simultaneous concern with the inter-related problem, there was no prearrangement between the two chambers of Parliament.

It was just the routine of each, the Commons and the Senate going about their business — if not altogether in two different legislative worlds, at least in two largely independent parliamentary jurisdictions which traditionally keep a respectable distance from each other.

There was no synchronising of legislative watches, but there in the Senate they were considering a proposal to examine the parole system, and at the other end of the hugely rambling Commons' building, they were listening to a motion to restore capital punishment.

In the Senate, Windsor's Liberal Senator Keith Laird, proposing a special committee study and report on the parole system, was warning that "a great many Canadians are convinced it is altogether too lenient . . . that many crimes never would have been committed had the criminal concerned not been out on parole . . . and we can no longer be complacent about such things . . . we have to determine whether the system is responsible for the increasing criticism is justified."

In the Commons, Frontenac-Lennox and Addington's Conservative MP A. Douglas Alkenbrack, moving a motion that the Commons "call upon the Government to immediately restore capital punishment for the premeditated murder . . . murder," went on to build his case in the recent kidnap-death of a child, only two miles from Parliament Hill itself.

The killing, said Mr. Alkenbrack, was "just another horrible symptom of the permissive society . . . a perception of the license to murder attitude of an increasing number of criminals since the abolition of hanging four years ago coupled with the total, and indiscriminate power of the Cabinet to pardon."

Senator Laird's proposal was given a respectable hearing and discussion.

MP Alkenbrack's motion was knocked out overnight after he made it when two or three members of his own Conservative party, small "l" liberals who usually think and often vote alike with the Liberal caucus, vetoed it with shouted "no's" when unanimity was required for its acceptance.

In this same week, three different judges hammered the National Parole Board for overleniency.

In Edmonton, Judge C. P. Rolf sentenced Lucien Blais to seven years for armed robbery only two weeks after the man's release on parole for the identical crime.

In Montreal, Judge Edmond Roche sentenced Robert Beaudry, on parole, to a total 31 years for a series of 23 armed robberies, and Judge Andre Fabien drew public attention to the unusual fact that three of four bank robbers involved in a fatal shoot-out in which one died were all out on tickets-of-prison leave.

Judge Fabien, speaking, as he phrased it, "as a concerned citizen," condemned as "almost criminal," the ease with which convicted criminals are paroled and killers turned loose on society before serving out a third of their cuts, and cited, in terminated after 14 years.

Chairman of the nine-member National Parole Board is, T. G. Street, QC.

The RCMP — and probably your own police department, if you take the trouble to ask them — know the Parole Board Chairman familiarly if less than respectfully as "Easy Street."

The Parole Board is a little hesitant to get down to specifics, but recently when pressed came through with some "preliminary figures" determining what it called a "pilot study."

The Board explains it is only a "pilot study" since firm figures are "not easily available as we are in the midst of changing the method of collecting and analyzing the data".

Small wonder, perhaps, Douglas Alkenbrack, that the figures are "not easily available," since they seem to bear out much of the judicial condemnation — not to mention widespread concern generally — of the Parole Board.

Making a quick sampling of its files — presumably before the current changing of the methodology — the Board finds that in a four-year period between 1968 and Nov. of 1970 criminals paroled, 1,207 were returned to penitentiary on conviction of indictable offences.

In the first half of 1970, discloses the Board, 1,201 prisoners were paroled, and 266 came back to prison as repeaters. But the really interesting statistic is that between 1959 and '70, the rate of parole fell not far short of double.

There is a telling admission in a Board statement: "There is always a delay in releasing as lengthy a time to finish his sentence in the community under supervision is in existence. Sometimes the time to justify usefulness it is not. Most of the time it is and that is what makes the risk worthwhile." Except, to those who get held up, shot, assaulted, raped and outraged in a variety of ways, courtesy of "Easy Street."?

For the purpose, says Mr. Street, of prison and punishment is "not retributive" by social, but "corrective".

Maybe the Commons and Senate will have something more to say about an increasingly serious issue.

Canada's Dependence Scored

U.S. Has Too Many [Economic] House Guests Says Official

This is the first of two articles by AP business analyst John Cunniff giving the American viewpoint on Canada-U.S. trade relations. The first article states the U.S. position on the 10-per-cent surcharge on imports. The second article will list some of the U.S. suggestions for future trade relations.

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a "certain confusion in the public thinking" of Canadians in their criticism of the U.S. surcharge on imports, a high U.S. commerce department official says.

Harold B. Scott, assistant secretary of commerce, made the statement during an interview as he attempted to counter statements by Canadian officials that Canada should be exempted from the surcharge.

Canada, it has been argued, has a special relationship with the United States and had already demonstrated its willingness to help the American dollar by floating her currency.

"True, but given the market forces at work, it is a question of whether they could have held their dollar," said Scott. They were motivated partly by the desire to help, partly by market forces."

He added: "It is tempting to blame it all on us, but you have got to sort out the charges."

Canadians, he said, "have cause to claim a special relationship with the United States, and they have been successful in giving credence to this by being exempt from interest equalization taxes and other measures."

On the other hand, he continued, "Canada has developed an intense self-absorption, a preoccupation with the Canadian image as independent and distinct."

The two approaches "are to a degree contradictory," he said. "This is to me their problem at the moment and one they have to resolve."

Scott took pains to be precise and to put a constructive emphasis on his remarks.

"Our economies are made to order for each other," he said. "They are not conflicting economies. We ought to sit down and plan things out."

He carefully laid down commerce department thinking in regard to special exemptions for any country from the surcharge, which the U.S. government claims is a temporary device to force permanent corrections in what it feels is an unfair trade relationship.

"If we are not going to point the finger at anyone, we had to apply the surcharge to all with recognition that it would be unfair to some and more unfair to some than to others," he said.

Scott did not specify whether this meant that Canada was among those countries that might be treated unfairly, but he did construct a case that would indicate otherwise.

"Too many countries have been building the U.S. market into their own economy," he said. "We have too many house guests." The domestic prosperity of some countries, Canada included, he said, is often based on U.S. sales.

"Canada has been building an economy dependent on the U.S. market. They are sharing in our market. It is a conscious decision.

"Canada exports 22 per cent of her gross national product, which may be the highest percentage in the world. She has built an economy needing this degree of exports. They have consciously set about to build exports to achieve an economy of scale."

Two-thirds of Canadian exports come to the United States, he said.

To support his contention, Scott said that while U.S. exports to Canada equal only 4 per cent of all U.S. exports, they constitute only one per cent of the nation's GNP. Canada's $11 billion of exports to the United States, by contrast, amount to 15 per cent of her GNP, he said.

"Do they want a special relationship?" Scott asked. "Or do they want an independent course?"

Scott also said: "It is just not true that, as Canadians say," United States is indifferent to Canada. I will publish the facts belie this."

How can the United States be helped, he asked, to its biggest trading partner, its biggest foreign outlet for investment funds, and now "and in the future its most secure source of ports to Canada?"

Before the interview ended, Scott again said his remarks were made negatively but in the hope for mutually beneficial agreements with Canada's "very able negotiators."

While a common market with Canada is not feasible, he said, the two countries certainly can plan for mutual development of resources and industries.

Quebec View of the Davis Campaign

By Montreal Gazette

In his efforts to combat the challenge of the New Democratic since he took over from Robert Stanfield, Premier Davis has succeeded in blurring the image of the party he inherited. Under Davis's leadership, the Conservatives are being transformed in the public mind into an amorphous body prepared to adapt to any policies suggested of having popular support, regardless of whether they are remotest from the platforms of the NDP or the Liberals.

It may be understandable that Mr. Davis should try to employ every tactic to ensure that he stays in office. But allowing his eagerness to push him to the extreme of virtually effacing the Progressive Conservative label from most campaign promotion in favor of the title The Davis Party, is doing a disservice to the party and alienating a goodly segment of that traditional Conservative vote which has kept it in power in Ontario for nearly 30 years.

In trying to out-flank the NDP and the Liberals in what they conceive to be progressive thinking, Mr. Davis is unwittingly playing into the hands of his rivals. There are indications that the Ontario voter — understandably irritated with the arrogance of the Liberal government in Ottawa and the intellectual thunderings of principle by the federal New Democrats — would be prepared to settle once again for a straightforward conservative administration. This is not what Mr. Davis is offering.

The federal Conservatives made exactly the same mistake before the last general election and the Liberals by propounding philosophies such as the two-nations concept for Canada. This succeeded in earning the party the mistrust of many voters who for generations had considered the backbone of its support. The party has realized its mistake and is assiduously working its way back into public confidence. It is a safe bet that the national policy conference next month will result in the projection of a party which genuinely represents the principles of conservatism.

In the Ontario context, the opposition parties apparently are not deluding themselves that either can expect complete victory at the polls. Their aim is to reduce the Davis party's strength to a point where it might form a minority government with the balance of power in the hands of the NDP or the Liberals. This could be achieved by wresting only 10 seats from the Conservatives and would amount to a moral defeat for Mr. Davis. Everyone would find it extremely difficult to recover.

Instead of concentrating on mainstreeting, handshaking and trying to get across the security of a young, swinging Conservative premier a la Trudeau, Mr. Davis should be concentrating on explaining his program for providing a progressive ideal for his province. He has not made a single major policy speech since the provincial campaign commenced — a singular contrast to the tactics which brought such success to his predecessor. Covering the whole age in Ontario in 28 years does not mean that the party has a monopoly on the juveniles. Mr. Davis should spend the last three weeks of the campaign in trying to recapture the adult intelligence.

Ontario appears headed for public transportation improvements, regardless which party wins the provincial election. The three contending parties have pledged firm support for urban transit projects. All recognize it would be a mistake to place an unbedding private car travel at the expense of transit.

Bangers Banned

Strict Bylaw Controls Fireworks

Most people can remember setting off firecrackers under tin cans and watching them rise into the air. Strings of lady fingers crackled and popped, reproducing a sound enough like machine guns to bring joy to any little boy's heart.

For weeks previous to Victoria or Dominion Day, youngsters lined up at shop counters to purchase their noisemakers. Crouched down behind a hedge, with burning strings in hand, impish little men for decades have made shambles of little girls' tea parties, passing cars, various and sundry dogs and cats.

Well, no more!

Under Belleville's newly passed Fire Code Bylaw 9106, firecrackers have been outlawed and restrictions have been placed on the sale and use of all other fireworks.

The new bylaw restricts the display and sale of all fireworks except for one week previous to the two recognized holiday periods in which fireworks displays feature prominently. Permits must also be obtained to hold exhibitions at any other time of the year.

At the same time, storeowners are restricted from selling such items as roman candles, fiery loops and burning schoolhouses to anyone not over the age of 18 years.

Further restrictions have been placed on the type of boundaries for these displays. Fireworks have been banned from any part of an improved public highway and unless a special permit has been issued, fireworks in public parks will not be permitted.

As well, shopowners are not allowed to exhibit these wares in windows at any time and during the period sale of these items is allowed, a copy of the restricting bylaw must be posted on the premises.

Breaches of any provision of this new legislation shall constitute a fine of not more than $300, excluding court costs involved in the legal action.

The new bylaw was initiated to cut down on the number of fires and childhood injuries directly attributable to the misuse of fireworks. Statistics compiled over the years have linked most of such accidents to the explosive firecrackers most youngsters prefer over the more colorful kind.

Within the past year, three fires in Belleville were directly linked to misuse of firecrackers and the Belleville Fire Department reports at least two youngsters suffered injuries in similar accidents.

Fire Chief Leo Culhane cited one instance in which a youngster in Toronto picked up what he thought to be a non explodable firecracker. Although the wick had disappeared, the cracker still went off, with a "whoosh" of flame. That youngster has lost most of his eyesight in one eye as a result of picking up the unexploded noisemaker.

The chief said his department through its Fire Prevention Bureau, has attempted to get such a bylaw approved for some time. "Calls are always coming in complaining of the sale to underage kids and early displays in windows.

"You often see little kids, eight and nine years of age, with those firecrackers and that's bad business because they don't know what they are doing."

Chief Culhane laid most of these problems on the doorsteps of storeowners who want to cash in by selling fireworks to little children.

"They say they are now, they'll sell to anybody."

With approval of the new bylaw, Inspector Paul Sophenson, Fire Prevention Officer and other firemen, will be answering all infringement complaints which will begin to trickle in once the fireworks season arrives.

Candidates Face Audience of 100

BRIGHTON (Staff) — Russell Rowe, MPP for Northumberland, Tuesday defended the Conservative program of giving forgivable loans to industry.

Speaking in a face - the - people session here with Liberal candidate Glenn Cole and NDP candidate Art Cockerill, Mr. Rowe explained that these grants are not just handouts but that they are conditional that industries receiving them must hire a certain number of employees.

"Giving this money is the only way of drawing industry away from the Golden Horseshoe," he said, adding that he considered the forgivable loans an investment in the community.

Mr. Rowe said the province "more than gets the money back in income and business taxes."

Liberal Glenn Cole charged that the present government has put too much emphasis on industrial expansion while neglecting agriculture and the tourist trade in Northumberland.

"This province has lagged behind others in aid to farmers — we are losing markets and it is impossible for a young man to get a start in farming today," he said.

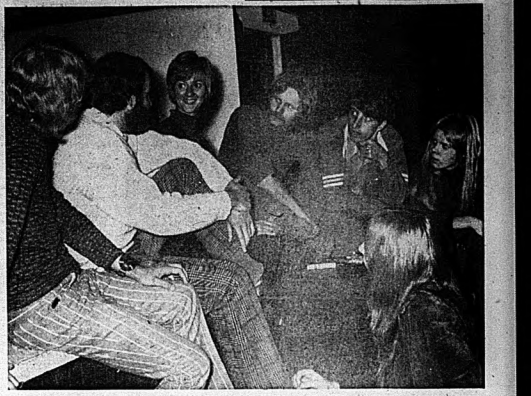
The NDP candidate enunciated his party's plan to give the farmer full collective bargaining rights which he called crucial to the future of agriculture.

Mr. Cole, when questioned on the Spadina Expressway question, replied that "Ontario must plan well ahead to avoid such messes as this . . . the most expensive hole in the world."

Cancellation of the Toronto highway scheme was defended by Mr. Rowe who called the decision an example of Bill Davis' "wisdom and intestinal fortitude."

Art Cockerill told the gathering at East Northumberland Secondary School that the average fine levied against industrial polluters in the last year has been less than $300. In one case, he said, a company was fined $1,000 one day and given a forgivable loan for $400,000 the next.

The Progressive Conservative candidate cited the abolition of fishing licences, release of the elderly from the burden of health and hospital coverage payments, the dead elm tree removal program and building of senior citizens and low income housing projects as examples of sound actions in his party's record.



He stated also that the Conservatives showed courage in their decision not to extend aid to the separate schools, saying "this was done to prevent a fragmentation of the educational system."

Questioned from the floor on the financing of election campaigns, Mr. Cockerill said he was spending $1,500 on his campaign, while the Liberal candidate said he couldn't tell at this stage how much he would spend but he would make a public disclosure of the amount when the election is over.

Russell Rowe, on the same subject, stated that he did "not want to know where his campaign funds were coming from" because he did not want to feel obligated to contributors.

One topic that drew considerable attention from the audience of 100 was the centralization taking place in the schools of Murray Township.

"Our schools are being shut down while they build a thing called a pod on one of the others," said a woman in the audience. She was referring to the decision to close small school houses and expand Murray Centennial School with an open classroom addition.

Successful Living

Involvement of Unmarried Fathers

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Here in Winnipeg we have found that the involvement of the unmarried father along with the unmarried mother has led to healthier decisions as to whether to keep the baby or relinquish and has helped both people to grow some emotionally through the experience.

The unmarried father has shown himself in general, not to be the exploiter of the girl, not to be involved in casual affairs, not to be the reluctant marriage partner. He tends to be very similar to the unmarried mother in age, eduction, and social status.

In 75 per cent of 225 cases handled in the past 10 months we have found the relationship between the boy and girl to be in excess of three months. The boy is a very important person to the mother. His girl friend is going to give birth to his child and without be assume his responsibility be it financial or moral, depending upon his circumstances.

The gratifying results we have seen, have been girls who have been really fantasizing about marrying their boy friends, getting honey moonwers and hence making sound decisions. And for the boys, what help have they received? Well, if you can imagine an unmarried father, denying responsibility and then eventually participating in a group discussion at a maternity home with about 12 unmarried mothers, exploring the area of sexual responsibility — then you have seen some emotional growth and maturity — J. Schnoor, Master of Social Work, Children's Aid Society of Winnipeg

Dear Mr. Schnoor: Thank you. I am interested, too, in your later comment that the unmarried father is not usually the person who is reluctant to marry — but often is the unmarried mother who chooses not to marry.

Perhaps we are putting important distance between us and those days when the shotgun wedding was the only solution. The folly of hitching up two young parents totally unsuited to each other, for the sole purpose of giving a baby a name and some social status, simply cannot be over estimated.

You are helping the young people to look at their situation clearly and make decisions they can live with. More power to you!

A Mild Chili Con Carne; One That Most Children Like

By MARY MOORE

When a mother (or father) of 6 children does the weekly grocery shopping she (he) has to plan for the seven dinners that have to be prepared and served and select the meat to be used therein.

Nearly every shopping cart contains a package of hamburg or ground chuck. One of the good ways of making it stretch for eight hungry mouths is Chili Con Carne for it calls for beans which are a protein vegetable which add to the nutrition.

Because most children do not like it "hot" I have made it mild for them but have added a paragraph giving directions for making it "mexican" for hot chili lovers.

CHILI CON CARNE
(mild and Mexican—serves 8)

1 lb. dry red kidney beans (or two 20-oz. cans)
1½ lbs. ground chuck beef
1 bay leaf
1 onion chopped (or ¼ cup bottled flakes)
2½ cups peeled and chopped tomatoes (or one 28-oz. can)
3 tsps. salt
3 tsps. (or more) chili powder
2 tsps. paprika
¼ to ½ tsp. cayenne pepper (optional see below)
½ tsp. garlic powder (optional see below)

In large pot soak the beans in 6 cups cold water 6 hrs. or overnight. Add enough water to cover by 1" above beans, bring to boil, reduce heat to simmer and cook covered 1 hr.

In very large frying pan or heavy kettle saute meat, bay leaf and onions, stirring and chopping constantly until fat is rendered out of chuck and meat is seared. No other fat is required. Add tomatoes, salt, chili powder and paprika and stir until boiling. Simmer at least ½ hr. — but preferably longer. Drain beans and measure the drained liquid. Make it up to 2½ cups. Add beans and liquid to pan or pot and gently stir until boiling and simmer a few minutes longer. If canned beans are used add as you would cooked beans including liquid in cans plus 1 additional cup of water. Taste to see if seasonings should be increased for your taste. Serve in large soup bowls with toast — preferably toasted rye — and cole slaw.

A VARIATION:

Mexican Chili Con Carne: Add to above the cayenne pepper and garlic powder and taste it. Add more cayenne pepper if it is not enough to please you.

Many Styles Shown at Luncheon Fashion Show

A trail blazer on the social scene in Belleville was the luncheon fashion show held by the Xi Zeta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority at the Four Seasons Hotel on Wednesday afternoon. Several veteran fashion-show goers remarked that it was the first show of the kind they had attended here.

The large assortment of fashions ranging from carefree cruisewear to the most sophisticated evening gowns provided by Rachaal's Ladies Wear were shown off to advantage by Jody Hahn, Bev Deacon and Jean Desmond of Belleville and by Laila Rava, Tony Stoneman and Ina Aru of Toronto. Piano music played by Jane Lewis and a running commentary by Margery Midlane contributed to the pleasing effect.

Winter coats ranged from those noteworthy for their classic elegance to those appealing to the more fad-conscious shopper. A large number of capes made their appearance. Particularly eye-catching was a wrapted plum colored outfit that combined a coat look and a cape effect and also featured a hood trimmed with fake fur. The hood and cape could be detached to reveal a classic coat finished with a black leather belt. A floor length imported Tweed cape reflecting the golds and browns of autumn had a contrasting raccoon collar.

In the 'classic' coat category was a black double breasted one with contrasting gold buttons, extremely dramatic in its stark simplicity; also a black and white diagonal striped coat with a leather belt that achieved a look of simple elegance by its absence of fussy detail.

For those with a busy social season to look forward to, a number of party looks ranging from the strictly formal evening gowns to the more informal cocktail dresses were shown. A patio gown featuring a layer look had a white bodice and a printed wrap-around maxi skirt that peeled off to reveal matching hot pants. The outfit was topped by a matching printed jacket. Two hostess gowns with self-colored bodices and ruffled maxi skirts printed in a sunburst of bright colors were modelled.

A demure floor length dress with a bright strawberry pink bodice and a contrasting navy trim on the V neckline flowed into a navy A-line skirt with pink trimming. The commentator remarked that this could be classified as "informal formal" wear. Another evening look was a snow-white hostess gown with fluid, graceful lines reminiscent of the attire of classical Greece, with a productively slit skirt balanced by a demure cowl collar.

Of particular interest were a number of blazer looks, translated into glamorous evening wear. A sophisticated charcoal grey dinner suit flecked with gleaming silver consisted of a blazer and matching maxi skirt. The blazer look appeared again, ready for a dinner dance or any formal occasion in a two-piece version with a white blazer topping a black, high collared gown.

A Spanish look gown sported ruffles, a high red cummerbund, a provocatively plunging neckline and a full, bouncing billowing skirt, suggestive of flamenco dancers and clicking castanets. An ultra sophisticated ball gown with gleaming rhinestone straps and matching rhinestone trim on the bodice was modelled, also a rich chocolate brown cocktail dress with a bouffant skirt.

A number of daytime dress-pant suits and a few negligee sets were also shown.

The convener of the event was Barbara Pringle. Hairstyles by Rodney, make up by Elaine Lauder and jewellery by Avon contributed to the show. Proceeds from the show will go to the department of psychiatry, Belleville General Hospital.

After the Fashion Show

Models Judy Hahn, Tony Stoneham, Bev. Deacon, Laila Rava, Jean Desmond and Ina Aru discuss audience reaction with the commentator Margery Midlane (seated) after the luncheon fashion show held by the XI Betas Zeta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority on Wednesday afternoon at Four Seasons Hotel. Proceeds will go to the department of psychiatry, Belleville General Hospital.

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD PAUL COONEY

Cooney – Pascoe

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was the setting for the October wedding when Mary Elissbeth Cheyanne Pascoe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon D. Pascoe, Shannonville RR1, became the bride of Howard Paul Cooney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cooney of Belleville. Father J. McGillivray officiated and wedding music was provided by Miss Dorothy Grant at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown in crystal peau featuring a high neckline, full bishop sleeves and empire waistline. A panel of Swiss lace adorned the front of the gown and matching lace accented the neck and sleeves. The back was highlighted with a chapel train extending from the waistline and accented with a self bow. A wedding ring headdress of matching lace held a tiered shoulder length veil and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses and daisies.

Mrs. Brian Cooney, sister-in-law of the bridegroom wore a floor length gown of crepe consisting of flattered plum colored skirt and a plum, mauve and gold patterned bodice and accented at the waist with a wide plum colored cummerbund. She carried a large yellow 'mum and wore tiny matching 'mums in her hair.

Bridesmaids Miss Mary Thissen and Miss Linda Waters, both of Kingston and Mrs. Russ Morgan of Toronto were attendants to the maid of honor. Flower girls were Sandra Jane and Trudy McFarlane, cousins of the bride, were floor length short sleeved gowns of crepe in the same shades of plum, mauve and gold. A plum bebek enhanced the high waistline. They carried bridal baskets of mauve, yellow and white 'mums with matching yellow 'mums in their hair.

Brian Cooney attended his brother, while the ushers were Larry and Randy Pascoe, brothers of the bride and Russ Morgan of Toronto. Ushers were Eddie Pascoe and David Cooney, brothers of the bride and bridegroom respectively.

A dinner following the ceremony was held in the Melrose church hall followed by a reception and dance in the Melrose Town Hall where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a pale blue shantung dress and coat ensemble with the dress featuring a jewelled collar and a matching blue velvet bow in her hair. Her accessories were beige and blue and she wore a corsage of yellow and blu 'mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a mauve sheer sleeved shantung dress and sleeveless coat ensemble with beading accenting the collar and cuffs. Tiny mauve bows were in her hair and her accessories were mauve and beige with a corsage of mauve and yellow 'mums.

For the wedding trip to points west, the bride chose an orange pant suit with brown accessories with a corsage of rust and gold 'mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooney will reside in Belleville.

Home And School News

EARL PRENTICE SCHOOL

MARMORA — The Marmora Home and School Association met at the Earl Prentice School on Thursday evening with a fair attendance. The president, Mrs. Ronald Thines, wiecomed the new members.

Principal, Ken Gillies, introduced the staff of the Earl Prentice and Senior Schools, including the secretaries and custodians, and outlined their duties. He also gave a brief outline of his own position as principal and the areas that he is responsible for.

During a question period, some parents indicated that discipline on school buses is still very much a problem. Mr. Gillies explained some of the difficulties in dealing with the situation when secondary, separate and elementary children are all picked up by the same buses.

Mr. Gillies suggested that possibly at some future time, it may be necessary to give each child a bus permit which would be withdrawn if their behavior warrants it. This method is being used in some of the metropolitan areas, he said.

Jack Murphy and Carl Pitman indicated they would be willing to teach a mathematics course for parents, if there is a sufficient number interested. A course such as this could be a real help to parents with children in Grades 7 and 8 especially. The lessons would probably start at four o'clock for one hour sessions and would run for about ten weeks. Anyone interested in attending such a course is asked to call 472-5722 so that a list may be compiled.

Coffee and doughnuts were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Friends Honor Bride-to-Be

MINTO — Mrs. Joe Foresell with Mrs. Bill Burgess and Mrs. Bob Cooney as co-hostesses entertained approximately 50 neighbors and relatives in honor of Miss Jane Clements, a November bride-to-be. Mrs. Foresell expressed congratulations and best wishes to Jane on behalf of all present.

Mrs. Burgess conducted several interesting contests following which the hostesses presented Jane with a complete service of Versille crystal for which the bride thanked everyone especially those who were responsible in any way and invited all to visit them in their new home in Chelmsford on a date which was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Installation for OES Officers

MARMORA — A colorful ceremony marked the installation of officers of the Marmora Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, which took place recently in St. Andrew's Church Hall.

Worthy Matron, Mrs. Mae Smith, led in the opening ceremony and introduced the following distinguished guests: Mrs. Edna Dobbs, Grand Conductress of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, Mrs. Pauline Cleary, District Deputy Grand Matron of District 12, Mrs. Marion Heath, Past District Deputy Grand Matron. In addition, several presiding matrons and a number of past matrons and patrons from other chapters were introduced.

After the business, there was a presentation of gifts to Mrs. Mae Simmons, Worthy Matron, and Mr. Sid Bandham, Worthy Patron, from the Chapter and the Star Points.

Led by the installing Matron, Mrs. Hazel Mumby, the Installing Board and their assistants were asked to take chairs in the East. The floral ceremony was performed by Mrs. Hazel Mumby and soloist was Mrs. Verna Woodbeck.

Each member of the group was presented with an unusual corsage — a daisy white [illegible] was backed by a fan made from a [illegible] Glover and Mrs. Helen Maynes pinned these on but members were asked later to donate them to the Chapter's favorite charity. The corsages were made by Mrs. Mary Lavender.

The new officers installed were: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Merle Rathwell; Worthy Patron, Mr. William Barlow, P.P.; Associate Matron, Mrs. Grace Warren; Associate Patron, Mr. Jack Solmes; secretary, Mrs. Gertrude Bateman; treasurer, Mrs. Laura Barlow; conductress, Mrs. Verna Woodbeck; associate conductress, Mrs. Marion Frest, P.M.; chaplain, Mrs. Jennie Neal; marshal, Mrs. Enid Fluke; organist, Mrs. Helen Bell, P.M.; Adah, Mrs. Mae Simmons, P.M.; Ruth, Mrs. Mary Hickey, P.M.; Esther, Miss Phyllis Hickey; Martha, Mrs. Mae Clarke, P.M.; Electra, Mrs. Carol Solmes; warder, Mrs. Audrey Hewitt, P.M., and sentinel, Mr. Hiram Mumby.

During the installation of the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Verna Woodbeck sang a solo. A solo was also sung by Mrs. Grace Gray, Mrs. Peggy Grant and their assistants, completed the evening.

Conference To Be Held in Belleville

An area conference for IODE chapters in this district is planned to be held at the Belleville Shrine Club on Tuesday October 19 and is sponsored by the chapters in Belleville, Picton, Stirling, Campbellford, Marmora and Norwood.

The co-ordination provincial councillor is Miss Rosa Sipl of Stirling and the St. Julien Chapter is the hostess with Mrs. C. R. Whittemore, Regent, in charge of arrangements. Provincial officers attending will be Mrs. H. S. McMillan, 2nd vice-president, Toronto; Mrs. M. C. Dorsey, provincial treasurer, Hamilton; Mrs. R. J. Currie, Echoes secretary, London and Mrs. Keith McGregor, Victoria League convener, St. Thomas.

This event will be known as Project '71, a plan undertaken by the Provincial Chapter of Ontario, whereby every chapter in the province will be visited by a team of officers of the Provincial executive committee. The National Chapter of Canada designated the first week of October as IODE week across Canada. The idea of this series of provincial conferences grew from the regional dinners which have been held in this area for a number of years. These will provide an opportunity for those members who are unable to attend the provincial annual meetings to get together, exchange ideas and have discussions with the various officers.

Members are urged to invite friends and neighbors to attend as these are open meetings where the work of the local chapters will be made known as well as the combined efforts of the IODE chapters provincially and nationally.

Ann Landers

Dad Over-protective

Dear Ann Landers: We have three teen-age sons and I need help. This problem involves our No. 1 son. He is 18 and has been driving the car for 18 months. This boy has received seven traffic tickets for moving violations. Two involved damage to our car and another vehicle, but no injuries were involved. On one occasion we were not aware of the violation until we received notification that the boy did not appear in court on a particular date. When we told him, he said he had forgotten about it.

Because of my husband's "connections," none of the offences resulted in convictions. My husband justifies the fixing by saying our insurance rates would soar if the boy were found guilty. In each instance he was severely reprimanded by his father, grounded for a brief period and not permitted to drive either of the cars. He accepted the punishment without complaint.

I have always opposed my husband's protecting the boy, but I was over-ruled. I see signs in our two younger sons that they expect their dad to cover for them as he did for their older brother. What do you say?—Miserly Voice

Dear Mis: Fathers who "protect" their sons in this way do them no favor. I abhor such shenanigans. Had the boy been allowed to take his lumps the firstime, I can promise you he would not have had six additional arrests. There are worse things than high insurance rates—and one of these days your husband might find out what they are.

Dear Ann Landers: The world is changing and it's about time. Just because certain customs have prevailed for centuries is no reason they should be continued. One of the traditions which should be abolished is the nonense that the parents of the bride should pay for the wedding. This is unfair and illogical. Why should the parents of the bride be stuck for the total bill when the groom's family invites the same number of relatives and friends, and they get just as drunk and eat just as much.

The bride's parents have plenty of grief just making the arrangements. By the time the kids are married the bride's family is barely speaking to the groom's side. There is trouble over the bridesmaids' dresses. The groom's sister doesn't look so good in yellow. His cousin doesn't want to walk behind Louise because he is tall. His sister is allergic to flowers, etc.

For all this aggravation, the bride's father has to pay a huge bill. If the expenses were shared it would reduce nervous disorders, hypertension, ulcers, colitis, cardiac arrest, as well as bankruptcy. Who needs it?—Lamenting In Long Island

Dear Lammy: This is one tradition that will be with us a long time for the simple reason that lots of folks who have girls wouldn't have it any other way. (Me, for one.)

Dear Ann Landers: I realize you are not a beauty counselor but I have the feeling you can help me. I'm a male who will be needing eyeglasses soon. This might sound dumb, but what shape would be best for me? My mother has her idea, my sister has her idea, and my girl has still another idea. I'm enclosing my picture. What's your idea?—Need Longer Arms

Dear N.L.A.: This is plenty out of my line, but your question is so easy I can't resist it. Your face is round, so I suggest square frames. A shape that contrasts with the face is more interesting.

Indian Asks For Mediator

EDMONTON (CP) — "If we have to close every damn Indians affairs office in this province, we will do so," Harold Cardinal, president of the Indian Association of Alberta, said Tuesday.

He was participating in a students' union-sponsored forum on native education at the University of Alberta.

Mr. Cardinal said the political confrontation with Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien over conditions on reserves has "reached such a degree that it seems impossible for the minister to sit with us anymore."

The time has come" for the federal government to appoint a mediator to reach a satisfactory solution to the problem as quickly as possible, Mr. Cardinal said.

"If the federal government does not act, and if we can't get the support of the Alberta government and the Canadian people, then our leadership will continue to escalate our actions — even if it means every one of our leadership has to go behind bars."

Report in Britain

Smoking Called Biggest Killer

LONDON (AP) — A British government report published today says smoking is the biggest single, avoidable killer in Britain and accounts "at a conservative estimate" for one of every four deaths among men between the ages of 45 and 64.

Th government w a r n i n g, made in Health Minister Sir George Godber's annual report, was underscored by an, inde- p e n d e n t organization which named tobacco addiction as a bigger menace to life and health than alcohol or cocaine.

"This is still predominantly a s m o k i n g community, giving every incentive to children and adolescents to follow the foolish examples of their elders," Godber said.

He said public opinion eventually must force cigarette addicts to indulge their habit only in private or with other consenting adults.

Godber's report said smoking caused one in eight deaths among men between 45 and 64, one in four in the 45-64 age bracket and one in five of those between 65 and 74. The report said these estimates were on the conservative side.

Smoking, he said, showed its effects in lung cancer, bronchitis and coronary heart disease, helping keep the life expectancy of the British male at 69.1 years, one of the lowest of the Western world.

Cadillac Plans Shopping Plazas

TORONTO (CP) — Cadillac Development Corp. Ltd. of Toronto says it will develop 10 shopping centres in Ontario valued at $60 million in the next three years.

A $25-million Hamilton regional centre will contain three department stores.

A. E. Diamond, Cadillac president, says zoning and redevelopment have been complete, but he wouldn't say when construction would begin.

Other projects include three in Toronto, two in Ottawa, and one each in Richmond Hill, Thunder Bay and Oshawa.

Ontario County Wins

JARVIS, Ont. (CP) — Ontario County won the inter-county competition Wednesday at the annual International Ploughing Match.

The winning county was represented by Doug Dunkeld and Bruce Pearse, both of Claremont, in the competition open to ploughmen between 14 and 21 years of age.

Competition at the site, about 20 miles south of Brantford, continues today and events include the Canadian Championship Ploughing Contest, open to not more than two competitors from each province.

ST. OLA — Keith Belton is enjoying a week's vacation at his home in St. Ola before resuming his duties as a hardwood lumber inspector in Northern Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Longmuir visited this week with Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher at their cottage on Lime Lake near Napanee.

Mr and Mrs. Bob Alton have taken up permanent residence in St. Ola having sold their home in Toronto.

Pakistani Murdered

DACCA (AP) — East Pakistan's former governor, Abdul Monem Khan, died today at Dacca Medical College Hospital after he was shot by gunmen believed to be Bengali guerrillas.

His murder caused concern among rightest parties here.

A hospital source said Monen Khan had been shot in the stomach Wednesday night at his residence.

Great Lakes Anti-pollution Plans Hit Snag

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations between the United States and Canada on a program to clean up pollution on the Great Lakes have hit a snag and agreement is not likely before next year, it was learned Wednesday.

Originally, it was expected agreement would be ready for signature this autumn. Tentative plans had been made for President Nixon and Prime Minister Trudeau to sign the accord.

An informed source said both sides "are still working for the end of the year." However, he admitted that complications have arisen that could make it difficult to meet this target.

One was the U.S. decision some weeks ago to abandon the use of NTA—nitrilotriacetic acid —as a substitute for phosphates in detergents, on grounds it is a health hazard.

An annex to a draft agreement worked out by officials of the two countries calls for gradual elimination of such detergent phosphate, blamed for much of the heavy pollution in the lower lakes especially Lake Erie.

An accommodation is needed because Canada, which is maintaining its own anti-phosphate program, still encourages the use of NTA as a substitute.

Federal scientists do not consider the substance sufficiently toxic to represent a danger to health.

Another possible complicating factor was said to be the present U.S. economic situation. Congress may not be disposed to vote large sums for a cleanup program at a time when the administration is taking drastic steps at home and abroad to put the U.S. economic house in order, it was suggested.

The program is expected to cost hundreds of millions of dollars, with the U.S. footing the largest share of the bill because most of the pollution is on its side of the lakes.

Most of the money would go into municipal sewage treatment facilities, designed to achieve water quality standards recommended by the International Joint Commission by 1975.

Another informant said there has been "some suggestion" that the agreement should be held over for signing by Mr. Nixon and Mr. Trudeau when the president visits Ottawa next spring.

Agreement to conduct a cleanup program was reached at a Canada-U.S. ministerial meeting in Washington June 10, and Jack Davis, minister of environmental affairs, told the Commons next day the expectation was that it could be ready for signature "in the early autumn."

Asked whether the delay could be attributed to the present unsettled relations between the two countries, an Ottawa official replied: "Oh, gee, I don't think it would be that."

Professors Approve Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Professors from the University of Quebec's Montreal campus ratified their union executive's strike call at a day-long meeting here Wednesday.

Picketing of all the university's buildings, spread throughout downtown Montreal, started late in the afternoon.

Eighty-three per cent of the 325 professors at the meeting voted for the strike, called Tuesday night after the executive rejected the administration's last-minute offer in the lengthy contract dispute.

The professors, seeking their first collective agreement, want job security, a lighter workload and annual reviews of professors by their peers.

VOLUME GROWS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Transit Commission continues to show a passenger increase despite a general decline in many United States cities. J. H. Kearn, general manager of operations, told the commission that passengers had dropped by 5.9 per cent in May in transit systems in the United States. In the same month TTC showed an increase of 1.5 per cent.

Roch Dunk, spokesman for the Syndicat des Professeurs de l'Universite du Quebec, said salary clauses in the contract place a distant second in the professors demands.

Up to now the professors have negotiated their salaries individually.

Oak Island Treasure Hunt

A group of determined businessmen believe they are coming to the end of a long search and when it's over they hope Oak Island, in Mahone Bay 45 miles west of Halifax, will have secrets no longer. At least six men have died trying to discover Oak Island's secret. Photo shows a mining crew using their drill to sink a 26-inch diameter shaft in an area where core drilling shows promise. This shaft, when cased, will be big enough to lower a man through for further exploratory work. (CP Photo)

Eskimos Able To Broadcast By Telephone

OTTAWA (CP) — Beginning next month, Eskimos in the Keewatin settlement of Rankin Inlet will be able to pick up their telephones, dial O and broadcast a radio message to the entire settlement.

The experiment in Arctic communications, the idea of Bell Canada researcher K. P. (Paddy) Gardiner of Ottawa, has the backing of the Northwest Territories government, the communications department and the CBC.

Mr. Gardiner, in an interview Wednesday, said he has no idea of how the Eskimos will use the facility.

"It could be a great flop," he admits.

But he hopes it will be a stage for discussions of community problems and entertainment and provide a flow of information to the 600 residents of Rankin.

Because the experiment uses a radio frequency, a licence is needed from the Canadian Radio-Television Commission. This is expected to be issued when the CRTC meets in Regina Oct. 18.

Persons who want to keep their telephone conversations private will be able to do so as before.

But those who want to take part in a community conversation merely dial O and they are on the air. Anybody who wants to hear the conversations merely tunes in as they would a radio station.

Four persons can dial into the system at one time, leaving six other lines open for regular telephone traffic.

Parents Demanding Safety in Clothing

TORONTO (CP) — Fire tragedies have united three sets of Toronto parents in a common cause—they want safety standards mandatory in children's clothing.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Purcell's four-year-old daughter Heather was in surgery for the fifth time in nine weeks Wednesday. Today Mr. and Mrs. George Bell will be told if their two-year-old son, Georgie, needs more surgery. He has been operated on twice in the last six weeks.

Both were burned when their pajamas caught fire in separate incidents in August. Heather suffered first- and second-degree burns over 40 per cent of her body while Georgie had second- and third-degree burns, mostly over his chest and stomach.

The two couples have been joined by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gowland, whose daughter, Jane, 4, died four years ago when her cotton dress brushed against a hot stove.

Allan J. Greve, assistant executive director of Scarborough General Hospital, has helped them take their cause to the department of consumer and corporate affairs, and the minister, Ron Basford.

War Measures Act Atmosphere Remains

MONTREAL (CP) — Trevor Berry, a former defensive halfback for the Saskatchewan Roughriders, said in an interview Wednesday that the atmosphere of the War Measures Act still covers Quebec.

Mr. Berry, now working for the Manitoba Civil Liberties Union, is a member of the citizens' commission of inquiry into the War Measures Act, invoked last Oct. 16 in response to the Quebec kidnapping crisis.

The commission winds up a three-day series of public and private hearings in Montreal today.

With three other commissioners from English Canada and five from Quebec, Mr. Berry has listened to a wide variety of testimony from labor groups, politicians, lawyers and private individuals.

"I think it's fairly important to have English-Canadians on the committee." Mr. Berry said, terming the commission "the start of the rise in consciousness across Canada of Quebec."

"Canadians are not aware of the state of civil liberties in this country."

Ont civil rights group, the Human Rights League, has received both criticism and praise from witnesses before the commission.

Jean-Luc Arene, who was imprisoned during last October's crisis, had nothing but praise for the group.

Mr. Arene said that for his first two weeks in jail he was not allowed to bathe and could not communicate with people on the outside.

"But a man from the league got me a pencil and paper and access to showers. After two weeks in prison, something like that assumes great proportions," Mr. Arene said.

Earlier Wednesday, labor leader Michel Chartrand, describing his period in jail said, "I saw some representatives from the Human Rights League."

"They wanted to know if I needed any soap or candles. I told them I didn't need anything. I sleep and I eat. But what are you doing about all these people here?

"And they said they couldn't deal with that, they just wanted to make sure we were being treated all right," said Mr. Chartrand, head of the Montreal council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Fernand Foley, also of the Central Council of the CNTU, said the league did not participate in moves with labor groups to press for the release of people arrested under the act.

Florent Audette and Andre Gravel, both officials of the Montreal Construction Union, told the commission that they believe police detained them during the October crisis because of their union activities and their opposition to Mayor Jean Drapeau during the last municipal elections, in which Mayor Drapeau captured all 52 city council seats.

Mr. Audette was held for eight days before being released without charge.

Despite his wife's efforts to find out what had happened, he did not see a lawyer during this period.

Mr. Audette, who has five children, the oldest of whom was seven at the time, said, "most of my family was frightened for months afterwards."

Mr. Gravel, an election candidate representing the opposition Front d'Action Politique, was picked up by police two days before the Montreal election Oct. 25.

"Although I was only held for a few hours," Mr Gravel said, "my whole political campaign was jeopardized."

Nat Aronoff, a former city councillor, said that Mayor Drapeau's pre-election prophesy that "the streets of Montreal will run with blood" was irresponsible and untrue.

While testimony was being given Wednesday evening, commissioner Alexno Leblanc approached two large, well-dressed men sitting in the back of the audience.

They explained that they were police officers sent to observe the hearings and to report to their superiors about any cases where individuals were deprived of their rights during the crisis.

After Mr. Leblanc said he would have to announce their presence to the assembly, they left.

"The police have been invited to these sessions like everybody else," Mr. Leblanc said. "But we would like them to be open about their participation."

Napanee Beats Collegians by Air

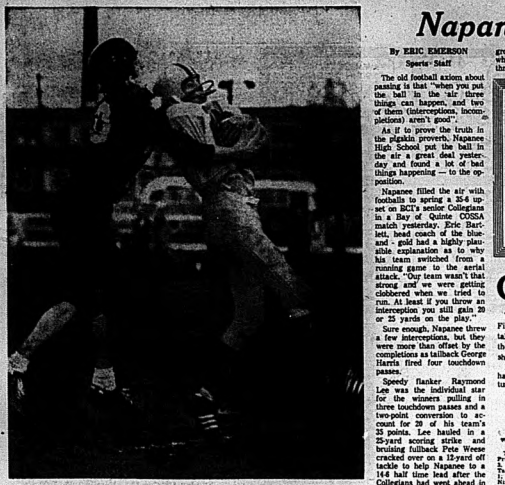
By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

The old football axiom about passing is that "when you put the ball in the air three things can happen, and two of them (interceptions, incompletions) aren't good".

As if to prove the truth in the pigskin proverb, Napanee High School put the ball in the air a great deal yesterday and found a lot of bad things happening — to the opposition.

Napanee filled the air with footballs to spring a 35-6 upset on BCI's senior Collegians in a Bay of Quinte COSSA match yesterday. Eric Bartlett, head coach of the blue-and - gold had a highly plausible explanation as to why his team switched from a running game to the aerial attack. "Our team wasn't that strong and we were getting clobbered when we tried to run. At least if you throw an interception you still gain 20 or 25 yards on the play."

Sure enough, Napanee threw a few interceptions, but they were more than offset by the completions as tailback George Harris fired four touchdown passes.



Speedy flanker Raymond Lee was the individual star for the winners pulling in three touchdown passes and a two-point conversion to account for 20 of his team's 35 points. Lee hauled in a 25-yard scoring strike and brushing fullback Pete Wesse cracked over on a 12-yard off tackle to help Napanee to a 14-6 half time lead after the Collegians had went ahead in the first quarter on a major by Rick Bell.

Lee added a pair of touch down receptions, including a 40-yarder in the second half, while fourth - quarter substitute Terry Simpson collected a seven - yard scoring pitch. Wesse added balance to the winners' attack with powerful ground thrusts up the middle, while Harris' was a double threat with his wide running and passing ability. Defensively, linebacker Larry Garrison turned in an outstanding performance, including an interception.

For the Collegians, fullback Rick Bell played an excellent game along with two-way lineman John Roblin and linebacker Craig Bakay.

The victory was the first in four games by the Napanee seniors, while BCI maintained second spot in the eastern division with a 2-2 mark.

In junior play, Napanee rallied from a 14-6 deficit at half time to hand a 26-14 defeat on the Collegians. Steve Rodrigues and Barry Van Zoeren scored the Belleville touchdowns, while Wes Moult, Pete Fraser, Fred Cass and Bruce Sutherland played well defensively for the losers.

'Wrong Foot, Stupid!'

While it may appear as though Jim McKay (left) and Rick Steinman are attempting to bring back the bunny hop, it's actually all part of the action in a Bay of Quinte COSSA foot ball contest. Napanee defensive back Steinman has just stepped in front of the Collegian receiver to make an interception, leaving McKay with an armful of gold sweater rather than the pigskin. Napanee were beating their opponents to the punch for most of the contest, coming up with a 35-6 upset.

HURRY (Hurry, hurry, hurry, hurry)

It won't last forever, but right now is a fantastic time to buy a new 1972 Chevrolet, Chevelle, Monte Carlo, Nova, Vega, Camaro, Cutlass or Oldsmobile. President Nixon's price freeze stopped the price increase that was on the way (an average of $175. per car). But it didn't stop the cars! To our surprise and delight a shipment of 25 beautiful, shiny new 1972 cars just arrived at our door.
If you buy before the freeze comes unfrozen, we can let you have one of these beauties (or two or three, if you like) at the 1971 price. Now, we know the prices are going to go up eventually probably within weeks. Because the cars are costing more to make. But right now you're definitely ahead of the game if you deal.
And you'll save even more if you've got a nice late model trade.
Our used car business is very important to us. And right now we're not doing any because we just don't have the cars. So our new car department wants to sell, and our used car department wants to buy. And that makes a very, very good situation for you.

Young Pirate Pair Put Bucs on Even Keel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — There was a brand new glow in Pittsburgh Pirates for today's fifth World Series game against Baltimore Orioles and it was put there by a pair of rosey-cheeked youngsters who began the most important game of their lives kidding each other in the ballpen.

Bruce Kison pitched 6 1-3 innings of one-hit relief ball and Milt May, swinging for his buddy, stroked the pinch single that drove in the winning run as the Pirates trimmed the Orioles 4-3 Wednesday in the first World Series game ever played at night.

Their heroics tied the series at two victories apiece and set up today's pivotal fifth game, with the Orioles sending first game winner Dave McNally against Pittsburgh's Nelson Briles. The game starts at 1 p.m. EDT.

It would be tough for the Birds and Bucs to match the dramatic show that the pulsating fourth game provided.

And in the end, the issue was decided by two 21-year-old rookies who hang together just the way you might expect they would.

"He's my best friend on the club," said Kison, grinning at May. "We were both drafted together in 1968 and we played together in the rookie league."

They were a long way from those early professionals days when Kison marched out of the bullpen in the first inning Wednesday night. The Orioles had jumped Pirate starter Luke Walker for three quick runs and it was up to the slim youngster to see that things didn't get worse.

Only a few minutes before he went into the game, Kison was joking with May in the bullpen.

Kison got the Pirates out of the first inning without further damage. Then Pittsburgh bounced off the deck with a pair of runs in the bottom of the first on doubles by Willie Stargell and Al Oliver—neither of whom had produced much in the series up to that point.

Stargell's run-batted-in was his first in post-season play and Oliver was 1-for-10 until he delivered.

The two runs left the Pirates one down and Kison set about the mission of keeping it that way.

In the third, Richie Hebner singled and came along on hits by Roberto Clemente and Oliver. That tied it at 2-3 but the Bucs thought they should have had more.

BRUCE KISON

On the pitch before his single, Clemente had cracked a line drive over the yellow home run line that circles the outfield fence. But Clemente's shot was waved foul by right field umpire John Rice, setting off a long protest.

But the single stood and so did the 3-2 tie despite Pirate threats that left the bases loaded in both the fifth and sixth innings.

With one out in the seventh, Bob Robertson singled and moved up on Manny Sanguillen's hit. Here Murtaugh went to his bench with Vic Davillo swinging for Jackie Hernandez and lofting a fly ball to left center.

Paul Blair reached the ball salvaged an out anyway when Sanguillen got trapped between bases.

That left runners at first and third with two out and now Murtaugh went to May to swing for Kison.

May got a base hit to right that delivered the deciding run.

Armed with the lead, Murtaugh turned the wrapup job over to Dave Giusti, whom he calls "The best reliever in baseball." Giusti who had 30 saves during the regular season and three more in the National League Playoffs, mowed the last six Orioles down in order to preserve the victory.

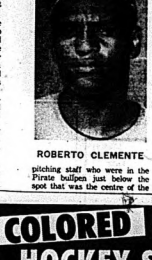
Rhubarb Erupts Over 'Foul'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "The ball hit the line and was fair—seventy million people saw you blow that one," Pittsburgh coach Don Leppert barked at umpire John Rice.

"Seventy million people saw me call it right," the paunchy Rice, a Pittsburgh native and American League umpire retorted. "I saw it all the way—it was foul by about two inches."



Although the call on a line shot by the Pirates' Roberto Clemente in the third inning did not affect the outcome of the game, won by Pittsburgh over Baltimore 4-3, it produced a lively controversy that lasted long after the first World Series night game ended.

The drive smashed into a concrete facing on which is printed the three-inch rightfield foul line.

The pro-Pittsburgh crowd of 51,378 roared a thunderous protest when umpire Rice ruled the ball was foul.

Instant replay on the television cameras apparently failed to show the exact shot on the ball's landing to everyone's satisfaction.

Members of the Pittsburgh

ROBERTO CLEMENTE

pitching staff who were in the Pirate bullpen just below the spot that was the centre of the dispute, said Rice was right.

"I had a clear view of it—the ball was foul by about six inches," said Bob Moose one of the Pittsburgh relief pitchers.

Dave Ricketts, another Pittsburgh coach, also backed up the umpire.

The incident could have been vital. At the time, with one out and Rich Hebner on base, the Pirates were behind 3-2. A home run would have put them ahead 4-3.

Frank Robinson, the Baltimore right fielder who took the ball after it caromed off the wall, said the ball hit 10 to 12 inches foul, showing the wide discrepancy in the eyesight.

Danny Murtaugh, the Pirates' manager, said he wasn't in position to see but rushed on the field to keep his coach from being ejected.

After Clemente's long foul, he singled. Hebner ultimately scored on a hit by Al Oliver which tied the game 3-3. Pittsburgh went on to win 4-3, cooling what could have been a tempest.

Orioles Only Want to Win Last Game

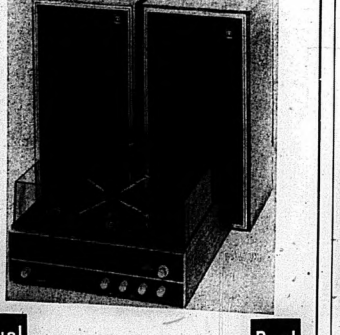
PITTSBURGH (AP) — "This doesn't mean a thing," said Earl Weaver.

"The only important thing is that we win the last game we play this year."

That's how the Baltimore manager summed up Wednesday night's 4-3 loss to Pittsburgh which tied up the World Series at two games apiece.

Said outfielder Frank Robinson: "It's just like starting over, except that it's the best two-of-three now instead of four-of-seven."

The doors to the Baltimore locker room remained closed about two minutes after the team filed in silently.



Asked what he had told the Orioles, Weaver said: "That we're going to win, and that we have a day game tomorrow."

Asked if a curfew would be in effect Wednesday night, Weaver replied: "I don't think they'll need one now."

"If there is such a thing as momentum, how could they take it away from us when we had a 16-game winning streak and two 20-game winners pitching for us the next two games?" he asked.

Oshawa Rookies Shine

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rick Middleton and Bill Lochhead, a pair of rookies with Oshawa Generals, are wasting little time in establishing themselves as scoring threats in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The series statistics released Wednesday show Middleton the leading points-getter with 14 while Lochhead is the top goal-scorer and is tied with five other players for third spot in the points race.

Middleton has seven goals and seven assists to put him two points ahead of London Knights' Dennis Ververgaert who has six goals and six assists.

Lochead, Toronto Marlboros' No. 1 draft choice from Samia, has eight goals and three assists for 11 points.

Others with 11 points are Bill Barber of Kitchener Rangers, Wayne Merrick and Ron Robertie of Ottawa 67s, Bob MacMillan of St. Catharines Black Hawks and Reg Thomas of the Knights.

Glen Seperich of Kitchener has the best goals-against average among the league goaltenders with 2.50 in two games played.

Ahearne Confronted

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyer Bill McMurtry said Wednesday he is confident something will be done soon to clear a suspension that is keeping 17-year-old Bob Smulders from playing with Peterborough Petes in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

McMurtry, acting on behalf of Smulders, met Tuesday with John F. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, who was in town for the taping of a television show.

The lawyer, a partner with Alan Eagleson, executive director of the National Hockey League Players Association, declined, however, to give details on his conversation with Ahearne.

Smulders, a Toronto native, played hockey last season in The Netherlands when his father was transferred there by his company.

Returning to Canada this year, he signed a contract to play for the Petes, but a suspension imposed following an incident in The Netherlands last year, in which Smulders allegedly threatened a referee, has kept him from playing here.

Bruins Begin to Make Up for Poor Start

If coach Punch Imlach is wise, he'll have his Buffalo Sabres bound to a keen edge for tonight's National Hockey League game in Boston.

The Bruins have begun to growl after a distressing start in that 1970-71 season. They turned vicious Wednesday and clawed New York Rangers 6-1 right on the Blueshirts' home ice.

Boston's star centre Phil Esposito got the opener, scoring on a power play in the early minutes of the game.

The Rangers, who tied an NHL record last year by losing only twice at home, tried to beat back the Bruins, but scored only once, late in the second period.

Rod Gilbert was the marksman, collecting his 300th career point, but Boston goalie Ed Johnston stopped 34 other shots.

Ed Giacomin also handled 36 shots in the New York net, but missed those fired by Ed Westfall, Mike Walton, Fred Stanfield and Derek Sanderson. Westfall accounted for two of the Boston goals.

In other games Wednesday, Chicago Black Hawks blanked St. Louis Blues 1-0, Pittsburgh Penguins defeated Los Angeles Kings 4-1 and Philadelphia Flyers edged California Golden Seals 5-4.

CHF Lovell's goal at 18:43 of the second period was the only one the Hawks were able to register against the Blues, but it was good for two points for the team.

PHIL ESPOSITO

His goal took a little of the gloss off a brilliant performance by rookie goalie Peter McDuffe, who made 34 saves in his NHL debut.

Chicago's Keith Magnuson and St. Louis' George Morrison hooked up in a fight that enlivened the game in the second period, but both escaped with five minute penalties. Tony Esposito kicked out 16 shots gaining the shutout.

In Oakland, Gary Dornhoefer scooped Jean-Guy Gendron's rebound over goalie Gary Kurt to give the Flyers their victory.

Norm Ferguson scored three goals in a losing cause for the downtrodden Seals. Bobby Sheehan got the other one. It was the second time in his NHL career that Ferguson netted three goals in a game.

Serge Bernier, Bobby Clarke, Jimmy Johnson and Simon Nolet were Flyers' other marksmen.

Veteran Ken Schinkel's goal 56 seconds after the game opened put the Penguins into orbit, Rene Robert made it 2-0 before Billy Dieth connected for the Kings. Jean Pronovost and Greg Polis scored insurance goals for Pittsburgh.

At Toronto, where the Red Wings-Maple Leaf game was postponed because of the death of Gardens president Stafford Smythe, there was nothing but bad news for the Leafs.

The club physician said centre Dave Keon will have to remain off skates for at least 10 days. The 31-year-old team captain injured his leg a week ago during a skating drill at the Coliseum in Vancouver. He has already missed two games.

Toronto defenceman Rickey Ley will also be absent for at least 10 days. He suffered a twisted knee when he collided with team-mate Jim Dorey in practice Tuesday.

Bud Polis, general manager of the Vancouver Canucks, said Wednesday he demoted defenceman Gregg Boddy to Rochester of the American Hockey League.

CALGARY (CP) — Reggie Holms, who plays either offensive or defensive back, has been on a five-day trial by Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference. Holms made his last week by Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League, was a 13th-round draft choice.

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Leo Cahill of Toronto Argonauts said Wednesday that running back Leon McQuay will return to the line-up Sunday for an Eastern Football Conference game against Montreal Alouettes. McQuay, who suffered a cartilage tear to his knee in a game Sept. 25, will not be as his regular position, Cahill said, but will be used as a deep receiver, alternating with Dave Cramer.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Faced by veteran Boris Onischenko, Russia swept the 1971 world modern pentathlon championships Wednesday, leaving second place to defending champion Hungary. The United States team placed third in official results, its best showing in world modern pentathlon competition since 1963.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers may use without three regulars for their Canadian Football League interlocking contest against Hamilton Tiger-Cats here Sunday. Running back Mack Herron, middle linebacker Mickey Doyle and half-back Bobby Kraemer have missed practises this week through injury and are doubtful starters for the game.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Christilot Hanson, Canadian Olympian and Pan American gold medallist, won her third consecutive United States dressage title during the weekend. At the equestrian centre in nearby Mentor Sunday, she won the Grand Prix aboard her horse Bonne Annee. She won the dressage title after being narrowly beaten in a previous class, the Prix St. Georges, by U.S. international rider Louis Stephens.

HOUSTON (AP) — Cleveland Indians announced Wednesday night that Johnny Lipon's contract as interim manager would not be rewed for the 1972 season. He replaced manager Alvin Dark midway through the season just ended. Lipon took over as field boss of the Indians July 30. The Indians finished last in the American League's East Division this season with a 60-102 record.

VIC WASHINGTON

Washington Won't Return

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For Vic Washington, an extremely well-travelled young athlete, the National Football League was a point of no return.

The 5-foot-10 player, who already has been called the San Francisco 49ers most exciting running back since Hugh McElhenny, joined the team this summer after playing in the Canadian Football League.

"I wouldn't have gone back to Canada if I didn't make it here," he said. "It would have been mostly a matter of pride."

"Sure he's going to fumble," quarterback John Brodie said in defence of the rookie. "Vic figures he can get into the end zone every time. He does a lot of spinning. I'll tell you though, he makes things happen."

Washington is from Plainfield, N.J., where he played high school football against current 49ers cornerback Bruce Taylor.

He played two varsity seasons at Wyoming before flunking out. Since he had a year to wait before becoming eligible for the NFL draft, he joined Ottawa Rough Riders of the CFL.

His backfield running mate the first season with the Rough Riders was Bo Scott, now with the Cleveland Browns. Scott had left Ohio State after his freshman year.

The 49ers chose Washington on the fourth round of the 1970 NFL draft, but he was legally tied to the CFL through last season.

British Columbia Lions claimed Washington last season, preventing him from joining the 49ers.

He played both offence and defence in the CFL.

"The big difference in th leagues, though, is that linemen are so much bigger and faster

JAKE GAUDAR

West Needs Room

EDMONTON (CP) — Unless some Western Football Conference loaths get larger stadiums they'll be out of the Canadian Football League soon, commissioner Jake Gaudaur said Wednesday.

He told a news conference that without more seating capacity, teams such as Edmonton Eskimos, Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers won't be able to compete in the league.

"I can't judge when it might happen . . . but I suggest there needs to be greater seating capacity within a couple of years.

He said costs go up an average of about 10 per cent a year, but seating in Edmonton hasn't been, which means that $100-a-plate dinners allow clubs to survive.

The fans were showing club operators and civic officials they wanted professional football and this should be recognized by finding a method of providing a decent-sized stadium.

Clarke Stadium in Edmonton holds slightly more than 20,000 while eastern stadiums all hold at least 30,000.

Queen's University is barnstorming ahead in Ontario Universities Athletic Association football league statistics this year, with one player tieing a league touchdown record and another breaking a convert record.

The Queen's team also set a league record for points scored by one team in a game.

Brian Warrender, with 11 touchdowns, tied the record set by Tim Reid of the University of Toronto in 1958. Warrender leads the league in scoring with 66 points and in rushing with 1,089 yards in 99 carries.

Team-mate Doug Kozak, with 30 converts, smashed the record of 21 converts set by University league statistics this year, with one player tieing a league touchdown record and another breaking a convert record.

England Grips Cup Berth

England, former world soccer champions, virtually made certain of a place among the last eight in next year's European championships Wednesday with a 3-2 win over Switzerland in Basel.

But the Swiss, who until meeting England in their group three match had gained maximum points from their previous four games, went down to an own goal in the 71th minute.

Wales, by a 3-0 group one victory over Finland in Swansea, also kept alive their chance of joining England in the quarter-finals, although to do so they have to beat Czechoslovakia and Rumania away.

Benson Proposes 95 Changes In Tax Reform Legislation

OTTAWA (CP) — Co-operatives, credit unions and investment funds stand to benefit under 95 amendments to the government's tax-change bill proposed by Finance Minister E. J. Benson Wednesday.

H tabled the proposed amendments in the Commons as MPs began clause-by-clause consideration of the bill in committee of the whole House.

Most of the amendments—which will be officially introduced as consideration of the bill continues—are technical.

But in two areas they represented concessions

Co-operatives and credit unions generally would be able to return more patronage dividends and interest rebates to their members, although still not as much as now.

In addition, their tougher tax regime would be introduced over 10 years instead of all at once.

Also, retirement savings trusts would be given until 1974 to rearrange their investments to avoid losing tax benefits on investments that have more than 10 per cent foreign content.

The tax bill, which received second reading in the Commons Tuesday, would widely change the country's tax structure.

Among changes are increased basic exemptions for all taxpayers, decreased corporation taxs, introduction of a capital gains tax and abolition of federal estate taxes.

Treatment of co-ops and credit unions was a major issue during second-reading debate on the bill, and Mr. Benson said his proposed alterations acknowledged this.

Blakeney Is Critical

REGINA (CP) — The federal government's withdrawal of the grains stabilization bill is another wedge in the door opening to Western alienation, Premier Allan Blakeney said Wednesday.

The premier-told a news conference the action is another indication of domination of the federal government by persons representing the interests of Ontario and Quebec.

"It shows a callous insensitivity to our Prairie agricultural needs. It is an arrogant act by a government which for three years at least has been placing the interests of other parts of Canada ahead of the agricultural interests of Western Canada."

Co-ops and credit unions now cannot earn tax deductions by giving out patronage dividends or interest rebates once they reduce their taxable income to less than three per cent of member capital.

For example, if a co-op were using $100,000 in member funds to operate and made profits of $12,000 for the year, it could declare $9,000 in dividends to its members.

That $9,000 would represent profits—$12,000—minus the three per cent of members funds—$3,000—that the government now insists on taxing.

Under the bill introduced last June 18, dividends would be further limited by requiring that five per cent of members' funds used be the minimum tax base.

Thus, only $7,500—$12,000 profit minus $5,000 base—could be returned to members as dividends.

Under an amendment proposed Wednesday by Mr. Benson, co-ops could either use the five-per-cent regulation in the bill or a new alternative—dividends could not reduce taxable income below one-third of profits after interest rebates.

Thus, $18,000 could be returned as patronage dividends in the above example—two-thirds of profits, leaving one-third taxable.

Credit unions returning interest rebates to members would have the same options.

Investment funds with more than 10 per cent of their money invested outside Canada would be given 3½ years to reduce that outside investment for taxation purposes

Value of Small Nursing Homes Is Stressed

TORONTO (CP) — The quality of care in Ontario's private-owned nursing homes will deteriorate if the provincial government forces the homes into major expansion programs, nursing home operators said Wednesday.

They were commenting on statements made Tuesday by Dr. K. C. Charron, deputy health minister, who said the province is studying the size of homes to determine whether some with only 30 beds can provide good care at a reasonable cost. He was addressing the annual convention of Associated Nursing Homes Inc. of Ontario.

He said the minimum size for nursing homes should be between 90 and 100 beds, and the maximum between 150 and 200 beds.

Kingsley Gibson, first vice-president of the group, an association of nursing-home owners, said the provincial proposals could destroy "the personalized care" available in small homes.

"I'm more interested in providing personal care than in running a big institution," he said. George Hyde, who operates small homes in Niagara Falls and Guelph, said that in smaller homes "you can get to know all the patients personally and that makes a difference in the quality of care they receive."

Ontario Medical Review Board Selected

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence has named the medical review committee he proposed last June to audit physicians' records.

Dr. F. S. Brien of London, Ont., is chairman and members are Dr. R. Blake Barlow, Chatham; Dr. Richard T. G. Milne, Kingston; and Dr. Bruce Tovee, Toronto.

The committee members and four medical inspectors were nominated by The College of Physicians and Surgeons, self-regulatory body for the province's medical men.

The four medical inspectors are Dr. John R. Barber, Windsor; Dr. Barlow, Chatham; Dr. William R. Jones, Kitchener; and Dr. Aloysius Teglas of Toronto. Konrad Kaster of OHSIP is financial inspector.

U.S. Will Sell Uranium Stocks

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission has decided to start selling the 9500-million U.S. uranium stockpile in 1974 because of the present stability in the United States nuclear weapons arsenal, Atomic Energy Commissioner Wilfrid Johnson said Wednesday.

"Nobody was certain how big the stockpile of uranium for weapons would have to be," said Johnson. "The decision was made on the safe side for national defence reasons."

Designing atomic weapons that use plutonium rather than enriched uranium as the fission-able explosive generated excesses in the 50,000-ton stockpile of uranium, he said in an interview.

Pay Docked

JUNEAU, Alaska (Reuter) — The commander of the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Confidence has docked the pay of 23 of his men who signed a letter of protest against a proposed U.S. nuclear test in the Aleutian Islands.

The men also received suspended reductions in rank. One officer who collected signatures for the letter was restricted to quarters for three days and given a letter of reprimand, a coast guard spokesman said Wednesday. He did not name those involved.

China Vote Near

Absent Envoy May Hold Key

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — With the China representation debate coming up in the General Assembly next week, a tiny group of islands in the Indian Ocean is achieving stature far out of proportion to its size.

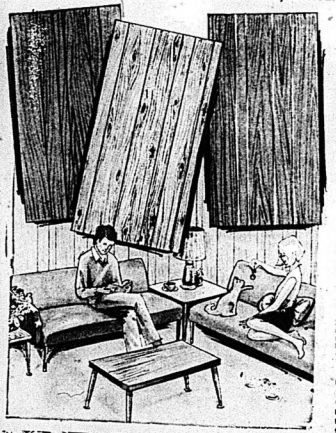
The Islands are the Maldives, members of the UN. The Nationalist Chinese of Taiwan count them as supporters.

But the Maldives, with a population of about 107,000, are not rich. Their ambassador to the UN and the United States has derived most of his living over the years selling Maldivian stamps in Washington.

Now the Washington—and thus UN—embassy has closed and the ambassador has moved to London, giving no indication to UN officials when he will return here.

The vote on China representation is expected to be close enough so that the way the Maldives go could be the way the UN goes.

The 131-country General Assembly finished its general debate Wednesday and the next big order of business will be the China representation question which opens Monday.



Officially, the assembly will deal with the item submitted annually by Albania calling for the expulsion of the Nationalists and the seating of the People's Republic of China.

But the United States plans to use parliamentary procedures to seat the People's Republic in the assembly and the Security Council and keep a seat for the Nationalists in the assembly.

First, the Americans will attempt to have the assembly declare that the expulsion of the Nationalists is an important question needing a two-thirds majority of those voting for passage and, second, amend the Albanian resolution to provide for membership of both Chinas

Promises Would Cost Billions: Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis gave a "cost analysis" Wednesday of opposition election promises.

He told a news conference that if there were no cutbacks in other areas, promises made by the Liberal party would add $2.165 billion to current government spending.

And the New Democratic Party promises would cost an additional $2 227 billion.

Mr. Davis, who said he had the cost analysis done by treasury board officials, said the additional tax burden required in the case of the Liberals would mean a 10-per-cent increase in personal income tax, 60 per cent on the retail sales tax, 100 per cent on corporation income tax and 16 per cent on gasoline tax amounting to three cents a gallon.

In the case of the NDP, he said, the additional tax burden would be 100 per cent in personal income tax, retail sales tax and corporation income tax.

The premier said he used civil servants in the analysis because "the public could be rightfully skeptical of such an assessment if the source of the analysis was a purely partisan one."

The premier said "this is not a time to increase taxes. In [illegible] tion and place some restraint on government expenditures in any way that is possible and responsible."

Mr. Davis said it is possible that "not all political promises are made to be kept. It is also possible that the opposition parties have in mind some substantial countervailing reduction in present government services."

Th premier said he would be happy to arrange for opposition spokesmen to meet with the treasury board people to discuss their findings.

"I do not think election campaigns need to be or ought to be excursions in window shopping of the kind in which the merchandise is displayed and the price tags are concealed," the premier said.

According to the figures provided by the premier, the biggest single increase in expenditure was in the field of health where the Liberals would spend an additional $1 billion plus, and the New Democrats $840 million.

In education, the additional tab for the Liberal party would be $648.5 million and $691 million for the NDP.

The figures showed the NDP spending an additional $304 million for social and economic welfare compared with the Liberal party's $140 million.

In home and community environment, Mr. Davis said, the Liberals would spend an extra $166 million to the NDP's $304 million.

Lewis Calls Estimate Absurd

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leadir of the New Democratic Party, described as absurd Wednesday night Premier William Davis's estimate that the NDP's election platform would cost $2.2 billion to implement.

"All I can tell you is I don't know what he's talking about," Mr. Lewis said.

He said the figures were manipulated, the costing was dishonest and it did not take into account the sources of funds for programs that the NDP has outlined carefully during the campaign for the Oct. 21 election.

Mr. Davis told a news conference in Toronto earlier he had provincial treasury board officials estimate how much it would cost to implement the election promises of both Mr. Lewis and Liberal Leader Robert Nixon.

He said Mr. Lewis's promises would add $2.227 billion to the current government spending and Mr. Nixon's would cost $2.165 billion.

Mr. Lewis said that in fact his party estimates their announced programs would result in a net saving to taxpayers, and he would say more about this before the election.

"What is particularly distasteful is that the respected treasury board has been drawn into a shabby piece of political desperation," Mr. Lewis said.

As an example of the gap between what Mr. Davis believes about the NDP platform and what has been announced by the party, Mr. Lewis cited the category of "police and public safety."

Mr Davis said NDP programs under this category would cost about $11 million.

"I have not said a word about police or public safety since the campaign began," Mr. Lewis said.

He also berated the premier for neglecting to mention the additional revenue the NDP plan to acquire from an increase of one point on the corporation income tax, an increase in taxes to five per cent from two per cent of the gross product of the resource industries or the cancellation of a $125-million tax credit to corporations that buy new machinery or equipment.

Mr. Lewis has said that he will cancel that tax credit and use $75 million of it for a job-creation program.

"At no stage, might I add, has he (Mr. Davis) ever costed his own programs."

Earlier Wednesday, Mr. Lewis said Mr. Davis's promises would cost $530 million and all but $35 million of that had never been accounted for.

Nixon Angry

Debate Sought

KINGSTON (CP) — Liberal leader Robert Nixon accused Premier William Davis Wednesday night of using public servants for political advantage and of deliberately misrepresenting the cost of Liberal proposals.

In the strongest speech of his campaign so far for the Oct. 21 provincial election, Mr. Nixon challenged the premier to a public debate on both parties' spending policies.

Earlier Wednesday, Mr. Davis told a news conference in Toronto had provincial treasury board officials estimate the cost to implement election promises of both Mr. Nixon and Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Nixon was in an angry mood as he accused the premier of a "prostitution of the responsibility of the acknowledged non-political experts of the office of the treasury board."

He drew loud applause from the partisan crowd of about 350, who packed the Memorial Hall for the election rally, when he said the premier had ordered the board experts to "put the most expensive price tags on it (the Liberal program), add it up and give it to me because I've got a press conference."

Liberals and NDP Sought Metro 'Names'

TORONTO (CP) — Wanted: Election candidates, well known in Metropolitan Toronto and with a history of winning.

If the Ontario Liberal and New Democratic parties had resorted to newspaper advertisements to attract candidates in Metro for the Oct. 21 provincial election, their ads might have read much like that.

The Progressive Conservatives won 13 of the 28 Metro ridings in the 1967 provincial election, leaving seven for the Liberals and eight for the NDP.

Clearly the opposition parties needed to attract some candidata whose names were familiar to voters and who had enough personal appeal to win their support.

The Liberals selected Phil Givens, former Toronto mayor and frustrated federal Liberal backbencher, and True Davidson, 70-year-old mayor of East York borough and a colorful local politician for years.

The NDP picked Bruce Kidd, 28, former distance runner and one of Canada's best-known athletes of the 1960s.

The Tories' Metro team is headed by a number of political veterans including no less than six cabinet ministers seeking re-election.

None of the Liberal and NDP celebrity candidates is assured of victory. Two of them are running in ridings won easily by the Conservatives in the last election.

Mr. Givens, 49, is contesting York-Forest Hill against another well-known city man, Tory Barry Lowes, 44-year-old former chairman of the Metro and Toronto school boards, and NDP veteran Fiona Nelson.

Mr Givens, destined to become minister of urban affairs if the Liberals form a government, follows the party line in favoring completion of the Spadina Expressway and comes under fire from both his opponents on the issue.

The riding was won handily for the Tories in 1967 by Edward Dunlop, the blind MPP who is not seeking re-election. Mr. Dunlop racked up a 3,841-vote margin over his closest competitor, a New Democrat.

Miss Davidson faces an even tougher struggle in York East, where she must unseat Conservative Arthur Meen who won the riding in 1967 with a plurality of 4,456 votes. The NDP candidate is Bernard Eastman, a 37-year-old lecturer at Osgoode Hall law school.

Mr. Kidd has picked up the NDP banner in Beaches-Woodbine which was won by New Democrat John Brown in 1967 with a margin of 545 votes.

Running against Mr. Kidd are Thomas Wardle, a 57-year-old Toronto alderman representing the Conservatives, and Liberal Jerry Ewins.

The riding also has a Social Credit candidate, Al Overfield, and an independent, Harold Rowbottom.

One of the more interesting campaigns is in High Park, where New Democrat Morton Shulman has accused Tory candidate Yuri Shymko, 31, a high school teacher, of infiltrating his volunteers

Another lively riding is Scarborough Centre, where outspoken Syd Brown, president of Metro Toronto Police Benevolent Association, is running on an independent ticket against Telegram Action Line columnist Frank Drea, the Tory candidate, Liberal Brian Wallace and NDPer Margaret Renwick, who took the riding in 1967 with 222-vote majority.

Apartment Locations Undecided

City council has acted to update development standards for multiple dwellings in the "B" district of the municipality, but new zoning regulations setting out where apartments will be permitted are still some time in the future.

And the Quinte Home Builders will likely have a few ideas of their own with respect to the residential chapter of the city's proposed official plan, now before the Quinte Area Planning Board.

Last spring, on direction from city council, planners with the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board prepared a proposed new residential chapter but this has now been referred to the new Quinte area board which has proposed sending it back to the consultants.

But the Quinte Home Builders wished to comment on the proposed residential chapter and hired their own consultants to do an appraisal.

Tuesday the consultants — Marshall, Macklin and Monaghen of Toronto — gave their report to city council but were told that it should also be presented to Quinte Area Planning Board.

The report, given by the firm's senior planner, David W. Beasley, said the development area outside the city as proposed by city planner Bert Kenny was twice the area required for he expected population of 75,000 people by the year 2000.

The report said that 50 per cent of the anticipated land development area should be south of the city and the other 50 per cent to the west.

Development should be phased to coincide with the city's expansion.

Homes for Low Income Families Investigated

Belleville families with annual incomes of less than $6,000 could be assisted to become home owners under a Home Ownership Made Easy Plan if the hopes of a new city council committee are realized.

A special committee, under the chairmanship of Alderman Enos David with Aldermen Jean Smith, Gerald Joyce and Arthur Keegan as members, has been appointed to bring in recommendations and proposals under the HOME plan.

One of the proposals to be investigated is the possibility of city land in industrial areas in the northwest and northeast sections of the city now zoned for housing being subdivided for lease or sale to low income people.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will lend mortgage money on leased land to wage earners in the under-$6,000 bracket at 1 per cent less than the normal interest rate.

Serviced lots in the above two areas could be leased by the city at the corporation's cost.

Mayor J. R. Scott recommended that the special committee investigate and report back with recommendations, detailed cost studies and proposals.

Then, with council approval, definitive plans could be carried out and the project program instituted.

Mayor Scott suggested that 20 foot-wide serviced lots might be made available at from $1,000 to $1,200 each.

But Alderman David feels there are many other possibilities besides the sale or lease of single lots.

"Homes could also be row housing, or condominiums," he said.

Whatever the ultimate decision, Alderman David feels the city should be prepared to help families in the low income bracket own their own homes.

Bell Blvd. Will Be Extended

City council Tuesday gave its approval for the extension of Bell Blvd. west to Sidney Street at an estimated cost of $104,000.

But at least two members of council were not entirely in agreement.

Alderman Ben Corke felt it might be more advisable to build a more permanent type of roadway than the proposed 36-foot-wide gravel road with a 28-foot-wide double treated surface.

"Why not do it right in the first place instead of doing too cheap a job?" he asked.

And Alderman Jean Smith said construction of the roadway extension was not all that urgent and suggested the money might be better spent on repairing some of the city's present roadways.

Council two weeks ago asked the city engineer to bring in cost estimates for the Bell Blvd. extension with the view of expediting the work because of traffic problems resulting from the opening of the new Quinte Mall.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said that under agreement the roadway would have to be constructed by next year.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the proposed double treated roadway would pass across undeveloped property which would have to be serviced with sanitary and storm sewers when developed.

For this reason he felt it advisable to construct a double surface treated roadway which could later be cut for needed services.

Asphalt paving with curbs and gutters could later be put in on the proposed roadway base.

Any later roadway improvements would be done under local improvements.

The double treated roadway would be designed for heavy traffic and would be maintained by the city until ready for asphalt and curbs.

Baby's Platelet Count Low, Meaning Blood Won't Clot

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: An infant born last month is said by the pediatrician to have a low count of "platelets." In all my 80 years this is the first time I have heard of platelets.

The child has the appearance of a perfect child in coloring and general behavior. He is being kept in the intensive-care section in hopes that the platelet count will build up to normal.

Can you enlighten us about platelets and what the lack of normal quantity portends?—H.C.W.

As is true with all sorts of topics, there are lots of things in health and medicine you may not hear about until you become directly involved with them.

To explain platelets, you know that when there is bleeding the blood automatically forms clots to stop the bleeding. This is done by certain types of particles in the blood stream—and one type of particle, the platelet, is the one that initiates this clotting action.

Insufficient platelets means slower clotting. An example of this is when there is trivial bleeding below the surface of the body. Ordinarily it would be stopped so quickly it wouldn't be noticed. But with a deficiency of platelets, there is a greater seepage of blood, and a red or purplish spot appears, resembling a bruise. This deficiency is called thrombocytopenia. Platelets are also called thrombocytes.

Deficiency can occur because the bone marrow does not produce enough platelets. Alternatively, enough may be formed but an excessive number are being destroyed by the spleen.

In older children deficiency can follow an infection, or be related to allergy or drug sensitivity. There is also a hereditary or congenital form of thrombocytopenia—in which case other members of the family also have a platelet deficiency. This, however, is rare.

Apparently the infant you write about (a grandchild, perhaps?) has some unusual bleeding problem, or exhibited the "bruising" phenomenon, to a study was made of the blood, revealing the lack of enough platelets.

Platelets can be extracted from blood and given in the form of transfusions. In the case of the baby we're talking about today, I would assume that further studies will be made to determine whether the deficiency is caused by extensive destruction in the spleen.

If so, removal of the spleen, when the baby's condition warrants surgery, usually corrects the situation. After all, while the spleen is a useful organ, it is also one we can get along without. When the spleen is causing trouble, we are better off without it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 69 and frequently annoyed by the urge to urinate every time I turn on the water or garden hose.

When I complain to my doctor, he laughs it off and says, "You're getting there." It's not your prostate." But my wife has the same symptoms. Is this psychological?—J.F.

Most likely it is psychological, since obviously your wife's problem can't be prostatic. One trick used in doctor's offices and hospitals, if a person has trouble producing a urine specimen, is to turn on the water faucet. Purely psychological, but it usually works.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the instrument used in vaginal examinations? My neighbor says it is a "speculum." If so, why is it called this?—Mrs. B.T.

Her ears played tricks on her. The term is speculum. "Speculum" means a band of colors, such as in a rainbow.

Nonconvertible Propositions

Do you know the difference between a "convertible proposition" and a "nonconvertible proposition"? If you don't, the chances are high that you cannot reason accurately or realistically about many issues and conflicts in the modern world.

Suppose I suggest the proposition (which is true) "Most people are usually unorthodox." Do you then turn it around into the proposition (which is false) "Unorthodox people are usually neurotic"? If so, you are committing a

Going back to the first proposition I cited, it is true that most neurotic people are usually unorthodox, because neurosis tends to make most people alienated from their fellows. Even when they are right, it is for the wrong reasons. But it is not true that most unorthodox people are necessarily neurotic. Some are ahead of their time; some have more courage or wisdom than rest of us; some hold their individuality in higher regard than most of us; some have too much creativity or imagination to be content with conventional attitudes.

We must not let the fact that kooks and beatniks and neurotics were plentiful on campus demonstrations blind us to the even more important fact that thousands of serious and dedicated students also take part in them, for reasons that are worth listening to, if we persist in converting propaganda that cannot be converted, we shall continue to be vexed by the patterns of the present and baffled by the forms of the future.

Provinces, Business Welcome Tax Cuts

Benson Pares Income Taxes

OTTAWA — (CP) — A $1-billion shot in the arm for the laggard economy, including income tax cuts, was delivered by federal government Thursday night.

The program of temporary individual and corporate tax reductions, plus financial aid to provinces and municipalities for job-making projects, was outlined by Finance Minister E. J. Benson during a special Commons debate called to consider the slack state of economic activity.

The measures came after a sharp increase in the unemployment trend and amid fears that U.S. trade restrictions will cause more damage.

"The economy will be booming by the end of 1972.", Mr. Benson told reporters later. But, he added: "This is not an election budget."

The spending program pro-

For Other Stories On Benson's Policy Statement See Page 10

vides a three-per-cent reduction on individual federal income tax and a drop of seven per cent in corporate tax, both retroactive to July 1 and due to run to the end of next year.

The tax cuts would be in addition to those announced in June — removal of the three-per-cent surtax for individuals and corporations imposed in 1968.

Thursday's proposals include $100 million in loans to provinces and municipalities for projects to help employment, $100 million in grants to municipalities and community organizations for the same purpose, $35 million to improve manpower training and an $80 million federal works program.

There will be a speed-up of $113 million in loans from Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. and $10 million in loans for construction of multi-purpose exhibition buildings.

The total cost of the package will be $1,070 million, including the loss in tax revenue.

Mr. Benson estimated the budget deficit for the financial year ending next March 31 will be $1 billion, the difference between spending of $14.58 billion and revenue of $13.58 billion. That is up from the deficit of $750 million estimated in the June 18 budget for this year.

The new figure would be the biggest deficit since 1945-46, when revenues were more than $2 billion below spending, reflecting costs of the Second World War.

Opposition spokesmen who had called repeatedly for special measures to stimulate the economy, called the program too late and too little.

Mr. Benson, in his 23-minute budget-like statement of 2,000 words, did not concede there is any essential fault in the economy.

To opposition hoots of derision he concluded his speech with:

"The economy is strong and growing. The measures I have proposed today are designed to keep it that way."

He urged higher consumer spending as an antidote in the U.S. surtax on imported goods, a barrier to Canadian exports.

"Spending by individuals makes up two-thirds of national income and is the base on which the whole economy rests," he said.

Mr. Benson said the federal government "will be consulting the provinces forthwith on the early implementation of the program."

Billion Deficit Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — New federal spending announced Thursday night will produce a deficit of more than $1 billion in the 1971-72 fiscal year, the biggest deficit since the Second World War.

The 1945-46 deficit was $2.121 billion. The highest post-war deficit was $794.8 million, in 1967-68.

The last two years in which the government had a surplus were 1969-70—$381.5 million—and 1956-57, $257.5 million.

Mild Plaudits Greet Program

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The federal government's move to expand the Canadian economy drew mild plaudits Thursday from the economic adviser to the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Forrest Rogers, referring to Finance Minister Edgar Benson's proposals for tax cuts and creation of jobs, said in Vancouver:

"The program will spur the economy to a degree, but the extent will depend on the success the U.S. has in coping with its wage-price problems and correcting its trading positions."

Other initial reaction to Mr. Benson's proposals—which include a three-per-cent personal and seven-per-cent corporate tax cut as well as grants to winter works, manpower training and housing projects—were also generally favorable.

Doug Sherbaniuk, executive director of the Canadian Tax Foundation, said in Toronto the government apparently is taking the proper approach.

He agreed with the personal-tax reduction, saying more money would be placed in the hands of the consumer And he said the corporation tax cut would encourage industry "to embark on additional production, thereby maintaining staff and helping create or preserve jobs."

Robert Stewart, president of the Canadian Construction Association, commended the move, saying in Ottawa it should bring about a lower unemployment rate this winter—"or at least keep it from rising higher than it is."

One of the responses came from Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon who is fighting to win an election next Thursday.

He said that of the $130 million winter-works program proposed, about $30 million would come to Ontario. But he cautioned:

"Surely Ontario cannot sit back and say, 'Trudeau and his team are paying the bill and we can now sort of rest on our laurels.' It's not to be a parallel responsibility so we can make best use of this billion-dollar program."

In Alberta, Treasurer Gordon Minsky said he was pleased with the personal tax reductions, but had reservations about the concessions proposed for corporations.

He said the latter would help stimulate the general economy, but suggested they would be of more benefit to highly-industrialized provinces such as Ontario than to Alberta.

He also wanted to know how the $100-million special-loans program for provinces and municipalities would be allocated.

In New Brunswick, Premier Richard Hatfield said the federal measures were late coming but they will be good for that province if "they get the national economy moving."

While cautioning that "haste could produce waste," Mr. Hatfield said New Brunswick would move quickly to take advantage of the measures.

In Vancouver, Mayor Tom Campbell said Canada needs a year-round program, rather than temporary emergency schemes, to reduce unemployment.

"If they're going to spend $1 billion, it's certainly going to help fight unemployment," he said. "But it's a little late."

If the federal program of loans and grants requires municipalities to pay one-third, Ontario's contributions, Vancouver would not be able to take part because "we just haven't got the funds."

Make-Own-Jobs Program Offered

OTTAWA (CP) — Make-your-own-work projects are to be a $100-million feature of the federal government's winter campaign against unemployment.

Taking the lead from the $216 million Opportunities for Youth program of last summer, Finance Minister E. J. Benson announced Thursday the money will be available for projects submitted by municipalities, community organizations and private groups.

Otto Lang indicated in an interview after Mr. Benson's speech that the new program will be more concerned with jobs for unskilled workers.

"There won't be as many esoteric projects as there were in Opportunities for Youth," he said.

Some of the confusion that accompanied the original program may also be avoided, he suggested, because local initiatives will be administered through regional manpower offices.

He suggested that pollution clean-ups and urban rehabilitation projects would likely be typical of the initiatives to be approved under the program.

Half of the money available through the program is to go to municipalities after consultation with provincial authorities. The balance is reserved to finance projects submitted by local groups.

Scant Hope Is Seen Of Quick Settlement

TORONTO (CP) — Union representatives said Thursday they have little hope of early settlement of the strike by 1,500 employees that began Wednesday at the Douglas Aircraft Co. of Canada Ltd. plant.

Meanwhile, Premier William Davis and the Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said the United States wage freeze must not be applied in Canada.

They were commenting on a charge by the striking United Auto Workers union that Douglas was trying to impose U.S. President Richard Nixon's freeze on Canadian employees.

Turn to Deficit Financing Could Push Prices Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Tax cuts and expanded spending announced Thursday night might generate inflationary pressures —as well as the jobs hoped for —and prompt another try at controlling the advance of prices and incomes.

The near-budget by Finance Minister E. J. Benson is designed to pump more money into the economy to stimulate demand for goods, productive activity and jobs.

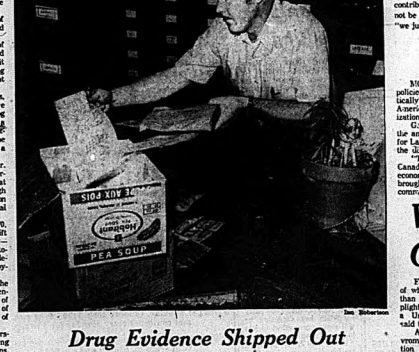
But the pronounced shift of gears might also put upward pressure on prices.

That would be the opposite of the trap the government found itself in 1969 and 1970. Then, it was clamping down on spending to beat inflation but found that jobs were also diminishing.

Within less than two years, federal money managers have switched away from collecting more than they spend in a budget in which they will dispend income by $1 billion—the biggest budget deficit in a quarter-century.

Nineteen months ago, Mr. Benson was budgeting for a surplus in the financial year that ended last March 31, although less than half the $380 million surplus in the previous financial year.

But by the summer of 1970, the government began to shift away from surplus budgeting—used to fight price inflation—towards deficit financing, designed as a cure for unemployment.



Last June 18, budgeting for the current financial year, Mr. Benson was forecasting a deficit of $750 million on spending of $14.41 billion and revenue of $13.66 billion this fiscal year.

With his announcement Thursday night of increased spending and temporary tax reductions, the deficit estimate increased to $1 billion on spending of $14.58 billion and revenue of $13.58 billion.

The theory behind deficit budgeting is this: With taxes held down and government spending up, there will be more private and public money circulating to buy goods and services.

That tends to stimulate productive activity—and employment—to meet the demand.

Deficit budgeting also forces the government to borrow money on bond markets to cover its deficit. That increases the demand for cash, pushing up interest rates—eventually reflected in higher prices for goods and services.

Drug Evidence Shipped Out

What happens to drugs confiscated by police? Here Belleville detachment, RCMP, commanding officer Corporal Sam Pittman, prepares all evidence from 24 concluded cases, for shipping. Where will this crate go and what happens then? For story, see page 2.

Canada's Interests Like Latin America's

MONTREAL (CP) — The tough new economic policies of the United States have shown "dramatically" Canada's community of interest with Latin America, says the secretary-general of the Organization of American States.

Galo Plaza, former president of Ecuador, told the annual conference of the Canadian Association for Latin America that Canada has a vital stake in the development of Latin America.

The identical concern of the government of Canada and of those of Latin America to the new economic policies of the U.S. has dramatically brought home the point that there is an underlying community of interests."

White Ignorance Main Cause Of Woes of Indians, Metis

EDMONTON (CP) — A history of white ignorance is more at fault than anything else for the current plight of Canadian Indians and Metis, a University of Alberta instructor said today.

Anthropologist Robert J. Devrome in a study of native education commissioned from an Alberta community, lays the lion's share on white bureaucracy for ill-conceived "educational programs" which have attempted unsuccessfully for more than a century to turn out "white Indians."

"The existing system of education has very little, if any, foundation in Indian tradition, family or community," the report said. It runs counter to the informal process in Indian homes, and eventually this white cultural bias cripples the personalities of Indian children to the extent it "becomes virtually impossible for them to function in white schools."

The report said pre-school Indian children, like all other children, become familiar with their parents' traditional values, speech patterns, habits and the like, out of which develop their behavior and expectations.

While children had little difficulty adjusting to schools — which are based on the same attitudes they learned at home — "but what of the 'different' student who has experienced a different kind of pre-school, informal education?"

The Devrome report said this "potentially destructive situation" in school is made worse when the child faces a teacher who speaks a strange language.

Drugs to Be Destroyed

What happens to old drugs after police and the courts are finished with them?

Corporal Sam Pittman, commanding officer RCMP, Belleville Detachment, was busy packing up all seized drugs, used as evidence in 24 cases since the fall of 1970.

As well as one carefully cultivated, live marijuana plant recently seized in Trenton, plus a full box garden the drugs included hashish, marijuana, LSD and an halucinogenic drug known as MDA.

Corporal Pittman explained all drugs seized by police are recorded with the Department of National Health and Welfare. Once a case is at been concluded and a period waived, the drugs are then, or has expired, all drugs are shipped to the chief narcotic control division of the department for systematic destruction by fire.

One envelope prepared for shipping contained more than 300 LSD capsules, 42 of MDA, and a quantity of marijuana and hashish valued at approximately $500 on the black market, alleged the youth, arrested with these drugs in his possession, is now serving six months in jail.

The RCMP corporal said all drugs are carefully recorded and sampled handled in for destruction, must correspond with files on investigations of this, two officers sign the shipping records.

Grassy Slope To Be Garden

Subject to approval by city council, that new grassy slope on the north side of Dundas Street West just west of Fidelle Machine Ltd. will next summer become a spot of beauty — thanks to a co-operative effort on the part of the city parks board and the Belleville Horticultural Society.

If all goes as expected, the parks board will assist in preparing the flower beds, while horticultural society members will plant spring flowering bulbs as part of a fall bulb planting day.

The horticultural society involvement would be part of a Beautify Your Community competition being sponsored by the Ontario Horticultural Association. The Dundas Street hill area planting would be the local society's fall project under its civic beautification program.

Injuries Slight

MADOC (Special) — Sixty-nine year old Clarence Pitt of Madoc Village escaped with minor cuts and bruises when he was struck by a car on West St. Lawrence Street here.

Mr. Pitt was attempting to cross the road, when he stepped out in front of the westbound car driven by Harold Hill of R#1, Madoc.

He was treated for injuries at the scene by Dr. Derry and then allowed to go home.

Damages to the front end of the vehicle were estimated at $25 according to OPP.

Weaver States Policies To Loyalist Students

Quinte Liberal candidate Gerald Weaver told a Loyalist audience yesterday afternoon he thinks there is something wrong with the system in which he was financed $100 for spending but companies like Gulf Oil and International Nickel are fined less than $400 in pollution suits.

"A Liberal government," he said, "would prosecute industrial polluters to the letter of the law."

He said that his organization had been thwarted by the local Progressive Conservatives in its bid to secure Belleville committee rooms in the Union location. "The Tories have rented the premises and have been considering to put up a Voter poster," he said. Liberal committee rooms are located on Campbell Street, a sidestreet between Front and Pinnacle Streets.

Replying to a question from the audience, Mr. Weaver disclosed his campaign in Quinte "did not have more than $5,000 and $10,000, much of which he said he is providing personally.

He was asked to comment by one student in the college amphitheatre on a statement made by NDP candidate Dan Deacon that the Conservatives and Liberals in Ontario were allied with big business.

Mr. Weaver said that his personal campaign certainly was not and doubted if corporate contributions to the provincial wings of the two whole were large, admitting with that he was also a breakdown of party contributors on an Ontario-wide basis.

On the subject of foreign instructors being allowed to teach in Ontario universities and colleges, he said there would never favor excluding foreign teachers from the provinces but an overwhelming influx influx should not be permitted."

Replying to a questioner inquiring what a Liberal government would do to help wage earners in the area, Mr. Weaver stated it is his party's policy to institute "a guaranteed minimum wage in Ontario, half the cost of which will be borne by the federal government."

Chamber Critical Of Proposed Law

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce, along with other Ontario and Canadian chambers, is standing "federal legislation allowing less stringent regulations on unions, and allowing unions to delay technological change, is most objectionable and will force companies to run inefficient, costly operations."

The bill, now past its second and third readings, will allow unions to not only delay change in operation of a company, but virtually veto the change through strike action.

In a letter, sent by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce to Lee Clark MP and George Hees MP, local businessmen claim, "federal labor laws have not been overhauled in a long time and it is evident that the proposed bill intends to right a past ever, rather than solving labor relations problems in Canada, it will create more problems to the detriment of all labor and business in the country"

Until now, it was required that 50 per cent of a company's employees had to be members of the union before certification. If the new legislation is passed the figure will slip to 35 per cent.

"The government is inviting more collective bargaining, more power for the unions and more strikes with this new bill," said Pat Houston, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

Rebate Coming?

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Prince Edward County school trustees have last night chuckled over a weighty problem brought forward by board member Douglas Oxley.

At the minutes of the last board meeting were presented for approval, Mr. Oxley observed he had been forced to pay 13 cents extra postage when he received his copy through the mail.

The trustee inquired if the board offices required additional information on current postage rates.

Business administrator E. A. Short replied all trustees deserved an 18 cent refund on their desks at the next meeting.

City to Receive Transit Subsidy

The city of Belleville stands to benefit to the extent of approximately $36,000 through the Ontario government decision to subsidize the operation of public transit systems.

The amount of the subsidy to be received by the Belleville Transit Commission is 50 per cent of 1971 deficit which has been estimated at $77,000.

City council Tuesday passed the necessary bylaw for the supplementary expenditures in connection with the city-operated bus line, and it will make application for the subsidy.

City manager J. R. Reynolds said if the application was approved — and he saw no reason why it would not be — the subsidy would be expected to be paid later this or early in 1972.

If expected the amount received would be based on the bus line's actual deficit for the year.

"It may be a bit less or even more than the estimate," he said.

Mrs. Ross S. Burtt, chairman of the city transit commission, agreed that the provincial subsidy would help the bus line but said that in no way has failed to see it.

"It means that the money will have to come from somewhere else and that means you and me," she said.

Retarded Will Benefit From Walk

PICTON (Staff) — Students will concentrate on "putting their best foot forward" tomorrow morning during the fourth annual walkathon conducted by members of Prince Edward Youth for the Mentally Retarded.

The 20-mile hike mapped out for walkers will begin at 9 a.m. from Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, continue through Lake Street to Woodcrox Corners, wind along East Lake road to West Lake and finish back at the school via Mallory's, Crossroad and Highway 33.

Last year's walkers for PEYMR raised $2,400 for donation to the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded.

Larry Richardson, guidance counsellor at PECI and a strong supporter of PEYMR, said 135 persons volunteered to walk last fall and this year even more hikers are expected to turn out.

Sponsors for this event are still being sought and further information is obtainable from Pam Rae at 476-6452 or John Wiggins at 476-3792.

Mr. Richardson said PEYMR now has a membership of more than 35 students whose efforts to help the mentally retarded are steadily expanding.

Post Office Plan Dead

TRENTON (Staff) — "In view of the costs of properties involved, it will be impossible to complete the original post office project unless we help Linden," Mayor Duncan McDonald said today.

Council has received a letter from David K. Linden outlining his position on the development scheme for the old Dundas west post office site, and difficulties he has faced in trying to realize it.

"We can forget about the big complex now," said the mayor.

However, he added Mr. Linden is prepared to make feasibility studies for a somewhat smaller mid-town mall plan encompassing only the post office property and the Peddlecon lot next to it (now owned by the parking authority). Initially, the development would have included several surrounding commercial land parcels, but prices of there were prohibitive, according to the developer.

Mayor McDonald says, "council is not excited about Linden's smaller alternatives." Alternate plans may comprise a new bank, several shops and substantial office space including that for municipal departments.

The mayor concludes something must be done soon on the issue, even if it means selling the town-owned land for other uses.

Mr. Linden has stated purchase prices have been discussed with owners of properties necessary to the original plan but a letter to the editor of The Trentonian from Mrs. Gerald Weaver this week insists that her husband, owner of one of these land parcels has not even been contacted by the developer or his agents.

Potter Refutes Pamphlet

TRENTON (Staff) — Quinte MPP Dr. R. T. Potter last night attacked in the campaign literature of Liberal candidate Gerald Weaver as being misleading.

Dr. Potter referred to statements in a Liberal pamphlet being distributed in the riding that say the assessed value of the Queen's Motor Hotel in Belleville is $208,000 but that the provincial government will pay over $250,000 a year to rent the premises as a pilot project convalescent hospital.

He said in an interview here last night that rent for the buildings was determined after lengthy study and no waste is involved. He explained that in leasing the 50-room motel, the government is getting an adequately furnished and serviced facility in which to conduct a pilot project scheme.

"If trying to institute a pilot project to upgrade health care in Ontario is wasting money, I am wasting money" he said.

Dr. Potter expressed confidence that total expense for the operation would work out to less than $25 a day.

Commenting on another portion of the Weaver pamphlet, which states the administrator of the convalescent home will receive $25,000 to administer the 50-room premises, while the administrator of the larger Belleville General Hospital has a salary of $25,000, he stated that the administrator of the convalescent hospital will serve as medical and research director in addition to fulfilling his administrative duties.

All kinds turn up at Lions bingo night at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium but the pooch named Kelly wasn't a bit interested in the evening's festivities. Perched on the shoulder of his mistress, Mrs. Jean Calnan, Kelly patiently waited out the night, barking indignation only occasionally.

Freedom's Price

Those who have suffered at the hands of terrorists or from revolution and have had to flee their homelands, tend to see things differently and more realistically than those who have not and are willing to compromise just so long as they are left alone.

It was Lord Palmerston as we recall who elucidated the doctrine of political expediency, of agreeing, as Ernest Bevin, foreign secretary in the Attlee government, put it, "with whom we can agree," and of turning a blind eye to the excesses of regimes in far off places.

Today the nations of the world may go as far as complaining about apartheid in South Africa, while tolerating it in certain forms at home; or make occasional noises about oppression in the Communist world, but go no further. It still rankles with the Hungarians, to cite one classic example, that the western world stood by while the Russians crushed the 1956 revolt.

To have intervened would have been to risk a third world war. As the old axiom would have it: discretion is the better part of valor. Thus today we have accommodations of a sort with the Soviet Union, and even with China, and it looks as if the United States ultimately may be willing to sacrifice the Nationalist Chinese on Taiwan.

Expediency and self-interest are at the root of such matters.

But just so that we do not forget some facts about those countries with whom we make alliance, however uneasy, we have word from Stephen Endelyi, president of the Hungarian Freedom Fighters' Federation of Western Canada based in Calgary.

Terrorists as he calls them, similar to the FLQ, "grabbed power 53 years ago in Russia, 25 years ago in China and 14 years ago massacred our brothers and sisters on the streets of Budapest."

The statement, identical to a letter sent to Mrs. Pierre Laporte following the murder of her husband by the FLQ a year ago, warns of the threat to our own society. It points to the Communist foothold in Canada and the training of terrorists there who later fan out throughout Latin America as well as in Canada and the U.S. It points to the irony of affording asylum in Cuba for FLQ terrorists.

The letter expresses appreciation of Canada's hospitality toward Hungarian refugees but adds, "we were hoping that the Government of our new country would turn away from those states where a terrorist system similar to that of the FLQ is in power;" and it points to the fact that recognition of Red China came a day after Mr. Laporte's death and suggests this could have been Communist strategy to detract public attention "from this fatal step of the Canadian government."

If there is one lesson that history affords however, it is that there will always be martyrs and scapegoats. The memories of the past may be strewn with the manifestations of man's baser nature, but he survive in much "agree with whom he can agree," regardless of the past. At the same time we should heed the freedom fighter's warning that it could happen here, and that there are many working toward that very purpose, in ways both overt and subtle. The price of freedom, as ever, is eternal vigilance.

More Violence

The death of a young police officer in Ste. Therese at the hands of a gunman was tragedy enough without a 13-year-old girl hostage being harmed as well the other day. Happily, Helene Sancho was released and the policeman's alleged slayer gave himself up.

The officer's death comes at a time when violence of this nature, of crimes against the person, are increasing. Not only is the death penalty no longer available except in a case like this — in the death of a policeman — but what amounts almost to reckless recourse to parole, freeing men who were jailed for long terms, even life, is causing serious concern in Canada.

Crime is on the increase because of a growing permissiveness in the government's attitude toward crime, and sometimes on the part of the judiciary too. If the death penalty may be invoked in the murder of a policeman, how much less important is the life of a civilian slain in like circumstances, say in the robbery of a filling station or some such place? Or for political reasons, as in Quebec last year? There are valid questions which should be answered in Parliament.

MPs Divided on Whether to Televise Parliament

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs are still locked around the problem whether Commons proceedings should be televised.

The procedure committee, assigned the task of making recommendations on the subject to the Commons, has completed hearings. But members say it cannot get down to the job of writing a report.

Even a committee recommendation that CBC-TV conduct an experiment in broadcasting some parliamentary proceedings was allowed to die without a Commons vote taking any action.

The procedure committee heard briefs from the CBC and CTV networks, went to Washington to see how proceedings of a Senate committee are televised and got some advice from United Nations technicians.

But the committee has not called a meeting since the Commons reconvened Sept. 7.

A recent public opinion poll showed that 69 per cent of Canadians would like to see Parliament televised. Twenty-two per cent were opposed and nine per cent undecided.

Generally speaking, MPs seem to be against any TV broadcasting of Commons proceedings.

For one thing, they say they feel that televising of some of the tedious proceedings would turn off the public.

But some MPs argue that TV broadcasts would force Parliament to streamline its procedures—in other words, put on a snappy show that would appeal to the public day in and day out.

Current procedures would be incomprehensible to the public, requiring a motion-by-motion commentator similar to play-by-play announcers for football and hockey games.

Some MPs admit frankly they are no great shakes as orators. TV would only emphasize their shortcomings, they say.

Conversely, other MPs say TV would enjoin members to polish and shorten their speeches and put pithy instead of rambling questions.

The problem is that political. Many opposition MPs say they feel that the government, which makes all the announcements and enunciates all policy, would have a big advantage in TV time and appeal.

Conversely, Liberals say they feel opposition MPs would catch all the play with their queries at the daily question period.

Nearly all MPs complain at one time or another that reporters in the Commons distort, inadvertently or otherwise, their words. Many say they fear that TV would lead to even more of this alleged distortion.

Premier Chou En-lai's Increasing Prominence

China Tolerates U.S. While Keeping Wary Eye on Russia

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With more visitors from the outside world parading into the Chinese capital, Premier Chou En-lai continues to take a prominent public role as the Communist government's chief symbol of hospitality and its main spokesman at events arranged for the foreigners.

Chou's prominence has continued sharply with the rarity of recent formal appearances by the aged Communist party chief, Mao Tse-tung.

The latest foreign dignitary to be greeted by the premier and by thousands of dancing, singing Chinese was Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia.

All this serves to emphasize China's apparent importance as a formulator of recent changes in Chinese foreign policy, especially those providing for a less frigid attitude towards the United States.

Yet the new line in China's approach to the world seemingly remains a contentious issue in the policy-making circles of Peking.

In fact, some foreign observers suggest that the strange surface indications of something unusual brewing in Peking are related to high-level arguments over foreign rather than domestic policy.

The projected visit to Peking by President Nixon may be one such issue among factions in the Chinese party.

There are other issues, too, which possibly have led to disagreements pitting such relatively moderate leaders as Chou against more radical party men.

For instance, conflict may have flared over the question of support given by Peking to the central government of Pakistan against the rebels seeking greater autonomy for East Bengal.

Left-wing dissidents in Ceylon, who were considered at one point to have derived their ideological inspiration from Peking, also were left unsupported by the Chinese earlier this year and have since been crushed by the government in Colombo.

In addition to the ill-feeling this development was capable of causing on the radical wing of the Chinese Communist party, ill-feeling may have resulted from Peking's failure to back the recent leftist move in Sudan, an attempted revolution dramatically defeated by the rulers of that African state.

However, the mellowing of Chinese foreign policy apparent in Peking's plans for receiving Nixon does not mean that China and the U.S. have come closer to one another in terms of every-day action on the world scene.

In fact, there have been strong Chinese protests about the latest moves taken by the U.S. in connection with the Vietnam war and an attempt by Mao's men to curry renewed favor with the militant anti-Americans of Hanoi.

But remarks reported to have been made by Chou to U.S. visitors in Peking indicate that the Chinese remain deeply worried over the Soviet threat to their frontiers.

This concern about the designs and sheer might of the Russian colossus may prove enough, together with other considerations, to keep Peking interested in showing at least a degree of indulgence, if not active friendship, towards the Americans.

Property Tax Rebate Delays

An open letter to Mr. Clarke Rollins:

Sir:

Last year we were promised our property tax rebate cheques by Christmas, some got them, more didn't and some still haven't.

This year the Government has managed to get a lot of them out already. Could this be because it is election year? When all the Government needs do is send the clerk of each township a cheque for 75 percent of the property tax he has to collect, it prefers to keep thousands of civil servants on the pay roll, processing cheques for each individual property owner; this is just one more way in which it spends thousands of hard earned tax dollars so foolishly.

Your Government likes to tell the farmers to be more efficient, but when I make up my books I find that the money I paid in your salary, and that of your colleagues, is the poorest investment I've made.

It points clearly to the fact that if I were to manage my business as ineffectively as the Government "muddles through" with its business, I would be bankrupt in 48 hours.

I haven't forgotten "68" when Queen Park owed me $800 on January 27, and I got the cheque in August, with no interest added, and yet I have to pay to that same Government, OHSIP and OMSIP six months in advance and should my income tax payment be one hour late interest is added.

Planner Urges Community to Use Data Instead of Gathering Dust

Brockville Recorder and Times

It was rather interesting to note that one of the planning consultants submitting plans in connection with a possible waterfront development study told the Brockville Subdidiary Planning Board that he didn't think another study was necessary. He based this view on the "great number of reports and studies the city now has on hand".

This has been the position of the planner in comments regarding the proposed apartment development on the waterfront turned down by city council last week. And this consultant's observations, placed with the advice of the consultant now doing the parks and recreation study in the city, that the apartment building is compatible with the waterfront development, makes the decision of council more difficult to comprehend.

Speaking to the planning board this week the representative of Parkway Planning Associates of Ottawa, Mr. Helmut Schmitz, pointed out that instead of another study it was time the city started to make some use of the plans they already have that are "now gathering dust". He further pointed out that lots of data has already been put together for the city and now it should be applied". He was referring to planning studies that led to the creation of the official plan, the guide for new growth, including the land use study front; the transportation study, the guide for road development, as the city grows; the urban renewal study, a guide for redevelopment of the core area of the city, including the waterfront; and the recent parks and recreation study, a guide to such development. A goodly sum of the taxpayer's money, perhaps $50,000 has gone into these studies and plans but the plans mean little or nothing if the money isn't available to implement them.

Winter: About Normal!

Ottawa Journal

Here's some bad news for anybody who bought a snowblower after last winter's 14 feet of snow. The Old Farmer's Almanac which arrived in the mail this week, says the winter of 1971-72 should be about normal; that being around five to seven feet. This prognosis is based on a long - range U.S. Weather Bureau forecast for northern New Hampshire, but weathermen in Canada tell us usually roughly the same. With that aside, here's what's coming, says the Almanac: November, a trace; December, 12 inches; January, 22 inches; February, 17 inches; March, 8 inches and April, none. Temperatures too should be about average; that is, brutal in February. While we can't vouch for the Almanac's accuracy, the statistics may be a better indication of what's in store for us than a moist finger waved in the air or the depth of worms in the ground. If the predictions are too disappointing we'll send the Almanac a beetle in a matchbox for future consultations.

Davis Work Scheme Comes In For Criticism by NDP's Lewis

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau.

Toronto — When Premier Davis announced his plan for jobs and winter employment, and along with this gave notice of several other statements that he would make today, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said the premier was panicking.

This can be taken as political prose—or wishful thinking.

There was no real indication that the premier was panicked.

Rather he gave the impression he was following a calculated plan which had been drawn up a long time ago and which was designed to put the campaign last minute wallop.

Readers will recall that something along this line was predicted here quite a while ago, particularly on the employment question.

There was no political reason for Mr. Davis to have announced his program any earlier. This would only have made it open for that much more nitpicking.

There will be nit-picking, of course. And perhaps some of it justifiable.

The program probably isn't all that good.

But this is principally because no short-term program can be all that good.

In fact the Davis approach doesn't differ all that much from the proposals of the opposition parties.

It is essentially some quick make-work projects and then some pump priming which could put a bit more consumer money in the market.

The important announcement from the premier will be his plan for long-term employment.

At time of writing he hasn't announced it. But it will be just how deeply he proposes to go into employment and whether he and his advisers are candid enough to realize and recognize that the problem of employment in the future in Ontario and Canada is deeply rooted and calls for drastic measures, perhaps even drastic in our life-style.

Recall the comment of a friend on the Ward Cornell interviews of the PC's on television:

"It's the NHL Old Stars."

Another friend has topped this.

"It's hockey night in Canada," he says.

School Trustees Debate Pooling Film Resources

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Prince Edward County school trustees will consider the advisability of organizing a joint film board at their next meeting this month, examining recommendations forwarded by members of the education, library and supply and finance committees.

The film library would be shared by Prince Edward and Hastings county school boards and the Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School board.

An alternate plan has been proposed by the Picton film council and will be reviewed by school trustees before a decision is made.

A letter to members of the Prince Edward board of education sent by Picton town council reported on activities of the meeting of the Picton film board.

It was suggested trustees adopt an alternate method of film supply involving the annual payment of a lump sum of $400 to the film council "This money would provide all schools with unrestricted access to the film library throughout the school year.

The Lake Ontario Regional Library Board has supplied 300 titles to the film council and additional films will be provided annually.

Formerly teachers requested films by telephone or a personal visit and signed for them. Statements were presented periodically to the board of education by the film council.

If a joint library board is approved, films could be supplied at a cost of 90 cents to $1 for each pupil with the approximate total cost reaching $7,000 annually. This figure includes 50 to 60 cents a pupil charge for other related services.

Russell Williams, co-ordinator of special services said that in three years a joint film library could offer 2,000 films. Some schools now use approximately 200 films each year.

He added a question has been raised as to why the department of education is phasing out free-loan films and explained it is confronted with an impossible demand. Because of the many requests for films the department now favors regionalization and last year 18 joint film libraries were set up in Ontario.

If a joint film library is formed, the three boards of education involved would make application to the department of education for a 50 per cent grant on films purchased from the department.

"Wouldn't the department be sending one more cost back to us," asked trustee Dorothea Carson, discussing the joint film library proposal.

She was assured by Mr. Williams that the provision of free films on a loan basis has become an impossible task.

James Plomer, vice-chairman of the board observed there is "a certain element of wanting to pass this buck to the school boards "but asserted it is not a primary motive.

He remarked films spend a great deal of time in the mails and said regionalization would place them in the schools instead.

The vice - chairman urged a careful cost analysis of the joint film library proposal.

Edward Rutter, chairman of the finance committee, said he could not provide board members with an estimated cost for the plan since several figures were being "banded on the table".

"We cannot keep going up and up and up on the budget every year," he warned. Mr. Rutter moved trustees should explore the programs offered by the Picton film council as well as study information concerning a joint library.

Recommendations will be presented to the board at its next meeting by members of the finance, education, and library and supply committees.

401 Interchange Lights Requested

The Belleville Public Utilities Commission wants to erect a series of lights at the exit area of North Front Street and Highway 401, but must first receive word from the provincial Department of Transportation and Communications.

In a letter from Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP for Quinte, the PUC was advised that work is in "the preliminary stages between the department and the city.

"From the studies they have made, they have already ascertained that there is a necessity for some lighting and the city wants additional lighting," the letter reads.

Mayor J. Russell Scott, a member of the PUC, agreed at yesterday's commission meeting. "I think it's their responsibility and they (the province) should pay for it."

E. L. Burnham, secretary-manager of the PUC, said additional lighting is justified, mostly because of the brightness of adjacent mall parking area lights and lights from North Front Street and a gasoline service station near the exit ramp. This accumulated brightness often detracts motorists attention from exit ramps.

Commissioners have been advised that the province is at present designing lighting layouts for the North Front and possibly the Cannifton Road interchanges.

If costs are not met by the provincial government, the PUC will approach Belleville city council for funds.

Board Discusses Jobs for Students

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Prince Edward County students studying technical courses need experience gained through practical work.

John McNeil , Prince Edward County director of education Wednesday told trustees pupils require "live" projects as opposed to building and "unbuilding" a practice wall.

Mr. McNeil urged board members to consider projects now required for completion by the Prince Edward County board of education as opportunities for student assistance.

He also suggested a newspaper advertisement could be run to inform the public students eager for work experience would be willing to undertake outside projects if materials and parts are provided.

Mr. McNeil added, however, that the major portion of the school year would be needed for completion of this outside work.

The education director remarked, "If we have enough projects within the board let's not move any further. If not, let's get going with a yes or a no."

Two trustees pointed out that offers of student labor might conflict with the efforts of skilled workers in finding jobs.

Trustee Dorothea Carson remarked, "We had better use our heads and find a project we need and keep it in our school system."

She suggested if a flood of applications was received in answer to an advertisement, those whose outside jobs could not be completed because of student labor shortage might be offended.

Also, Mrs. Carson recalled when a project of this nature was taken into private homes for practical experience in housework, parental objections followed.

Trustees agreed to without a decision concerning school projects until a review of the 1972 budget. Maintenance items forwarded as principals' requests will be examined for suitability as student projects.

Thurlow Expects Drainage Fund

Thurlow Township farmers will have a $20,000 fund to draw upon for sub-surface drainage projects, a bid by township council to the Ontario Municipal Board is successful.

Approval by the OMB is expected to be a matter of formality since the proposal meets all the requirements of the Ontario Tile Drain Act. Farmers will be required to pay back their loans at an interest rate of 4 per cent annually.

In other council business Wednesday, police constable James Logue was given authority to lay charges against dog owners who have not purchased licenses by Oct. 20. Some 600 animals are still not registered even though the original licensing deadline was March 15.

Fees vary from $2 to $4 depending on the sex of the dog but after the new deadline, defaulting owners will be issued an additional amounts amounting to $10 per dog plus $3.50 court costs.

Insisting that action must be taken, council stipulated that owners may still pay their license fee at the township office after the 20th but will also be required to pay the fine for violation of the March 15 bylaw if a summons has already been issued.

Ernest L. Burnham

Burnham Plans 1972 Retirement

After 16 years of service with the Belleville Public Utilities Commission secretary-manager Ernest L. Burnham has announced his retirement, effective May 31, 1972.

A friendly man who takes the interests of employees and customers to heart, Mr. Burnham entered the utilities field in 1934 at the Peterborough Public Utilities Commission, shortly after graduation from the University of Toronto, where he earned his bachelor of applied science degree.

Following World War II service in RCAF radar units in the U.K. and India, he and his family moved to Belleville in May of 1955. He assumed the manager's position on July 1, 1961.

Mr. Burnham has seen quite a bit of growth within the commission since he joined. In fact, the 1970 revenue figure of $2,455,193 for water and electricity, is more than double that of 1955.

Of course, he says, the population has jumped from slightly more than 20,000, to its present level of 32,800.

The face of the PUC has also changed along with population. Back in 1955, the commission stopped selling household gas, their yards on Church Street were used to house equipment and vehicles. In 1956, the new depot was put into operation, and the decrepit buildings in the gasworks were given up.

"It was a great relief when we got that place," he says of the service facility.

An avid gardener and evening jogger, Mr. Burnham expects much of his retired life to be taken up with work in Eastminster United Church and Eureka Lodge, AF and A.M., a church steward and member of the Commission of United Churches of Canada, as is chairman of the property committee of the Bellville Presbytery and serves on the executive of the conference to United Churches of Canada.

Closer to his job, the PUC manager will have to relinquish several memberships in affiliated organizations, but will remain on the sub-committee on street lighting for the Canadian National Committee of the Commission Internationale de L'Eclairage.

However, "it's a bit early to tell: I might get another job to keep busy," he says.

Mr. Burnham, his wife Bernice and daughters Barbara and Margaret, live at 6 Stanley Park Drive. A third daughter, Brenda, is a laboratory technician at Centenary Hospital in Scarborough.

Although the retiring manager expects the commissioners to appoint assistant manager Neil Britton to his position, nothing definite has been announced.

"I think spring or early summer is the best time of year to retire. When things are coming to life, it's easier to take up a life of leisure."

Population Report

South Hastings Shows Growth, North Shrinks

Urban and rural municipalities in the line of Quinte district for the most part have shown a moderate population growth in the past five years.

But in isolated instances there has been a decline in population mainly in the northern townships of Hastings county.

This is shown in a preliminary bulletin from Statistics Canada, listing population figures for certain municipalities taken during the 1971 census.

The population counts shown in the bulletin are still subject to revision and do not include persons enumerated at temporary addresses such as at hotels, hospitals or boarding schools. However, figures shown are expected to be a close approximation of the final population figures to be published later.

The preliminary partial list included in the bulletin for Trenton with a population count of 14,405 as compared with 13,748 in the 1966 census.

This compares with a figure of 13,641 reported by the municipal assessment department in 1970.

The lower population figure given by the Trenton assessment office has been taken as the basis for the $5.75 per capita grant given by the province and this has resulted in the town losing almost $5,000 in grants this year alone.

Preliminary figures show Bancroft with a population of 2,367 as compared with 2,132 five years ago: Marmora village has 1,242 as compared with 1,331 and Stirling an even 1,500 as compared with 1,354.

Deseronto has shown only slight gain in the five-year period with 1,864 as compared with 1,836.

But according to census figures, Napanee has lost three persons and is listed with 4,600 as compared with 4,603. Brighton has 2,953 as compared with 2,766.

The following figures are given for certain rural municipalities with the 1966 count in brackets:

Ameliasburg, Wicklow and Bangor — 803 (745); Carlow — 1,154 (1041); Dungannon — 884 (901); Herschel — 588 (569); Hungerford — 2,220 (2,140); Limerick — 235 (270); Marmora and Lake — 1,290 (1,-340); Mayo — 363 (382); Thurlow — 5,621 (5,217); Tudor — 1,777 (1,708); Wollaston — 853 (883) and Sidney — 6,485 (5,960).

Belleville-Trenton-Consecon-Picton-Prince Edward county 1,777 (1,708).

Income Tax Cut Like Fine Wine

OTTAWA (CP) — The three-per-cent income-tax cut announced by Finance Minister E. J. Benson will hit Canadians like fine wine: The bouquet can be sniffed now, but the effect won't be felt for a while.

The reduction already is of 3½ months vintage—it is retroactively effective last July 1.

But deductions from pay cheques won't begin until the new year, when new tax schedules have been made up, Mr. Benson said people will be receiving refunds during the winter months.

For non-salaried persons who pay their income tax quarterly, the decrease will be felt immediately, or at least as soon as they pay their final instalment for this year.

Mr. Benson said his proposed tax measures would not reduce provincial revenues from corporate or personal income tax.

The tax cut means that Canadians will have had a six-per-cent tax reduction this year, effective last July 1.

In his June 18 budget, Mr. Benson announced removal of the three-per-cent surtax as of last July 1. The surtax had been in effect since 1968.

Inquiry Misled Is Claim

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A lawyer suggested at a judicial inquiry Thursday that an inquiry witness had misled police in their investigation of the declining parking-meter revenues in the city.

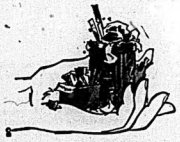
Alex Harry, counsel for Donald Jackson, an employee of the Sault Ste. Marie parking authority, referred to a signed statement given to police by a member of the Canadian Corps of Commissionaires, which had been employed by the authority.

He said Commissionaire William Moir told police that he believed Mr. Jackson was getting keys to certain parking meters from authority manager Douglas Reed on information that Mr. Jackson was repairing the meters.

Earlier, the authority was told that meter revenues rose considerably after collection was taken over by Brink's Express Co. of Canada Ltd.

Mr. Moir denied a suggestion by Mr. Harry that he (Mr. Moir) had ever suggested that Mr. Jackson and Mr. Reed were "in cahoots" in dubious activities concerning the meter revenue.

Earlier testimony also said Mr. Jackson made substantial bank deposits and bore improvements during 1969-70.



The hearing continues.

Coat Styles Give More Attention to Detail, Bigger Choice of Lengths

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

Shorter days. Chilly evenings. The all-too familiar nip in the air. The days of sun and sand, bikinis and sandals are clearly behind us. Time now to think of winter coats and cuddly furs.

What are some of the current trends in coats? Trims are predominant this year. Big bold bands in contrasting textures outlining hems, collars, cuffs. Collars and cuffs are bigger, wider, more emphatic this year.

The hooded coat is another definite trend. We've seen everything from wedding gowns to loungewear with hoods this year, so the hooded coat is a natural follow-up.

Lengths? The longuette or just-below the knee length is the most common but there's a sprinkling of midis too. The trend is towards the slightly longer lengths but there's a greater variety to choose from.

Other coat fashion notes: wide leather belts, buckles and buttons, in fact more detail than before. They're more fitted and feminine too, not the straight lines and shapeless silhouettes of yesteryear.

Planning to buy a mink this year? Word has reached the milk - and - diamonds set that minks are not plain any longer. Mink skins are worked horizontally, diagonally and in a variety of ways to make a younger looking coat. Hats are important too. An expensive fur coat cries out for a hat. With hats to complement their coats, even, inexpensive ones, younger women used to the bare-headed, straight - haired look of simple innocence could experiment with looks of sophisticated, gracious elegance, just for a change.

The pictures on this page illustrate teenager Janet Kerr's experiments with some sophisticated outfits for winter elegance. From a straight-haired no make-up look she changed to a sleek updo and finished off her make-up with false eyelashes. The six outfits she tried on were: a bound-tooth patterned wool coat by Aquascutum with a navy flapper hat; a tailored Aquascutum coat with off-centre buttons with a cossack lynx hat; a Persian lamb coat with lavender mink collar teamed with a mink derby hat; a leather coat with notch collar; cuffs and trimming of sheared lamb worn with a wide brimmed picture hat; a brown cross mink coat with a matching pill box hat; and a hooded coat of natural muskrat trimmed with blue fox.

The coats were for the experiment were provided by the courtesy of Woodley Furriers.

ROSLIN — St. Paul's Anglican Church, Roslin was the setting for the October wedding when Evelyn Dianne Geen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Geen, Roslin, was united in marriage to Brian Leonard Wicks of Adelaide, Australia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wicks, Lucindale, Australia. Rev. W. Earle officiated at the double-ring ceremony, while Mr. Fred Porter played organ music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Gwen Kingston of Tweed.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white tyfon chiffon over taffeta. The full-length sleeves were gathered at the wrists and trimmed with swiss lace. The shirred bodice featured a ruffled stand-up collar. A wide satin ribbon enhanced the narrow waistline, swiss lace also adorned the hemline of the gown. The long veil edged with wide Spanish lace ended in a train. She carried a cascade bouquet of bridal pink roses, stephanotis and ivy.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Ron Demille of Ottawa, wore a two-piece floor-length gown of polyester crepe, the long-sleeved ivory bodice was joined to the plum colored skirt with a wide co-ordinated printed belt. The same printed material trimmed her gold fashioned boater hat. She carried a basket of purple carnations and shasta daisies.

Miss Linda Fesar of Toronto and Miss Holly-Holmes of Tweed, cousin of the bride were bridesmaids and were attired identically to the matron of honor and carried baskets of flowers.

Master Wayne Geen of Oshawa, nephew of the bride was ring-bearer. Garnet Geen of Toronto, brother of the bride was best man and the ushers were Douglas Geen also brother of the bride of Toronto and Ron Demille of Ottawa.

At the reception and dance at the Sun Luck Gardens, Belleville, the bride's mother received she, guests wearing a two-piece coat and dress ensemble of gold brocade complete with dark brown accessories and corsage of Woburn Abbey roses.

For the wedding trip to Quebec City and the Laurentian Mountains, the bride donned a red wool two-piece suit in mid-length with black shoes and shoulder purse and corsage of white sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Wicks will reside at 191 Albert St., Belleville.

Sweet 'n' Sour Chicken A Tasty Chinese Dish

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: . . . we are fond of Chinese food . . . do you have a recipe for sweet and sour chicken? . . Carol G.

ANSWER: This is popular and I am happy to repeat it from January 1969.

CHINESE SWEET AND SOUR CHICKEN

(Serves 6 to 8)

Chicken Ingredients:

8 whole chicken legs, cut at joint (16 pieces in all)
¾ cup flour
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ cup butter
1 cup hot water
SAUCE:
¼ cup (4 tbsp.) cornstarch
½ cup (4 tbsp.) sugar
6 tbsp. vinegar
4 cups hot water
6 tbsps. catsup
2 tbsps. soy sauce

To prepare chicken mix flour, salt and pepper in strong paper bag and shake dried chicken pieces in them to coat. Melt butter in large, shallow baking dish (or use two med. pans), add chicken pieces, turn each over in coat with butter, add hot water and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 45-50 min. turning once.

To make Sauce mix sauce ingredients together in order given in large saucepan and cook stirring until slightly thickened.

NOTES: 1) If this is to be served on a platter transfer meat from pan to platter and pour hot sauce over.

2) If this Sweet and Sour Chicken is to be served for a guest dinner or buffet in a chafing dish pour sauce into top section of chafing dish, transfer chicken pieces to it and hold hot over boiling water over one of those new Ronson burners or Sterno.

This dish obviously should be served with fluffy boiled rice and is highly recommended especially for Chinese food devotees.

Racial Discrimination Dangerous

By DORIS CLARK

The year 1971 is now being observed as the International Year for Action to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination. It provides a fresh opportunity for all nations and individuals of goodwill to join in the campaign to stamp out these evils.

1971 must be a year in which the doctrines of racial superiority are recognized everywhere as obnoxious, dangerous and unjust, and in which more effective measures are launched to end, once and for all, the shameful phenomenon of racial segregation and discrimination. . . .

Let us redouble our efforts to achieve these goals! — U Thant, U.N. Secretary-General.

And do you know how discrimination starts? By a mother telling her small daughter not to play with the little girl whose family comes from a far country, who speaks a strange language, who looks or smells different.

The Planet earth has shrunk so much we just cannot afford to high hat anybody.

* * *

Dear Doris: At 15 I feel I don't know how to act around boys. I have made friends with a lot of boys, but none of them asks me for a date.

I am quite tall, five-foot-nine to be exact. Could this have anything to do with discouraging shorter boys? — Dateless.

Dear Dateless: Hold everything! You aren't exactly an old lady. At age 15, boys are still shy; money-shy too! And — would you believe it? — clueless about how to act around girls, often!

For a while your height might make the timid ones hesitate, until they become a bit more worldly and recognize that personality and warm friendliness are what count in a girl.

Confidential to Eddie, Wanting to Die: Do you realize that when you confided in your chum's mother, you put a real burden on her? If she thought you really meant to commit suicide, she could hardly, in all conscience, keep your words to herself.

She went to the two people who care most about you, in the hope that they could persuade you not to take your own life. So, even though you wouldn't have had your parents know about this for the world, you will have to forgive her and reach out in friendship again.

Believe me, suicide is not the answer. There is a big purpose for you in this life and it is up to you to discover it and get going. The things you consider tragedies (at 18) you will laugh at later on. Keep your chin up!

Ask Doris about your difficulty. She will discuss it or send you to a source of help.

Ann Landers

Older Man in Favor of Marijuana

Dear Ann Landers: When are you going to stop kidding people? I refer to your stand on marijuana. It is absurd.

I am a 73-year-old and have been smoking marijuana since 1921. There is nothing wrong with it. I am living proof. I would also like to point out that in the 50 years I have been smoking pot (both in a water pipe and in cigarettes) I have never gotten in any trouble nor have I had the desire to try something stronger.

Pot relaxes me and gives me a pleasant glow. The only thing wrong with it is that it's illegal. I think this ought to be changed. As for that person who reported the stupid talk at pot parties, these same people would have talked stupid without pot. It doesn't make anyone smarter—or dumber.

I'll bet you a $20 bleg of grass you'll never print this.—Buffalo Bill

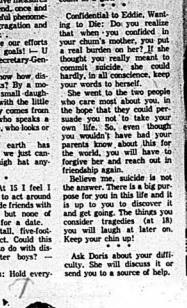
Dear Bill: You lose, but don't send the grass. I'm not interested.

I have said repeatedly that pot affects people differently, depending on what is smoked, how it is smoked, and the emotional stability and general physical condition of the smoker. Some smokers feel nothing, some become completely disoriented and others experience a definite high. It is a well-known fact that some smokers get so stoned they are virtually paralyzed, while others remain functional and manage to keep their smoking a well-hidden secret from those with whom they work and live.

Apparently you can handle it, Dad, but don't assume everyone can. The psychiatrists with whom I consult are seeing increased numbers of potheads who have freaked and are now psychotic. Marijuana is NOT harmless for some people, and I am dead set against its legalization.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm your age, married about the same time you did (1930), and we have three children. My husband has changed jobs 33 times. One of our children is a schizophrenic. He does fairly well when he's on medication but he has tried to kill us twice when he was off his medicine.

Six months ago my husband bought a 10-acre plot of ground about 35 miles from here. Although I've worked for 22 years, he did not consult me. When I learned of his financial commitment I was furious. He built a crude shack on the place and goes there every weekend. After putting in a 40-hour week I am not up to roughing it. It is barn with no plumbing, no electricity —not to mention plenty of mice and flies.



Last week I learned that my young cousin has been going there with my husband. This has been driving me up the wall. When I confronted them they looked me straight in the face and insisted it's a brother-sister relationship.

Leaving him is impossible. What can I do? I want both him and my cousin to know I don't buy the brother-sister garbage. They read your column every day. Give me a hand, will you please? Thanks.—Me

Dear You: Here it is. You're right and you're welcome.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been corresponding with a neat kid who goes to school on the other coast. We are both 19 and in college. He starts his letters, "Hello There . . . " or "Hi!" and signs off with "So long," or "This is it for now . . . Why can't he say, "Dear Ruth" and close with something a little more personal?—Feeling Chilly

Dear F. C.: He's not ready. Don't crowd him. The important thing is that he does write.

PLASTIC RUGS — Mrs. Russ Bryce, better known as "Dick, completes a rug which she crocheted from bread wrappers, laundry covers and shopping bags. Plastic Bread Wrappers Converted Into Rugs

It's because she wants their bread wrappers.

Mrs. Bryce crochets scatter rugs from plastic bread wrappers, laundry covers, shopping bags. It takes about 100 bread wrappers to make one rug.

She says they wear well and can be cleaned with a scrub brush and milk soap. She has devised a way to get the knots that tie the wrappers together pulled to the underside of the rug. The knots make a rug skid-proof, she says.

Mrs. Bryce and her husband Russ live in a senior citizen's home. Dick is a nickname for her given name, Benedictine.

Mrs. Bryce says she likes to feel her hobby contributes to easing the pollution problem because it re-uses dozens of plastic wrappers.

To make the rugs, she cuts each wrapper in a continuous strip, as you would peel an apple. The strips are tied together in square knots and rolled into balls like wool. When the ball has 100 wrappers wound on it, it will make a throw rug.

For years she was a volunteer program director at Pioneer Manor a residence for the elderly and infirm. Now she's using her talents to help keep the elderly citizens of her housing project busy.

Stanfield and Lewis Assail Benson For His Latest Economic Proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's proposed cure for the economic ills of the country drew the expected disapproval of opposition party leaders in the Commons Thursday.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Finance Minister E. J. Benson should resign. And the government should start looking around for new economic advisers, he said.

NDP Leader David Lewis said if the government was lucky, the measures it introduced would create between 30,000 and 50,000 jobs. Not very impressive when the unemployed could total 800,000, he declared.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette called the measures "just another band-aid."

"It isn't going to solve the problem of unemployment in Canada," said Mr. Caouette.

Mr. Benson introduced a $1 billion package to prop up the economy, including a seven-per-cent tax cut for corporations and a three-per-cent slice in individual taxes, both retroactive to July 1.

Mr. Stanfield said that because the cut in corporate taxes would last only until December, 1972, it would do little to create jobs.

A three-per-cent cut in individual taxes would have been much more effective in June, when Mr. Benson delivered his formal budget speech, said Mr. Stanfield.

Coming so late, the cut in individual taxes should have been as high as eight per cent to have the desired effect, said the Conservative leader.

Mr. Lewis said the difference in the tax cuts revealed the typical Liberal double standard.

They benefited the richest owned resource firms—and the wealthiest individuals. But low-income wage earners would gain only a few dollars.

Mr. Caouette blamed all the economic troubles on the advice of government economists.

For example, he said, the economists now are telling the poor to spend more money to get the country going again.

"That's an economist for you."

Mr. Stanfield said the government, after ignoring the advice of the opposition and others who called for tax cuts and a winter works program, finally was listening.

But this death-bed repentance came too late.

Mr. Lewis was of the same mind. It would take months for the government plan to take effect, thus leaving winter unemployment high.

Mr. Caouette thought he detected "a program that smells of elections."

This Is Not Election Budget - - Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — "This is not an election budget," Finance Minister E. J. Benson said Thursday night after presenting a tax-cutting, higher-spending program to the Commons.

He said at a news conference he knows of no reason for a general election at this time, although, he added, Prime Minister Trudeau might express a different view today at a noon news conference.

Mr. Benson declined to forecast the number of jobs which will be created by the new $1-billion program beyond saying it will be substantial.

Neither would he forecast that the rate of unemployment would decline.

Mr. Benson has been stung at least twice this year with predictions that the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment would go down.

The minister did make one definite forecast: "The economy will be booming by the end of 1972."

He added one if—if the United States did not become more protectionist.

Commons Galleries Filled

OTTAWA (CP) — Night sittings of the House of Commons do not usually attract large crowds to the public galleries. If 50 persons watch backbench MPs from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m., it is considered normal.

Thursday night was different. The announcement earlier in the day that a special debate on the economy was scheduled filled every one of the 570 seats in the galleries and more than 100 persons were turned away by security guards.

"It wasn't quite as busy as a budget night, but it was close," said one guard on duty in the Centre Block. "The telephone didn't stop ringing all afternoon and we knew we would have a crowd."

Those lucky enough to come early were repaid for their efforts.

They heard Finance Minister E. J. Benson announce a three-per-cent cut in individual taxes, and that was probably worth the trouble of coming to the Hill all by itself.

Dropping Stabilization Bill Makes It Tough for Liberal

ASSINIBOIA, Sask. (CP) — Like it or not, the federal Liberals have made it hot for their candidate in the Nov. 8 byelection in Assiniboia.

Farmers in this federal constituency in southern Saskatchewan, like farmers throughout the Prairies, are burning with discontent over the aborted grains-stabilization plan.

Jim Hooker, a 41-year-old farmer and former member of the Saskatchewan legislature, is contesting the seat for the Liberals and some observers believe he's fighting an impossible battle. But Mr. Hooker feels otherwise.

The former MLA for Notukeu-Willowbunch concedes a victory of sorts to the Progressive Conservatives and New Democrats in having the stabilization plan withdrawn.

"But it was a hollow victory at the expense of the western farmers," he said during a panel discussion attended by the other two candidates—Conservative Lawrence Watson and New Democrat Bill Knight.

Mr. Hooker said the bill was not a cure-all but its withdrawal will be a big economic loss to farmers.

And so the stage has been set for the rapidly-closing campaign in a constituency that lost its representation in the Commons by the death of Liberal A. B. Douglas.

It is the type of setting that will appeal to NDP supporters —another opportunity to lambaste federal agriculture policies. That trick was largely credited for the party's provincial election victory over the former Liberal administration last June.

But it still could be a close race if the pattern of the last federal general election in the riding is followed.

In that 1968 election, Douglas deposed Watson by just 95 votes with a total of 9,636 ballots in his favor. The NDP candidate, Bruce L. Wilson, wasn't too far off the mark either. He polled 341 fewer votes than Douglas.

In the last nine byelections since the 1968 general election, NDP candidates captured four seats, the Liberals three and the Conservatives two.

Nomination day in Assiniboia is Oct. 25.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, NDP Leader David Lewis and former leader T. C. Douglas all have campaigned in the riding.

Doctors Oppose Legal Marijuana

MONTREAL (CP) — A committee of prominent doctors objected Thursday to any legalization of marijuana and criticized the Le Dain commission for publishing a "highly permissive, fact-hiding and vacillating" interim report last year.

In a statement to a news conference, the committee of 10 doctors from six provinces also described as "inexcusable" a claim by the federal government's commission on youth that "soft drugs are relatively harmless, or at least, so they seem in the absence of any conclusive medical evidence to the contrary."

The Le Dain report had recommended that marijuana and hashish should be under the control of the food and drug directorate and that possession should not be a criminal offence. The youth commission report, presented to State Secretary Gerard Pelletier in July, was in favor of legalizing marijuana.

Dr. Frank A. Dunsworth, a Halifax psychiatrist, read the statement and said the group had been formed because of what the doctors saw as a lack of reaction from professional groups to drug abuse in Canada.

At the news conference with Dr. Dunsworth, a past president of the Canadian Psychiatric Association, were Dr. Fred Lundell of McGill University, Dr. Robert Dugnay, associate professor of clinical psychiatry at University of Montreal, and Dr. Charles Brown, a Charlottetown, P.E.I. pediatrician.

Dr. Lundell, a practising psychiatrist, said he had seen enough evidence of adverse reactions to marijuana, hashish and mescaline in his patients to warrant a growing concern.

The committee said their most "immediate and grave" concern was the possibility that the final report of the Le Dain Commission, expected in December, will be similar to the interim report.

In the interim report, the statement said, the Le Dain commission showed "both bias and social and scientific irresponsibility." Used as an example of irresponsibility was the publishing of 25 unsigned letters, "unqualified, and completely unscientific, 22 of which extol the so-called 'delights' of using marijuana."

The committee said that the evidence of the harmful effects of marijuana was buried among hundreds of pages so that "no clear warning could be derived by an uncritical reader."

Russian Boss Now Colorful

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Leonid Brezhnev has not only enhanced his personal position in the Kremlin leadership—he is also emerging as a somewhat more colorful individualized personality.

The 65-year-old Communist party chief surprised West German journalists last month. While waiting at the airport for West German Chancellor Willy Brandt to arrive for talks in the Crimea, Brezhnev went up to the reporters and talked with them.

It was a big departure from the usual practice of the current Soviet leadership, which overthrew the late Nikita Khrushchev seven years ago. Khrushchev, a loquacious man ever-ready with a salty comment, was a reporter's dream. But his successors have been far less accessible.

What happens when a usually remote, highly-placed man makes himself unexpectedly available, the German journalists were so taken aback that they stood around sheepishly at first until one asked a question.

What Brezhnev had to say was not the sort of stuff that makes headlines. He asked the Germans to write well about the meeting so as not to spoil German-Soviet relations which, he said, had been so bad before.

But what was interesting was that the burly general-secretary of the party was prepared to talk to the press at all.

One thing is certain about Brezhnev; he has emerged over the last year as the dominant personality on the foreign policy front, a sphere that was once Kosygin's domain.

At the Soviet party congress last March Brezhnev put forward an elaborate "peace program." He followed this with successive proposals for troop reductions and U.S.-Soviet naval agreements. All of this kept the name Brezhnev in world headlines in connection with the word "peace."

In addition, he has also flowered into a statesman meeting the world's other statesmen.

It was he who talked with Willy Brandt in the Crimea, on Soviet-West German relations.

Four years ago it was Kosygin who undertook the first visit by one of the current leaders to London. Now it is Brezhnev who is making the first trip to Paris.

Not that Kosygin is out of it. He recently has visited several countries and will visit others soon as part of an itinerary which will have taken him to Canada, Algeria, Morocco, Denmark and Norway.

Amid all the guesswork there is room for belief that Kosygin is withdrawing from the foreign policy scene not simply because of loss of prestige but because, as an economic administrator that he is known to be, he is needed more on the domestic front.

President Nikolai Podgorny, once badly underestimated by the Kremlin-watchers, has also emerged as an important statesmanlike figure, taking a serious interest in foreign affairs, especially the Middle East.

Few Attend Meeting

STIRLING (Special) — An All Candidates Rally for Hastings Riding was held last night in Stirling. The rally had been organized by Mrs. Ciel Bolduc of Stirling and Mrs. George Williams was chairman. Attendance at the rally by local people wasn't as good as had been expected.

Candidates at the rally included Rev. Ian Munro, Liberal candidate for Hastings Riding and Richard Lunn, New Democratic Candidate for the riding. Clarke Rollins, Conservative candidate was unable to attend.

The group was welcomed to the village by Reeve Robert Anderson with the candidates being introduced by Mrs. Bolduc. Each candidate was given ten minutes to address the group. A question and answer period followed this.

Mr. Lunn, from Hillier in Prince Edward County, spoke of the changes that have been taking place in Hastings and Prince Edward counties. He talked of the closing down of cheese factories in both counties and the takeover of industries by American firms and how these factories after being bought were closed and moved to other areas away from the counties.

Mr. Lunn spoke of the responsibility there was in keeping the separate schools as they came under the constitution. He said that there is a need to combine the facilities of one school to provide for the public and separate school students.

Laws of injunction over striking employees are unfair and unjust, said Mr. Lunn. Merits of the employer and employee should be weighed before a judge should have the right to allow an injunction.

"The farmer is the forgotten man," said Mr. Lunn in a response to a question from the floor on farm income. "Pay the farmer anything let the consumer pay through the nose." said Mr. Lunn, is the way the farming industry is set up now under the present government.

Ian Munro from Tweed spoke of the loss of power by the people and by the councils for any county municipality. He said that there is the need of the municipal government by the introduction of regional government.

In answer to a question from the floor on whether the party was going to allow Americans to buy Canadian land, Mr. Munro gave a straight no. He said Americans would be able to lease and rent the land but would not be able to buy.

Mr. Munro also said separate school education came under the constitution but was on to say that it would come under the department of education. He said that this would arise from students sharing the facilities of one school owned by the department.

Mr. Munro called for "more Canada," saying that there was too much Americanization. He said that centralization of the school system was brought up from the United States. He said that school boards in the U.S. are finding that the schools are too large and are now decreasing student enrolment. This same thing has happened in Canada He also mentioned textbooks that are used are printed in United States.

Mr. Munro and Mr. Lunn both agreed that there is a need for a change in the Ontario government. They both said that the old democratic government has been taken away from the people. That people do not care what gets in and that this was shown at the meeting last night by the number of people present.

Profile of A Lake

Frank Maher, department of lands and forests fisheries research supervisor, shows how contour maps of lake bottom are developed from depth sounder readings. Maps are one of tools used in research into lakes aimed at developing fish management plans. (Special Photo)

Balance Key to Sports Fishery

TORONTO (Special) — Fish management units help Ontario's sport fish maintain a delicate balance between overand under - population, says Douglas Dodge of the department of lands and forests.

Mr. Dodge told the Toronto bureau of The Intelligencer the department operates 10 fish management units on major lakes in the province. The locations are Napanee for Lake Ontario, Sibdald Point provincial park for Lake Simcoe, Owen Sound for Lake Huron, North Bay for Lakes Nipissing and Temagami, Sault Ste Marie for Lake Superior, McDermott for Lake Nipigon, Port Francis for Rainy Lake, Kenora for Lake of the Woods, and Lindsay for the Kawarthas.

The aim of the fish management unit, Mr. Dodge said, is to eventually develop a plan for management of the total lake environment.

"Management involves not only the fisheries resource," he said, "but all other kinds of recreational and commercial activity on the lake."

A biologist and a fisheries technician staff the units full-time. Mr. Dodge said. Students work on a large number of projects in summer, and conservation officers who patrol the areas also contribute information.

Problems faced by the unit may range from development of a sport fishery for Lake Ontario to assessing a trend in sport fishing on Lake Superior, now primarily a commercial preserve, Mr. Dodge said. In the case of most lakes, he said, the unit is involved in exhaustive research before long - range management plans can be drafted.

Detailed information about the lake must be collected, he said. That includes the physical data — depth of the lake, temperatures, water chemistry — and the fish populations living there.

Then the researchers seek information about the people using the lake. That information, Mr. Dodge said, includes not only the use of the lake for fishing, but for cottages, commercial activities and recreation.

Much of the information about the lake comes from lake surveys conducted by crews of biology students throughout the province.

Frank Maher, fisheries inventory supervisor, says the lake survey program is the largest of several data-collecting projects.

The two-man student crews are trained for two weeks at lands and forests school at Dorset. They are equipped with portable depth sounding and chemical testing gear. Mr. Maher said each crew tests an average of 30 lakes each summer. He said nearly 50 crews worked on lake surveys this season.

Survey crews use the depth sounder to draw a contour map of the lake bottom. They test water samples to determine the chemical composition of the water. Special nylon gill nets capture fish alive and an accurate assessment of the population is made.

Information from the surveys is routed through departmental district offices to Mr. Maher's unit in Toronto, where it is collated and stored in a computer bank, that is being developed now.

"No other agency in the world has this volume of good, solid data coming in," Mr. Maher said.

But researchers must relate that data to the actual yield of the lake before any predictions can be made, or management plans set, Mr. Maher said.

The major method of assessing the lake's yield is the creel survey.

Conservation officers canvass fishing areas, and question anglers about their catch and the length of time they fished. The answers, says William Straight, fish harvest assessment biologist, yield an accurate estimate of the harvest.

"It fills in the last gap in the biological data on the lake," Mr. Straight said.

Then, he said, management plans can be made. Those plans might take the form of increased or decreased limits on particular game species, or changes in the length of the season.

Creel surveys resulted in reduction of lake trout limits in northern Ontario in 1970, he said, because the species was under too much pressure. The rainbow season of the Great Lakes was extended, he said, because surveys showed the species was "under - exploited".

Lake surveys, creel surveys, and the information gathered by fish management units overlap in their efforts to reach a common goal, the biologists say — the establishment of "strong management guidelines" for Ontario's 250,000 lakes.

$1-million Food Plant Announced for Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — Decision was made by the Ontario Development Corporation yesterday to provide Robin Hood Multi Foods with a $220,000 forgivable loan application toward construction of a new $1-million factory in north Trenton.

Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP for Quinte, made the announcement at a Quinte Fruit Growers' banquet here last night.

"While we are here today to celebrate the opening of the new apple juice plant, it may be an appropriate time to spring a decision on another industry," he said.

The new factory will be located at the corner of Sidney Street and Douglas Road near the Crane of Canada plant.

No announcement has been made by the company as to when construction will start, but Trenton industrial commission member Paul Tripp said "they will not let the grass grow under their feet."

He said a start will probably begin on the new light industry before the end of the year. Robin Hood will employ 35 people when it begins production here.

The Trenton plant will produce a selection of frozen fruit and vegetable pie and pastry products, drawing much of the filling materials from local sources.

Mayor Duncan McDonald said yesterday he had had negotiations with Robin Hood executives at CFB Trenton in recent months trying to persuade the company to locate in Trenton. He said Trenton clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry has done much of the groundwork behind the company's decision to establish a plant here.

Sewage Lagoon Poses Problem

STIRLING (Special) — Stirling Council is facing a problem with the village's sewage system lagoon.

Reeve Robert Anderson reported at a recent council meeting that he had been approached in the spring to get council's assistance in repairing the system of lagoons as a result of water from the lagoon.

The reeve said he visited the location and saw that it would take more than the original "two loads of gravel", so he had to come back to council for more authorization.

The basic problem is that the ditch from the lagoon is partially full of 10-years' accumulation of sediment, and the only way to clean this is with a bucket fitted on an extendable arm. The unmade dike will not likely hold the truck and whether easy access to the ditch can be otherwise obtained is to be investigated.

The council agreed to contact McPeake construction to have them survey the situation and recommend what should be done.

Agriculture Minister Compliments Growers

TRENTON (Staff) — William Stewart, Ontario minister of agriculture and food, told area fruit growers here last night they have exhibited both courage and foresight in establishing a new apple packaging plant at Trenton.

Speaking at a banquet in the Legion Hall sponsored by Quinte Fruit Growers Ltd., he said the $750,000 operation opened earlier in the day is one of Ontario's finest and an example of the technological advances being made in agriculture.

The new Trenton plant process for 250,000 bushels of apples and the grading, waxing and packaging of 2,400 bushels in an eight - hour day.

One of the directors of the new operation, Eben James, said the plant will provide for the total handling of apples between the grower and the consumer. "We now have a fully integrated facility," he said.

Although Mr. Stewart said studies are being made in apple marketing, he expressed serious concern in his Trenton address with the future of marketing systems.

Up-to-date Pied Piper To Lead Santa's Parade

At last night's meeting of the Santa Claus Parade Committee, it was announced by chairman Frank Foley that Gimby will be headlining the parade, leading a choir of 50-strong in the centennial theme song Canada.

The choir will be comprised of public school students who will march down the parade route, singing and dancing to the beat of Mr. Gimby's Canada, while Mr. Gimby marches on before, dressed as a contemporary Pied Piper.

"Mr. Gimby attained the reputation of the Pied Piper through his numerous television appearances, surrounded by children voicing his song," said a spokesman for the committee.

Out of the discussion on costumes for the choir came the suggestion "why don't the children carry small Canadian flags while marching?" The next question was where to get the flags.

Stu Meeks, member of the committee without waiting for the meeting to conclude, promptly contacted Dr. R. T. Potter and obtained the necessary number of flags.

This year's parade may have to be a little shorter and members of the committee agree, that shredder choice of floats will be necessary to accomplish this.

"We don't want a recurrence of last year's parade when there was 2½-miles of parade circling and overlapping on its two-mile route around the downtown area," said Mr. Foley. "With our luck, the quality of floats will be as good as or better than last year and the whole thing could turn out to be even longer."

A parade permit has not yet been applied for the committee, but submissions are in the process of being made and spokesmen say, "it will be here within the coming week."

Few changes have been made in the organization of the parade and its route remains completely unchanged from last year.

Forming up at Foley Supply on Wallbridge Crescent, the parade will proceed down west Moira to the upper bridge, south on Front St., turning left to go east on Dundas and again left to go north on Pinnacle St., and back to its starting point.

The theme of this year's parade will be Christmas in Other Countries and the parade committee invites a nationalistic group to contact them for information on how they can submit an entry for the parade.

Another suggestion, that was later passed in the minutes, was that a small grant be made to area public schools to help in defraying the cost of a float to be entered in the parade.

"In the past, schools have been slow participating because of the cost involved," said Mr. Foley. "This year we will grant them a nominal allowance and supply the tractor and wagon for the float."

"The thing is for sure," said one member of the committee, "and that is that we have lots of horses in the parade from the local stables."

Another member, not quite as enthused about horses, contested this saying, "there were too many last year".

He made no comment after being told "from the reactionletters mailed last year by area children, horses beat Santa Claus 26-13.

On attraction that seems to be becoming a great tradition for the parade is the parade marshall, 82-year-old Harry Abbott.

This year will mark the seventeenth time Mr. Abbott has led the parade, clad in gold from head to foot and sporting his three-cornered hat.

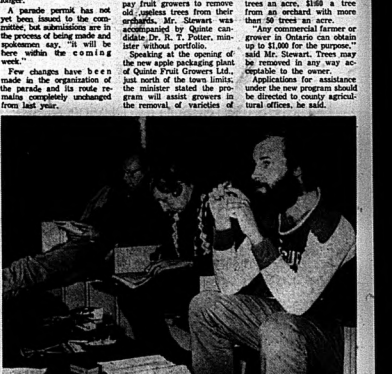
Again this year, awards will be presented for float competition. Results of competition will not be available for a few days because of a new judging scheme.

"This year we are taking pictures of each float while on the road, and in this way we hope it will be a simpler and more efficient job for the judges," said a spokesman for the committee.

It was also disclosed at the meeting that the Belleville Downtown Association has made a grant to the committee of $1,000. The city has also made a grant of $500.

Aid to Orchardists

Tree Removal Grants Announced



TRENTON (Staff) — Ontario minister of agriculture and food William Stewart announced here yesterday the provincial government will pay fruit growers to remove old useless trees from their orchards. Mr. Stewart was accompanied by Quinte candidate, Dr. R. T. Potter, minister without portfolio.

Speaking at the opening of the new apple packaging plant of Quinte Fruit Growers Ltd., just north of the town limits, the minister stated the program will assist growers in the removal of varieties of trees no longer profitable or viable to maintain.

By the new plan, farmers will receive a grant of $5 for the removal of a tree from an orchard with less than 50 trees an acre, $160 a tree from an orchard with more than 50 trees an acre.

"Any commercial farmer or grower in Ontario can obtain up to $1,000 for the purpose," said Mr. Stewart. Trees may be removed in any way acceptable to the owner.

Applications for assistance under the new program should be directed to county agricultural offices, he said.

Rehearsal in Progress

Ernst Kneisel, a member of the cast and Rene Robertson, stage manager, follow the script while Ted Bairstow, director, gives instructions to the actors on the stage at a rehearsal of Harvey, the Belleville Theatre Guild production which will open the season in the first week of November.

Guild Preparing Harvey

With the November 10 opening coming up fast, Belleville Theatre Guild members participating in Harvey, this year's first production, keep the lights in the playhouse burning almost every night. Rehearsals, production meetings and set - designing are well under way, according to Ted Bairstow, director.

The cast of Harvey consists of Ernst Kneisel, Joan Green, Peter Kitcher, Vivian Barnes, Sheila McCrystal, Clive Hitchon, Debbie Anderson, Jo-anne Cunningtton, Ken Rose and Kathleen Forrester. Ken Graham is working on the stage set.

Asked for his comments on directing his first play for the Belleville Theatre Guild, Mr. Bairstow said "I am very encouraged. The members work hard and are really interested in acting. Most of them are highly talented or experienced or both, so the acting part of the play should be very good. Rehearsals are going very well as well as can be expected or even better."

He continued that the major problem is the stage set. The play calls for two realistic but completely different rooms. It is difficult to make rooms that are convincing and interesting and at the same time leave enough room for the actors on the small stage he said, but added that Ken Graham had come up with some good ideas.

During early nights, production meetings are held to review progress in set design and construction, costumes and other aspects of the play, besides acting.

The play will run from November 10 to 13 and from November 17 to 20 at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

Oriole Bats Cold

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles, unable to explain what happened to their once potent attack in Pittsburgh, try to regain their batting eyes at a workout in friendly Memorial Stadium today.

"I don't know what's going on," outfielder Frank Robinson said, "but I think we ought to burn the bats we used in Pittsburgh."

After cracking three home runs among their 10 hits in the opening game of the World Series and 14 singles in the second game, both Baltimore victories, the Orioles suddenly went cold in Pittsburgh.

While losing three straight to the Pirates, the Orioles made just nine hits—just three in the last 18 innings after the first three batters singled to open game No. 4

A Robinson home run averted a shutout as Steve Blass pitched a four-hitter in the third game. Two of the three first-inning singles in game No. 4 never left the infield, and the other safety was a bloop double.

"They haven't knocked the bats out of our hands, although they have pitched good games," third baseman Brooks Robinson said. "We've just stopped hitting."

Frank Robinson, while giving special credit to the performance of Blass, blamed Baltimore batters for most of the futility at the plate.

"I wish I knew what to do," Manager Earl Weaver said. "Maybe the day off will help."

Pirates Want Knockout Blow On Baltimore's Real Grass

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates, poised on the threshold of World Series history, head for Baltimore hoping to deliver the knockout blow to the suddenly-staggering Orioles as quickly as possible.

The Pirates took command of the series by sweeping three straight games on the artificial tartan turf of Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium. They are set to go for the title in Saturday's sixth game with Bob Moose, another member of their nondescript pitching staff that has suddenly stilled the Baltimore bats.

It was Nelson Briles' turn in Thursday's crucial fifth game and the veteran right-hander responded with a brilliant two hitter that gave the Pirates a 4-0 victory and left them one game away from their first title since 1960.

Suddenly, the series that seemed a mismatch when Baltimore won the first two games has turned around and the world champion Orioles are the team in trouble.

If the Pirates beat the Birds Saturday, they will become the first team in series history to win four straight after dropping the first two games.

Four other teams have won the title in seven games after dropping the first two. But no team has come back from that deficit to win the classic in six.

"We'll see what kind of club this is on Saturday," said Frank Robinson in the sombre Baltimore dressing room. "We can still win if we want to win."

Briles called his fifth-game victory, "the culmination of everything I've worked for in the last two years."

"They've been two hard years with a lot of work and not too much success," he said.

Briles was a mainstay of the St. Louis Cardinal pitching staff with 48 victories in three seasons before slumping to a 6-7 record last year. The Cards swapped him to Pittsburgh in a four-player trade last winter.

"We figured on him as a spot starter and long man out of the bullpen," said Danny Murtaugh, manager of the Pirates. Used both ways, Briles was 8-4 with a 2.04 earned-run average. He managed just four complete games.

But Murtaugh planned to start him in the third game of the National League playoffs against San Francisco Giants.

Then, a few minutes before game time, he came up with a pulled groin muscle and the start went to Bob Johnson instead. The Pirates won the game but Briles felt lost.

"It was a low point in my career," he said.

But Murtaugh didn't quit on the veteran right-hander and gave him the start in the pivotal fifth World Series game .This time, Briles was ready.

He needed only 99 pitches to dilcose of the Orioles and faced just 29 batters—two over the minimum.

He was in command from the start and got the only run he needed when Bob Robertson rocked Dave McNally's first pitch for a lead-off homer in the second inning.

Briles drove in a second run with a timely single and then the Pirates added—two more—one without a hit when they capitalized on Gene Clines' triple and Roberto Clemente's single in the fifth.

Briles finished the Orioles off in the ninth despite a momentary lapse when he walked Don Buford with two out. When he got the final batter on a force-play grounder, he was mobbed by his team-mates.

"Today meant more to me than any game I ever pitched," Briles said.

Baltimore manager Earl Weaver now has to figure out a way to restore some punch to the Oriole lineup .The Birds collected 16 runs and 34 hits in the first two games of the series but just nine hits in the three games at Pittsburgh.

"I wish I knew, what I could do, ' said Weaver.

Moose Could End It!

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bob Moose wants Steve Blass to retire—at least for this year.

Moose, the Pittsburgh Pirates right-hander scheduled on the mound Saturday in the sixth game of the World Series, figures if he beats Baltimore Orioles in his starting assignment, Blass can go home until next spring training and won't have to start the seventh game.

Blass, Bruce Kison and Thursday Nelson Briles pitched the Pirates back into the series after they had been down two games to none.

A Moose victory Saturday would unthrone the major league's defending champions and send Blass, Moose, the Pirates and the Orioles home.

"I'd like to retire Steve Blass," said Moose.

"I'd like Steve Blass to be retired," returned Blass.

"He (Blass) pitched enough innings this year," said Moose, who had an 11-7 record during the regular season but hasn't started since Aug. 31.

Moose says the six-week lay-off from the starting rotation shouldn't be a problem. "I've been throwing a lot in the bullpen," he said. "The thing that will be hard is following Blass and Briles.

Blass fired a three hitter at the Orioles on Tuesday and Briles completed the three-game sweep at Three Rivers Stadium on Thursday with a two-hitter, winning 4-0.

"That's like a dog show after a trained act in a circus," said Moose.

BOB MOOSE

Moose becomes the sixth Pirate starter in the series. The last team to start six different pitchers in the World Series was Brooklyn Dodgers in 1955. They defeated New York Yankees.

"Guess we're beginning to show that we have more pitching than some people thought we had " said Moose.

"After Blass won," said Pirate second baseman Bill Mazeroski, now relegated to the bench, "I had a feeling we'd win three here.

"Our ball park is more suited for us," said relief specialist Dave Giusti, "because of the kind of personnel we have—like line drive hitters, more speed. And their ball park is probably more suited to them, the shorter distances are better for their pull hitters.

Hawk's Score High at Average

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Ken Harrelson withdrew Thursday from the PGA Approved Tournament Players' School because his golf score looked more like a good baseball batting average.

The former Cleveland Indians star, who retired from baseball to try and make it as a pro golfer, quit the six-round, 108-hole tourney after firing rounds of 72-81-75-83—312 for 36 over par.

Kison Could Be Late for Wedding

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Baseball's bridegroom-to-be is jumpy as a grasshopper, and who could blame him?

"I'd like to concentrate on the World Series, but people won't let me," says Bruce Kison, 21-year-old rookie pitcher of Pittsburgh Pirates.

"They keep bugging me about my wedding."

Young Kison, whose outstanding pitching performance in his World Series debut Wednesday night led to a 4-3 Pirate victory over Baltimore Orioles, will be married here Sunday to Anna Marie Orlando, a dark-haired plumber's daughter from Pittsburgh.

But the sidearm right-hander from Pasco, Wash., realizes he faces a conflict. The Pirates, leading the series 3-2, are moving into Baltimore for the climatic games Saturday and possibly Sunday.

"If we win Saturday, most of my troubles will be over," Kison said. "If we go over to Sunday, then we may have to stretch the time a bit.

"We are getting married at 7:30 p.m. EDT . . . but it may be delayed a couple of hours. I'm catching the first plane out of Baltimore for Pittsburgh Sunday night."

Kison allowed only one hit in 6 1-3 innings of the fourth series game Wednesday night, baffling Baltimore bats with his side-arm sliders and cracking fast ball. But he was disturbed when most sports writers afterward were more interested in pursuing his romance.

"Is she pretty?" a reporter asked about his fiancee.

"Do you expect me to say she's a hag?"

We improve with age.

We like to think of ourselves as the Chateau Lafite-Rothschild of the automotive world.
We keep getting better every year.
Since 1952, we've improved our little car over 2,300 times.
Last year we gave it a more powerful engine and nearly twice the baggage space it had before.
This year we added 29 more improvements.
We found a way to keep engine noise down.
We found a way to make it run better in cold weather.
And we found a way to make it run even smoother in cold, hot or whatever weather you have in mind.
And so it goes on.
Since '52, we've made over a thousand body and chassis improvements.
Since '52, we've made over a thousand engine and transmission improvements.
And the reason for all this progress?
Since '52, we've spent absolutely no time making silly styling changes.
What you see, once again, is what you get.

Charge Crushes Madoc

Centennial Secondary School Chargers emerged over Centre Hastings in a Bay of Quinte COSSA football doubleheader yesterday. In the senior contest, Centennial moved into sole possession of second place in the western division with a 20-6 win, while the junior Chargers made it a clean sweep with a 9-1 win.

Glenn Carleton hit John Bunner with a 30-yard scoring strike and scored himself on a quarterback sneak to build a 13-0 half time lead. Steve Ford counted the other C'entennial major on a ten yard off - tackle run, while linebacker Larry Colello was the defensive standout.

In the junior contest, Gabor Kreski scored the only touchdown as Centennial managed a 9-1 victory. Gary Hilts and Ken Jackett were the defensive stars for the winners.

Too Hard To Beat Devils

Moira and Picton found it hard to beat the Devils in high school volleyball action yesterday. The Quinte Shoe Devils swept a quarter of se- ries contests including 15-4 and 15-6 wins over Picton, which had inflicted the only loss on the Quinte seniors this season.

Quinte's attack was led by the fine setting of Kerry Reid and Bill Coughlan and the strong spiking of Bruce Nickle and Terry Collins. In other senior action Moira pulled an upset 15-5 win before bowing 15-8 to Picton.

In junior action Picton swept four games from their opponents, while Quinte took a pair of wins from Moira.

Trenton bantam runner Jim Hughes, drives up the track against a Centre Hastings opponent in a high school relay meet held in Trenton yesterday. The perennial Bay of Quinte track powers finished second in the meet, but that was secondary to the fact that the event marked the first time that a competition was held on the new Trenton all-weather track. Students from the high school raised over $16,000 towards the project, which was completed last week.

Trenton Happy Relay Losers

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Trenton High School proved you can be a happy loser, Thursday, in a Bay of Quinte meet. Despite the fact that Quinte won the competition, Trenton was able to recognize the satisfaction of competing on their own all-weather track for the first time.

"I was asking the runners how they liked the surface," advised Trenton coach Peter Howe, "and while a few of the boys from the other schools had trouble adjusting to it, our boys really liked it."

"I think that our main problem will be educating people in the area that the track is only for running," acknowledges the Trenton coach. "I've heard some people say that they plan riding their bicycles on it. What they don't realize is that the surface is only ¼" thick." Already, someone has torn two holes in the rubberized asphalt surface of the 400 metre oval, but the damage will be repaired when the runways for the jumping pits and the discus cage are surfaced. Trenton students raised $16,000 towards the cost of the track, by virtue of two walkathons, one of which had 1,000 people participating.

A total of eight schools participated in the relay meet, which was the first competition held on the new Trenton track. Quinte accumulated a total of 46 points, with Trenton garnering 33½ and Centennial 30%. Other schools competing in the event included Centre Hastings, East Northumberland, BCI, OSD and Bayside.

In the bantam boys event, Centre Hastings covered the 5 x 400 metre event in 19.26 minutes. In the pearlaid system each runner in the different events competes three times in a single race.

In midget boys, Trenton's "A" team came through with the victory turning in a time of 22.44 minutes for the 4 x 600 event to best Centennial and Quinte.

The 3 x 800 junior event also went to Trenton's "A" squad as they covered the distance in a time of 21.18 minutes with Quinte's "A" team taking second and Centennial's "A" entry holding the show position.

Quinte came up with a win in the 2 x 1200 senior event covering the distance of 22.36 minutes.

Centennial's girls team took the honors in their 4 x 400 event with a time of 16.29 to beat out Centre Hastings and Quinte.

New Fairway Bodies In Same Old Sweaters

It will be the same old sweater, but they'll be on some new bodies, when the Belleville Fairways open their Eastern Ontario Junior B League schedule tonight.

The Fairways were unhappy to learn that their new sweaters won't be available for tonight's contest with the Peterborough Lions, but the acquisition of left winger Jeff Howard more than made up for the haberdashery harassment.

Howard, who counted 18 goals and 12 assists for the Trenton Golden Hawks last season signed with the Belleville B's Thursday night. The portsider scored a goal in last Sunday's exhibition win over the Kingston Frontenacs.

Defensively, the Fairways will have John Mulvihill working with Jim Cain, while Peter Ackerman and Doug Perry form the other pair.

Howard will man the port side on a line with former Trenton teammate Mark Woodward and holdover Dave Smith. Rod Palmer will centre a trio with Cliff Janitsch and Brian O'Coin, while midget graduate Brian Cousins will pivot Dave Horwood and Doug James as the third line. Tim Yohn will be swing man between defence and forward, while Jackett and Doucette will see utility duty.

JEFF HOWARD

Another Trenton native wearing the Fairway colors this season will be goalie Bill Cormier. Cormier, who performed the past two seasons with Trenton's juvenile all-stars is slated to back up starting netminder Bob Harrison.

Also on the dotted line for Belleville is winger Bill Jackett, who performed with Stirling's midget entry last season, while Louie Doucette of Campbellford is expected to sign tonight.

Belleville will need all the help they can get for tonight's encounter against the defending league and Canada Games champions from Peterborough. The contest will get under way at 9 p.m. at the Belleville Memorial Arena. Children accompanied by an adult will be admitted free of charge.

The "ting" of the "Tonks" Holway 1950s Junior Hockey Club flutters at half-staff.

The archivist of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association draws a black line through the name of another departed loyal servant.

Don Lee, master of the bon mot, sportsman and raconteur leaves an indelible mark in the sports archives of the city.

Nature did not endow him with the physical attributes of an athletic star. He developed, however, an administrative ability that eventually raised him to the top echelons of provincial softball.

He "stepladdered" his way from a humble Eastern Ontario executive member to the presidential chair of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association.

He proved an able president. He worked for all and favored none. His decisions were respected by all.

While his sports forte was softball, he was an ardent hockey enthusiast. He was a capable referee and travelled and officiated for many years with the Holway Juniors.

With the "retired whistle" he was always an honored guest at the Juniors annual [illegible].

He was quick-witted, gifted with unusual repartee and had a mental library of stories and anecdotes.

He was one of the first — if not the first — to take a softball team inside the Kingston penitentiary to play the "Saints", a team of inmates.

On one occasion he noted the pinched prowess of an inmate hurler, took his name and address and when the man was released, scored him a job "on the outside".

He leaves a truly fine record in the realm of sport, and enjoyed a province-wide reputation.

Don Lee was a credit to baseball, sports in general and to his city. Truly a member of this city's mythical sports Hall of Fame.

Johnson Edicts Bring Bruins to Life

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Class will tell, they say. This win never more apparent than Thursday night when Boston Bruins bolted Buffalo Sabres 4-2 to take first place in the National Hockey League.

After a glum exhibition series, Boston now has won two of its three starts for four points, one more than Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers. The runner-up Leafs and Rangers were idle Thursday.

At Minnesota, The North Stars capitalized on a penalty shot, the first of the 1971-72 campaign, to tie Montreal Canadiens. Stanley Cup defending champions, 3-3.

A ban on extra-curricular activities may be partly responsible for spurring the Bruins to a point where they look like the team that made them a runaway of the league last year.

Stung by a 3-6-1 exhibition record and a 4-1 loss to the Rangers in their NHL opener Sunday, general manager Milt Schmidt and coach Tom Johnson imposed a "no moonlight" edict on the players.

The Bruins, sweating under fortnicht from the news media, rebounded with a 6-1 victory over Rangers Wednesday.

Then they followed up with their decisive triumph over the Sabres Thursday.

Commenting on the curtailment of outside activities, such as personal appearances at banks, stores and banquets, Johnson said: "It's too early to tell whether it will help overall."

"The players never seemed to have any free time; they always were going somewhere. That's all over now. Maybe the restrictions won't last for the entire season, we'll see what happens."

Right winger Ken Hodge was inclined to agree with his coach.

"Last Sunday against New York we played as 19 individuals instead of a unit. But now we're starting to play as a team. Everything is going to be all right."

Hodge produced four assists against the Sabres, while Phil Esposito and Wayne Cashman supplied two goals each. Bobby Orr and Johnny Bucyk scored the others.

The Esposito-Cashman-Hodge line set an NHL scoring record last season with 140 goals and 336 points. Espo, the skilled centreman, who also collected three assists Thursday, had 152 points last season—an NHL record.

Gil Perreault, 1970-71 Rookie of the Year, broke Ed Johnston's shutout on a screened shot in the second period and Mike Robitaille provided Buffalo's second goal in the final period.

Team captain Henri Richard scored for the Canadiens at Minnesota in the first period. The North Stars protested vehemently, but referee Bruce Hood signalled that the puck went past goalie Gump Worsley, even though the goal judge did not flash his light.

There was no further scoring until 11 minutes remained in the game, when Minnesota's hefty defenceman Tim Reid beat Montreal goalie Ken Dryden with a low liner on the penalty shot.

North Stars were awarded the free shot after Reid was tripped by Guy Lapointe as he broke into the clear over the Montreal blueline.

The Canadiens fired 23 shots at Worsley while Dryden handled a 48-shot barrage before a record Minnesota opening night crowd of 15,230.

Second Incident Alleged

Lawrence Rejects Union Plea For Inquiry Into Wiretappings

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Allan Lawrence rejected Thursday a request by the United Steelworkers of America for an investigation into the alleged wiretapping of a striking local's telephone.

In a telegram to the union, Mr. Lawrence said he has no jurisdiction unless there is evidence of police involvement.

Mr. Lawrence earlier this week ordered the Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission to investigate another case in which two Metropolitan Toronto police constables have been questioned in wiretap allegations made by Local 598, International Chemical Workers Union.

The second wiretap incident came to light Wednesday when Don Montgomery, Toronto supervisor for the Steelworkers, said in a telegram to Mr. Lawrence he had "conclusive documentary and physical evidence" of wiretapping at the union's Local 7042 headquarters.

Mr. Lawrence said in an interview Thursday: "I am powerless to act on wiretapping. The only power I have, I exercised as soon as I took office. That was to make it clear to the police that authorization to wiretap was not to be left in the hands of junior officers, but for-chiefs alone."

Mr. Montgomery said Mr. Lawrence has been grandstanding for political purposes but has failed to act when needed.

"Who can we turn to?" he asked.

Meanwhile, Metro police hope to wrap up their investigation into the Chemical Workers local case and report today to Judge C. O. Bick, chairman of the Metro Police Commission.

What happens next depends on what is fully known "or not fully known," Mr. Lawrence said.

In his telegram to the Steelworkers union, Mr. Lawrence said wiretapping is not illegal in Canada, and expressed hope that the federal government would act soon on pending legislation to ban it.

He told the Steelworkers if they have evidence of any police involvement in their wiretap allegations, they should write him a letter.

The Steelworkers had requested a meeting with the attorney-general to present him with a tape recorder and microphone they say they found at strike headquarters of Local 7042.

Union spokesmen said they bypassed Metro police because strikers distrust the police after the Chemical Workers' incident and some incidents in their own strike.

Do Not Slap Back or Drink When Food Stuck in Throat

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dr. Thosteson: What would you do for a person who chokes on a piece of meat and can't breathe? Do you slap them on the back to bring it up, or do you give them water to wash it down?—L. J.

Neither. Slapping on the back can jar the piece of meat down just as well as up. And giving water to "wash it down," wouldn't be wise. After all, when he can't breathe, it means the meat is stuck in his windpipe, and "washing it down" would mean washing it into the bronchial tubes or lung.

Best way is to have him lie on a bench, couch, or whatever, and let the upper part of his body hang downward over the edge. Turning on his side may loosen the material.

The meat in the windpipe has caused the throat muscles to tighten up; the more he can untense, the better the muscles can relax and let the meat slip back where it belongs. A gentle thump on the upper back is permissible.

Do NOT try to poke a spoon or anything like that down into the throat, since you will likely jam the food even tighter. (Sometimes the material can be felt in the back of the throat and dislodged by the fingers with a sideways motion.)

Dr. Thosteson: My granddaughter is 17 and 5-feet-5; she weighed 132 pounds but went on a reducing diet and went down to 117.

She has big bone sructure and starves herself. Her menstruation periods have stopped for over a year. I'm sure she doesn't get her vitamins, as she eats only meat, celery and lettuce with vinegar. Drinks plain coffee all day long, and is nervous and always tired.—E. F.

Malnutrition can interrupt periods and cause fatigue. All that coffee (the caffeine in it) can cause nervousness.

You have to give credit to the hefty ones who have the will power to stop overeating—but understeating can get to be a habit, too, and your granddaughter should give some thought to a balanced diet which will help her get to gain back what she has lost, but at the same time give her the energy she needs.

Dr. Thosteson: You may think me presumptuous, but my dentist came up with a very good answer for bruxism (Grinding one's teeth). I ground my teeth badly and it was ruining them as well as my rest.

My dentist devised something for me to wear at night which might be compared to the mouthpiece worn by prizefighters. Only an "upper" is necessary and it makes a cushion against the grinding. He took an impression of my upper teeth, and the mouth guard is made from that, of some tough, rubbery sort of plastic. It has to cover all the upper teeth.—M. M. S.

Presumptuous? Hardly! Thanks for your letter. News of success with similar dental devices comes from readers in various parts of the country.

Dr. Thosteson: One of the best speech transcribers is five long slow breaths just before starting to speak.—F. B.

And as inexpensive as you can get. Folks who get the jitters before standing up to speak may find this helpful. Thanks for your suggestion.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Men Do Not Like War

In any discussion of the possible ways to abolish war from the world, one is always likely to hear a strident voice raised in the ringing declamation: "You'll never do away with war — because men really like it."

There is not, and never has been, the slightest evidence for this statement. Anthropologists tell us that primitive man, in fact, far from being a fighter, was a peaceful farmer, fisherman and hunter—until his economic survival was threatened.

Nor is fighting an "animal instinct". The most ferocious animals do not kill each other, and their lesser speech only for food. Darwin's "survival of the fittest" did not mean survival by combativeness but by adaptation to the changing conditions of life's food supply. (Otherwise, the dinosaurs would have conquered the world, instead of perishing.)

The history of the human race offers more than sufficient proof that men do not like war. If they did, millions would not have to be drafted, and then carefully trained in sophisticated savagry. Armies spend many months and many millions in making legal murderers out of average men who would rather switch than fight.

Even in the American Revolution, when the colonists were trying to overthrow a tyrant and establish self-government, Washington's most difficult task was getting and keeping enough troops on hand to meet the Hessian mercenaires hired by the British. Men had to be bribed and paid increasingly large bounties — and still not enough volunteers were to be had. Washington complained to Congress that many recruits took their bounties and then deserted.

In the War of 1812 and the war with Mexico, "six months' pay in advance plus 160 acres of land were offered to each U.S. recruit — and the results were disappointing. Deserters were also rife in the Civil War; and, in 1863, when Lincoln called for another 100,000 militia, only 16,000 responded, and the Union was forced to draft 35,000 men — of whom at least 25,000 were "substitutes".

Men may sometimes enjoy fighting to obtain release for their animal spirits, but they are not natural killers. In a well-run society, their aggressive drive is safely channeled into sports and other forms of nonlethal activities.

Wars occur because of national pride and economic rivalry, and it is a libel on the human race to suggest that we like war as a built-in instinct for mass homicide. Men will go to war for patriotism, or under compulsion; but no one in his right mind goes to war because he loves the smell of blood.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 16

Your birthday today: Brings the first round of a long readjustment cycle in which nearly everything you do or have done in the past comes to some form of payoff. Today's natives are restless, prefer work requiring much active movement.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): It's almost as if this weekend is a kind of departure from the rut of circumstances — can be a big adventure or rank confusion.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Plans come into optimistic rush; the world looks more alive and promising. Travel if you can; if not, stay on the go with local events.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Early indecision wastes a little time and energy but gives inspiration time to indicate an upward path toward spiritual expression.

CANCER (June 21 — July 23): You can't ignore the limits and needs of your community. What you choose to do about them is up to you and your stage of development.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Seek no legal commitments or personal pledges. You can gain broader advantage locally on personal, short-term deals.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): What you need and want may be beyond your reach but is worth the search. Start early with a definite goal set.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The first half of the day brings you routine tasks, errands, later hours can likely be a thorough rest. Meditate, catch up on your writing, file records.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Make amends even where you are not yet convinced of error, but get on with further progress. There's a great deal to do.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Sports, games, pastimes attract their partisans. You should be among them, bringing your friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): It's time to teach and advise. Give in kind, according to what is asked of you, to the point.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Notice whether agreed plans are pronounced or left often. Make whatever expedient change is feasible at last minute with no great reaction of surprise or annoyance.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Being critical may only precipitate more stress. Use your tact, reserve judgement, keep your emotional ties intact.

GO Transit

Railway management and unions speak approvingly of the Ontario government decision to set up Go Transit. A Government of Ontario commuter service in the Toronto area. The service was launched in May, 1967, to carry passengers between Toronto and Pickering, 30 miles east, and Toronto and Hamilton, 40 miles west. The service is run by the Canadian National Railways and financed by the province. Go Transit says so many commuters have been drawn away from the heavily-travelled Queen Elizabeth Way that traffic problems on that highway have been eased.

Provincial Leaders Stress Ontario's Economic Problems

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier William Davis made his first major statement on economic policy within a week Thursday, and his opponents for the Oct. 21 Ontario election kept pace with their own views on job programs and economic nationalism.

In what he called a "comprehensive statement" of economic strategy, Mr. Davis outlined programs related directly to Canada and some related to recent United States economic measures which have affected Canadian companies and jobs.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon chose the same theme, saying the U.S. has reverted to an America-first foreign trade policy and that Ontario no longer can be for sale at cut-rate prices.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, said that unemployment figures released earlier in the day by Ottawa showed that the economy had begun to feel the effects of the U.S. supplementary duty on imports and were "ominous" and "very, very serious."

As part of his program, Mr. Davis said in Ottawa, Canada must "phase out" low-technology manufacturing operations which cannot compete with low-wage countries, and also "avoid distorting the competitive industrial structure through industrial development programs designed to reduce regional disparity."

He said his Conservative government is reviewing means to accelerate housing programs and studying the feasibility of partially replacing corporation income tax with a value-added tax.

As for foreign control, he would press for greater Canadian participation in new enterprises and guidelines for the operation of foreign industries and unions.

Liberal Leader Nixon, in a statement released to the press, reiterated party policy on the issue of foreign control, saying foreign investment would continue to be welcomed "but it will be welcomed on our terms."

He would do away some fair-weather friends along the way because we are no longer easy pickings for their opportunists," we must still forge ahead," he said.

He noted that Liberal policy calls for a review board to screen proposals for foreign takeovers, a public trusteeship to operate viable small branch plants threatened with closure, and more loans for industry.

Mr. Nixon's remarks were to have been made at a speech to a party rally in Hamilton Thursday night, but the din caused by 800 cheerful supporters caused him to choose instead some off-the-cuff, go-get-'em oratory.

Mr. Lewis spoke on the economy on three separate occasions: in a Toronto radio interview, a news conference in Preston and a party rally in Kitchener.

He told the news conference and the rally an NDP government would reverse the flow of economic dependence on the U.S. within four years, and emphatically rejected the concept of nationalization of all industry.

He said NDP plans call for public ownership of some resource industries, public auto insurance and public distribution of medicinal drugs and that profits from insurance, trust and loan companies would be channelled into purchase of branch plants. But nationalization would stop there.

Earlier, Mr. Lewis told 500 students at the University of Guelph that the NDP would close training schools for juvenile offenders and encourage establishment of smaller units such as cottages and residences.

Mr. Lewis campaigns today in Toronto, St. Thomas and London. Mr. Nixon spends the day in Toronto. Mr. Davis has no events scheduled for most of the day, but flies to Windsor tonight. The premier is expected to make a statement of policy toward youth.

Lewis' Day Centre Policy Hit

HAMILTON (CP) — Ruth Lemke, director of Hamilton's first day centre for young children, criticized Thursday Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, for his attitude towards such centres.

She told the annual meeting of the Canadian Mental Health Association that Mr. Lewis "and many like him" are getting their information about day care centres and nursery schools from educationists of a generation ago.

Mrs. Lemke was referring to Mr. Lewis's statement about the $10 million promised for day-care centres by the Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Lewis said the government was preoccupied with physical structures and the money might be better used as grants for locally-run centres in hospitals, churches, factories and old houses.

Mrs. Lemke said:

"Authorities in the field of early childhood education are aware ... that the pre-schooler from birth to five years earns more than he will ever learn again.

"Keeping this crucial fact in mind, why should we be content to teach our children to be a whole human being in hospitals, churches, factories and old houses?"

Committee Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of Thursday's parliamentary committee meetings:

COMMONS

Justice—The Salvation Army attacked the proposed young offenders act, saying a criminal code for children is wrong. They want sections providing for the detainment of persons under 14 and sentencing a 21-year-old for a crime committed as a juvenile deleted, and the minimum age raised to 14 from 10-year-old at which a child can be dealt with under the legislation.

Public Accounts—Committee members were concerned about a special government account they say Parliament has no control over and want the matter debated in the Commons. The reserve account—to pay miscellaneous and unforeseen expenses in the public service—is built up from unspent government money for a fiscal year and comes into effect when Parliament votes government spending for each year.

Rumors W. A. C. Bennett Will Retire Are Flying Again in B.C.

VICTORIA (CP) — The convention of the Social Credit party of British Columbia is less than a month away and the annual rumors that Premier W. A. C. Bennett will retire after 19 years in office are flying again.

The denials are coming thick and fast, too, in advance of the Nov. 4-6 convention in Vancouver. Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell all deny that advertising campaigns prominently featuring their names are a challenge to Mr. Bennett's leadership.

The premier feels the situation serious enough to warrant a denial that he is preparing to step down. While in London on a tour of Europe to attract investment to B.C., the premier said he had no such intention and won't call another election until 1973.

Political observers have cited Mr. Bennett's age—he was born in 1900 in Albert County, NB.—as a main factor in any talk of a leadership challenge. He'd be asking voters to keep him in office until he was 77 or 78, if he ran again in 1973. The last election was 1969.

"I plan to be back and I'm even preparing for my next campaign," Mr. Bennett said

Mr. Peterson, 47, insisted that "there is no leadership contest provincially."

"We have a very able leader. He is energetic, imaginative, filled with vision. There is no issue as far as the leadership of our party is concerned at the moment."

Mr. Campbell said talk of a leadership race is "press speculation generated by the almost fervent wish by other political parties that we remove our present leader, which we don't intend to do."

Mr. Gaglardi, known as "Flying Phil" in his days as highways minister, denied several weeks ago reports emanating from his Kamloops constituency that he was setting up the machinery for a run at the leadership.

"The premier is the premier and as long as he is the premier the strongest backer he has got in B.C. is P. A. Gaglardi."

One development that appeared to have shaken Mr. Bennett was the resignation from the Social Credit party of Oak Bay M.L.A. Scott Wallace, who accused the premier of running a dictatorial government and ignoring individual MLAs in decision-making.

But Mr. Wallace, now an independent, says there was nothing wrong on the inside of the Social Credit party that even hinted at Mr Bennett's stepping down.

"My impression is that certainly he intends to lead the party at the next election, which is expected next fall. . . . Like any opposition he is going to carry on until he is carried out or defeated."

The advertising campaigns that sparked speculation about a leadership campaign started with Mr. Peterson before Labor Day. He appeared in a number of radio-day television announcements and newspaper ads.

Then, Mr. Gaglardi took out newspaper ads featuring a large picture of the premier. The text said the rehabilitation minister had been appointed chairman by Mr. Bennett to find jobs for welfare recipients and employers.

It came at the same time as a cabinet committee was set up by the premier, excluding Mr. Gaglardi, to flesh out the premier's earlier decision that the government would pay half the wages for any job found by a welfare recipient.

The third ad program, costing $138,000, features Mr. Campbell, explaining the cabinet committee's "job opportunity program," which issues the "certificate of opportunity" mentioned by Mr. Gaglardi, which entitles welfare recipients for whom the government will pay half the wages.

No machinery yet exists in the party for choosing a replacement for Mr. Bennett, who has never been openly challenged at the party's annual convention.

Each of the principal possible challengers, whether it was Mr. Bennett's intention or not, is encumbered with a heavy departmental work-load.

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark is considered a contender candidate, as is backbencher Herb Capozzi, one of Premier visitor Pasquale Capozzi, unconnectedly that up with the family's investments in Vancouver.

Despair Growing In Ulster

LONDON (CP) — A growing sense of despair over the increasing turmoil in Northern Ireland appears to be creeping through Britain in the wake of one of the worst outbreaks of violence in several weeks.

Observers in London are beginning to ask whether the 15,000 British troops in Ulster can ever hope to combat effectively the guerrilla-style warfare waged by the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Acknowledging that such doubts exist, British Prime Minister Edward Heath and leading Conservative ministers have reaffirmed determination to restore order in the north and contend that some progress is being made.

But Thursday, one of the largest battles in years broke out between about 40 terrorists and troops attempting to blow up a border crossing between Ulster and the Irish Republic to the south. There were also new outbreaks in Londonderry and Belfast.

The troops decided earlier this week to blow up a number of key border crossings between the Republic and Northern Ireland to hinder the flow of explosives they believe are being shipped from the south.

The battle at Forkill, County Armagh, erupted as a group of Royal Engineers, escorted by 50 soldiers, arrived to continue blowing up the roads.

As they did so, a Claymore anti-personnel mine containing steel slivers exploded near the troop carriers. Immediately, gunmen opened fire from the shelter of some nearby woods. The soldiers returned the fire, and later in the fight heavy machine-guns were brought up by the army. One soldier was wounded.

After two hours of firing, the gunmen withdrew, and it is thought by the army that several wounded men may have been dragged back into the Irish Republic by their comrades.

The soldiers were reported to be bitter that neither the republic's army or police intervened during the fighting.

Later it was reported from Dublin that five men were arrested after the battle died down.

Firemen Ignore Injunction

MONTREAL (CP) — Most of the city's 2,400 firemen ignored an injunction and left most of Montreal's 40 fire stations unmanned today.

Representatives of the Montreal Firefighters Association were reported meeting at daybreak with city lawyers but an association representative was quoted as saying this was not a resumption of negotiations for a new contract.

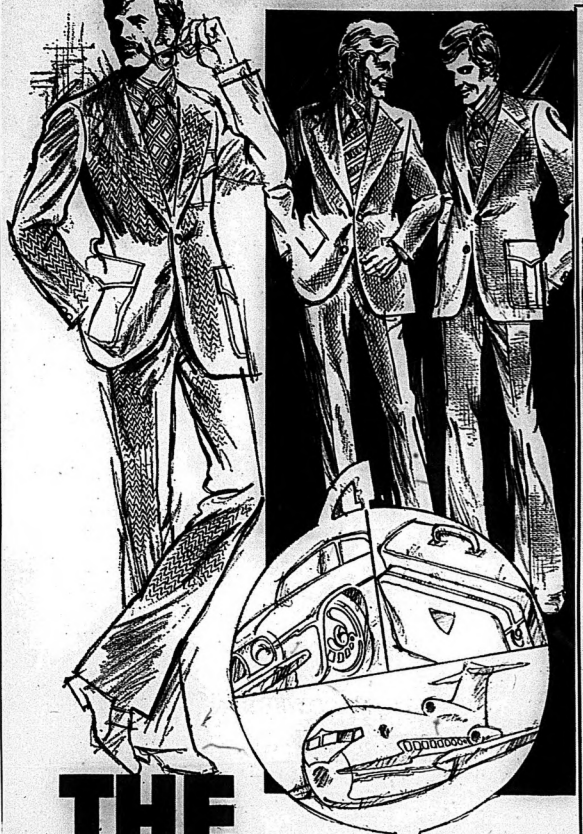
The firemen walked off the job about 11 a.m. Tuesday after about 1,000 of them rejected the city's latest offer for a 7.1 per cent wage increase which would have brought pay for a first-class fireman to $10,650 a year, about $900 less than firemen in Toronto now receive.

The Montreal firefighters are seeking parity with Toronto, which Montreal police succeeded in obtaining recently.

The city obtained an injunction from Superior Court Judge Leo Lalonde just after 6 p.m. and Jacques Morin, president of the firemen's association, ordered the men back to work late Thursday after a closed-door executive meeting.

But in an interview late Thursday night, the newly-elected leader said his members just laughed when they heard the injunction read to them.

"They say the strike was illegal this morning (Thursday) and it's no more illegal tonight. They say they are determined. It's a bad thing. It will take time. We are trying very hard."



The injunction cites 19 persons and the firefighters association and provides for fines up to $50,000 or one year in jail for each day the walkout continues in contempt of court.

Davis Would Match Cut in Income Tax

Corporate Tax To Stay Same

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis said Friday night that if his Conservative government is re-elected in Ontario's Oct. 21 election, he would reduce the provincial portion of personal income taxes by three per cent in line with the tax cut announced Thursday by Ottawa.

The premier said if the federal government agreed to this action by the province he would call the legislature into session in late November or early December to process enabling legislation.

"This tax cut will save our taxpayers $42 million over a full year," he said in an interview.

He said the Ontario and federal finance ministers would meet soon to discuss amendment of the tax collection agreement under which Ottawa collects income taxes and shares them with the provinces.

Mr. Davis said the reduction by Ontario would correspond with the proposed three-per-cent reduction in the federal share of income taxes announced by Ottawa as a means of stimulating the economy in a period of high unemployment.

He said the federal tax cut must be accepted by the provinces and the provincial cut by the Ontario legislature before the decrease would take effect. As with the federal cut, the provincial cut would be retroactive to July 1 this year and continue until the end of 1972.

However, there would be no reduction in provincial corporate income taxes to correspond to the seven-per-cent reduction in corporate taxes announced by federal Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

Mr. Davis noted that Ontario had introduced a five-per-cent tax credit for corporations for machinery and equipment purchases in the April budget. The credit, meant to stimulate industrial expansion and create jobs, was to cost the provincial treasury $105 million.

"I welcome the federal government's new moves to stimulate the economy," said Mr. Davis, noting that he recently had urged Ottawa to reduce taxes in a speech.

Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, campaigning in Toronto for the election now only five days away, noted that a provincial tax cut had been suggested by his party in the last session of the legislature and termed the move "appropriate."

Mr. Nixon said the premier's announcement undoubtedly was influenced to some extent by the impending election, but that the action was necessary for economic reasons.

However, he said, Ontario would face a budget deficit of about $500 million with such a tax cut.

Premier Davis said he believed the province could afford another $42 million added to the estimated 1971 budget deficit of $450 million.

Mr. Davis said he believed the loss in taxes would be offset by stimulation of the economy provided by increased consumer spending.

Asked if the tax cut would add to inflation, Mr. Davis replied:

"I don't think it will happen.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said at a campaign stop in London, Ont., that the premier's proposal would amount to "small change" for anyone earning less than $8,000 a year.

"I believe in tax cuts, but it should not be three per cent across the board," he said in an interview.

The NDP leader said Mr. Davis should have either graduated the tax cut in favor of low-income groups, or taken one point off the provincial sales tax to put $115 million back into the economy.

Premier Davis said that now Ottawa and Ontario have announced plans to counteract unemployment and the effects on Canada of recent United States economic measures, "I am confident that we have a sound basis for fruitful discussions by first ministers early in November."

He was referring to a federal-provincial conference on economy now scheduled for Dec. 6-8. Mr. Davis has suggested to Prime Minister Trudeau that the date be moved up to any time after Oct. 28.

The premier also said that a special meeting of federal and provincial deputy ministers of finance has been called for next week to co-ordinate joint economic action.

"It is my expectation that this meeting will recommend to first ministers and ministers of finance, effective machinery and positive plans to maximize our joint attack on unemployment this winter."

Tall Tower Is Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Plans for the world's tallest building, a 140-storey office tower planned for the site of the College Street store of T. Eaton Co. Ltd. in downtown Toronto, will be revealed Wednesday.

The $120 million tower, which will rise 1,650 feet in a triangle of concrete, steel and glass will be more than twice the height of Commerce Court, the Commonwealth's tallest building.

Business Puts Pressure On Labor Law Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposed reform of federal industrial relations law may fall victim to economic pressures, a determined campaign by business and the legislative backing in Parliament.

If major surgery is done on Bill C-253, it will be because it is becoming a test of business confidence in the government.

One indication of the pressures at work was the statement by Prime Minister Trudeau in an interview Friday that "some changes may be made" in the bill before it returns for debate in the next session of the Commons.

The bill has been the target for a quiet but thorough-going campaign by business ever since it was introduced in June by Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

Business executives were alarmed mainly by a provision which would give unions a limited right to strike in disputes over the introduction of technological changes.

In briefs to Mr. Mackasey and in meetings with several of his cabinet colleagues, they have argued that the provision should be dropped and that other clauses which they feel are profunion should be modified.

A number of executives have also stated publicly that any reform of the federal industrial relations code should seek to limit union power rather than increase opportunities for strike action.

Coupled with the intensive lobbying by business has been a lack of urgency in the approach of organized labor to the legislation.

Bernard Wilson, deputy minister of labor, said in an interview that the department has received a pile of letters and briefs from business concerning C-253 but almost none from unions, including the Canadian Labor Congress.

William Wightman, director of industrial relations for the Canadian Manufacturer's Association, asserted in an interview that a growing number of officials in Ottawa are sympathetic to the view.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Afternoon temperatures today should be a good 10 degrees lower than the 65 to 75 degree readings recorded in the central and southern sections of the province Friday. Temperatures will remain on the cool side over all of Ontario through the weekend. Cloud cover is expected to be patchy and should be confined mainly to southern areas.

Libraries Planned In Laundromats

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Laundromat customers here will soon be able to do more than watch their wash spin dry.

A number of "reasonably well-supervised" laundromats will become public library branches next year operating on the honor system.

A small collection of paperbacks will be placed in the laundromats for people to read there or take home.

"The beauty of the library is to encourage reading," said Les Fowlie, chief librarian, in announcing the new service Friday. "This is just one more way in which we hope to achieve our aims."

No library staff will be at the laundromats to check books in or out.

Mr. Fowlie said he hopes laundromat patrons will bring in their old books to enlarge the libraries.

Belfast Police Slain In Gangster Fashion

BELFAST (CP) — Northern Ireland, the scene of 122 violent deaths since August, 1969, was in a state of shock today over the gangster style slaying of two police officers in their car in Belfast Friday.

The two policemen, in plainclothes, were carrying out a routine security check on banks and post-offices. As their car drew up at a traffic light, two men carrying Thompson sub-machine-guns jumped out of a car and sprayed the police vehicle with bullets, killing one constable immediately and fatally wounding the other.

As the two policemen lay covered in blood in the riddled car, the two gunmen escaped into their car and drove off.

Shortly after, gunmen believed to be members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, unsuccessfully tried to murder two other policemen.

The British Army detained a further 90 suspects under the controversial Special Powers Act, and captured large reserves of arms, explosives, and ammunition.

London informants said the British and Ulster governments may be preparing for a massive, last ditch campaign to wipe out the IRA.

Government sources in Ulster and Britain contend that both governments have virtually given up any hopes of sustaining a long-term campaign to eliminate violence in Northern Ireland.

Prime Minister Brian Faulkner confirmed this belief to a degree Friday when he commented:

"The governments of Northern Ireland and the U.K. are not prepared to wait for a long time in this security struggle. We must take every step without waiting for a long haul."

The Ulster government also mounted Friday a new publicity campaign to convince residents that terrorists will be defeated, enabling Northern Ireland to progress towards prosperity after two years of continuing violence between the Protestant majority and Roman Catholic minority.

Polar Bear Airlift Planned in Manitoba

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Operation Polar Bear Airlift is slowly growing into high gear at this northern Manitoba community on the shore of Hudson Bay.

Sometime next week a private conservation group will team up with provincial game wardens armed with tranquilizer guns.

The idea behind the project is to save 30 to 50 rogue polar bears that wander through the Churchill town site and scavenge in the town dump. The problem is an annual affair for Churchill residents because they live in the middle of a polar bear migration route. The provincial government intended to shoot some of the more troublesome bears this year.

Brian Davies, executive director of the International Fund for Animal Welfare arrived in Churchill early Friday and was joined by an international press corps.

The London Daily Mirror, Columbia Broadcasting System, CBC and several Canadian newspapers are represented.

The conservation group hopes to tranquillize a number of the bears and fly them further into the wilderness by chartered aircraft.

All Montreal Police on Duty for French-only Parade Today

MONTREAL (CP) — All police leaves of absence and days off were cancelled today as preparations were made for a demonstration in favor of a French-only Quebec.

Originally, the march was called for 2 p.m. EDT, to mark the first anniversary of the proclamation of the stringent War Measures Act in response to two political kidnappings. But 25 groups now have formed the Common Front for the Defence of the French Language.

Reggie Chartrand, former boxer and leader of the militant Chevaliers de l'Independance, predicted Friday that 10,000 high school and college students would skip classes in support of the protest. But few classes appeared to heed the call in Montreal Friday.

About 2,500 high school students walked out. At Louis Hebert high school, a few hundred of the 1,100 students marched out of classes but returned when police told them they could not march without a parade permit. Students at St. Laurent junior college held study sessions on French-language legislation.

Front organizers visited schools and colleges during the day to whip up support for the march, which organizer Alain Beiner said was expected to attract at least 10,000 supporters.

"If we get 10,000, it's a success," said Mr. Beiner, 25, of the Young Socialists League.

The front has a police permit for today's march to start at east-central Lafontaine Park, a gathering spot for many previous Montreal demonstrations.

It was planned to move past the security-bound headquarters of the provincial police in the east end, where many persons arrested in police sweeps a year ago were held. It was to end with speeches in front of the Hydro-Quebec building where Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa has his Montreal office.

Speakers include Mr. Beiner and Mr. Chartrand; Raymond Lemieux, leader of a movement for French-only schools in suburban St. Leonard several years ago; Dr. Serge Mongeau, leader of the Movement for the Defence of Political Prisoners, and Michel Chartrand, outspoken leader of the Montreal central council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

The front is specifically protesting the Quebec government's Bill 28, which would reorganize Montreal Island Protestant and Roman Catholic school boards into a much smaller number of non-denominational boards.

The Parti Quebecois has dissociated itself from the march because it supports the bill, which has also stirred protests from English-language groups which claim it will destroy "English culture" in Quebec.

The Montreal Catholic school commission, in a brief to be presented to the Quebec government next week, says a 1969 law introduced after the suburban St. Leonard language dispute is actually promoting the use of English.

The law—Bill 63—allows parents the right to choose the language of education for their children and was strongly protested in several days of demonstrations across Quebec at the time.

The school commission says that in the last two years, 2,100 students have transferred from its French sector to English-language schools while only 141 English students have moved to French schools.

The brief also stresses the continuing trend of immigrants to send their children to English-language schools to allow them more job mobility in North America.

Tweed-Area Liberals Take Aim at Rollins

TWEED — Hastings Liberals last night heard candidate Rev. I. E. Munro claim "if we are stuck with this government for another four years, I can see the blood of my children running down the streets, trying to rid ourselves of the power this government has."

Members of the Liberal Association jammed the Hungerford Township Hall to hear fired-up party spokesmen level charge after charge at the Progressive Conservative party and specifically at Clarke Rollins.

Donald Hodgins, chairman of last night's gathering claimed: "Clarke is like a little Hoffa, and has built an empire in the area. Through fear of persecution, even strong Liberals will not openly show their political affiliations."

Many of the group in attendance last night said, "there is a danger for the businessman to be a Liberal or an NDP in this area."

Mr. Hodgins was until lately, a former Conservative, but with the closing of the Tweed High School, "enough mud was raised from the bottom to convert many such die-hard Tories to the Liberal side," said a campaign manager.

"The people around here are hopping mad," said Mr. Munro. "We've had this government for 28 years, and it is time we broke the hold."

Driving through the village of Tweed, you will see a few sign supporting the Liberal party.

"This is because of two reasons," said Mr. Munro. "The people are afraid to be open Liberal supporters and the signs that were placed through the area have all been torn down.

Chief complaints of many at the meeting was the charge that Mr. Rollin's refuses to make his opinion heard.

"There have been several tri-party meets where Mr. Rollins has been invited to attend and to this date, he has never shown up," said Mr. Munro.

Another spokesman claimed "Mr. Rollins has not said one thing in the "house" for the past three years."

Mr. Rollins later said, "It is true that I have said little in the house but it is not because I have nothing to say but because I place a priority on my duties in the direct committees of which I am a member.

"The thing that stands highest on the Tory priority list," said Mr. Hodgins, "is their quantity and not their quality. Whether we talk about the abundance of dollars spent on campaigning, numbers of bushels of grain stored or the number of balloons they have."

While the Liberals were meeting at the Hungerford Hall, the PCs were down at the Lanes, sponsoring a youth dance which Mr. Rollins attended later in the evening.

Earlier Mr. Rollins, was at the Tyendinaga Reserve attending a social night sponsored by the reserve, the town of Deseronto and the PC Association.

Mr. Rollins, after hearing the allegations made by the Liberals said: "I will not lower myself to the level of those people to upset my voters or to take them to court, but I will say they are lying and they are a bunch of fanatics."

Mr. Rollins said he had no knowledge of the meetings he missed with other parties.

Plastic Ballot Box First for Ontario

The battered metal ballot box has gone by the wayside with the innovation of this new plastic design. To be used in next week's provincial election, the yellow polyethylene box was manufactured by a Toronto plastics firm which claims the design overcomes past problems of storage, weight, rust, and in some cases, scratching furniture and tearing clothes. Their shape saves space when stored because they can be stacked one inside the other.

Board Approves Service Building

Members of the city parks board Thursday approved conceptual plans for the new parks service building proposed for construction on recently acquired park property west of the Moira River and south of Highway 401.

The structure, to be built on what is possibly the highest elevation in the city, will have a floor area of approximately 6,000 square feet and will be built of concrete block with a dressed up front.

Council will be asked to pass the necessary construction bylaw while the city manager will seek approval from the Ontario Municipal Board for the capital expenditure. Tenders are expected to be called about the middle of November.

Consultants Totten, Sims and Hubicki Associates Ltd. presented a conceptual plan for the structure at last night's board meeting and will prepare detailed drawings in readiness for the tender call.

Dance Approved For Marmora Hall

MARMORA (Special) — A group of young people, representing the Marmora Young Adults' Club, approached village council for the use of the town hall for the purpose of dances.

In closed session, council members debated the issue and decided that permission should be granted on a probationary term. The club will be able to run one dance on Saturday, Oct. 23, after which the idea will be reappraised.

Members of council felt that because of the petition, gathered by the club members including 272 names, residents of the area felt that it would be a worthwhile project, "and there is no sense asking our young people to travel miles around to attend a dance."

Accompanying the group was James Cook and Robert Sherland of the Marmora Recreation Committee.

Marmora Village Council will also be receiving a subsidy from the Department of Transport and Communications to partially cover extra cost, incurred last year, for snow removal.

Elks Auxiliary Aids Retarded

The Order of the Royal Purple, auxiliary of the Belleville Elks club, presented several useful items to the Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children at a ceremony Thursday, Oct. 7.

Among the gifts were an electric frying pan, a can opener, a 75-cup coffee maker, a set of stainless steel cookware, flatware, mixing bowls milk and sugar sets, a roasting pan and an electric mixmaster.

Making the presentation on behalf of the Order was Elsie Browning. George Botting, ARC president, received the gifts.

PUC to Buy Reservoir Property

If approval is received from Gore and Storrie consulting engineers, the Belleville Public Utilities Commission will purchase a 4½-acre plot of land east of Pine Street. At present owned by Maurice H. Rollins, the land, to be used for a new 2½-million-gallon reservoir, will cost $22,000.

This price includes easements to permit installation of water mains.

On July 5, the PUC gave the go-ahead to Gore and Storrie to prepare plans for the water reservoir in the city's east end. All that remains now, is for the consulting firm to sanction the Rollins elevated property.

Costing approximately $750,000 the new storage tank will more than triple Belleville's present water reserve. The Ontario Water Resources Commission has agreed to pick up a $650,000 construction tab.

Newspaperboy Day

This is International Newspaperboy Day and it is with pride and pleasure that we recognize our local stalwarts who deliver The Intelligencer through rain and shine.

A newspaper route accomplishes two things. First and foremost it gets the days news and comment to readers over a wide area. Secondly, for the youngsters who perform this task, it teaches elementary business practice, as well as instilling a sense of responsibility and the realization that people depend on them.

These are qualities that stand the young people in good stead throughout their school days and beyond. Not everyone can have a paper route, but those who do may be envied.

Our Carriers of the Year on the occasion are Glen Pearson, 16 Ernest Court, representing city carriers, and Wayne Woodall, who lives on the Old Picton Road. They have won special recognition, but we pay tribute also to all those other boys and girls who do such a good job so willingly and in all weathers.

Clutching at Straws

Looking at the Opposition parties' platforms leaves the impression both Liberals and NDP are clutching at straws in their efforts to win electoral favor.

For example, NDP leader Stephen Lewis has been waxing very strongly about what he would do to major industrial polluters if they failed to clean up within a given time limit. Court action against offenders would then be the name of the game, according to Mr. Lewis.

But what is new about that? Isn't it a fact that proceedings have long since been instituted against a big chemical concern in the province with regard to pollution?

Now flying over Sudbury, and in leisurely fashion in a DC-3, is likely to upset anyone concerned about keeping pure the air we breathe. Sudbury's pollution reading can reach around 70, highest in the province (a reading of over 100 is considered serious) and Liberal leader Robert Nixon, after a recent flight over the spectacular slag heaps and craters of the industrial area, told newsmen that "full information must be made public — not just the levels of pollution, but just what the reasons are. . . ." He says the government is withholding information that would affect the competitive position of International Nickel and maintains both industry and government should proceed with a sulphur-recovery program rather than closing down polluters.

Of course it is easy to say what should be done easy to say the government is not doing this or that, easy to say that you are an opposing party, would do if elected, but pollution is not something that is going to be cured overnight, whatever party is in power. For one thing — and this is important at a time of high unemployment — jobs are at stake. We do not think the government in power, the Davis administration that is, has been neglectful in the matter of pollution:

In ah industrialized society there is bound to be always some degree of pollution; complete elimination of it would be impossible, but no one will quarrel with the view that continuing firm measures will be required to keep the problem within reasonable bounds.

The Men Say "No!"

It is odd isn't it, in the battle of the sexes, how we menfolk want to have our cake and eat it?

You see, in Picton there is a trust company staffed by three pretty young women. The customers — even the men — according to a caption under a picture of the trio in the Brockville Recorder and Times, seem to be enjoying it.

Virginia Railey, office manager, is quoted as saying men really accept her financial advice, and thinks they like to have a woman wait on them provided she has the necessary knowledge.

But move to the world of sport and have the women compete on equal terms and with a chance of winning and no sir, the men just will not have it. That is the situation in Toronto where members of the Royal Canadian Curling Club marched outside their rink last week demanding that the club's "open" competition for $25,000 in prizes include women.

Ross North, chairman of the event said the women might be correct in their claim that "they can beat 50 per cent of the curlers that are coming . . . but I've told them 'No.' "

And then Mr. North revealed all when he said: "How would the men feel if they had a bad day and were beaten out by the women?"

Well men, it would be embarrassing wouldn't it? But why shouldn't there be a special event some time, one in which the women could complete as well?

The Pressures of Office

Almost Overnight P.M. Begins to Show Signs of Wear

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — For the first time in his three and a half years of majority power, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau seems unsure.

The heat in the federal kitchen had to get to him sometime, as it does to all Prime Ministers sooner or later.

But this suddenly?

And overnight?

It could have been the combined impact of two unexpected blows.

Hitting him with sledgehammer force was President Nixon's heavy-handed imposition of the American 10 percent import surcharge.

What so bothered the Prime Minister was his conviction that it was entirely undeserved.

Canada last spring had floated the Canadian dollar which had found its own value on world money markets, leaving no ground for any American complaint that it was artificially discounted and so was undercutting American exports to this country.

And, lamented the Prime Minister time after time, Canada had raised so few barriers to American exports, had bent over backwards to be a good trading neighbor, in fact, had gone so far to be accommodating that Canadian nationalists were screaming "sellout."

All that was bad enough.

The word crisis is confront him since he came to power. Worse even than last October's Quebec kidnap murder reign of separatist terror, which was regional, and quickly countered with decisive and massive Armed Forces power.

Then, to complicate the Prime Minister's difficulties, the Opposition, to everyone's astonishment, including possibly even its own, began acting as an Opposition should — opposing.

Not just sulking and whining and calling the Prime Minister a bully.

But fighting back.

And hard enough that the Prime Minister and his Government were hurting.

Completely unaccustomed to this kind of punishment, the Prime Minister found himself fighting with one hand tied behind his back by the wrong-headed advice to all those highly-paid experts in the PMO who had told him he could break Parliament's own laws, defy its legislation and get away with it.

He found himself in such a bind in what became known as the "Great Grain War" that some of his own Immediate Justice Minister John Turner, and Privy Council President and Government House Leader Allan MacEachen privately advised him his position was indefensible.

So there he was, bulldozed on one side by President Nixon and jackhammered by the Opposition on the other.

Suddenly, as he was turning 52, he looked every week of month, and year of it.

And this was the man who had seemed so ageless, giving the impression of being impervious to the years, full of zest for the fun-and-games life of the ever-young.

Now this one-time "Peter Pan of Politics," as former Conservative Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, the Old Warrior, once called him in his lamentably tweedless days, was betraying the years.

You do not have to peer to see the new lines so deeply etched in the face.

Nor stare to know that the hair which scant months ago was combed Caesar-like over his brow has receded far and fast that the ceiling lights of the Commons reflect from the mirror of the bare crown.

Not to wonder, though, at these dramatic changes.

The heavy heavy load of the Prime Minister's office and the political mileage he must make quickly wear the tread of any man who travels the raceway of power.

It did it just as quickly, almost overnight, to John Diefenbaker and to Lester Pearson. They made it look as if one year in the East Block took the toll of 10 years anywhere else.

That it is happening to Pierre Elliott Trudeau not only constantly changeable in his mobility changing appearance, but in his attitudes and public postures.

Used to be that he relished stepping in the path of the jokers and cameras in the "media room" of the House of Commons to plead the Government's case in any issue and lecture the Opposition and the questioning press.

But now he is turning away when the Daily Question Period in the Commons is over, and scooting up the stairs to the body-guarded sanctuary of his PMO retreat.

You can watch his press secretaries gingerly approach him as he leaves the Commons, discreetly ask him if he wishes to say anything to the waiting reporters; then see him purse his lips, almost imperceptibly shake his head "no," and hurry for the escape to his office.

The man no longer is Caesar, but a Prime Minister full of doubts and uncertainties, beset by pressures and problems.

"Oh, I almost forgot. A few wheat farmers were looking for you while you were out!"

Nixon's Planned Visit to Moscow Pleases Europeans

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Western Europe, confronted with President Nixon's plan for visiting Moscow as well as Peking next year, has reacted with a general sense of gratification and guarded hope.

The Nixon announcement Tuesday of the projected Moscow trip prompted some European observers to take note of the way Moscow is seemingly willing to deal directly with Washington despite any troubles the Soviets might be having with countries like Britain.

Communists in Britain alleged that the planned Nixon trip, along with other exchanges of top level visits between the Russians and various governments outside their orbit, makes London appear isolated from an increasingly prevalent world trend towards a policy of international reconciliation.

Prime Minister Heath, whose Conservative government recently expelled scores of Soviet diplomats for alleged spying activities, "is isolating Britain at the very moment when co-operation and trade are more important to our people than ever," says the Communist Morning Star.

But other London commentators apparently accept the official British contention that expulsion of the Russian envoys was meant only to clear the decks for an eventual new start towards radical improvement of Anglo-Soviet relations.

On the other hand, there is caution in both Britain and such Continental countries as West Germany about Nixon's aspirations, mainly in view of his record in the 1940s and 1950s as a militant anti-Communist.

Moreover, a certain degree of apprehension is apparent in the remark by a business-oriented newspaper in London that, in trying to initiate a fresh move towards a significant East-West "detente," the Russians apparently prefer to deal directly with the Americans.

This choice of a direct Moscow-Washington line of contact was taken by some London editorials to indicate more strongly than ever a need for Britain, France and other West European countries to fuse their various energies into a new multinational power—presumably beginning with expansion of the European Common Market beyond its present membership of six states.

Yet the Nixon announcement is particularly welcomed in Europe by commentators who had feared that Washington was unenthusiastic towards the policy of East-West friendship—or the "ostpolitik"—which has been the hallmark of Chancellor Willy Brandt's approach to international affairs since he became leader of West Germany.

In fact, the Times of London went so far as to cite the incredible vision"—that of the U.S. president finding his special position to sooth relations between the rival giants of world communism: Russia and China.

One of the considerations prefeared that Washington was unenthusiastic towards the pol- cy of East-West friendship—or the "ostpolitik"—which has sia is stepping up its preparations for a possible future expansion of rocket forces.

Contentions of this kind reflect as much on the Americans as they do on the Soviets and help to produce a relatively pessimistic mood among observers all over the world who might otherwise be lured into excessive optimism about the results of top-level meetings such as those now being planned in Washington, Peking and Moscow.

Northland Railway Dispute

Ottawa Journal

The rights and wrongs of a dispute which prompts employees of the Ontario Northland Railway to book off "sick" are not apparent at this distance. But it seems a hell of a way to run a railroad strike!

It is isolating 100,000 people of Northern Ontario in communities north of James Bay, in an area stretching to the west James Bay's Trains and buses are not operating. Telegraph and telephone services are being operated by supervisory personnel, and only emergency and emergency messages.

ONR employees are angry with their union officers and the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission which operates the railway and bus services, telegraph and long-distance telephone lines, for delay of nearly a year in negotiating a better pension plan. Hence, the majority of 1,600 workers began reporting sick Tuesday, and operations came to a halt.

Their action seems to show cool indifference to the plight of the communities. One might think the employees had made their point with a one-day wildcat; that it would needle into action the politicians over pensions. But no.

Whether or not there will be serious hardships resulting from the extended walkout — say, in the case of sick injured needing quick transportation — remains to be seen. If there is,

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 16, 1971 . . .

The RCMP patrol ship St. Roch reached Vancouver 27 years ago today—in 1944—after an 86-day voyage from Halifax through the Northwest Passage. She thus became the only vessel to have made the northern crossing of the continent in both directions. In 1940 she had left Vancouver to begin reaching Halifax on Oct. 11, 1942, after spending two winters locked in arctic ice.

1963—Ludwig Erhard succeeded Konrad Adenauer as chancellor of West Germany.

1950—The judicial committee of the Imperial Privy Council upheld a Supreme Court of Canada judgment that the federal government had no power to legislate on the manufacture, sale or distribution of margarine.

1942—Hurricanes killed 11,000 in Bengal, India.

1941—Konoye cabinet of Japan resigned.

1837—Thirty-four coal miners were killed in a mine explosion at Birmingham, England.

Mr. Davis and The Ontario Scene

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I was present on September 21 at the Memorial Arena when Premier William Davis arrived an hour-and-a-half late to kick off his election campaign.

After such an impressive entrance, complete with fanfares and little girls with sparklers, Mr. Davis, against a background of members of the Ontario cabinet, rose to deliver what should have been an inspiring speech. However, what followed was an insipid and mediocre diatribe that failed even to arouse the party faithful gathered to pay homage to their leader.

Expo 67 is past history, but even so the provincial government of the day did us proud with the Ontario pavilion and the catchy Expo song "A place to stand and a place to grow". What a good selling job to the rest of the world at an international exhibition and I was proud to say I was a resident of Ontario.

Mr. Davis opened his remarks by saying that he could not have picked a better place to open his campaign. What a pity he did not demonstrate this by saying in the friendly city I love enough to answer questions from the floor.

Had Mr. Davis not fled the scene immediately finishing his speech I was going to pose the following question to him. "How much of the taxpayers' money was spent in plugging Ontario as the new remarkable age in which all things are possible, but if there are any doubts that this is a well-run worthwhile project I think this should help dispel such ideas.

Health Care Program's Success

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

With Health Care so much in the public mind at this time I would like to mention an example of the really worthwhile service the Home Care Program is providing.

The following case came to my notice. An old immigrant lady, speaking no English, required nursing services and some help in the home. She qualified for the Home Care Program because the alternative would have been hospital admission.

The Nursing Service was provided through the Home Care Administrator in the local VON nurses. The help in the home was provided by a homemaker (housekeeper) secured by the Home Care Administration. The remarkable part of this was that they arranged to get a lady from their list who was able to speak the same language as the patient.

It Is All In the Mind

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

Why do motorcyclists, when they are stopped for a red light give their handbrottles a couple of quick twists, to make the engine give short roars?

This has had a chance to ask, you might get the answer that it is necessary to make certain the carburetor is well primed for quick take-off.

Correspondent of the Wallerton Times-Herald suggests that the true reason may often DO be that the rider, or drivers, enjoys the noise. It gives an agreeable sense of power to create throaty roars.

If this is a shrewd guess at the truth, as we suspect it is, there could be a satisfactory remedy. All that is needed is a pair of earphones for the power-happy driver, connected to a suitable noise-maker that he can operate by push-button control. He will then get the light to turn green he can make the engine roar in his own ears, while sparing the ears of everyone else.

Social Justice Debate Opens At Synod of Catholic Bishops

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic synod of bishops has opened its debate on social justice with a report urging the church to clean its own house.

The paper, read Thursday by Archbishop Teopisto Alberto Valderrama of the Philippines, suggests that the church's administration of its property sometimes led to "an accumulation of wealth that causes identification of the church with the treating into lofty rhetoric, ing her credibility when she does speak out against injustice and to promote justice."

The report calls for the church to sweep the dirt from its own house and to take prompt action instead of rerich and powerful, while reduc- "We're not looking for first aid but for strong medicine, and, if need be, preventive surgery," the report says.

It also urges a searching study of the pay, benefits and working conditions for the church's own employees and the church's restrictions on freedom of speech and thought among its members.

Archbishop Alberto's report charges the North Atlantic nations with exploiting the developing nations economically and political domination of wealth all economic, cultural weaker nations by stronger ones.

The paper also says that:

—All racial and ideological discrimination must be eliminated so the poor can progress and become more productive.

—Aid given by wealthy nations to poor ones should be considered a responsibility and not "charity."

—"Only a small part of making benefits from the cultural riches of the world."

—The month-long meeting now at its halfway point, has been debating the priesthood. Speaking Thursday, Josef Cardinal Slipyj, the Ukrainian Rite prelate freed in 1963 from Soviet imprisonment, denounced the idea of women priests.

"It goes against Scriptures and tradition" he said.

"Deaconesses, priestesses, bishopesses are only names for wives of deacons, priests and bishops. Deaconesses helped priests in church but never administered Sacraments."

But the 79-year-old prelate upheld the value of married priests, saying that in Poland under Communist persecution one married priest he knew was influenced by his wife and children to keep the faith while his brother, a celibate priest, defected to atheism.

Bellevillian to Found New Church in City

Bellevillian Rev. Lloyd A. Faulkner plans to found an interdenominational church in his native city.

Some 30 years ago he was attending Belleville Collegiate. Now he plans to hold his first service in the auditorium of his old school on Oct. 24.

Mr. Faulkner studied three years at Eastern Pentecostal Bible School at Peterborough, later leaving Canada to continue his education at the University of Tennessee.

He served two pastorates, but more recently, has been an active evangelist, on crusades across the United States and 36 other countries.

He also has conducted group therapy classes.

People need that personal church," he says. "They church needs to get out of the sanctuary and into the streets where people are."

In his travels, he says, he has found that people have a desire for fellowship beyond the confines of their own churches.

His Belleville church will be "strictly interdenominational with a strong emphasis toward overseas evangelism."

First service will be held in the collegiate at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Canterbury Archbishop Is Coming to Canada

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Most Rev. Michael Ramsey, begins an eight-day visit to Canada this weekend.

Dr. Ramsey has been invited by Trinity College, University of Toronto to deliver the annual Larkin-Stuart Memorial Lectures Oct. 18 - 20, for which he has chosen the theme "the crisis of faith today."

He will also be the first head of the Anglican communion to preach in Ottawa's Roman Catholic Basilica, before he returns home Oct. 23.

Between events the archbishop has a busy schedule, including church services and television appearances.

Under the archbishop there has been much reconciliation between the Anglican communion and the Roman Catholic church. A joint commission has just announced substantial agreement on the Doctrine of the Eucharist, a major barrier between the two churches. He has taken every opportunity to preach in Roman Catholic churches in order to emphasize the points which unite both churches.

During his visit to Canada he is also expected to brief himself on the talks for unity between United and Anglican churches.

Church Campus Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Five religious denominations are co-operating in developing a multiple church campus on a three-acre site in the recently-formed community of Erin Mills New Town, just west of here.

Hugh T. Lemon, chairman of the Inter-Church Regional Planning Association, told a news conference that the Anglicans, Baptist Convention, Christian (Disciples of Christ), Presbyterians and the United Church are participating.

The church campus development involves grouping church facilities of the different denominations on one site and permits the groups to carry on independent programs while sharing the cost and use of common facilities.

"This is the first time in Canada that five denominations have co-operated in the purchase of a site and in the planning of a church campus to serve a new community," Mr. Lemon said.

Bishop Visits Stirling Church

STIRLING (Special) — The Right Reverend J. R. Creegan, Anglican Bishop of the diocese of Ontario made his first episcopal visit to St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling on Sunday Oct. 10 at the morning service. Bishop Creegan, prior to his election and consecration as bishop, was for many years rector of Christ Church, Belleville. In his early ministry he served many churches in the area: Bancroft, Queensboro, Marlaw and Rawdon.

A son of a clergyman, Bishop Creegan's father was Chaplain to the Mohawk Indians on the Tyendinaga Reserve, where the bishop received his early education. At the time of his consecration the bishop was presented with a beautifully beaded episcopal Cross made of white pine, suitably decorated with Indian symbols.

A warm and friendly person, Bishop Creegan met many familiar acquaintances and friends on Sunday that he had met in the fraternal organizations and service clubs that he belongs to.

ST. MICHAEL'S CWL

The Catholic Women's League of St. Michael's Parish, Belleville held their October meeting on Tuesday last in the parish rectory meeting room. Monsignor J. F. Sullivan opened the meeting.

The president, Mrs. Joseph Farrell chaired the meeting and Mrs. Robertson Collins read the minutes of the last meeting in the absence of Mrs. J Sheridan. Mrs. J. McGinnis attended the recent Diocesan meeting in Kingston and gave an interesting and detailed account. Members were asked to take part in "Project 100,000" by writing a letter to their member of parliament opposing further legislation on abortion. These letters are to be sent to the National Office in Ottawa and a delegation will present them to parliament later this month.

A birthright centre is to be established in Napanee under the direction of Mrs. Mary Lynn Samniss. The annual Regional meeting of the Catholic Women's League will be held on November 28 in Sacred Heart Parish, Marmora.

A letter of thanks was read from Sister Mary Teresa, principal of Nicholson Catholic College in appreciation for community concert tickets for students interested in attending these concerts. Hastings Manor will hold their bazaar on October 28 and members were asked to contribute to the home bake table. Mrs. T. McCabe will again convene the annual Valentine Ball which will be held this year February 11. The next meeting will be on November 8 and the guest speaker will be Don Templeman who will speak on "Women in Law".

Mrs. Robert Folwell gave the introduction to the guest speaker for the evening, Sister Helen Pickett who is the co-ordinator of adult education for the Kingston archdiocese and is the Bishop's representative on the diocesan Parent - Teacher Association. Sister Pickett spoke on the role of women in the parish and the building of a christian community.

Mrs. John Granville thanked Sister Pickett.

Coffee and refreshments were served.

BELLEVILLE WESLEYAN METHODIST WMS

At the October meeting of the WMS, the guest speaker was Mrs. Jack Sullivan who spoke of life in the Indian Reservation in North Central Ontario where she and her husband live and work.

She spoke of the Indians' problems and frustrations in coping with changing conditions. Their lack of employment, plus in some cases lack of desire for employment compound the Indians' burdens she said.

She showed slides of homes and children including a group of Indians who have never had a Sunday School in their entire history before. This situation is common in many Reservations in Northern Ontario, she said.

Mrs. Sullivan said that school is available to all but attendance is unreliable, especially when good weather comes. She said that Indians are a suspicious people, hesitant to accept a white brother's friendship, but she commented that once accepted, the Indians' hospitality and friendship are indeed a reward.

Meeting with the local group were visitors from Centennial Free Methodist Church and Trenton Wesleyan Church.

Musical selections were rendered by Mrs. Helen Spearman, Mrs. Nora Elliott, Mrs. Elaine Blakely and Roy Stevenson. The service was conducted by the WMS president, Mrs. Nellie Greenwood. A substantial offering was presented to Mrs. Sullivan.

Refreshments and fellowship were enjoyed after the service.

ST. PAUL'S ACW

MARMORA — St. Paul's ACW met at the home of Mrs. H. Ash for the October meeting with 18 members present. The president, Mrs. W. Lavender, reported that the booth at Marmora Fair on Labor Day had been quite profitable. Dooley parties will be held in the church hall on Friday evenings as a money making project. Members were reminded to save their pennies and to bring saleable articles to the next meeting. Mrs. R. G. Winters and Mrs. Norman Kilpatrick offered to attend the ACW Deanery meeting in Roslin. Convenors for a bazaar to be held in the church hall on Friday, Nov. 19 were chosen and preliminary plans made. It was decided to place an order for 25 church calendars for sale among church members.

Mrs. L. Lavender reported she had received a prize list for the song hymn book published by a joint Anglican-United Church committee. The book contains 253 hymns chosen from the United Church Hymnary, 230 from the Anglican Hymn Book and 204 hymns that are common to both.

Mrs. Donald Robertson explained the Adopt a Family Plan in which $5 a month would keep a family in India from starving. It was the feeling of some of the members that some of the Canadian Indian people are in need of help also. A decision on the matter was laid over to the next meeting on Nov. 11.

Mrs. Ira Edwards and Mrs. Norman Kilpatrick volunteered as visiting committee for October.

Christ Church Guild

Some interesting slides shown by Mr. W. Beeby highlighted the program at the recent October meeting of Christ Church Parish Guild ACW.

The meeting based on the Thanksgiving theme opened in the usual manner and a number of business items were discussed. Members were asked for help to serve at a wedding on October 23 and the group also plans to cater at a luncheon for the Laymen's Deanery meeting. It was decided that the next meeting would take the form of an auction sale on Nov. 8.

For the program Mr. Beeby showed slides and gave an interesting narration of their trip through Greece, Thailand China and Japan. He will show slides of India at a smorgasbord dinner when the members of the parish will all pitch in with their assistance, to be held Nov 6.

The serving of refreshments concluded the meeting.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS C. JOHNSTON

Johnston – Nauss

Linda Ann Nauss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Douglas Nauss became the bride of Thomas Clarence Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Johnston on October 2 at St. Thomas' Anglican Church. Rev. Peter Teti was the officiating clergyman while the organist was Miss Janice Smith who also sang the solos.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long sleeved empire style gown of imported peau - de - soie with a band of silk accenting the waist, and tight silk cuffs. It featured a pouf - de - soie train. Her long full veil trimmed with lace flowed from a head piece composed of petals of lace and silk centered with stones. She carried a bouquet of white 'mums and green fern.

The maid of honor Miss Anna Rushnell wore a floor-length crepe gown with a ruffled neckline and cuffs. She carried a bouquet of pink and purple 'mums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Janice Lapp and Miss Patty Johnston the bridegroom's sister. Miss Sandra Nauss the bride's sister was flower girl. All three were dressed in floor length gowns with purple velvet bodices and skirts of flowered crepe identical to that of the maid of honor. The gowns featured long sleeves and were adorned with long bows at the back. Their bouquets were of pink and purple 'mums.

The best man was Richard Burt while the ushers were David Roper and Leslie Johnston the bridegroom's cousin.

The reception was held at the Royal Canadien Legion. Greeting guests was the bride's mother in a coat and dress ensemble of baby blue lace with black accessories and a corsage of baby blue 'mums tinted silver.

Assisting her was the bridegroom's mother in a green dress with black accessories and a corsage of white 'mums.

For the wedding trip to points West, the bride donned a purple velvet dress with an embroidered top, black accessories and a corsage of white 'mums. Upon return the couple will reside at 122 West Bridge St., Belleville.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Prior to her recent wedding Mrs. Thomas Johnston (nee Linda Nauss) was honored at a shower held by Mrs. Susan Brown and Mrs. Annie Jones with Mrs. Margaret Johnston as co-hostess. A gift was presented by the workers at Unemployment Insurance Commission. The couple were honored at a party held by Terry and Jean Trice at Hillcrest Community Hall. A rehearsal party was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

YOUR ANTIQUES

Bone Once Common Material for Buttons

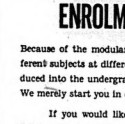
The bane of the first year English university student, Sir Gawaine and the Green Knight, a tale written in 1347, contains the first reference to buttons in the English language. It was not until 1640 that the word was first used in the modern sense, to mean a fastening for clothes. Therefore there are unlikely to be any buttons used as clothes fastenings older than the middle of the 17th century.

There are older ornaments which were called buttons in their day. The pearls on Queen Elizabeth the First's costume were referred to as pearl buttons but they were strictly speaking only intended for decoration. The term button meant a stud, knob or jewel and buttons were likely to be diamonds, emeralds, gold or silver studs, rubies and semi-precious stones and ornaments.

In the 17th century it was discovered that buttons could be used as an ornamental. Button manufacturing for clothing began in earnest. In fact one religious group still refuses to wear any article held together by buttons because they were considered worldly and ornamental in the 17th century. The earliest buttons were valuable in their day and still are. When a costume was discarded the buttons were saved and used again. Many of the precious buttons ended up on mounts as jewellery.

When buttons became important as a fastening for clothes one of the commonest materials used was bone, usually cattlebone, which was boiled and cut in slabs from which button disks were cut as shown in the illustration.

Mother-of-pearl later replaced bone. Bone buttons were mainly utilitarian for underclothing but were sometimes beautifully carved. Other materials similar to bone were widely used, whalebone, various ivory and ivory itself.



In Japan where ivory was widely used, a whole art form revolved about the netsuke, a name that refers to the carved button that was used, not to fasten clothing, but to suspend articles at the waist. The word netsuke did not appear until the 19th century although many netsuke appear much older.

The range of buttons made in the last 200 years is enormous, almost all are collectible. The beginnings of a button collection exist in every household. The value range is infinite. Some are worthless and one at least, used as a button on a turban, the Koh-i-noor diamond, is worth millions.

The National Button Society of America distributes information on buttons and has branches in Canada and the US. Enquiries should be addressed to the secretary, Mrs. J. C. Books, 4273 River Street Willoughby, Ohio 44094.

Your local library should be able to obtain for you The Collector's Encyclopedia of Buttons by Sally C. Luscomb, published by Bonanza Books. Almost any question a collector could ask except the price of buttons is in the encyclopedia.

The most sought after button in Canada is the uniform button of the Provincial Marine which was active in the Great Lakes in the period 1790 to 1814.

WEDDINGS

HARDER — CALLAGHAN

St. Timothy Church, Toronto was the setting for the recent wedding of Judith Anne Callaghan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Callaghan and of Douglas Brian Harder, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Harder of RR 2, Belleville. The officiating clergyman were Father Brady and Dr. H. F. Swan of Belleville. Organ music was provided by Eric Walker.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin gown with a sheer overskirt. A veil flowing down to the waist was held in place by a crown. She carried a bouquet of daisies with blue ribbons.

The maid of honor Miss Catherine Callaghan, the bride's sister wore a blue satin gown styled similarly to that of the bride but with short sleeves and no overskirt.

The bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Callaghan the bride's sister and Miss Dianne Harder the bridegroom's sister. Both were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

Miss Rosemarie Callaghan the bride's sister who was junior bridesmaid wore a pink satin gown with short sleeves.

The bridegroom was attended by Roger Harder, his brother, as best man. The ushers were Dave Bullard, Clare Pitcher and Doug White.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Church hall. Greeting guests was the bride's mother in an avocado green dress with a coat of green lace over taffeta. She wore green accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Assisting her was the bridegroom's mother in a blue and silver brocade dress with silver accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride changed to a crepe dress with a cream bodice and brown skirt in the same style as the wedding dress.

Upon return the couple will live in Toronto.

COOKS COOK - BOOKS AND RECIPES

"The true essentials of a feast are only fun and feed." — O. W. Holmes.

* * *

Cooking and "cookery" has surely come into its own.

Have you noticed the flood of cook books, magazines on cooking, in all book stores and magazine stands? Many of the books are of the up-to-the-life-size, guaranteed to give you instant appetite, to the point, you feel you are starving. That cooking is an interest for men as well as women is prevalent everywhere. A well-known writer on food, urges wives to encourage their husbands, who like and with to cook, to do so. For several reasons: it lightens her work in the kitchen. Men are able to cope if there is sickness or an emergency in the home. Also, she points out, young couples, today, who do not "have the traditional hangups," share meal-making as a matter of course.

Cooks, Cook-Books and Recipes.

Intriguing restaurants are also coming to the fore. An example is "The Soupiere" on the fifth floor of Morgan's in downtown Montreal, where homemade soups served from a huge iron kettle is ladled into ample soup bowls. This is the sole main dish! Only one kind of soup is available daily though the variety may vary different days of the week. Along with it is fresh French bread and bread sticks. Home-made pie a la mode is the only dessert. Needless to say, the counters where the patrons eat are filled.

Recipes of old cook-books make fascinating reading. At hand is a volume kindly loaned by Mrs. Lorraine Blatherwick.

Under Doughnuts, are given Raised doughnuts, Snow Balls and Fried Cakes, but one named just Doughnuts is the following:

"One cup of sugar, one cup of milk.

Two eggs beaten fine as silk.

Salt and nutmeg (lemon will do),

Of baking powder teaspoons two.

Roll on pie board not too thin;

Cut in diamonds, twist or twin.

Drop with care the doughy things

Into fat that briskly swells

Evenly the spongy cells.

Watch with care the time for turning.

Fry them brown just short of burning.

Roll in sugar, serve when cool.

Price a quarter for this rule." — Hazel A. Marquis.

Then here is a cake named Gold Flake:

3½ cups of flour (1st Kings 4:22); 1 cup of butter (Judges 5:25); 2 cups of sugar (Jeremiah 6:20); 2 cups of raisins (1st Sam. 30:12); 1 cup of water (Genesis 24:17); 1 cup of almonds (Genesis 43:11); 6 eggs (Isaiah 10:14); 1 tablespoon of honey (Exodus 15:21); a pinch of salt (Leviticus 2:13); 3 eggs (yolks); 1 pint of milk; spices. 2 tablespoons. Follow Solomon's advice for making good boys and you will have a good cake. (Prov. 12:14).

Successful Living

Should Children Attend Parent's Second Marriage?

By DORIS CLARK

I am often asked whether children should attend the second marriage of their divorced mother. My answer varies with the circumstances.

If the children are young, and living with their mother, and have become well acquainted with their new father, it would be folly to leave them out of it. They are a part of the family in a very real way.

But if there is estrangement and difficulty; if the children are pulled both ways or are living, not with the mother but with the father, the occasion may be approached with mixed feelings.

Efforts should be made to find out how the children feel about the marriage; and there should be no insistence on any reluctant ones attending.

* * *

Dear Doris: My 17-year-old son is desperately in need of help to take off weight. He is so miserable and looks terrible. We have tried doctors but they just tell him to watch what he eats.

He has no willpower and just eats constantly (mostly junk). He has few friends as he is so self-conscious about his size. He is six feet tall and weighs 270 pounds. He hates being fat but just can't seem to help himself. He can't buy young men's clothes to fit properly, and no matter how good the clothes are, they look the same.

Also his father and myself are both diabetic, but even this doesn't seem to persuade him to take off the weight. — A. A.

Dear A.A.: Could he be using food as a kind of satisfaction to replace what seems to be lacking in his life — much as an alcoholic takes to drink? This has been going on for a while, and the habit of reaching for something to eat is doubtless deeply fixed.

I would need to know more about your son's early childhood; any difficulties he had in adjusting to family or school or playmates. Was the home situation something less than perfect — or has your illness and his father's left him feeling insecure?

He needs to love life enough to want to lose weight and look well more than he wants to satisfy his longing for food. He needs to see the connection between his bodily size and his dissatisfactions in life.

If you could identify his special talents and help him to picture a worthy objective, then my Simple Reducing Diet might carry weight (ugh!).

To rule out any glandular deficiency, start with a medical examination.

* * *

Dear Doris: Help! I am 18 and expecting my first baby boy. But I'm told that he would marry me, but I know it is only for financial help. My girl friend had this happen to her and she went to this place for unwed mothers. Could you please send me some information on it?

I also don't want my parents to find out because just recently my mother was very sick in hospital and it might kill her. — Barry

Dear Barry: Unable to help you, but quickly. Your best bet is to go right away to The Family and Children's Services of Hastings County, 332 Bridge Street, Belleville.

A kind and understanding counsellor will help you reach right decisions.

Sooner or later your mother will have to know; and the boy in the case will be feeling upset too. This is all part of what you will be discussing.

The social worker will know just how to help you tackle it all.

* * *

There's always something to do about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, a Canadian social worker, is a step in the right direction.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Serve This Relish with Cold Cuts

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Last week I went to the Cove and they served some horse radish it was delicious in a pudding form with a thin layer of jello type thing over top of it, cut in squares. Would you have a recipe for something like that — Kay H.

AUSWER: Yes and I am glad you enjoyed it.

HORSERADISH MOULD

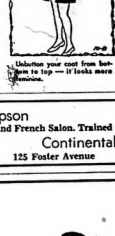
(Note: These moulds fill one 1¼-cup mould or six ¼-cup individual moulds. This is a relish to be served with cold cuts, including cold roast beef and is delicate and unusual.)

1½ tsps. plain gelatine
½ cup cold water
½ cup bottled horseradish (including a little of the liquid)
2 tbsps. finely chopped chives (or fine, fine green onion tops)
½ tsp. French mustard
½ tsp. sugar
½ cup mayonnaise (generic or real salad dressing)

Soak the gelatine in the cold water 5 min. Dissolve it, stirring, over hot water. Remove from heat and stir in the horseradish, chopped chives (or green onion tops), mustard and sugar and chill until partially set and of syrup consistency. Fold in the mayonnaise until smooth. Turn into a 1¼-cup mould or six individual ¼-cup moulds. (Moisten coffee cups make ideal moulds for this). Chill until set. To unmould loosen sides with sharp-pointed knife, then dip mould(s) in hot water for a few seconds and turn out relish tray or, if moulds are individual size, use as garnish for platter of cold cuts.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menus



Mild or Mexican Chili Con Carne (see Thursday); Toasted Rye Bread; Cole Slaw; Baked Custard with Sweet Black Cherry Sauce; Tea.

QUESTION: Would you give your method of making applesauce cooked with skins on — you know, it is strained after cooking? Thanks. — D. C.

ANSWER: It pleased me to receive this request because the method that follows retains the maximum of nutrients from skins and cores of apples. I think that the straining is easier than paring the apples.

SMOOTH APPLESAUCE

Wash and core and remove stems from 4 med. apples. I used Duchess. Add 2 cups hot water. Bring to boil covered. Reduce heat to "low" and simmer 30 to 15 min. or until apples are mushy. (Winter apples will require longer cooking.) Put through large, strong sieve and rub and push until only skins and cores remain. Add ¼ cup sugar. Chill until cold and thicker.

Unbutton your coat from bottom to top — it looks more feminine.

Ann Landers

New Etiquette to Cope With New Morality?

Dear Ann Landers: It seems like a new set of etiquette guidelines should be established to help conservative, square, confused, parents whose unmarried children (fresh out of their teens) are living with someone as man and wife.

Our two daughters have been living with their boyfriends for more than a year. Neither has plans for marriage at the present, time because it isn't necessary.

How do we evade the truth when confronted by friends and grandparents? When children marry, an announcement appears in the papers, but we seem to have acquired a couple of sons-in-law by virtue of the fact that they are shacked up with our daughters. Should we admit it and let the chips fall where they may? — Mixed Mates

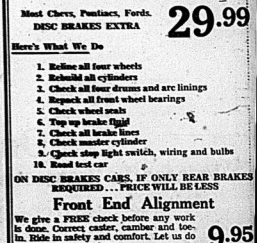
Dear Mixed: Where did you get the idea these two jokers are sons-in-law? They are simply friends of your daughters. The light-housekeeping arrangement may be for the hide-o-links. but you are under no obligation to explain, defend or discuss it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a college graduate, age 24, and seriously looking for a girl to marry. No, I'm not asking you to help me find somebody, what I am asking is this: What is wrong with a gorgeous chick, age 21, one year of college, now working as a model, who confesses to express an opinion on anything? I've taken this doll out at least a dozen times. It's OK when we are at a party or a movie or a ballgame. She laughs easily. Is pleasant, and she's one heck of an ornament, but I'd like to know what she thinks about things.

Last night I took her for a three-hour drive just to listen. I asked questions about politics, philosophy, religion—all I could get out of her was, "I haven't made up my mind yet."

What's her hang-up?—Pulling Teeth

Dear Pulling: She isn't hung up—she's stupid. A girl can't express an opinion if she doesn't have one. And what's with YOU that you can take out such a dummy a dozen times and not notice that the doll has a sawdust head? I'm glad you noticed it NOW, however. Some guys don't make the discovery until after they are married.



Dear Ann Landers: I'm getting fed up reading in your column that brides who fail to send thank-you notes are lazy, ignorant, or bereft of manners. One woman even had the gall to complain because the note wasn't LONG enough.

Our daughter was married three months ago. She was brought up right and I have never had to apologize for her manners. At this moment she has three gifts which she cannot pick up or wedge because she doesn't know who sent them. One card is illegible—sent from a resort. My daughter wrote to the resort to trace the gift and they could not help her. The other two gifts were sent from local shops—cash sales, no records. No cards.

So, please tell your readers that sometimes when a bride fails to acknowledge a gift, there may be a good reason— Hutchinson, Kan.

Dear Hutch: I've said repeatedly that after a reasonable length of time, if no acknowledgement is received, the giver should contact the bride (or high school grad, etc.) and ask if the gift reached her. If it WAS received and the recipient is embarrassed because she hasn't gotten around to letting you know, that's perfectly fine —you made no boner. She deserves to be embarrassed.

Trenton Upsets Senior Saints

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

There are three things that a Bay of Quinte high school football coach must face sometime in life: death, taxes and the Quinte Saints, and given the fact that Quinte has lost only two regular season gridiron bouts in seven years, you couldn't really blame Tom Nigro if he opted for death or taxes.

Trenton high school coach faced the unenviable task of pitting his senior football squad against the unbeaten Saints Friday afternoon. Trenton had dropped a 7-1 verdict to Centennial in their opening game and faced the likelihood of elimination from the league playoffs. Quinte, on the other hand, had thrashed Centennial 52-6 and was apparently breezing to another unbeaten season. Nigro did have one thing in his favor, however, because as he later stated "I knew our guys would hit."

To be more specific, his "guys" hit and hit and hit, out-hitting, out-hustling and eventually out-scoring the Big Grey Machine to take a 16-8 upset victory.

Despite holding the edge in play throughout virtually all of the contest it appeared as though Trenton was destined to defeat when Saint end Stan Brooks fell on a fumbled punt in the end zone to give his team an 8-1 lead late in the fourth quarter.

Quarterback Dave Harvey helped turn the game around when he connected with halfback Gord Kelly with less than two minutes remaining in the game. The speedy Kelly out-legged the Quinte secondary for a 75-yard touchdown and Harvey then hit flanker Duncan Armstrong for a two-point conversion to give his team a 9-8 lead.

The Saints attempted to launch drive to at least get into range for a tying single, but the attack sputtered when quarterback Rick Meagher was ejected for arguing with an official. Mike Beaudin provided the icing on the Trenton victory cake when he scooped up an errant lob by substitute quarterback Stan Brooks who was attempting to unload the ball to avoid a loss. The burly linebacker then wheezed 40-yards for the final touchdown.

"It was just a super effort by our guys. To tell you the truth I was happy with the 6-6 score at half time. I would have even been proud if we'd lost 8-1 after the showing we made," acknowledged Nigro after the game.

Trenton accomplished the victory despite losing their top lineman Steve Stoul with a possible concussion when he layed a crunching tackle on punt returner Al Hayman in the final play of the first half. Armstrong whose speed is the most single dangerous factor in the Trenton attack, was also slowed up with a shoulder injury that hampered his receiving.

"You deserved it," conceded Quinte's offensive coach Jack Sisson to Nigro. "Your guys really worked for it and they deserved to win." Head coach Rick Locke echoed the praise of the Trenton squad and admitted that "they outhit us, particularly our offensive line."

The results of the game leave Trenton, Quinte and Centennial all deadlocked for first place in the western division with 3-1 records. If they remain tied after next week's final contest, the three teams may have to draw lots to see which club will be eliminated from the playoffs.

Defensive linemen Wayne Harrison and Mike Whalen were the only Quinte players to come up with top-rate efforts, who Trenton's entire defensive unit came through with a strong showing.

In the junior contest, Trenton continued to be unbeaten as they rallied from a 14-13 deficit at half time to grab a 21-14 victory.

Andy Reddick hauled in a 56-yard touchdown pass and Peter Vos scored on an off-tackle for Quinte in the first half to offset majors by Steve Beecroft and Mark Klemencic.

After a pair of singles had given Trenton a 15-14 lead in the fourth quarter, Nick Alexander pulled in a scoring pass from Dave Lewis to ensure the victory.

Peterborough goalie Terry Wasson turns aside both the quick and Belleville Fairways forward Brian Cousins who was slammed into the goal crease by Lee Palmer. Derrick Emerson moves in to tie up Belleville's Doug James who is looking for a rebound that failed to come his way. The defending champion Lions rallied twice to finally pin a 5-3 loss on the Fairways in the opening game of the Eastern Ontario Junior B league. Belleville travels to Picton Sunday for their first meeting with the Prince Edward entry.

Fairways Drop Opener 5-3

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

For a while it appeared as though the Belleville Fairways would pull a Clyde Beatty act by taming the defending champion Peterborough Lions in the opening game of the Eastern Ontario Junior B league. However, the league kings showed they weren't quite ready to roll over and play dead, coming from behind twice to hand the Fairways a 5-3 setback.

"They outskated us," conceded Belleville coach Moe Hunter, "but we still didn't do too badly. There won't be any of those 10-0 games this season."

While the locals skating may have left something to be desired, they earned full marks for aggressiveness with a hard-hitting style that often had Peterborough off-balance.

Rookie Brian Cousins got the Fairways off on the right foot after only 2:10 had elapsed in the game driving a low shot past goalie Terry Wasson on a power play effort.

After Peterborough had squared accounts in the opening frame, Dave Smith gave Belleville a 2-1 lead in the middle period combining with Tim Yohn for a pretty two-way passing play.

Cousins collected his second goal of the game in the final period picking up a loose puck and circling the defence to knot the game at 3-3. Harry Robock tallied the winning Peterborough goal near the 15-minute mark slaping a 15-footer past Bob Harrison.

Robock and Derrick Emerson each had two goals for the winners with the other marker going to Bob Wasson.

Harrison performed well in the Belleville nets facing a total of 41 shots by the visitors. He received good defensive support from blueliners Doug Perry, Jim Cain, John Mulvihill and Peter Ackerman. Cousins was the class of the Belleville front - liners.

The Fairways were minus the services of left winger Jeff Howard and defenceman Kevin Dockrill for the contest. Dockrill, who missed most of training camp with a leg injury has been skating with the club and may see action in Sunday's bout in Picton.

A bus will leave the Memorial Arena at 8.15 p.m. with seats available for interested spectators. Reservations can be made by phoning Frank Mulvihill at 968-8482.

'We Did It'

Trenton's Bim McFall (77) appears to be taking things pretty much in stride, but teammate Steve Stoul can't help kicking up his heels as they put the stop on Quinte Secondary's Paul McQuaid. There were plenty of other Trenton players kicking up their heels when the game ended as they came through with a 16-8 upset of the Saints. The loss ended a victory string of 17 straight Bay of Quinte games for Quinte and marked only the third time in seven years that the Saints have lost a regular season contest.

Barrie Blanks Oakville

Barrie Flyers registered their first shutout in two seasons Friday as they beat Oakville Oaks 7-0 in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A action.

In other games, Galt Hornets held first place by downing Orillia Terriers 6-5, Woodstock Royals dumped Kingston Aces 8-3 and Belleville Quintes edged Owen Sound Crescents 3-2.

Lloyd Vaughan stopped 24 Oakville shots to earn the shutout for Flyers, who are tied for second place with Woodstock and Belleville.

Seven Barrie players shared in the scoring at home—Corby Adams, Rick McClocklin, Don Fraser, Pete Panagabko, John McMillan, Connie Mandala and Doug Acomb.

Quintes Win Second

OWNE SOUND (Special) — The Belleville Quintes came up with what might be described as a "fair - to - middlin'" victory last night, counting three times in the middle period to earn a 3-2 victory over the Owen Sound Crescents.

George Godson counted an unassisted goal at 1.54 of the middle frame to give the Quintes a 1-0 edge. A goal by Bob Tunstead brought things back to even before goals by John McConnell and Owen Sound's Steve Gavaris near the 15-minute mark left the game tied at 2-2.

Lorne O'Donnell collected passes from Godson and Greg Marchen to count the winning tally at 17.39 of the second game. It was the second assist of the game for Marchen.

Steve Reza in the Belleville nets faced 32 shots to 36 for his Owen Sound counterpart Gary Waugh. The losers drew 13 penalties, one more than the Quintes. Included in the totals were majors to Ralph

The teams return to Belleville tonight for an 8 p.m. bout at the Memorial Arena.

600 Manpower retraining students

Last year the province paid $1,730 per day student towards the operating expenses of Loyalist College. The balance was made up of student fees.

Loyalist College employs 226 faculty and support personnel, of which 33 live in Trenton, 120 in Belleville and the remainder throughout the area.

Under a provincial regulation which went into effect this year Sidney Township is to receive $25 per student as a grant in lieu of taxes.

The $7.5 million capital construction program completed or under way has created jobs for area residents and stimulated the economy.

Loyalist students, staff and faculty are active in community activities, bringing a new dimension to civic and cultural affairs.

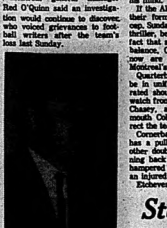
Als Brass Continues Hunt for Dissidents

TORONTO (CP) — Greg Barton will see some action Sunday but it's unlikely Toronto Argonauts will resume their quarterback platooning for their home game against Montreal Alouettes.

The outcome means little to the Argos, who clinched the Eastern Conference title with a resounding 33-5 victory last Sunday in Montreal, but the Alouettes, beset by dissension, are involved in a battle with Hamilton Tiger-Cats for second place.

The Ticats, ahead by two points, are in Winnipeg Sunday for a 3:30 p.m. EDT game against the Blue Bombers. It will be carried on the CTV national network.



Toronto coach Leo Cahill wants to get Barton back into game condition after a month's absence with a broken finger but he does not plan to alternate him with quarterback Joe Theismann as was his custom earlier in the season.

Both teams have injury problems, with the Als' troubles aggravated by reports of some carping within the organization about coach Sam Etcheverry's insistence on using flanker John Carlos.

Montreal dissidents contended that Etcheverry is wasting his time—and passes—on the former Olympic sprinter who is in the Als' lineup just because of his experience, but because of his speed.

Carlos, meanwhile, complained that the quarterbacks were not exploiting his talents.

Montreal general manager Red O'Quinn said an investigation would continue to discover who voiced grievances to football writers after the team's loss last Sunday.

RED O'QUINN

"The players all deny putting the rap on Carlos," said O'Quinn. "We believe it was one of the coaches because of his fit of remorse over the defeat."

Although O'Quinn said Carlos "must learn to keep his big mouth shut," he insisted there would be no change in the Carlos situation unless the coach changed his mind.

If the Alouettes can overcome their formidable injury handicap, Sunday's contest could be a thriller, because they trail by the fact that second place is in the balance. Ottawa Rough Riders have only Hamilton's assistance in Montreal's playoff hopes.

Quarterback Sonny Wade will be in uniform, despite a separated shoulder, but he'll likely watch from the bench while Jim Chasey, a rookie from Dartmouth College, attempts to direct the team on the field.

Cornerback Merrit Cole, who has a pulled hamstring, is another doubtful starter and running back Jim Foley has been hampered at workouts, favoring an injured leg.

Etcheverry is expected to use Ed Reyes, formerly of the National Football League Philadelphia Eagles, at Cole's position and replace defensive halfback Larry Fairholm with rookie Tony Proudfoot. Fairholm was sidelined last Sunday by an ankle injury.

The defending Grey Cup champions haven't scored a touchdown in their last two games, and in a bid to get back on the rails the Als have been assessing a couple of prospects —defensive end Tony Gabriel, formerly of Winnipeg Blue Bombers and the NFL Los Angeles Rams, and quarterback Jim Laslair, who played with Montreal Beavers of the Continental League in 1967.

It's doubtful if either of them will see action this weekend, Etcheverry said. "They'll have had only one full practice and that's not enough to teach them anything."

From the Toronto camp there was cheerful news about running back Leon McQuay, who will return to the active roster. McQuay is the leading ground gainer in the RFC, although he has missed Argos last two games because of a knee injury.

However, flanker Mike Eben will be absent for the next two games. He was placed on the 30-day injury list and is in hospital recuperating from a bone graft. He'll be eligible for the first game of the conference-final.

Eben's departure opens the door for a 247-pound Canadian lineman, Angelo Raffin. He played briefly last season with Montreal Beavers of the Continental League in 1967.

"It's doubtful if either of them will see action this weekend," Etcheverry said. "They'll have had only one full practice and that's not enough to teach them anything."

Stamps Hope Record Holds

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Not many teams in the Canadian Football League can say they've got the best of Saskatchewan Roughriders in the dirtiest deal they call Taylor Field.

But there is an exception. Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference haven't lost to the Riders in Regina since the first playoff game of 1969.

That record will be put on the line Sunday in one of three weekend games in the West.

In the other encounters, Edmonton Eskimos visit British Columbia Lions tonight and the Eastern Conference Hamilton Tiger-Cats enter Winnipeg Stadium to meet the Blue Bombers in a home-and-home series.

While the Calgary-Saskatchewan game is important to determining which team may eventually tie down first place, the other games will go a long way in deciding the last playoff spot.

The situation is all clear to Jackie Parker, general manager of the Lions:

"It's simple: We beat Edmonton Saturday, Hamilton beats Winnipeg Sunday."

Calgary and Saskatchewan, still in a fight for first spot, already have clinched playoff berths and if Parker's idea is correct, the last playoff position would go to the Lions

But the thorn in the Lions' paw is the injury bug which has laid up seven players including the league's leading rusher, fullback Jim Evenson. He will be out at least two games with strained knee ligaments.

Evenson's place will be filled by Dick Lyons, a National Football League cut who joined B.C. Thursday.

Edmonton, on the other hand, has a two-game winning streak going and is expected to send out a stand-pat lineup. Linebacker Dave Gasser has been taken off the injured list.

In Winnipeg, the Tiger-Cats hope to firm up their grip on second place in the East and Winnipeg, tied with the Lions with 11 points each, want the victory for playoff-hope purposes.

Calgary likely will be without the big football name only say Mims; who has a bad ankle, and other players who have been brought in for five-day trials.

The Riders took the measure of Stampeders 24-17 in their clash a week ago.

The Thanksgiving Lions game will be televised by CTV's western network with the Winnipeg-Hamilton game Sunday being shown on the full CTV network.

Redskins Will Go For Five In Row

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Redskins go for five in a row Sunday as St. Louis Cardinals invade Washington for a rematch of their season opener in National Football League play.

The Redskins, the only undefeated team among the 26 in the NFL, have tied a 28-year-old club mark and are setting their sights on their own 1945 record, when they won the first seven games en route to the championship game—last 72-0 debacle they lost to Chicago Bears.

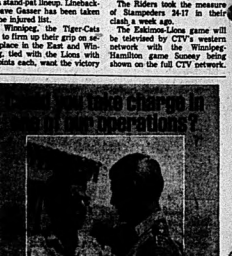
The Cards, 3-2 in the NFC East and tied with New York Giants for third place, a game behind Dallas Cowboys and two behind the Redskins, will be out to avenge their 24-17 loss to Washington, which took advantage of three St. Louis fumbles and intercepted two passes for the victory.

Both teams are virtually injury-free. Macarthur Lane, the Cards' running back, has a calf injury but is due to play.

Other games: Baltimore Colts at New York Giants, Detroit Lions at Houston Oilers, Minnesota Vikings at Green Bay Packers, Cleveland Browns at Cincinnati Bengals, Philadelphia Eagles at Oakland Raiders, Chicago Bears at San Francisco 49ers, Los Angeles Rams at Atlanta Falcons, New England Patriots at Miami Dolphins, Dallas at New Orleans Saints, Buffalo Bills at the New York Jets and, in Monday night's game, Pittsburgh Steelers at Kansas City Chiefs.

The Colts, with by far the league's best defence, having allowed a touchdown in eight quarters and haven't been scored upon in six, including last Sunday's 43-0 romp over Buffalo. The Giants, a 20-13 Monday night loser to Dallas, will still be without injured running backs Ron Johnson and Tucker Frederickson.

It's the first clash ever between the Lions and Oilers. Detroit is expected to have top NFC passer Greg Landry back. Steve Owens, with a bad shoulder, and tight end Charlie Sanders, with an injured leg, in the lineup. The same goes for Houston quarterback Charley Johnson, but running-back Dandy Campbell, with a groin injury, is questionable.



The Vikings, No. 1 in NFC defence, have put together successive shutouts. The Packers are the only team among four in the Central Division not sharing the lead. Tackle Grady Alderman is expected back for Minnesota after missing last weekend's game against Philadelphia, 3-2.

The Bengals are still without star quarterback Virgil Carter and they haven't won under rookie Ken Anderson. The Browns lead the AFC Central Division with a 3-1 record, one game ahead of Pittsburgh and two over the Bengals.

The Eagles are still looking for their first victory and are running into the fifth 1970 divisional winner in five weeks.

They haven't scored a touchdown on offence in three games. The Raiders may have Ken Stabler starting in place of quarterback Daryle Lamonica, who has a pulled leg muscle.

The Bears say running back Gale Sayers, who made his regular-season debut last Sunday, is back at full strength. Ken Nix will be starting again for them in place of injured quarterback Jack Concannon. The 49ers will be out to rebound from their upset loss to Los Angeles.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League traded centre for defenceman Pete Foley. Foley, 26, scored 17 goals and had 54 assists and a league-leading Andre Lacroix to Chicago Black Hawks Friday 306 minutes in penalties for Portland in the Western League last year. He played briefly last season for the Black Hawks.

SOREL, Que. (CP) — Sorel Black Hawks scored three goals in the first period and went on to smash Cornwall Royals 7-1 in Quebec Junior A Hockey League action Friday. PARIS (AP) — Arnold Palmer birdied four of the last five holes Friday for the first-round lead in the 54-hole Lancome Trophy golf tournament with a six-under par 66. Palmer, only one under after nine holes, posted a five-under par 31 on the incoming nine at the 6,947-yard, par-71 Saint Nom La Bretecche course. Gary Player of South Africa, Tony Jacklin of England and Lu Liang Huan of Taiwan were tied at 68 in the tournament limited to eight of the world's top players.

MONTREAL (CP) — The team orthopedist for Montreal's professional football and hockey teams told a post-graduate course on sports medicine Friday that loose kneecaps increase the flexibility of the knee. But, Dr. Ted Percy said this "loose ligament complex" makes an athlete more vulnerable to injury because the kneecap moves one-half inch further than most people's kneecaps and exposes the ligaments. Dr. Percy is the orthopedist for Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference and Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. John Carlos, the former United States Olympic track star, and now a flanker with the Alouettes, and Peter Mahovlich, centre with the Canadiens, both have "unusually loose kneecaps," Dr. Percy said. Dr. Percy said that few athletes with the loose kneecap condition make it into professional sports because of injuries suffered in younger years.

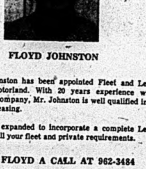
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Sam Snead, admitting he couldn't play much better, shot a five-under par 65 Friday for a 36-hole 132 to take a three stroke lead after the second round of the $100,000 National PGA Club pro championship. Snead, 59, put together a 32-33 on the 6,125-yard No. 1 course at Pinehurst Country Club. His opening 67, five under par, was on the tougher 7,051-yard No. 2 championship course. Tied for second at 135 were Babe Llanday of Westfield, N.J., and Jimmy Powell of Yorba Linda, Calif. Llehardis had a scored round 68 and Powell 70.

Marauders Maul Lutheran

HAMILTON (CP) — Greg Higson scored three touchdowns to pace McMaster Marauders to a 33-10 win over Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks Friday night and assure the Marauders a berth in the Ontario Universities Athletic Association football playoffs.



The Marauders, who will meet unbeaten Ottawa Gees Gees in a sudden-death semi-final here Oct. 30, survived the first half with a 9-7 lead before 7,000 fans but had little trouble the rest of the way.

The Marauders' other touchdown was scored by Andy Roy. Ken Baux converted four, and added a field goal. The other points came on a safety touch.

For the Hawks, Tom Walker scored a touchdown and Wally Parker kicked a convert and a field goal.

Clemente, Robinson at Odds

Right Fielders Spark Series Feud

BALTIMORE (AP) — A controversy is shaping up at Baltimore's grassy Memorial Stadium today when the Orioles and Pittsburgh Pirates meet in the sixth game of the 1971 World Series.

The antagonists are Roberto Clemente of the Pirates and Frank Robinson of the Orioles —coincidentally, the leading hitters for their respective clubs, in this flip-flop series which saw Baltimore win the first two games at home only to have Pittsburgh take three straight on the artificial surface of Three Rivers Stadium.

The Pirates are going for the clincher today with Bob Moose —their sixth different starting pitcher in as many games—opposing second-game winner Jim Palmer.

But the pitchers hardly seemed to matter the way Robinson and Clemente have gone at it over the issue of right field.

"Mike Cuellar hit a ball in Pittsburgh that I caught for an out," Clemente continued, "because I picked it up right away and could see it. In Baltimore that ball is a double."

Clemente said he talked to the other Pittsburgh players following the two defeats at the start of the series in Baltimore.

"I said to them, 'fellas, we're going to a major league park now. We'll show them that we're not as bad as people think we are.'"

Clemente's blast got a rise out of Robinson, who had seven hits for the Orioles going into today's game.

ROBERTO CLEMENTE

"He's supposed to be such a great outfielder," said Robinson, "he should be able to adapt to any park.

Clemente, in his 17th season with the Pirates, spent the first 13½ years playing in ancient Forbes Field and Robinson had something to say about conditions there.

"He played in a coal hole all of his career until he came into his new park," said Robinson.

"Now he's criticizing other parks. Everyone can't go out and build a new park."

Then Robinson went to work on the artificial field at Pittsburgh

Clemente, whose nine hits are four short of the series record, started it when he blasted the Baltimore ballpark.

"The conditions of this park are not up to major league standards," said Clemente. "It's hard to pick up the ball in the outfield because of the background. There are ditches out there in right field."

Clemente said the conditions of the field affected the way he played.

"You can't execute the way you're supposed to," the veteran Pittsburgh star said, "or like to play shallow, but in Baltimore, there's no way you can play shallow. If you do, you malaphgke the ball."

Clemente claimed the Memorial Stadium outfield is bumpy in many spots.

"You run here, it is high," and then you take two steps and it is low," he said as he indicated the fluctuations of the surface with a wave of his hand.

FRANK ROBINSON

"I don't like the artificial surfaces," he said. "I like natural playing fields. It's a different kind of game at Pittsburgh. You have to be wary when a ball is hit to you.

"It's tough in Baltimore," Robinson continued, "but I don't go around crying about it. I just do the best I can. Tell Clemente to ait it out if he doesn't like it. I'll get him a seat in the stands. Tell him to watch the way I play it."

Robinson was sure to be playing right field today as the Orioles battled for their lives against the Pirates, who were trying to become the first team in Series history to win four straight games after dropping the first two .

But little else was certain about manager Earl Weaver's lineup. Weaver said he had his mind made up but was keeping it to himself.

"I'm going to the track today," Weaver said as the Orioles worked out lightly Friday. "And I'm going to try and pick some winners."

Glover Finds Patience Isn't Permanent

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Charles O Finley is "a very patient man," coach Fred Glover said last spring as California Golden Seals sank deeper into the cellar of the National Hockey League's West Division.

Glover was describing his boss, owner of the Seals and also baseball's Oakland Athletics.

But Friday Glover discovered abruptly that Finley's patience had worn out. The Seals fired Glover and named former Philadelphia coach Vic Stasiuk to succeed him.

General manager Gerry Young made the announcement, but the change had Finley's approval stamped all over it.

Glover's job seemed secure at the time he made his remark, despite the Seals' hopeless last-place position in the standing. It was only last Saturday that Finley announced in Chicago that Glover would remain as coach of the club.

Glover rejected an offer at that time to become Finley's administrative assistant. The report of Stasiuk's appointment Friday did not indicate what Glover's future is with the Seals.

Stasiuk, 42, was fired at the close of last season at the end of his second year as coach of the Flyers.

In three games under Glover this season the Seals had one win and two ties. During the last three seasons the team had only 71 victories against 129 losses and 40 ties.

"I know what Fred has had to fight against," said Stasiuk, a veteran of 18 NHL seasons as a player with Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks and Boston. He recorded 163 goals and 254 assists in his playing career and was part of the Uke Line that had considerable success with the Bruins. His line-mates were Bronco Horvath and Johnny Bucyk.

"I feel this job is a great challenge and when Garry phoned me I jumped at the chance to get back into pro hockey," Stasiuk said.

Stasiuk got a taste of Glover's problems Friday when the Seals blew a 4-0 lead and lost 9-6 to Vancouver Canucks at Oakland in the only NHL game.

Spearheaded by Bobby Sheehan's three-goal performance, the Seals tried to make Stasiuk's debut a happy one, but the Canucks exploited their weak defence to come from behind the four-goal deficit.

Andre Boudrias and Orland Kurtenbach each scored twice for Vancouver with single goals going to Pat Quinn, Dennis Kearns, John Schella, Bob Schmautz and Murray Hall.

Walt McKechnie contributed two goals to California's lost cause The Seals' other goal came from Gary Jarrett.

There was also some other office action Friday when Chicago Black Hawks traded defenceman Rick Foley to Philadelphia Flyers for centre Andre Lacroix.

Foley, 26, who played briefly for the Hawks last season, scored 17 goals and had 34 assists for Portland in the Western League. Lacroix, 26, produced 66 goals in the past three season for Philadelphia, where he was a favorite of Flyers' fans.

Further Expansion For NHL ?

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Friday the NHL's policy towards further expansion will be discussed at the league's board of governors meeting in Florida starting Oct. 25.

Campbell said in an interview that the "quantity and the time" of the expansion program would be discussed.

There has been speculation that the NHL would speed up its expansion program in order to offset the formation of the proposed World Hockey Association.

Meanwhile, Campbell said that remarks made Thursday by two United States legislators "were insupportable allegations against hockey."

Emanuel Celler, Democrat, congressman for New York and Senator Sam Ervin, Democrat from North Carolina, released a joint statement criticizing professional sport in general while announcing plans to introduce legislation that would clamp down tough United States anti-trust laws against professional team sports.

The legislators also claimed that "when it comes to blacklisting and throttling player negotiations, charging high prices to fans, blacking out television and moving franchises at will, the sports monopolies act with the greedy single-mindedness of a child reaching in a candy-jar-more, more and more."

"We (hockey) haven't done any one of those things he's talking about," Campbell said.

Did you say COLD DUCK? Is this a name for a good Canadian wine? It is. It's a name for a crazy blend of red and white sparkling wines. It's very, very pink. Very, very sparkling. It comes in a very champagne bottle. Chilled then opened, it won't stay long in the bottle. Brights Wines

Look for this new design of Government of Canada cheques

If you're one of the thousands of Canadians who receive cheques from the Canadian Government, look for a change in design.

The changes were made for some very good reasons. The new cheques are designed in a way that will make them extremely difficult for an unqualified recipient to cash.

The new design also bears the new Government of Canada symbol and is part of a program to standardize all Federal Government cheques.

We're telling you now, in advance of this change, so that all recipients will be certain to recognize the new cheque forms when they come into use this month.

BLUEPRINT FOR GOVERNMENT.

The Liberal Party's platform for Government in Ontario.

"Over the past two years, the Liberal Party has developed a Blueprint for Government in Ontario — this is where we stand. This is what we believe has to be done. This is how we intend to do it."

REORGANIZATION OF GOVERNMENT

Ontario's growth over the past two decades has been phenomenal, but the structure of government hasn't kept pace with the social demands that this growth imposes.

A Nixon administration is pledged to check the mindless growth of big government — and to provide a public administration that is geared to solve problems, not just study them. Government that's part of the solution, not part of the problem.

The Nixon administration will:

Reduce the number of government departments from 24 to 12. The twelve new departments will have broader scope than those they replace, and will be geared to deal with problems which, because of their interdepartmental nature under the present system, can't be tackled effectively.

One important result of this reform will be a totally new kind of cabinet — a streamlined decision-making body that will set overall priorities, instead of dealing personally with administrative trivia. To see the machine as a whole, rather than acting as a representative of one of its parts.

The cabinet will be assisted by 15 to 20 parliamentary deputies who will have executive responsibility for particular programs, and will attend cabinet committee meetings. There will be an effective demarcation between the group that decides which programs and policies are important, and the group that decide how to carry out those policies and programs.

THE TWELVE DEPARTMENTS

* A Department of the Environment — something Robert Nixon has been urging for several years and finally adopted by the Liberal Government.
* A Department of Urban and Local Affairs — a ministry whose responsibility would embrace everything that affects the quality of life in our cities.
* A Department of Social and Community Services, a merger of the present Department of Health and the Department of Social and Family Services, plus some of the functions now handled by the Provincial Secretary's Department.
* A Department of Construction and Supply, which will eliminate the overlapping now prevailing between the Department of Highways and the Department of Public Works. The new department will be responsible for an effective system of centralized purchasing which, we estimate, can save Ontario taxpayers $20 million annually.
* A Department of Education which will merge the three present Departments of Education, Correctional Services and University Affairs.
* The Department of Resources, will combine the functions of the present Departments of Mines, Lands and Forests and Northern Affairs, plus some of the functions of the present Department of Highways. One of this Department's major tasks will be to end the neglect and decline of Northern Ontario.

The functions of the present Departments of Provincial Secretary, Justice and Labour will remain as they are. The present Department of Tourism and Information will be merged with the Department of Industry, Trade and Development. Finally, the functions of the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development and the Department of Consumer and Commercial Affairs will be reorganized.

We see a series of task forces, operating from the Premier's office and reporting directly to him, so that action will be taken on the kind of problems that now remain unsolved because no machinery exists to deal with them. One task force, for instance, will deal with the whole question of American foreign investment in the province and economy. Another will deal with decentralization and regional development.

Finally, a Nixon administration will strengthen the office of Provincial Auditor. This official will operate independently of government, and be empowered to examine all expenditures.

ENVIRONMENT

Under a Liberal administration, the Department of the Environment will be one of the most powerful ministries in the government. It won't merely pursue its own projects in seclusion, like departments — but will have a major say, at cabinet level and below, in the ecological implications of all development in the province, full public hearings will be held on all projects.

One of the first tasks our government will assign to the Department is a province-wide ecological study of the natural environment. We'll want to see an end to shortsighted development policies that put the gross national product ahead of everything else.

We will establish an Environmental Council, to provide an independent assessment of our progress in the fight against pollution. Its job will be to pinpoint environmental problems on a regular basis.

We will bring together all levels of government on both sides of the border to co-operate in the urgent task of cleaning up the Great Lakes basin. Ontario and other jurisdictions must cede some sovereignty in this area to the International Joint Commission or some equivalent body — something that the Governor of Michigan has proposed, but the former Premier of Ontario has refused to consider. The crisis of pollution in the Great Lakes is such a threat that only a body that transcends provincial and national boundaries can act with speed and decision.

We will amend the law to permit individual citizens to bring action against polluters. Under present law, you have to show a property interest, the government will be prepared to assist in the costs of such actions.

The changes we propose will also allow the Attorney-General to sue polluters on behalf of specific groups of people. At present, he can sue only on behalf of the Crown — which means that the people most directly involved (such as fishermen who lose their livelihood through mercury pollution of lakes) aren't entitled to a share in the proceeds of any damage award won by the Crown.

Under a Nixon government, all new chemicals or chemical processes that could enter the air, water or soil will be deemed guilty until proven innocent. To implement this new legislation, the Environmental Council will establish a Chemical Products Review Board, to which any citizen or company can appeal a government decision to license any new chemical process.

In addition, a Nixon government will:

* Use its taxing powers, plus financial incentives, to encourage re-cycling of wastes. Non-returnable bottles, beer cans and non-biodegradable plastic containers will be banned. The LCBO will give refunds on its bottles.
* Increase penalties for polluters and make officials of offending companies personally responsible for unjustified violations.
* Provide low-interest loans to firms installing pollution controls, and abolish the sales tax on pollution abatement equipment.
* Introduce anti-noise legislation.
* Give financial assistance to municipalities to install secondary water treatment by 1976, and tertiary treatment by the end of the decade.
* Halt the eutrophication of our lakes and rivers by eliminating, eventually, all nutrients in detergents. We will also investigate the entire area of phosphate and nitrate pollution from other sources.
* Give immediate priority to the establishment of a government-subsidized mass transit system. (The present government for many years has paid 75% of the costs of expressway studies; but it wasn't until last April that they did the same for studies of the feasibility of rapid transit).
* Negotiate for the national trade fascos, and to locate one in Ontario (Ottawa has already issued the invitation).
* Launch a comprehensive study of the whole problem of industrial land in Ontario, and accelerate the acquisition of open space close to urban areas.

URBAN LIFE

* Give planning the priority it deserves by establishing an Urban Affairs Department, with responsibility for developing urban policy for the entire province.
* In consultation with the municipalities, establish a comprehensive system of regional plans for all Ontario to stop urban sprawl, conserve green areas, channel industrial development and control urban growth by other means.
* We must decentralize. The government's recent Toronto-centred Regional Plan anticipates that an even higher proportion of Ontario's population will live in the 50-mile area round Toronto. Even if a Toronto of six million population is larger than anything we want, they are apparently committed to letting it happen. The weakness of this approach is that it ignores the leverage that government can exert to promote healthier patterns of development.
* A Liberal government will use tax incentives and other inducements to create new modes of development outside the new power sources — Nanticoke on Lake Erie, Bruce on Lake Huron and Lennox on Lake Ontario.
* We will pass an Urban Act to provide the administrative, financial, and political structures for the development of new communities.
* To void future Spadina fiascos, and to reduce the bias in favour of expressways over transit a Liberal government will undertake to pay not 50 percent but 75 percent of the approved construction cost of mass transit systems, and will make operating grants on a per passenger basis to municipal transit systems at rates more than equivalent to the road maintenance grants. We will also extend the GO train service beyond Metropolitan Toronto, join with the CNR in underwriting experiments to find new ways of using neglected transit options, such as abandoned rail lines and waterways, review major highway projects in terms of their impact on the communities and properties that would be affected, and use them to get the railways to lower rentals on its rights-of-way, or open them to other carriers.
* We must restore municipal autonomy, and promote local involvement in the planning process. The present government's approach has been to centralize — squashing local feelings, local needs and local priorities and, in some cases, in flagrant defiance of plain common sense. When regional governments were established in the Niagara region, for instance, residential mill rates in St. Catharines increased drastically — a perfect example of the evils of imposing new municipal structures on an area without providing the tax reforms that would make the new system work.

Regionalization of an area should be effected when the municipalities concerned take the initiative. It should be up to the local governments themselves to work out the details. The province should provide advice, encouragement, financial aid and logistic support.

Most important of all, the province must provide the financial arrangements that will ensure that, under a regional system, no local government is worse off financially than it was before. This means a rational system of equalization grants, not the present crazy patchwork which is the present government's substitute for policy. It must also institute tax reforms that will enable local governments to shoulder their new responsibilities. Accordingly, a Liberal government will place a moratorium on all existing proposals for new regional governments until Queen's Park assumes a larger share of the costs of education. At present, municipalities must raise 45 percent of their school costs from property taxes. Under a Liberal government, the province will assume 80 percent of these costs within four years — instead of the present 55 percent. Until that happens, plans for further regionalization shouldn't be allowed to proceed.

* Finally, we must restore the county assessment system. No single aspect of the present government's mergermania has caused more hardship, more confusion, more unnecessary exasperation, than its decision to centralize the assessment function at Queen's Park. Deciding what property is worth for purposes of taxation is one of the most intimate, most important functions of government. It must be performed at the local level, under provincial guidelines that allow local discretion to meet local needs.

Under a Nixon administration, Ontario's municipalities will operate in an atmosphere of partnership, not paternalism.

* We will make larger unconditional grants to local governments, and end the present chaotic system of conditional grants.
* We will ensure that, once an official plan has been adopted by a municipality and approved by the Ontario Municipal Board, the province's role is at an end. This means developers won't have to apply to Queen's Park for approval of each individual plan; approval will be granted or withheld at the local level.

No urban program, however, is more urgent than housing. We believe adequate shelter a basic right. Our first priority will thus be to eliminate the tragic gap between public housing starts and present waiting lists.

* We will also increase private housing starts through a preferential loan bank. Pension funds and insurance companies will be encouraged to invest more funds in mortgages. Lower production costs in housing construction will be encouraged through research grants and tax incentives.

Government supervised or controlled assembly and servicing of land will be used to eliminate speculators' huge profits. Tax provisions will be used to encourage homeowners to renew and improve their existing housing, and not to penalize them as at present. Cooperative housing projects, combining government, corporate and public financing will be encouraged.

Public housing tenants should have a major voice in management, with a view toward ultimate individual ownership on a condominium basis. Public housing units would no longer be concentrated in high-rise ghettos but be distributed throughout the community, using rent supplement programs.

All tenants and occupants of Ontario Housing Corporation buildings will have: (s) a right to a lease and (b) notices of eviction. Rent increases would have to be reasonable and tenants' associations would be given financial assistance to establish themselves as spokesmen for their housing community.

CONSUMER PROTECTION

Under a Liberal government, the policy of the Consumer and Corporate Affairs Department will be to fight on the consumer's side in the lop-sided contest between buyer and seller.

Much of this will be achieved simply by enforcing or amending legislation that is already on the books. Under the Ontario Consumer Protection Act, for instance, we have the power to ban misleading advertising. Under a Nixon government, this Act would be enforced by injunction.

Through amendments of various other acts, we will force the sellers of major appliances to honour their product guarantees. Even if the stove or refrigerator has been bought on time, and the sales contract then sold to a finance company. Strict liability will be imposed on manufacturers for product defects which cause physical injury to customers. Availability of spare parts will be guaranteed for automobiles, trucks, farm cars and farm machinery — under a law similar to one that has been proposed by the U.S. Federal Trade Commission.

The Liberal government will also regulate credit and other organizations which collect and trade information about individuals. Individuals will be given the right to look at-their files in the hands of such organizations, the right to correct erroneous information, the right to know what the information will be used for, and the right to sue for damages or an injunction against organizations furnishing or using incorrect information about him. The government draft bill is seriously flawed — it does not even apply to personal and credit reporting agencies, does not make it mandatory to send an individual a file that is opened on him, or the sources of their information, does not let the individual insist on correcting it, and does not let the individual sue the agency if he has been hurt by false information given out by it.

NORTHERN DEVELOPMENT

Northern Ontario is one of the main sources of Ontario's wealth — and yet the area is consistently short-changed on regional development policies, and its people are consistently denied the opportunity to participate in the decisions that affect their lives.

A Nixon government will establish a Northern Development Board and, under its direction, a Northern Development Fund. The board will consist of Northern Ontario M.P.P.'s of all parties, plus citizen representatives from all regions of the northern communities. The board's head office will be located in the north. It will be staffed by northerners. The board, not the government, will be responsible for setting expenditure guidelines, and it will have control of the Ontario Northland Railway. It will also be responsible for designating land-use programs, develop proposals for expansion of tourist and recreational facilities and, in co-operation with the Resources Department, oversee reclamation of land formerly used for mineral extraction.

To bring government closer to the people, a Liberal government will also make every effort to locate the Resources Department's main departmental offices in Northern Ontario, and will establish a regional ombudsman's office there.

In addition, a Liberal government will:

* Insist that in future, hydro rate increases will be permitted only after examination by a legislative committee. The committee will also be directed to examine hydro rates which place Northern Ontario pulp and paper mills at a competitive disadvantage.
* Insist on strict enforcement of Mining Act provisions which require processing in Canada of minerals mined in Ontario.
* Reform forest management policies. Timber companies will no longer be allowed to hold large tracts which they do not intend to use within a reasonable time. The government will also encourage the formation of consortia — for the co-operative management of large, well-defined forest areas. In some cases, the government itself may become a member of such consortia.
* Expand the role of the Ontario Northland Railway, to promote the development of secondary industry in the north.
* Stop the operations of resources industries in parklands and, if necessary, subsidize the transfer of these industries elsewhere in Northern Ontario.
* To encourage development of the tourist industry, and to ensure that Northern Ontario remains a good place to visit, a Liberal government will sell no more Crown land in recreational areas, and will insist that all recreational land owned by non-residents be either developed or resold. We will also study the establishment of a Centre for Recreation Management.
* Vigorously promote, by subsidies if necessary, the use of Air in the Mid-Canada Northern Ontario.
* A Liberal government will not take the view that this is a matter of concern only to the federal Department of Transport.
* Move actively to upgrade the standards of health care in Northern Ontario to the level prevailing in the south. The government will also actively explore the idea of encouraging medical and nursing personnel to take part of their training in the north.
* Give active consideration to implementing the Mid-Canada Development Corridor concept, which envisages a ribbon of medium-sized cities across Canada's "green north".
* Insist that native labour be used in any government projects in Northern Ontario, and that, in any development schemes for the area, ecological principles be strictly observed.

EDUCATION

Spending on education accounts for 41 cents of every dollar now spent by the Ontario government — which is ten times higher than a decade ago. The system is wasteful. It is administratively top-heavy, it is remote from the people who pay for it.

Education today is simply too big a business to be financed by municipal property taxes.

* According to a Nixon government's most fundamental reform will be the transfer, within its first term of office, of 80 percent of education costs away from land assessment. Twenty percent of $1.55 billion is quite enough for municipalities to raise from land assessments; provincial revenues must pay for the rest.

The first step of this policy will be to provide relief for farmers from the burden of education assessments by making flat extra payment to school boards equivalent to 30 percent of the funds they now receive from property taxes on farms.

* In every way possible, a Nixon government will attempt to restore the spirit of local autonomy in education that has been so badly eroded, with its arbitrary attempts at centralization, has done so much to undermine.

The reorganization elements of the Liberal educational policy are directed towards increased efficiency and cost control. A Nixon government will:

* Reduce the costs of school and university buildings by requiring architects to submit competitive bids for each project. In one district North York, this technique resulted in savings of 20 percent).
* Merge the Department of Education and the Department of University Affairs into a new Department of Education. Since rehabilitation is an integral part of the correctional process, the present Department of Correctional Services will also be included in the new department.
* Establish an independent University Commission to oversee the development of post-graduate education centres in Ontario. At present, there is no agency which can scrutinize applications for new graduate programs in the light of manpower demands and duplicated facilities elsewhere in the province.
* Insist that universities and community colleges adopt the trimester system. We can no longer afford to have costly buildings standing idle about one-third of the year.
* Pass legislation requiring provincially-assisted universities and colleges to make full disclosure of their accounting methods, in uniform categories determined by the provincial auditor; and empower the auditor to establish regulations concerning budgetary and financial control procedures.
* Grant equal tax support to public separate school boards up to the end of Grade 12, providing such schools are open to children of any religion, and promote co-operation on the local level between school boards.
* Phase out Grade 13 over a period of four years.
* A Nixon government will take strong action to halt the casual Americanization of our educational system. Teaching materials and text books must reflect Canada's cultural heritage; and "Canadian Content" rules must apply to the staffing of Ontario universities.

POVERTY

What's needed to replace the present patchwork of welfare programs and unrelated assistance schemes is a Guaranteed Annual Income program, based on a negative income tax. The program must use our scarce resources in money and facilities to give assistance where it is needed and eliminate the waste of present overlapping irrational programs.

One of the plan's most important features will be the assistance it provides to the working poor, who now get no help from the government of Ontario. The Guaranteed Annual Income will offer economic security to those people who are being absorbed back into the work force.

We don't think a guaranteed annual income is the whole answer to the poverty problem, but it is an important part of it. We must not forget that, despite our widespread affluence, one Ontarian in five suffers from poverty.

Recipients of social assistance will have the right to a public hearing before social assistance boards.

LABOUR

In the 1970's we believe the key issues in Labour relations will be the impact of new technology and industrial harmony.

A Liberal government is pledged to promote new patterns of collective bargaining. The public interest demands an end to long disruptive labour disputes. We will give priority to promoting continued consultation and negotiation between labour and management throughout the life of labour contracts. Legislation should provide for early mediation at the request of either party and continuing mediation for the period of an agreement.

We will also establish a commission of representatives from labour, management and government which will sit continuously. The commission's objective will be to foresee technological changes, mergers, and takeovers which may result in closure and large layoffs, and to recommend policies to soften the impact of such changes.

The Labour Department under a Nixon government will also move towards reform along the following lines:

* In the construction industry, employer and employee bargaining units should be established on a Province-wide basis.
* Issues of technological change should be negotiated during the life of an agreement. In cases where such changes lead to plant closures, layoffs and relocations, we will require substantial prior notice than is allowed for in the present legislation. A Liberal government will also provide job retraining in such cases, will compensate the workers, and may require payment of compensation by the companies involved.
* Certification procedures must be reformed. 50% plus one should ensure certification without a vote instead of the present 65%.
* A Liberal government will vigorously support the principle of equal pay for equal work and equal job opportunities for men and women.
* We will promote the establishment of day care centres on working premises.
* Provincial minimum wage legislation will be amended to automatically reflect changes in cost of living.
* Employee representatives should sit on joint boards to administer employee pension plans and all pensions should be portable.
* We will also support the trend within the labour movement towards "Canadianization" of the Canadian branches of U.S.-based unions. Canadian members of such unions should have the power to elect not only their own directors to international executives, but to elect Canadian executives to deal directly and independently on behalf, of Canadian workers. At present, most international unions elect Canadian officers by vote of the entire international.

AGRICULTURE

There are very few sectors of our economy which have encountered such disruptive change. It's not merely an economic problem — but a human one. A way of life is being uprooted, a way of life whose qualities and texture have created more than ever in an increasingly urbanized world.

The Liberal Party of Ontario does not believe in "agribusiness". We believe the family farm must be preserved, and that the economic means to preserve it must be found.

Instead of dreaming new handout programmes, one way is through tax reform. A Liberal government will assume 80 percent of the costs of education. We will abolish succession duties and this action combined with Ottawa's decision to eliminate estate taxes, will mean that farm families will no longer be forced to sell their property to pay death taxes. Furthermore, we will return to the county system of assessment, so that property-owners can see the people who are making the decisions which so drastically affect their lives and incomes.

A basic objective of Liberal agricultural policy is to raise farm incomes. This can't be achieved without more efficient utilization of land. Some land is so marginal that no amount of economic reform will make it pay.

As a corollary of this policy, a Liberal government will join with Ottawa to develop special manpower programmes that will give farmers, previously engaged in farming, access to new, uneconomic units, the chance to develop other skills. The government's industrial development policy will also emphasize decentralization to create maximum employment in smaller centres, and to give young people an alternative to urban migration.

Land-use adjustments must be made — but they must be made fairly. Thus, a Liberal government will establish safeguards to ensure fair treatment for farmers in cases where their land is acquired, or its value is reduced, as a result of planning and development programs, including rezoning. One such safeguard will be to appoint farm representatives immediately to the Land Compensation Board.

More effective land-use is only one aspect of our program for raising farm incomes. Another aspect is vigorous action to reduce production costs.

Farm produce marketing policies must also be improved. A Liberal government will establish marketing boards elected by the producers with agency powers for any product threatened by dumped or subsidized imports. Similarly, producers will be more strongly represented on the Farm Products Marketing Board, with a majority of its members being elected by the respective marketing boards. A Liberal government will also work with Ottawa and other provinces to achieve common subsidy and marketing policies. Interprovincial trade wars like the recent chicken and egg war, are wasteful and avoidable.

A Liberal government will work for a reformed farm credit system:

* Establishment of an Agricultural Industry Bank to make long and short term loans, and second-mortgage loans, at competitive interest rates.
* "Forgivable" loans to farmers who are modernizing their operations to produce products that are in short supply.
* Rent-for-purchase agreements so that qualified young farmers can start operations without a large down payment. This program would enable farmers to lease and operation with an option to purchase after a specified time. The accumulated lease money would then be considered the down payment.
* Enactment of a New Farm Land Rental Act that will provide for a standard, easily-understood farm lease. This reform will clarify the relationship between landlords and farm-tenants.
* Government loans will be made on the security of stored grain.
* Finally, a Liberal government will develop an improved system of crop insurance, designed to meet with greater acceptance from the people it is intended to serve.

LAW REFORM

The law must reflect the collective conscience of modern Ontario.

A Nixon government is pledged to making justice both just and accessible to people.

* We will appoint an ombudsman who will have independent power to investigate arbitrary action by government officials, to make reports to the minister responsible or, if no action is forthcoming within thirty days, to the legislature.
* To minimize the dangers of detention without trial, a Liberal government will insist on twenty-four hour criminal courts and bail facilities in all cities. The use of summons rather than arrest, and personal bail rather than cash bail, will become the general rule throughout Ontario.
* A Liberal government will establish a system of judicial districts, with continual sittings, so that litigants have access to the courts at all times. The Supreme Court will be expanded beyond the presently proposed four extra judges. Continuing education programs, with regular sabbaticals, for judges at all levels of the system, will be expanded.
* The modernization of the land titles system will be speeded up, and a province-wide title insurance scheme will be setup. Our long-term goal will be to establish a centralized province-wide computerized land records system with computer terminals in each county.
* Overhaul and greatly expand the family court system, with increased facilities and personnel for counselling and probation, with jurisdiction over divorce, custody, support, delinquency and property actions between family members. It will have night sittings, and will include an information bureau dispensing information on housing, welfare, birth control, Medicare and hospitalization.
* Confine juveniles and children in conflict with the law in separate detention facilities, complete with facilities for physical and psychiatric care. Juvenile court records will be expunged after five years of good conduct.
* Educational and training standards of police will be upgraded. Courses in community relations must be a part of the training process, and the Ontario Police College should be expanded to train municipal police as well as OPP candidates. Recruitment for provincial and municipal forces should include psychological testing. Police forces will be opened to members of ethnic communities.
* A "Good Samaritan" statute will be enacted, providing for compensation of people injured while attempting to assist others.
* The Workmens' Compensation Act will be revised to enable workmen and their dependents to sue for higher awards in court without giving up benefits under workmen's compensation.
* The system by which victims of crime are compensated will be revised. Victims will be able to sue for a proper award — in place of the criminal — a Registrar of Crimes Compensation appointed by the government. Persons wrongfully detained in jail will be entitled to compensation without having to go through the civil court. Provision will be made for independent investigation of citizen's complaints against police.

HEALTH

* The new department of Social and Community Services will develop and execute a comprehensive policy for health and social services in Ontario. One of its priorities will be to accelerate the unification of Medicare and hospitalization.
* A Nixon government will also move towards abolition of premiums for both Medicare and hospital insurance. Medicare will be financed by a 1% surtax on personal taxable income, and a contribution by employers equal to 1% of their total payrolls.
* A Nixon government will insist that medical fee increases be a matter of negotiation between the government and the medical profession subject to automatic review every two years. We will also insist on professional audits and controls of the business affairs of physicians, conducted through the Ontario Medical Association.
* We must increase the diversity of health facilities, in the interests of efficiency and better care. We will build more convalescent hospitals, to reduce the pressure on active treatment hospitals.

Hospital insurance benefits will be extended to include nursing homes — but immediately, not a year from now. "Half-way" residences will be established for psychiatric patients who are making their way back to society.

* The same approach is needed in our allocation of human resources in health care. We must make more effective use of paramedical personnel, especially in isolated communities. We must start licensing — and, where warranted, de-licensing — nursing home administrators. We must give more support to the development of home care programs for temporarily ill or convalescent patients.
* A Liberal government will give high priority to the extension of Medicare and hospitalization coverage to include prescription drugs and dental care.
* Finally, a Nixon government will actively encourage the establishment of community health clinics, which are medium range medical institutions which can perform many of the simpler health-care functions of hospitals.

THE ECONOMY

It's well known that government policy — mainly decisions on how to tax and how to spend the proceeds — have a crucial effect on a nation's economy. What is less well known is the fact that, in Ontario, the economic decisions of the provincial government can carry as much, or more, weight, than those made in Ottawa. Why? Simply because the provincial government — and the municipal governments under provincial jurisdiction — spend more money in Ontario than the federal government does. (During 1968-69, Ontario and the municipalities spent $5.18 billion; federal expenditures in Ontario, however, amounted to only $3.86 billion).

What do these figures mean? They mean that if unemployment is high in Ontario (it is), if inflation persists (it does), if economic growth is lagging (it is) then a major share of the blame rests with the Davis government.

The Liberal party in Ontario is pledged to getting the province's economy moving again. By meshing our policies on taxation, on borrowing, on government spending and on economic development with those of Ottawa, a Nixon government will help promote full employment, balanced growth and stable prices. It can be done — if it takes is a government in Queen's Park that is prepared to accept responsibility for prosperity.

The prime responsibility for creating new jobs in Ontario lies with the Department for Trade and Development. It must work actively to narrow the economic gap between the have and the have-not areas of Ontario. A Nixon government will:

* Expand the program of grants to encourage industries to locate in slow-growth areas of the province.
* Decentralize various government departments and agencies; government should "live" everywhere in the province, not just Toronto.
* The Ontario Development Corporation must be directed to promote development only in selected growth centres. If enough new industries locate in a single area, that area will start generating growth on its own. But if the same development is scattered through a dozen towns, further economic growth seldom occurs.
* The Davis government has suggested imposition of a provincial income tax. We're against it, mainly because it would mean creating yet another tax-gathering bureaucracy in Ontario. Instead, we'll negotiate an agreement with Ottawa whereby the federal government, for a fee, will collect Ontario's corporate income taxes.
* We also support the creation of a national Securities Commission.

FOREIGN CONTROL

Under a Nixon government, Ontario will no longer be for sale. We welcome foreign capital. Foreign investment will continue to be welcomed. But it will be welcomed on our terms, in accordance with a policy that's understandable. We plan to take the risks, and reap the rewards, that for too long have been left to others. A Nixon government will also take steps to ensure that education in Ontario properly reflects Canadian ideals and traditions.

A Nixon government will set up a Foreign Investment Review Board that will work towards our long-term goal: Canadian control of all corporations in Ontario by the 1980's. The Board will have the power to screen all proposals for foreign takeovers and substantial direct foreign investment in Ontario. They won't be approved unless it can be shown that (a) all possible sources of Canadian capital, public and private, have been explored, and that (b) the investment is otherwise in the public interest. One of the Board's important guidelines will be that foreign capital will be preferred to equity investments; it is better to have outsiders loaning us money than taking a controlling piece of the action.

We propose that the Ontario government should go into the venture-capital business — as a silent partner by forming a number of private venture-capital firms. Their job would be to provide "seed money" to promising young ventures — not in 1985 from the Ontario Treasury. This indirect guarantee would make it easier to raise the remaining capital from the investing public. Results: a pool of public and private money, managed by businessmen, not bureacrats, that would invest at the early stages in promising new enterprises.

In addition, a Nixon government will institute several basic reforms designed to improve our ability to encourage Canadian control of the economy. Federal law now requires, for instance, that "private" companies with assets of more than $5 million — including subsidiaries of foreign firms — make full disclosure of their financial affairs; we believe Ontario should have similar requirements. We'll ask Ottawa to do the same for incorporated firms.

We will also enforce the law requiring processing in Canada of minerals mined in Ontario.

Cultural independence, however, is just as important as economic independence. A Nixon government will:

* Require that, within five years, 80 percent of the textbooks and learning materials used in Ontario classrooms be produced by Canadian-controlled companies.
* Provide grants for the development of programs in Canadian studies and related learning materials.
* Canadianize the teaching staffs of Ontario universities. A Liberal government will insist that, within six years, a majority of the total teaching staff of each Ontario university be Canadian citizens. Within six years, we will require that at least two-thirds of the teaching staff of each individual department be Canadian citizens. The president of any institution that cannot meet these guidelines must justify his position to the Human Resources Committee of the legislature.

A Nixon government will also try to discourage branch-plant unionism. Ontario locals of U.S.-based unions must be encouraged to elect their own officials, have their own staff, acquire certification in the name of their own districts, ratify their own agreements and control their own assets.

The free-for-all giveaway of prime recreational land to foreigners must be stopped. A Nixon government will not permit non-residents to buy Crown land, although they may hold it under long-term lease where Canadians have had the right of first refusal. We will also control the sale of private recreational land to non-residents by requiring that all such lands be either developed or resold to Canadians at fair market value, and by making the government the buyer of the last resort if necessary. No resident, or non-resident, will in the future, be able to purchase more than 2 acres of recreation land, without a permit from the Minister of the Environment.

This blueprint for government was created by citizens who, like you, want a better Ontario for all of us. Not just some of us.

Your vote can make it happen.

Government Should Have Listened Earlier, Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — "If only the government had the good sense to listen to us earlier it would have saved the Canadian people a lot of grief," Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Friday night.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis expressed similar views when the two were interviewed on a CBC television program about federal economic measures announced Thursday.

Mr. Stanfield said the government should have concentrated on reducing personal income taxes instead of dividing tax cuts between individuals and corporations as it did.

The measures include a three-per-cent cut in federal personal income tax and a seven-per-cent reduction in corporate tax.

Mr. Lewis said the across-the-board personal tax cut will help the rich more than the poor. Also, the corporate tax cut should have been limited to manufacturing industries, "where jobs are."

Both leaders said the economic measures came far too late to have a significant impact on high unemployment expected this winter.

Both rejected government statements that an unexpectedly high rate of participation by groups such as women and youths in the labor force had prevented accurate forecasts of coming unemployment.

Independent economists forecast present problems earlier this year, said Mr. Stanfield. He repeated his frequently-made call for a federal short-term economic forecasting unit.

Mr. Stanfield thanked the CBC for permitting the two opposition leaders to state their views on the economic measures, but asserted the CBC had helped in the "brainwashing" of the Canadian public Thursday night by not giving critics of the government enough time for comment.

Statement's No Budget When Debate Lacking

OTTAWA (CP) — After Finance Minister Benson's Thursday night statement about tax cuts and massive spending programs, the question arises: When is a budget not a budget?

Just about every opposition MP referred to Mr. Benson's statement as a budget. The government officially describes it as a statement.

Mr. Benson himself said it was a statement, but at a Thursday night press conference he referred to it, on three occasions, as a budget. He corrected himself eventually.

What difference does it make? The answer is six days of debat

Whenever a government budget is presented, a ways and means motion is presented to the House and six days are set aside for debate on the finance minister's document. The budget is prepared in utmost secrecy, reporters are effectively locked up in a room with the budget until the minister is ready to speak, and crowds begin lining up hours in advance to hear the good, or bad, news.

And sometimes the budget contains no tax changes at all.

But on Thursday night, when Mr. Benson's statement included tax changes and spending programs amounting to $1 billion, it was all done casually. Opposition parties received copies of the statement an hour in advance, and there was no unusual excitement about what was happening, except that the crowds were bigger than on normal nights.

By 2:45 a.m. the debate had ended. Had this been a budget there would be six more days of it.

Government sources have made it clear that the budget debate requirements were the major factor in deciding that Mr. Benson's speech would be in the form of a "statement."

Lone PC Is Only Dissenter as Commons Opposes Atomic Test

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons used up its early energy debating nuclear bombs Friday, then fizzled out like a wet firecracker.

A tired end-of-the-week residue of MPs—most of whom had been up until almost 5 a.m. debating the government's economic measures announced Thursday—found the strength to give overwhelming approval to a government motion condemning the proposed U.S. Amchitka nuclear test.

The Amchitka resolution, introduced by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, calls on all nations to stop nuclear tests and particularly on the U.S. to cancel its proposed five-megaton blast scheduled for Amchitka in the Aleutian Islands later this month.

About 100 members present shouted their approval at the end-of-session debate, with only Jack McIntosh (PC—Swift Current-Maple Creek) dissenting.

Trudeau Explains

Debt Shows Confidence

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's willingness to run up a $1 billion debt this year is a mark of its confidence that buoyant economic times lie ahead when the debt can be paid. Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday.

He told a news conference all economic signs except one—unemployment—are looking up, and that a yar from now "we will be in a very healthy situation." But he would make no specific forecasts of unemployment or inflation rates.

Mr Trudeau also indicated no plans for a snap general election, possibly not until 1973. His government, he noted, was elected for a five-year term in 1968 with a substantial Commons majority, and it still has new policies and laws it wants to introduce before calling an-other election.

His news conference was called to review the economic situation after Finance Minister E. J. Benson cut personal income and corporation taxes and announced new winter works spending plans. These moves, Mr. Trudeau said, were made to restore confidence, badly shaken by fears of what President Nixon's new economic policies might do to Canada.

It was unusual, Mr. Trudeau said, for a government to boast about the size of its deficit, but the opposition in Parliament was saying even this wasn't big enough.

"We think it is about right to bolster confidence in the economy," Mr. Trudeau said. "If more is needed, we will bring in further measures. . . ."

Mr. Trudeau said Mr Benson's budget measures were not taken in anticipation of what the government feared the U.S. might do, but in an attempt "to show leadership" in a period of uncertainty

Running up a $1 billion deficit, by far the biggest in any peacetime year, was an expression of confidence that "we will soon get to a buoyant economy and will be able to pay these debts."

Japan Wins Concession

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government should push harder for exemption from the United States import surtax in light of a U.S.-Japanese textile agreement signed earlier in the day, Conservative House Leader G. W. Baldwin said Friday.

Japan secured exemption of textiles from the American surtax, but in return had to agree to an import quota on textiles shipments to the U.S. The deal was bitterly opposed by the Japanese textile industry.

Program Inadequate Says CLC

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress emerged Friday in the front ranks of the critics of the billion-dollar winter employment program announced Thursday by Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

In a statement issued after congress officers met to review the government; measures the labor body protested that the program is inadequate "to cope with the massive unemployment problem stalking this country."

"It is incomprehensible that this government has again waited until the eleventh hour before acting when it must be well aware that there are serious lags involved in most of the policy measures which have been announced.

The statement predicted "another bleak winter for thousands of Canadian workers and their families."

Ontario Will Push Exports

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario hopes to increase its exports of manufactured goods by establishing trade offices in several world capitals including Washington, and guaranteeing loans to small and medium industries for export purposes.

Allan Grossman, trade and development minister, told a news conference Friday that Ontario will increase the number of its trade offices from 14 by establishing new ones in Washington and possibly, Singapore, Hong Kong, Sao Paulo, Brazil, and Caracas, Venezuela.

Canada Post Office Marks Anniversary of Laporte Death

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

On Oct. 18, 1970, police discovered while playing with his son and a nephew in front of his St. Lambert home. His assassination was announced by these same political extremists.

Five days previous to the government official's disappearance, British Trade Commissioner James Cross was abducted by a separate cell of the same politically-oriented group. He was safely returned Dec. 3, after months of speculation and anarchism within Quebec. His deliverance by his kidnappers, a dramatic exchange brought across the country, followed months of risking, losing, arson, arrests and the eventual imposition of The War Measures Act by the Canadian government.

On Oct. 20 of this year, the Canada Post Office will mark the assassination of Canada's second public figure with the issue of a special seven - cent commemorative mourning stamp.

Born in Montreal in 1921, Pierre Laporte studied law at the University of Montreal after receiving his BA degree from the College de l'Assomption. At the same time, a writing for a student newspaper and a now-defunct Montreal daily, he began L. Canada.

Admitted to the Bar of the Province of Quebec in 1945, he served as Chairman of many Montreal Young Chamber of Commerce committees before being elected vice - president of the organization.

His calling to journalism over-rode his early aspirations to the legal profession, and in 1947, he joined the staff of Le Devoir, a prestigious daily, and eventually rose to the position of news editor. Later, he moved to Quebec city where he acquired the reputation of a well-informed and objective writer while serving as parliamentary reporter at the Quebec Legislative Assembly.

It was during this stay in Quebec city that he began to expose the corrupt Duplessis Union Nationale government.

Mr. Laporte's entry into Quebec provincial politics was when he joined the Liberal party in a by-election on Dec. 14, 1961. The following year, he retained his seat and was appointed Minister of Municipal Affairs and also became the first man appointed to the office of Parliamentary Leader of the Government.

An early attacker of Quebec separatism, he became cultural affairs minister and house leader in 1963. Re-elected in 1966, Mr. Laporte became Leader of the Opposition. However, he failed in his attempt to become Liberal party leader in Quebec.

The return to power of the Quebec Liberals in 1970 coincided with his re-election in the County of Chambly. He assumed a prominent role in the new cabinet and was named Minister of Labor and Manpower, Minister of Immigration and Parliamentary Leader.

The son of a physician, he was married in 1945 to Francoise Brouillet. The couple had six children, Claire and Jean.

Shortly after Christmas, his kidnapped assassins were apprehended by police and are now serving prison terms in Quebec.

In 1927, the post office honored Thomas D'Arcy McGee, minister of agriculture assassinated on Sparks Street in Ottawa, April 7, 1868.

An interesting comparison comes to light when comparing both men, marriage to and guarded it furiously. Stronger chimps made the weaker ones fear for the fruit.

Human reactions in primates, ages and monkeys were examined throughout the hour. It concentrated on some studies seeking the origin of man and clues about human behavior.

The California scientist, Diane Fossey, was shown as she nibbled leaves in the company of the mountain gorilla - Digit. She has lived among them four years, gained their confidence and has found that, despite their forbidding appearance, they are gentle, timid creatures—and strictly vegetarians.

Baboons were shown to have a definite social structure, with dominant males the warriors of the troop.

There was film showing tests in a Wisconsin laboratory on rhesus monkeys which are expected to be helpful in learning more about child behavior. One researcher has found, for instance, that young monkeys reared in comfortable family situations grow up to be better-adjusted and self-confident adults.

The report was an especially delightful hour.

ABC's Movie of the Week Tuesday turned out to be an old-fashioned horror film. A Taste of Evil was full of creaking doors, high screams, scary footsteps and a body that kept appearing and disappearing.

Barbara Parkins played a young woman returning to her rich family after years in a Swiss sanatorium recovering from mental shock induced by a physical assault when she was 13.

Barbara Stanwyck turned in a workmanlike job as the concerned mother of the frightened girl but was even more effective when she was revealed as a tough, unrepentant schemr.

It was pritty complicated and preposterous, but it kept the viewer on the edge of the easy chair. Movie of the Week this season is specializing in suspense, horror and the off-beat.

Economic Nationalism Emerges As Top Issue of Election

TORONTO (CP) — With only five days to go before Ontario's general election, the candidates may have talked themselves out on hot issues which might have had a decisive effect on the voting.

Unemployment and economic nationalism had over-ridden all other issues in the closing Progressive Conservative Premier William Davis, Liberal leader Robert Nixon and New Democrat Stephen Lewis.

Throughout most of the campaign, for next Thursday's vote, the opposition leaders had concentrated mainly on blasting Mr. Davis for not taking action to create jobs for the province's 130,000 unemployed.

Now, the federal government has announced a $1 billion program of economic pump-priming which is to include a cut in the federal share of personal income taxes.

Premier Davis was quick to commit himself to a similar cut in the provincial portion of income taxes, noting that he had promised all along to match any such move by Ottawa.

The opposition leaders could only welcome both the federal and provincial moves while continuing attacking on some relatively mild criticism of the depth of the cuts and the timing of its announcement.

The three leaders differ in detail as to how to meet the threat of rising unemployment levels and the disruptions to industry and jobs caused by recent United States economic measures, but basically, the tone of their pronouncements is the same: action to ensure Canadian control but not at the expense of driving away foreign investment entirely.

In any case, the primary villain in this case was the U.S., with Ottawa running second on the strength of the charge that it is not taking a tough enough stance in reacting to the American moves.

Other issues such as financial aid to separate schools, medical insurance, urban transit and the costs of education all had fiery hearings earlier in the campaign, but dwindled to relative insignificance before economic issues, as all three leaders said they should.

Premier Davis, who took over from retired premier John Robarts in March, has been running a Bill Davis campaign as opposed to a Conservative campaign.

He has a new hair style and sharper suits, and spent the first week of the campaign mainstreeting across Ontario in an effort to become known as the premier, rather than as the education minister he was prior to March 11.

It was only last week that Mr. Davis changed strategy to begin a series of major policy statements on some of the issues. Aside from proposals for job programs, the only one of these of general interest was his charge that each of the opposition leaders would have to collect another $1 billion in taxes to implement their programs.

Mr. Nixon and Mr. Lewis were quick to come up with their own figures showing the premier was all wrong, and made points by blasting him for using the civil service to do his mathematics.

Mr. Nixon began the campaign by trying to talk a little tougher than usual to rid himself of his nice-guy image.

The Liberal leader criss-crossed the province outlining his party's Blueprint for Government, and most of his campaign consisted of question-and-answer sessions with students and other special interest groups.

Once his basic policies were put forward, his campaign statements became largely a repetition of what he had already said. Exceptions were statements on job-creating policies.

Mr. Lewis also did a little subtle image-changing. He had been known as a somewhat arrogant personality with a relatively radical approach in comparison to the old-line party leaders.

He played down that image during the campaign and concentrated on a strategy of releasing a major policy statement almost every day. He began by speaking mostly to party supporters and special-interest groups, but moved into the rally stage last week.

None of the three leaders brought in any overtly big crowds. Their audiences were as large and as enthusiastic as one would expect given the traditional politics of the areas visited.

All three parties turned to advertising and television commercials. Those out by the Tories concentrated on picturing Mr. Davis as one of the boys, standing beside a quiet lake; playing with his family, meeting people.

Mr. Nixon ads concentrated on issues. For example, one newspaper ad pictured the statue of Liberty holding a Canadian flag in place of her usual torch. The caption invariably was: Had enough? Vote Liberal.

The NDP concentrated most of its energy on getting out the troops—an estimated 25,000 canvassers who carried out the party's traditional door-to-door campaign. But it did have a film made for television showing it bare-chested Mr. Lewis romping with his family.

The three parties obviously were trying to make the most of the time-for-a-change trend which has seen six of the eight provincial elections since 1959 denose incumbent governments.

Mr. Davis was the Tories' new blood; Mr. Lewis became NDP leader last year; Mr. Nixon is the old-timer as far as leadership goes, having taken over the Liberals in 1967.

But there has been no Davismania, or Nixonmania or Lewismania.

Even a televised debate among the three leaders—the first in Ontario's political history—failed to generate enthusiasm, either among viewers or the leaders themselves. They all criticized the restricted, question-and-answer format and said there were no winners or losers.

All week's end, the campaign appeared to be back at square one, with Premier Davis pointing at what the Tory government has done in the past and has promised to do if re-elected. Mr. Nixon and Mr. Lewis saying the government either had not done enough, or had done it badly.

Legislature standing at dissolution: Conservatives 58, Liberals 27, NDP 18. There also was one independent who quit the Liberal party in 1969.

Minority Regime Is Forecast

BARRIE (CP) — A student-conducted poll shows that the Progressive Conservatives will be returned to power in the Oct. 21 Ontario election, but with a minority government and only two more seats than the Liberals.

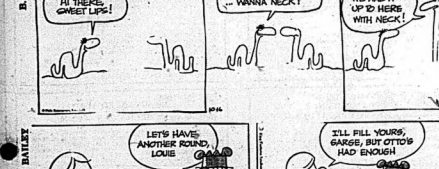
This was the conclusion reached by a group of Barrie high school students who, with the help of a computer, set out last month to determine in advance the winner of the election.

The students sent out 400 questionnaires late in September to a cross section of voters throughout the province. The 160 questionnaires returned completed were tabulated by the computer.

The students, in Grades 12 and 13 at eastview secondary school, released the final results Friday.

They showed the Conservatives winning 53 seats, the Liberals 41, and the New Democratic Party 32.

The questionnaires showed that unemployment and education seem to be the chief areas of concern for most voters. But those in the 18-to-25 age group listed pollution as their major concern. About 67 per cent of tradesmen said foreign ownership was their chief worry.



The study showed that younger voters tended to support the Liberals while at least half of those over 65 voted for the Conservatives.

Hand Swells After Stroke; Lack of Activity Likely Cause

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dr. Thosteson: I had a stroke five months ago. It affected my right hand and my speech. My speech came back and my hand was improving with therapy exercises.

But about six weeks after the stroke the hand began to swell, and now I cannot completely close it. I still do exercises but the hand continues to be swollen and the doctor has given me no reason for it.—Mrs. B. S.

There can be different reasons for such swelling, but perhaps the commonest, in the circumstances you describe (following a stroke), is the loss of muscle tone.

Muscle circulation, you see, doesn't depend entirely on the pumping action by the heart. The circulation is very much aided by a squeezing action on the blood vessels by muscle movement.

If circulation is not up to par, congestion develops; more fluid than normal accumulates in the tissues, instead of being swept along by a brisker circulation.

When you have a stroke, it means that some part of your brain no longer can send signals to certain muscles, telling them to move. So the muscles don't move. Or don't move much.

Without much muscle activity in your hand, the circulation suffers.

So by all means keep on with your hand exercises, but I would add this suggestion: When exercising your hand, keep your arm, or anyway the forearm, pretty much horizontal. Rest it on a table, for example.

Then periodically raise the arm over your head, or up to shoulder level. The purpose of this is to air circulation not only by muscle movement but by making use of gravity—when the arm is raised, blood flows downward toward the heart, and when the arm is lowered, fresh blood easily flows the other way. This doesn't work in a hurry, but it works.

Another cause of such swelling is called the shoulder-hand syndrome, a reflex nervous disorder of an extremity that can follow a stroke. Exercise, especially involving the shoulder joint, is important. But in that case, if it happens to be your case, better be guided by your doctor's advice.

Dr. thosteson: A recent two-hour glucose tolerance test indicated that I had a latent diabetic. However, the fasting blood sugar at the beginning of the test was normal and the doctor felt it was not necessary that I take any precautions in my diet.

What would you think? I have friends who also are called latent diabetics and they are on typical diabetes diets, and they ask why I am different.—Mrs. U. F. C.

I doubt that you are "different." Simple restriction of sugars and concentrated carbohydrates (cake, cookies, too much bread) would still be in order for you.

But no restriction of protein, fruits or vegetables. A moderate allowance of three or four slices a day of bread is quite permissible.

Cutting out the sweets probably is all you really need to do, and you're a candidate for this emphasize diet because by felt that your eating habits are satisfactory now. Or perhaps you aren't overweight but some of your friends are.

Dr. Thosteson: I am wondering if continually eating peanut butter (about one-quarter cup a day) could cause diarrhea.—Mrs. I. M.

It might.

What the Stars Say

SUN., OCT. 17

General guide—The effects of yesterday's Jupiter/Saturn opposition may still be partially hidden, but the coming week will bring everything out into the open. Now that the worst aspects have ended, hardest may be seen the very first rays of hope. At least we know things can't get any worse.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Be alert to a change of attitude on the part of loved ones. There may be another way to reach those who have previously turned a deaf ear to your protests.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): If you can get a head start on the work that faces you this week, you'll eliminate a lot of stress and strain. At least get home chores out of the way.

Gemini (May 21-June 21): Heart interests still occupy the greater portion of your free time. Things in this department will start to get even better this week.

Cancer (June 22-July 22): Home and family are number one concerns after mid-date. Like it or not, you may be moving again before the year is out. Domestic changes should be beneficial.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Some quick thinking can save the day when obstacles appear to be insurmountable. Don't be convinced by kin that there's no way out of present difficulties.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Personal accounts should be brought up-to-date without delay. The coming week can bring at least one economic opportunity, but you'll miss out if finances are uncertain.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your job can be the last area of your life where changes are expected. Don't discount the possibility of a sudden improvement in status, however.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Confidential alliances can play an important role this week in your professional life. Your ability to handle such relationships discreetly is an a set.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): If you've been intent on doing a bit of social climbing, you can relax now. Coveted introductions and contacts, made-to-order opportunities will start appearing in a few days.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Career advances are due to materialize in the wake of another's defeat. The new seat you may be destined to occupy will even get a chance to cool off.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): There'll be quite a few getting ready to pack their bags for a late vacation in the early days of November. Prospects look good for having a grand time away from home.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Savings shared with another are kindled for steady interest in the next few weeks. Those who are presently guiding your investments should not be questioned.

Today's birthday—By next April you'll be in a perfect position to call the shots, both in business and personal alliances. Favors from women this winter play a big part in setting the stage for these changes.

MON., OCT. 18

Aries (March 21-April 19): Before you embark on a new line of action, make doubly sure you've tied up all the loose ends in your last project. Don't be a quitter.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Warm answers aren't immediately forthcoming from partners, you can be sure you'll get nothing until they've bought up good excuse. Somebody's fooled things again.

Gemini (May 21-June 21) People are apt to assign the wrong motives to your actions now. You could be partly to blame for this if you've been overly secretive about your doings.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Purely personal objectives aren't about to be gained overnight, so stop being so pushy and cultivate a bit of patience. You can't speed things up.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). You can give loved ones a hard time by reciting a long list of your sacrifices in the name of harmony. Actually, they haven't been showing enough appreciation.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). This is one of those times when the truth shouldn't be prettied up. Any criticism should be straight to the point, so allies can't keep dodging issues.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). Some quick action is needed to remove the causes of doubt that have settled over everyday dealings with neighbors or co-workers. Demand the truth.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Scorpios are the first to flare up if they feel others are seeking some unnecessary prying into personal affairs. A nasty ultimatum may be the only solution.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). There seems to be little resemblance between what you're telling people and what you're actually doing. As long as you can keep up the deception, affairs prosper.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You'll have to bring plans down to a more realistic level immediately. Under present conditions, nothing extensive can be accomplished, so don't set goals too high.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). If you have to lay down the law, you're apt to get the opposite reaction by playing up the bright side of future benefits, rather than emphasizing how hopeless the current situation is.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Don't attempt to set a fine example of your behavior until you've eliminated a few of your flaws.Nobody'll believe you can solve their problems until you've successfully solved your own.

Today's birthday—Obstacles interfere with your efforts to make permanent changes in family housing situations. Greatest headway can be made in the next four months, but issues won't be resolved until a year from now.

Montreal Firemen Defy Court

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's firemen passed their second night Friday without a major fire as the city's 2,000 firemen apparently continued to defy a court injunction issued Thursday ordering them back to work.

A meeting between representatives of the Montreal Firefighters Association, representatives of the Montreal Urban Community, and Jean Drapeau, Quebec labor minister, who agreed earlier in the week to act as mediator was scheduled for today.

Late Friday afternoon, the MUC, a civic body which co-ordinates the functions of 28 suburban municipalities with the City of Montreal, said it would appoint a temporary fire chief with extraordinary powers. Such a chief could order men and equipment from anywhere on Montreal Island to the site of a fire.

The urban community also announced that it would petition Quebec Superior Court to have the accreditation of the Montreal Firefighters Association, representatives of the firemen, removed because the association had lost control of its membership.

Lucien Saulnier, urban community committee chairman, said that arrangements have been made with the mayors of other neighboring municipalities to provide "spontaneous" help if major fires break out during the weekend.

He said he would recommend at an MUC council meeting Monday the appointment of Fliphege Hamel, Montreal fire director, to take over the temporary fire chief post.

Men who fail to heed the temporary fire chief's orders would be subject to prosecution under MUC bylaws and liable for fines of $100 for a first offence and $300 on second.

Cyanide Polish Ban Upheld

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford has won another round in his effort to ban hazardous products from the market-place.

An independent review board has reported in favor of a ban on metal polishes containing cyanide salts imposed last November under his department's Hazardous Products Act.

"There can be no question that products containing cyanide are very hazardous," the three-man board concluded in its report, released Friday.

The board, under the chairmanship of Robert MacLellan, an Ottawa lawyer, was the second ever appointed under the Hazardous Products.

Under the legislation, a review board may be established at the request of a manufacturer or distributor of a product ruled hazardous

3 Montreal Men Held As Kosygin in Ottawa

Soviet PM Starts Visit

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosgin holds a scheduled 2½-hour talk with Prime Minister Trudeau today to begin the business end of his eight-day Canadian tour.

The 67-year-old premier, looking somewhat fatigued after a non-stop flight from Moscow, arrived Sunday night to be greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau.

Apart from the premier coming out the rear door of his Ilyushin 62 jetliner instead of the front door as expected, the arrival formalities went off with stiff precision.

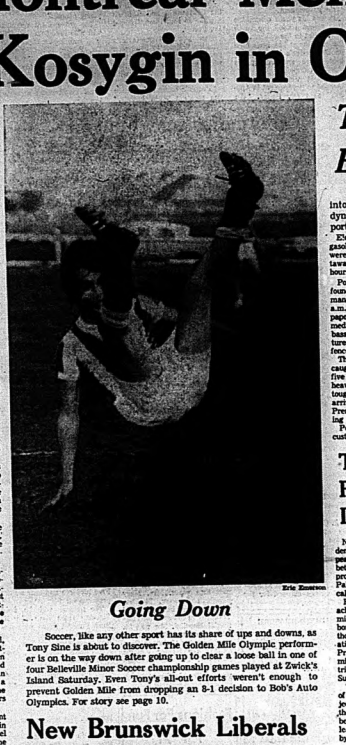
But a swarm of photographers set Soviet security men to stamping their feet in frustration when they closed in on the premier as he moved along a red carpet to the hangar where the ceremonies were held.

Several miles away, outside the Soviet embassy in Ottawa, some 1,500 demonstrators gave the premier a long-distance welcome of their own.

Representing a number of ethnic groups, organized by the so-called Set Them Fre Committee, the demonstrators were out protesting Soviet policy in Eastern Europe, the Ukraine, the Baltic states and parts of the Soviet Union.

Many came from Montreal, Toronto and Sudbury by chartered buses. Five were taken into custody temporarily, and one charged with possessing an offensive weapon, following a five-minute scuffle between the placard-carrying demonstrators and police.

Another slightly discordant note came when Mr. Kosygin reached his downtown hotel after being driven in from the airport with Mr. Trudeau.



While many of the 100 or so people gathered across the street from the hotel entrance cheered, about a dozen young Jews lustily greeted him with the Israeli national anthem, Hatikva.

They said they were protesting the treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union. They also said various Jewish communities are planning a big demonstration here Tuesday, second day of Mr. Kosygin's three-day visit to Ottawa.

Mr. Kosygin and Mr. Trudeau, who last met when Mr. Trudeau visited the Soviet Union five months ago, were expected to cover a broad range of issues in their discussion today.

It is to be followed by a further two-hour talk Tuesday.

Going Down

Soccer, like any other sport has its share of ups and downs, as Tony Sine is about to discover. The Golden Mile Olympic performer is on the way down after going up to clear a loose ball in one of four Belleville Minor Soccer championship games played at Zwicky's Island Saturday. Even Tony's all-out efforts weren't enough to prevent Golden Mile from dropping an 8-1 decision to Bob's Auto Olympics. For story see page 10.

New Brunswick Liberals Name R. Higgins Leader

FREDERICTON (CP) — The New Brunswick Liberal party picked a new leader and a new image Saturday when it chose Robert J. Higgins, an articulate Saint John lawyer, to succeed Louis J. Robichaud.

Mr. Higgins, 37, a former economic growth and municipal affairs minister, swept to victory 996 votes to 693 on the second ballot over John Bryden, 34, a former deputy justice minister, after taking a lead of 727 votes to 575, after Bryden on the first ballot.

Three other candidates dropped out after the first round.

Norbert Theriault, 50, a former health and welfare minister who was later elected party president with Higgins backing, finished a distant third with 289 votes and withdrew before the second ballot was called.

Eliminated automatically when they failed to get 100 first ballot votes were H. H. Williamson, 55, a former labor and economic growth minister, and Maurice Hergott, 32, deputy mayor of the north shore city of Campbellton.

Two Dynamite Bombs Found

OTTAWA (CP) — Three Montreal men were taken into custody early today after the discovery of two dynamite bombs near the Soviet Embassy, police reported.

Eleven Molotov cocktails—gasoline-filled containers—also were found in the eastern-Ottawa residential area several hours later.

Police said the first bomb was found in the possession of a man spotted by police about 2 a.m. EDT, carrying a brown paper shopping bag in the immediate vicinity of the embassy, a grey concrete structure surrounded by a high iron fence.

The man was chased and caught on Chapel Street about five blocks from the embassy, heavily guarded as part of the tough security imposed with the arrival Sunday night of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, starting a Canadian tour.

Police said the three men in custody had expressed views against communism. No charges would be laid until further questioning, they said.

Six sticks of dynamite and a detonator were in the bag.

Police evacuated 50 to 75 residents of nearby houses, cordoned off the area, and called in an army bomb disposal crew which dismantled the device.

An unconfirmed report said it was dismantled at 2:55 a.m., 12 minutes before it was to explode.

After the timing device was deactivated, it was taken in a special explosives trailer to a disposal centre in Orleans, seven miles east of here.

A second bomb was found 30 minutes after discovery of the first when city police apprehended two other men and a car registered in the name of one of them.

The second bomb, found in the car's trunk, was identical in design to the first, police said.

Asked whether the bomb discovered were related to the visit of Premier Kosygin, a detective replied:

"You can draw your own conclusions but it's certainly quite a coincidence."

The three men arrested and described as anti-Communists were being questioned to determine whether they are part of a larger operation.

The 11 Molotov cocktails were found about 11 a.m. in a city park one block from the embassy building.

A police spokesman would not say whether they were related to the earlier bomb discoveries or to a large protest demonstration in the park Sunday night.

About 1,500 people had gathered in the park to protest Soviet policy in the Ukraine and the treatment of Soviet Jews. Some of them had arrived in chartered buses from Montreal, Toronto and Sudbury.

During the demonstration one person was charged with possession of an offensive weapon and windows of the Soviet consular building, about two blocks from the embassy itself, were smashed by rock throwers. Rocks were also thrown through the windows of an embassy car parked in the driveway of the consular building.

Police were searching the building and surrounding area for explosives prior to the discovery of the Molotov cocktails.

Monday night Premier Kosygin was met on his arrival at his hotel by about a dozen demonstrators singing the Israeli anthem, Hatikva.

Tito Begs For Peace In Bengal

NEW DELHI (AP) — President Tito of Yugoslavia appealed Sunday night for peace between India and Pakistan, proposing more aid for the East Bengali refugees and a political settlement in their province.

Both India and Pakistan have acknowledged building up their military strength along their borders in the past week. But authoritative sources said the situation had become so grave that Prime Minister Indira Gandhi might postpone a three-week trip abroad due to begin next Monday.

"Persistence of deterioration of the present situation could jeopardize peace and stability in the entire subcontinent and even beyond," the visiting Yugoslav leader said at a banquet given by President V. V. Giri.

He proposed "greater and more effective" international aid for the more than nine million East Pakistanis India estimates are refugees from the civil war in their province.

Tito also said "measures should be undertaken and political conditions created in East Pakistan ensuring the refugees a safe and quick return to their abandoned homes."

This said the refugee situation places on India "an enormous and unexpected burden which it should not have to bear alone."

Nixon Plans Subsidies To Cut Grain Output

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration plans to boost farm crop subsidies next year by as much as $1 billion in a new drive to curb production of wheat and other livestock feed grains.

Most of the increase will be used to pay farmers for taking more cropland from production. Direct subsidy payments based on grain raised on remaining acres also will be boosted.

A record 1971 corn crop of 5.4 billion bushels, nearly one-third more than last year, is the main cause. The huge crop has led to depressed grain prices and has helped dim hopes for a general improvement in farm income.

Officials in the administration says, if feed planting next spring is not reduced sharply, the U.S. would be headed for a new era of grain surplus and price difficulties.

The agriculture department was to introduce the new plan today.

Basically, "the administration is asking farmers to take permanently cropland across or move from feed production next year, including corn, sorghums and barley.

Hey, Fake Hay

Chemist Carlo Mazzanti feeds cows with strips of artificial hay he developed in Rome recently. The artificial hay consists of a mixture of cellulose scraps, urea (3 per cent) mineral salts and ground chicken feathers. It appears the cows are fond of this food which Mazzanti says is very nourishing and of lost cost production. (AP Photo)

Sunday Times Says IRA Men Are Tortured

BELFAST (CP) — Guerrilla gunmen killed another British soldier Sunday as a London newspaper charged that interrogators are torturing suspected members of the Irish Republican Army interned without trial. The Ulster government said the torture charges are untrue.

Informed sources in Belfast said police believe two more shipments of weapons are bound from Europe to the IRA. The Dutch seized a planeload of Czechoslovak arms at Amsterdam during the weekend and were searching for three suspects with IRA connections.

Meanwhile, British Prime Minister Edward Heath called for a full report on charges by the London Sunday Times that IRA suspects interned in Ulster are being tortured.

The newspaper said it had sworn statements from 11 internees and from a 12th who had been released that they were subjected to "disorientation" techniques while being questioned at an army base outside Belfast. The interrogation was carried out by special security members of the Royal Ulster Constabulary, the report said.

"The statement of the 11 after their experiences are humbled and often incoherent," said the paper. It said they were kept in a room where the only sound was "a high-pitched throb, which the detainees usually liken to an air compressor."

The noise literally drove them out of their minds," the paper said.

Rap Brown Is Wounded

NEW YORK (AP) — At least 20 detectives and uniformed policemen stood guard today over H. Rap Brown at Roosevelt Hospital where the black militant was being treated for wounds suffered in a gun battle with police.

He and three other men were captured by police after they allegedly tried to rob the Red Carpet Bar on West 85th Street early Saturday. Police said they came upon the scene as the robbery was in progress, and a fierce shootout erupted.

UN Debate, Certain to Invite China to Join, Opens Today

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The debate that is certain to culminate in an invitation to the People's Republic of China to join the United Nations opens today.

What remains in doubt is whether the 131-nation General Assembly, considering the issue in plenary meetings, will accept Peking's terms for entry, including the expulsion of the Chinese Nationalist representatives who now occupy the seat of China in all UN bodies.

Having reversed its long-standing policy after the announcement that President Nixon would visit Peking for talks with the Chinese leaders, the United States now is advocating China's entry. But the Americans also are leading the drive to prevent the expulsion of the Taiwan-based Nationalists.

A rival resolution, sponsored by Albania and 20 other countries, proposes that the assembly restores "the lawful rights of the People's Republic of China in the United Nations" and expel Taiwan.

The proposal considered to be the key to the whole problem of Chinese representation is the United States' "important question" resolution to have the assembly designate the expulsion of Taiwan an important question in UN Charter terms, automatically requiring a two-thirds majority for approval.

U.S. Ambassador George H. Bush, facing his biggest diplomatic test since he came to the United Nations in March, is expected to request priority for the procedural resolution over the resolution of the Albanian group.

Most diplomats believe priority will be granted, if only from the long-standing practice that procedure precedes substance. Bush himself has said it is "nip and tuck" whether the two-thirds majority requirement will be approved, but that he is sure it will be.

An estimate in the rival camp is 59 for, 59 votes against, 13 with the remaining members abstaining or listed as absent. Only affirmative and negative votes count, and a two-thirds spell defeat for the American draft.

Albania was scheduled as the lead-off speaker today, followed by co-sponsor Algeria, with Bush coming up third, having swapped places with Nationalist China, now in ninth position.

Forty-seven states have so far put their names down to speak. The list closes Wednesday and by then may include all but a dozen or so of the UN members.

Bush said last week he expects a debate "just short of a filibuster" lasting up to two weeks. If so, a decision might be taken about Nov. 1.

The Canadian, British and the French delegations will vote to accept Peking and expel Taiwan and also are expected to oppose the American resolution.

Potter Enthusiastic Over Youth Secretariat

Quinte riding's Conservative candidate, Dr. R. T. Potter, registered a faithful echo of the announcement of the formation of a youth secretariat by the Ontario government.

"Now we have the means to do what we wanted to do," said Dr. Potter, "to co-ordinate the inter - departmental committee on youth and labour without portfolio in the Ontario government.

It was his youth committee that recommended the youth secretariat to the cabinet, and the secretariat has been high on Dr. Potter's list of priorities before and during the election campaign.

"This is what we recommended to government in August," said Dr. Potter, "We have been waiting to get going on the program. It is important to get it started, to provide job opportunities next summer.

Also in his committee's recommendations is a central bureau to which young people can apply if they are interested in jobs with governments.

"We want top people to do the field work, and it takes a while to find them," added Dr. Potter.

The youth secretariat's function will be to determine how young people can work with government and how government can work with them.

"People's backs go up when you mention youth hostels," said the minister; "But years ago the YMCA used to provide rooms where travelling young people could pay for or earn accommodation. There aren't many of those places around now, and we are interested in looking into the revision of European type youth hostels for the accommodation of travelling young people."

The government secretariat will also look into apprenticeship training in Ontario, said Dr. Potter. It will seek the best method of providing trades training for young people, and investigate the possibility of greater government involvement in apprenticeship.

Pollution Week Closes with Dance

The Session "got it on" Saturday night to close the week-long pollution cleanup sponsored by the city, PACE and the Downtown Association. Over 600 youths participated in the Moira cleanup, using over 1,000 plastic garbage bags and gathering more than 25 tons of refuse, including refrigerators, tires and wine bottles. The music for the evening was provided through the Music Performance Trust Fund by the Belleville Musician's Union.

City Police Are Kept Busy

While Ontario Provincial Police, Belleville detachment, report a fairly quiet weekend, except for minor fender-bender accidents and domestic problems, the situation for city police was altogether different.

Following Saturday's clean-up of the Moira River by PACE volunteers, the police sponsored a street dance in the Market Square.

However, things got out of hand as a band of drinking youths invaded the square. A pungy weigh scale was tipped over and a window on the Opportunity Shop was smashed.

The crowd was dispersed between 11.15 p.m. and 11.30 p.m. after a city police officer ducked a thrown wine bottle. He was not injured.

That same evening, St. Joseph's Church garage was a broken into and a Massey-Ferguson lawn tractor, valued at $650 was stolen.

Police recovered the vehicle in a field at the rear of Lambert Drive.

Arrested and charged with break and enter was Kevin Douglas Betts, 17, of 274 Farley Avenue.

Also that evening, the home of George Baggis, 275 Dufferin Avenue, was entered while Mr. Baggis was away. Approximately $50 in cash, and a quantity of personal papers and credit cards was removed.

Although no arrests have been made, a clue to thieves was apparently thwarted in an attempt to enter 22 Howard Street. Approximately $5 in damage was done to a window.

On Sunday morning, city police arrested two youths operating a car stolen from a downtown Belleville hotel.

Charged with auto theft were John J. Chretien, 18, of Pickering, and Gerald Edward Woods, 20, of RR 1, Plainfield.

The owner, Thomas Brawley of North Park Street, did not know the vehicle was missing until after police recovered it.

Dancers Doused

TWEED (Staff) — Progressive Conservative here Friday night sponsored a dance at the arena.

Youths who prepared decorations for the gala event believed they were to be reimbursed for time spent decorating the hall.

When this payment was not forthcoming, several of the young people returned and filled a large number of balloons hanging from the ceiling with water.

When enthusiastic revellers threw their coats into the balloons, the colorful baubles exploded, showering the crowd with water.

Taylor Says Young's Invitation 'A Ploy'

PICTON (Staff) — James Taylor, Progressive Conservative candidate for the Prince Edward - Lennox riding emphasized Saturday that attempts by Liberal opponent Barry Young to stage an all-candidates session here tonight represent "a sham" and "a put-up job."

Mr. Taylor was forced to refuse an invitation to meet with Mr. Young and New Democratic Party candidate Bryan Beazer because of previous commitments.

The Liberal candidate, learning of his refusal, said in a letter to the local press that he regretted an all-candidates session could not be held before the election, and expressed his willingness to cancel appointments to allow such a session at any time.

Mr. Taylor replied sharply Saturday that his Liberal opponent knew that he could not be present and had been advised, at least three times, to that effect. The Conservative candidate said for this reason the invitation became "a ploy." He added that several all-candidates sessions already have been conducted in the riding and said he did not feel he "came out second best" in any of them.

"I'm not timid about meeting Mr. Young on a platform anytime," he remarked.

Mr. Taylor declared, however, he will not change his campaign "to accommodate the tantrums of the Liberal candidate."

A spokesman for NDP candidate Bryen Beazer said Friday that he was willing to take part with Mr. Young in an all-candidates session at Queen Elizabeth school but said it could not be held because Mr. Taylor seemed "scared".

"It's just incredible," said Mr. Taylor, referring to inferences that he should cancel other appearances to debate with his Liberal opponent.

A meeting of the Picton Liberal Association will be held tonight at Queen Elizabeth school with no plans for the proposed all-candidates debate.

Centre Hastings SS Graduates Receive Diplomas and Awards

MADOC (Staff) — The gymnasium - auditorium at Centre Hastings Secondary School was filled to capacity Saturday night as close to 1,000 parents and students gathered for the 1971 graduation exercises.

"The board is proud of this school, the staff and of course, the students," Hastings County Board of Education chairman Donald Williams told guests from the multi - colored stage, decorated for the graduation dance.

"It is the hope and wish of the board and all concerned with education that with the accumulation of knowledge here, you will have developed a will for knowledge."

It was left to valedictorian Anita Tokarevicz to properly express student appreciation.

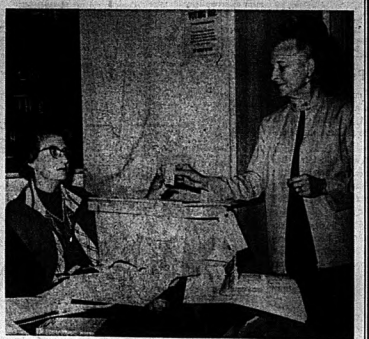
Miss Tokarevicz of Marmora, likened high school training to the two - faced Roman deity Janus, "who faced backward and forward at the same time. We are looking back over the last four or five years with fondness and respect, but at the same time a part of us is always looking ahead to see what the next few years will bring.

"Over the past years we have been helped through many experiences, both painful and pleasurable. But as each new experience became "old hat" we found ourselves becoming more and more sure of our own abilities and began to know ourselves better."

She expressed appreciation, on behalf of the student body, for the encouragement received from both parents and teachers. "They can be assured that for the many years to come, their teachings, pertinent or otherwise, will be recalled."

"We must use whatever selfledge we have gleaned in the last few years; to take it and apply it. We must learn to be confident within-ourselves; to lean less towards other people; to go out into the world and become a part of it."

Cedric Hastings' valedictorian, an Ontario Scholar with a graduating average of more than 80 per cent was awarded eight special bursaries, scholarships, trophies and awards.



Ontario Scholarship awards were presented to Miss Joan Acorn, Charles Brady, Linda Cantelon, Pat Doyle, Cynthia Fleming, Jean Gayford, Tom Lewis, Barry Martin, Douglas Moynes, Carol O'Leary, Dorothy Peters, Sheran Rush, Katherine Scott, Anita Tokarewicz and Donald Tompkins.

Special Scholarships awarded to graduating students were: Trent University — Southeran Award, presented to Dorothy Peters.

Ontario Provincial Police Scholarship, won by Katherine Scott.

— Brescia College (University of Western Ontario) Scholarship, awarded to Jean Gayford.

Following the graduation ceremonies, graduates and guests marched out of the auditorium to music provided by the school band under the direction of music teacher W. J. Aylsworth.

First to Vote

Mrs. Walter Day, of 100 MacDonald Gardens, cast the first vote at the Station Street advance polling station Saturday at noon while Deputy Returning Officer, Mrs. Jean Ellis, 48 Selina Drive, duly records the vote placed in Ontario's newly-designed plastic ballot boxes. At the four advance polls in the Quinte riding, a total of 331 persons cast ballots. At the two Belleville polls, there were 229 voters, 85 at Trenton and 17 at Frankford.

Insurance Linked to Funds

A series of insurance policies linked with common stock funds is being introduced by The Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada, it was announced by Kingston branch manager Edwin Stewart-Norman.

With a major portion of the policyholder's monthly deposits going into either a growth or retirement fund, the policies will utilize investment in Canadian corporation stocks for their development.

Both funds guarantee the owner full return at maturity of all money invested although the actual amount is expected to be greater depending on the outstanding value of the units purchased. If the policyholder should die before the maturity date, his beneficiary is guaranteed the total amount that was to have been invested plus any accrued gains the stocks may have made.

Under the plans, the owner may invest up to $2,500 a year and obtain tax easement depending on his employment status.

Uncertain Period

While the new tax cuts announced by Finance Minister Benson are not unwelcome the mood of the public at this late stage in the Government's five-year life remains one of uncertainty.

A damaging admission for instance has been Prime Minister Trudeau's statement that the Government was mistaken in predicting that economic activity was on the upswing and unemployment receding.

The Opposition meanwhile has been making the most of this and of Mr. Benson's proposals which Conservative leader Stanfield can say, with truth, are no more than what he has been advocating all along, and which NDP leader David Lewis, predictably, has dubbed "too little and too late."

What with the recent wheat payment hassle and now these new fiscal measures aimed at countering unemployment (welcome enough as they are, but also playing into Opposition hands) the Government is not in the most commanding of positions.

Our man in Ottawa, Richard Jackson, has described the mood of the Commons in these days of decline, in terms of both the calendar and the natural life of the Government. Parliament right now would appear to be an unruly place with more than its fair share of exchanges of impolite dialogue. The Government is on the defensive and all the more so because of the increasingly effective performance of Opposition leader Stanfield.

If nothing else, the Opposition has given the Government cause for embarrassment, over their ineffectual response to inflation and unemployment. But more than that it has forced the Trudeau administration into adopting measures the Opposition has been proposing all along.

And that is the way it is, with Mr. Trudeau no doubt wondering how much time he has left to manuever before announcing a federal vote. It cannot be far distant; there are issues enough and for the Government to prolong its administrative mandate to the legal five-year limit could only militate against its chances still further.

Exchange Students

Belleville Rotary Club, which today is host to District Governor Wilfred Wilkinson of Trenton, is adding another notch to the international contacts. During the summer period the club was host to members of the Peckham club from London, England. Now it is looking forward to welcoming two South African girls in the new year.

Arriving in January are Dale Ann Lumley and Sonya Dorothea Johnson. Both girls are 17 and attend high school in Natal. They will spend a year in Belleville as guests of Rotarians, and in exchange the club will send two local students to South Africa for a year next June.

This is an exciting prospect for the students and it stems from preparatory work by past president Bill MacKay who is chairman of District 707's Youth Exchange Committee.

The exchange is a reflection too of Belleville's growing maturity and cosmopolitan outlook. For the South African girls the start of their visit may be a traumatic experience, exchanging their own idyllic summer season for Canada's winter wastes. Let us hope they will be suitably warned! By contrast winter in Natal for the lucky pair who travel there from Belleville next June, will not be such a "chilling" experience.

A Classic

Fashions change but there are three differing views on the enduring miniskirt from none other than its creator, Welsh designer Mary Quant, who has been visiting our shores.

"The miniskirt," she once said, "is a classic that will never be replaced." From this categorical stance to Montreal last month and an observation to the Montreal Gazette's Sheila Thomas: "Inevitably, everyone got bored with the mini, and the midi never made it. . ." Then on to Tor-nto the good and this thought as expressed by The Globe and Mail's Kathleen Rex: "Miss Quant maintains the mini is not dead. It has just gone on to greater glories. It has moved up into the realm of skating skirts."

All lengths now prevail in the skirts arena," said she. All of which sounds eminently sensible, ending whatever controversy ever existed on this fascinating topic.

Nixon's Surcharge Man

Connally in Limelight Now But Policies Could Backfire

By EDD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — They laughed when John B. Connally sat down to orchestrate United States fiscal policy and thus pretty well call the tune in international economics.

But after eight months in the spotlight, during which Americans and foreign friends alike have felt the jab of his baton, many observers agree his might turn out to be the shrewdest appointment of Richard Nixon's presidency.

His nomination to succeed as treasury secretary the highly-regarded David Kennedy, a "banker's banker", came as a shock.

For a start, Connally was a Democrat who had been political ally of Lyndon B. Johnson. And he had little or no background in banking or economics.

A cartoon at the time depicted Connally laboriously trying to form a dollar sign on a blackboard. Republican Nixon at his elbow offering encouragement. Connally did not fit the traditional pattern of appointee, typically, he was not too distressed by such criticism.

"I can add," he said.

Now it is clear that the reason Connally did not fit the traditional pattern of treasury secretaries is that Nixon did not want a traditional type of secretary.

He knew tough days were ahead for American consumers and foreign trading partners, observers feel.

He wanted a fighter, a salesman.

From Nixon's point of view, Connally has apparently paid off handsomely.

He has good connections in the Democratically-controlled Congress and, as a student of LBJ's, he knows how to use them. He was distinctly organized labor from the start, but when it came to a confrontation he did not cut and run; he wasn't to be pushed around.

His freewheeling Texas style may have shocked the nation's moneychangers and disturbed the discreet tone of international finance meetings, but all got his message—or Nixon's message—loud and clear.

While there is near-unanimous agreement that Connally seems to formulate for the type of treasury secretary Nixon needs just now, in light of troubled national and international economic conditions, a few voices warn that Connally's heavyhanded approach could backfire on the U.S. in the long run.

Their theory is that Connally in the sensitive treasury post might build up such a backlog of bad feelings among U.S. trading partners and allies that the nation's trade ties will still be felt long after the American economy has tightened itself.

This fear is illustrated, for instance, in a Herbert Block cartoon, published Tuesday, showing a startled figure representing Canada staring down the barrel of a cannon mounted on the U.S. border labelled "100 per-cent import tax." Nixon and Connally stand nearby to fire.

The cartoon is headed, "Previously Unfortified Border."

Uncertain Period

While the new tax cuts announced by Finance Minister Benson are not unwelcome the mood of the public at this late stage in the Government's five-year life remains one of uncertainty.

A damaging admission for instance has been Prime Minister Trudeau's statement that the Government was mistaken in predicting that economic activity was on the upswing and unemployment receding.

The Opposition meanwhile has been making the most of this and of Mr. Benson's proposals which Conservative leader Stanfield can say, with truth, are no more than what he has been advocating all along, and which NDP leader David Lewis, predictably, has dubbed "too little and too late."

What with the recent wheat payment hassle and now these new fiscal measures aimed at countering unemployment (welcome enough as they are, but also playing into Opposition hands) the Government is not in the most commanding of positions.

Our man in Ottawa, Richard Jackson, has described the mood of the Commons in these days of decline, in terms of both the calendar and the natural life of the Government. Parliament right now would appear to be an unruly place with more than its fair share of exchanges of impolite dialogue. The Government is on the defensive and all the more so because of the increasingly effective performance of Opposition leader Stanfield.

If nothing else, the Opposition has given the Government cause for embarrassment, over their ineffectual response to inflation and unemployment. But more than that it has forced the Trudeau administration into adopting measures the Opposition has been proposing all along.

And that is the way it is, with Mr. Trudeau no doubt wondering how much time he has left to manuever before announcing a federal vote. It cannot be far distant; there are issues enough and for the Government to prolong its administrative mandate to the legal five-year limit could only militate against its chances still further.

Drug Abuse: A Need For More Professional Study

Kingston Whig-Standard

The drug problem may well be the most pervasive psychological problem that society has ever faced. A problem which embraces all sections of society, it is deserving of much more study on the profession al level.

It is clear that the tradition al punitive approach to this social problem hasn't discouraged either young people or adults from drug use. Education is part of the answer to this problem. The fact remains, however, that drug abuse is a medical-social problem which for far too long has been handled a legal problem and assigned to law enforcement agencies rather than the health professions.

But there is great interest in Canada in learning more about drug abuse and alcoholism. It is obvious: society must come to terms with these problems. In this regard evidence of a new official approach to drug use in Canada is encouraging. But change is slow. Ontario, for example, has only just begun to regard the chronic vagrator of the Liquor Control Act as a sick person rather than a criminal. In July the Government announced a $4.5 million program to establish "detoxification" centres throughout the province. Such centres would be operated in conjunction with a general hospital to provide adequate care for patients needing it. Persons apprehended by police for drunkenness would be taken to the centres instead of jail. The idea of detoxification centres won't curb the use of alcohol in this province, but it represents an important practical reform. In the first eight months of this year alcohol-related offences represented about 34 per cent of the 5,873 arrests made by the Kingston Police Force.)

Among the changes in the legal approach to drug use, the most noticeable has been a general reduction in penalties for drug possession. Clearly, society must replace moral indignation with human concern if it is to find means of preventing and controlling drug abuse. We must deal with the causes as well as the symptomatic aspects of this social problem. Increased research is necessary.

The Royal Commission on the Non-Medical Use of Drugs, headed by Dean Gerald LeDain of Osgoode Hall Law School, was to have released its report in May. The latest word is that it will be completed by December. Many Canadians hope that the LeDain report may produce some answers to the problem of drug abuse. Whatever its content, this report should serve to focus new government and public attention on a problem which neither Kingston nor any other Canadian community can afford to handle alone.

Faulty Grammar, Spelling Near-Illiterate Generation?

Peterborough Examiner

Thomas Rowson, a trustee of the Peterborough County board of education, asked a very valid question at a recent board meeting: "What's wrong with teaching the fundamentals of grammar?"

Mr. Rowson was commenting on a report that an "alarming percentage" of students in "mechanics of writing" was noted by teachers at the summer school for grades 5 to 8 which was operated by the board this year.

According to the report, children attending summer school were full of creative ideas but weren't able to put them down properly in writing.

Mr. Rowson suggested that teachers, principals and superintendents in the school system take another look at the way language is being taught. His suggestion is apparently already being followed by some principals.

The news that pupils are having trouble reading, spelling and writing won't come as any surprise to teachers, parents or employers. These deficiencies have been obvious for many years and the situation appears to some at least, to be getting worse instead of better.

Employers frequently see application forms from university graduates which contain spelling errors. Letters of application often reveal that supposedly well-educated men and women are unable to use English with any degree of accuracy.

A man who assesses and edits radio and television scripts for many years told he was appalled by the spelling, grammatical and punctuation errors found in scripts submitted by professors of English, men and women with their BA, MA, and, in one case, PhD. The inability to communicate, both in speech and in writing, is becoming increasingly important in our society. It is bad enough that we are confronted with bureaucrats who use a jargon that only other bureaucrats can understand. The situation becomes even more intolerable when we are saddled with generations of young people who can't spell, can't put their ideas into words without resorting to unintelligible grunts or a few overworked slang expressions. The schools should tackle the problem with a vengeance.

Election Rhetoric Have We All Had Enough?

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

As the "election campaign" heads into its final weeks perhaps the political protagonists, busy hurling epithets at each other, should pause to consider the words of William Bennett Munro who said, "People vote their prejudices but not their appreciation. The average man does not vote for anything, but against something".

If the voters had no resentment before the present campaign started, the nauseating crop of political TV and radio commercials being resorted to by the main parties will undoubtedly alter that.

The emphasis seems to be on projecting a completely plastic image of the party leaders by ascribing to them, omniscient political foresight, omnipresent and

An Invitation to Neptune Theatre

Fred Charles, president of the Quinte Arts Council, (fourth from left) hands an invitation from Mayor Russell Scott to Robert Sherrin, artistic director of the Neptune Theatre, Halifax for the company to visit Belleville. Looking on are Tony Van Bridge, one of North America's best known actors, Eleanor Jourard of Belleville, Robert Doyle, costume designer and Brian McKay, an actor.

Bylaw Riles Maynooth People

MAYNOOTH (Staff) — Fired up Maynooth and area residents, last night, illustrated their distaste in a land bylaw by voting, through a show of hands, to "get rid of the town council" who had accepted the bylaw.

"I don't know from where," said a spokesman for the citizen's committee researching the problem, "but I am sure that council has been either bullied or fooled into accepting the bylaw."

The land use bylaw, proposed by the Ontario Municipal Board and passed by Maynooth Town Council, restricts the area to agricultural use only and prohibits further construction of cottages or commercial establishments until a final "master plan" is arranged for the area on a provincial level.

"It's true we grow some good potatoes around here, but these are restricted to only a few farms and the rest of the farmers are stuck with building rock gardens," said one member of the audience.

"God knows what this plan will give or what it will more likely take away," said another member of the committee.

The committee, after being appointed through an earlier meeting, attended a Hastings County Planning Board meeting where they said, "we ran up against a stone wall and no one was either interested or listening.

"We are told that we can fight the bylaw but it is pretty difficult when we are treated as if we don't know what is good for us," said Ted Simmons, chairman of the committee. "We met up with such a power block at the meeting that in future it will probably be worthless for the committee to attend these planning meetings and hope to accomplish anything."

The audience, that had sat quietly, applauding no one throughout the evening broke into spontaneous cheers when Jim Brodie, resident of the area and representing the Kaminiskeg Cottage Association, stood up from the audience saying, "the association has raised funds among themselves to provide a top-rate municipal lawyer because they are absolutely against the bylaw and will fight".

The same man later in his address said, "we can not have this kind of irresponsible action on the part of our town council. With a show of hands, tell me if we should keep these people in."

While not all agreed their feeling to throw the council out, no member of the audience offered defence for the council or voted to keep it in.

In a speech by Rev. Ian Munro, Liberal candidate for Hastings, it was said, "you people are facing the same problem that everyone else seems to be facing across the county."

Mr. Munro referred to the high school issue in Tweed and the lack of response from the Progressive Conservative party when Clarke Rollins MPP for the county, declined invitations to appear in tri-party confrontations in Madoc and Stirling.

"Mr. Rollins isn't saying a thing," said Mr. Munro.

"The people's will must be done in a democratic society, for this is the intent of democracy," said Mr. Munro. "Given all the facts, people will make the right decision, this is the intent of the Liberal party."

Mr. Rollins had been invited to attend last night's meeting but didn't attend and later chairman Ted Simmons said, "he attended our last meeting but just sat here and offered no route of solution to our problem."

Mr. Rollins had said earlier to the group, "it could have and should have been fought in the early stages at town council level. I'll help you after the election."

At the close of Mr. Munro's speech, members of the audience asked him if he could help them, to which he replied, "I can't sitting here. Get me in and throw out the Tories and we will get the job done."

The new Corolla Coupe. It's practically beautiful.

A practical person buys a practical car simply because it's practical. The fact that the car may be ugly doesn't seem to bother him. But it bothered us. "Why can't a practical car be beautiful?" we asked. And then along came our Coupe.

The Coupe is every bit as practical as the ugliest practical car. Only it's not ugly it's beautiful. The steering wheel is simulated wood grain. The bucket seats are high-back and fully reclining. The floor is carpeted. The glass is tinted. The interior is padded. The ride is quiet.

From a practical point of view it gets up to 35 miles per gallon from a powerful 73 hp engine. It has front disc brakes and an electric rear window defroster. It's big enough for a small family, small enough to park easily and priced to fit into the neatest budget.

So now, a practical person can buy a practical car simply because it's beautiful.

HATS FOR FALL — The fashion atmosphere has changed this fall and femininity is back and with it, the complement of a hat. Hats Are Making Headline News This Fall With The Return to Femininity in Fashion

NEW YORK (CP) — The fashion atmosphere has changed this fall. Femininity is back and with it, the complement of a hat.

The old 'role that a lady always wore a real hat and gloves went out of style with camp dressing. Everyone was expected to look and dress young. Reluctantly, many did since they couldn't find elegant clothes in their income range. Lady-like hats just didn't fit in with these clothes.

Fashion has overcome the chaotic clothing world and hats are back. Once bemlines descended and shoulders were broadened, there was need for a proper head balance. Hats bounced back to life.

Foremost for late fall and winter is the wide-brimmed tailored hat, to balance the popular widened, big-collared coat.

Says the Millinery Institute of America: "Coats, capes and pant-suits take on special drama with an important hat in new-look furs, imaginative printed jerseys, rich velvets, as well as shaggy fur felts. They transform an ordinary winter coat into a couture creation."

With the present interest in suedes and leathers, millinery naturally includes them, from a mere reptile band on a brimmed hat to an art-nouveau printed leather fedora.

Caps are a hold-over from last season when they and knitted head-baggers began to ease the younger set back into wearing hats. The over-sized newsboy cap has even become popular with older wearers, and has led to a revival of bubble-berets and squashed-down tams.

As winter draws on, Canadian women turn to fur hats. They've never really gone out of style. This season's emphasis seems to be on long hairs. Fox is especially popular.

Woman Breaks Into Man's Field

WINNIPEG (CP) — Twenty-two - year - old Susan Lee Kepron of Winnipeg, who last year became Canada's first female drafting examiner, has been named Manitoba's assistant chief of driver examination.

The appointment of Miss Kepron, a University of Manitoba graduate, was announced Friday by Highways Minister Pete Burtniak.

Her duties will include preparation of teacher - training courses and promotional work. The province's driver training program involves some 5,700 students and 240 instructors in 117 high schools.

Slides Shown at Adult Community Social Event

MADOC — An interested group met at the Madoc Township Public School on October 6, to enjoy the first adult community social evening. Grant Ketcheson was special guest.

Mr. Ketcheson, who has recently returned home after spending five months in Britain on a working holiday under the Nuffield scholarship, showed slides taken while there and of his holiday in Ireland. His comments and slides were thoroughly enjoyed by all. Don McKinnon expressed thanks.

This was the first of the adult community social evenings for this term, under the chairmanship of Raeburn Robinson. There will be more monthly events.

Superskin, One-Piece Suit

NEW YORK (CP) — Fashion is always shedding and adding. For a time we seemed to be starting with bare skin and adding here and there but showing lots of midriff, legs and bosom.

Then fashion came up with a one-piece that covered the body. Today it's right from toe to turtle neck, with even the arms encased. These new versions, sleek and slinky, are called by Vassarette th Superskin. The company even designates the one-piece outfit as a "body cosmetic."

When the idea first hit the market a few seasons ago, the garment was called a a cat suit. It was fine for the stretches and limbering up exercises at beauty classes or to wear while lounging around home.

The co-ordinates of fashion shows pounced on the suit with joy. It was an ideal body foundation on which to hang jewelry, belts and scarves—always difficult accessories to present dramatically even in small, intimate shows and certainly on a runway — a fully clothed model.

While the full impact of new versions of the cat suit only now is being realized, it's an ideal figure lure on which to build a wardrobe. Perhaps the cat suit makers knowing the ways of manufacturers or vice versa.

Many of fall's daytime dresses, at-home pajamas and skirts are topped with a skinny, turtle-neck knitted sweater. But you can be a do-it-yourselfer. Once in your cat suit you already have the top and can add your own ideas in the form of big-buckled, purple suede skirt and high boots or hot pants or an ankle-length, at-home wrap skirt in wool, tweed or brocade.

Hanes' hosiery also has what the firm calls a fusion body suit, ribbed from toes to turtle neck, with long raglan sleeves. It comes in the same colors a Hane's panty hose.

It Isn't True That Pot Makes People Understand Things Better

Dear Ann Landers: I am sick and tired of reading things about people who smoke dope when it is plain that the person who is doing the writing has never tried drugs and doesn't know a damn thing about it. Since you had made a few dope scenes yourself, Ann, you would not be printing such dumb letters as the one that appeared a few days ago. Real heads don't call it a "pot party." They say "weed-party" or "head pepper."

It isn't true that grass makes you understand things better. It does just the opposite, which is why a lot of cats smoke it. They don't want to see things as they really are. It's too much. They want the scene clouded up—the rugged edges smoothed off. Dope can do it

When I was doing pot every day, I was thinking every subject, except art. My art teacher gave me an A. I think he was smoking, too. I made up my mind to stay straight during the week and smoke on Friday and Saturday. It worked better that way. At least I passed.

The square who wrote said almost every pothead he knew went on to something stronger. He's wrong about that. I know at least 100 heads and about one-third of that group is satisfied to stay with pot—including me. Tell it like it is, will you please?—Ree-leized

Dear Ree: I try, but it isn't the same for everybody.

According to you, one-third of the heads in your crowd are satisfied to stay with pot. This means two thirds are trying for a bigger kick. Thanks for the testimony.

Dear Ann Landers: Please make it clear in your column that marijuana smokers who get caught and are found guilty have criminal records—regardless of the state laws. Some people have the notion that a "misdemeanor" is not a crime. I am told by personnel directors of employment agencies that applicants for jobs often claim they have no criminal record because they don't know the difference. Then they get nailed for lying on the application.

You, yourself, have been unclear on this point and I trust you will set the record straight. —P.C.S., Dixie Belle Editor, New Orleans Times-Picayune

Dear P.C.S.: Gladly. Thanks for helping me do so. I hope the guy who wrote the previous letter reads yours between smokes. It's hard to comprehend when you're spaced out.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has been dead six years. I've worked hard to keep his image bright and shiny. The children believe he was a saint. They are sure our marriage was ideal. The truth is that he was rotten to the core. He started to cheat on me during our honeymoon. When he died I was sharing him with at least three women.

I've started to see a very attractive man who is about 10 years my junior, twice divorced, and a gambler by profession. My children dislike him intensely. The oldest boy said: "Dad would turn over in his grave if he knew."

I'm tempted to haul the skeleton out of the closet and let the children know their dad was a heel and that I'm entitled to whatever happiness I can get. Do I have the right?—Other Life

Dear O.L.: No. You are hoping to justify your choice by discrediting your deceased husband in the eyes of your children. It won't work. Forget it. It's a bummer.

Unfriendly People Are Usually on the Defensive

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: How is ... some people love to be hateful?

What does a smile cost? Who is too much in a hurry to say "Hi!"

Who is too poor to help his neighbors? Who is too busy to sit and have a chat with his best friend?

Nobody! — A Friendly Person.

Dear Friendly: You have packed a sermon into five penetrating questions and one answer.

Perhaps the one big thing which keeps a person from being his friendliest best is his deep-down conviction that what he says or does is not really important enough to count. So he builds up a hatie, an impatience, a high stone wall, in self-defence.

* * *

Dear Doris: When my wife and I opened our gifts from our married sons on Christmas morning I was crestfallen. I said, "Oh, no! We have no use for these."

Frist of all we already had a record stand to match our stereo. This was another record stand. The other gift was a smoke stand; pretty, but I said, "We don't smoke so we don't need this. We have all kinds of ash trays to use when we have company."

When I saw my sons I asked them in a nice way if they would exchange these gifts for something we could make more use of. You should have heard them! Even my wife barked at me as if I was a strange dog. It hurt me so badly I just about fell to pieces. — Gettier Birked At.

Dear Barked At: I'm publishing your letter nine months later because Christmas is coming once more. I have long since replied privately to you.

Let's try to see your sons' point of view. Perhaps the record stand was given with the thought that his size may have would soon be overloaded. Perhaps the smoking stand was your other son's idea of an attractive luxury, knowing how you enjoy making guests comfortable.

Many families make it clear a receiver is free to exchange a gift which turns out to be superfluous. But unless this is openly and graciously done, the receiver ought never to suggest that such a thing. Accept any gift in the spirit in which it is given, and express gratitude lavishly. What you really wanted or would love to have is beside the point. Sorry!

Dear Doris: It's not Christmas yet but I would like to get the solution you use on old newspapers to put in the fireplace. I know you dip them in something. — Early Bird

Dear Early Bird: Some people start even sooner, since the paper logs (or wooden ones) have to be soaked and then thoroughly dried. Then the Yule fires burn and sparkle with assorted brilliant colors.

Instructions are on their way. (And available to other readers writing in for Christmas Fireplace Logs, enclosing 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mrs. Ernest Carr and Mrs. Roy Tucker conducted an In Memoriam service for a former member of the committee, Mrs. Ed Kent. For the roll call each member displayed old spoons and told their history.

Mrs. Philip Conley gave a musical interlude of old melodies. A historical contest was presented in the form by Mrs. Jack Bush and Mrs. Ernest Carr.

Mrs. George Grills presided over the business. The new book entitled The Early Story will be ordered for the Branch. The first card party will be held on Friday evening, November 5. Delegates were appointed to attend the four sessions of the Trent Valley area convention at Club Canara.

Mrs. Ross Bush, district director gave her report of the recent executive meeting. Hastings West District will observe the 75th anniversary of the founding of the organization in Stirling community on Monday evening, February 14.

It was decided to cater for two banquets for the Lower Trent Valley Fish and Game club, one in November and the other next year.

COOPER AND REMINGTON WI

Cooper and Remington Women's Institutes held their September meeting in the community hall at Cooper. The president opened the meeting, while Mrs. Rex Rollins extended welcome to everyone present and then read an appropriate poem.

The roll call, "say something nice about the person on your right", was answered by 12 adults and five children. This was followed by the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting. They were approved as read.

The collection was taken by Mrs. Carl Fitzgerald. A number of letters were read and discussed.

It was decided to send Mrs. L. Holmes and Mrs. D. Valleres to the senior training school. This year's project is to be "sewing with knits". The members also decided to send a donation to the "Erland Lee Homestead" project and to the Mental Health Association. A decision was also made to purchase a copy of "Ontario Women's Institute" for the Institute.

Mrs. F. Stein was in charge of the program, while Mrs. K. Cleveland presented the motto, "If you wish to get thinner, diminish your dinner". Several musical selections were played Mrs. C. Keese and Miss Linda Ivan's Velde. Mrs. F. Stein gave a reading.

The meeting closed and a delicious lunch was served. A social time closed a very enjoyable afternoon for the Institute members.

UNIONDALE WI

The October "mystery" meeting for Uniondale Women's Institute was a tour of Bata Shoe Company, Batawa, conducted by Mrs. Ernest Anderson. Members were divided in groups and with capable guides were shown the many steps in the making of footwear.

Members journeyed by car back to the home of Mrs. Kenneth Fair, 5th Con. of Sidney, where our regular meeting was conducted by the officers. There were 10 members present and two visitors. Official receipt books for CNIB were passed out for canvassing.

A letter from Muscular Dystrophy was dealt with and thank you letters from Mrs. Barber and Gary Fleming were read.

Delegate and alternate for the Area Convention at Club Canara, Oct. 21 to 22 were selected.

Plans were made for Men's Night Nov. 4 at Scotia Uniondale Hall, also on Feb. 14 — a 75th anniversary supper will be held in Stirling Community Hall. Mrs Kenneth Faul and Mrs. Ernest Anderson were thanked for their efforts.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

BY MARY BRYSON

Many young children seem to need a snack between meals. Don't let a small child be fretful because he is hungry, but make the snack a sensible one — fruit juice or fresh fruit, whole wheat toast, carrot or celery sticks. These will not spoil the appetite.

Blass Better Lonely

BALTIMORE (AP) — "I was probably the loneliest guy in the world," said Steve Blass.

Nobody said a word to me before the game and less during it."

But the Pittsburgh Pirate right-hander, who won the seventh World Series game with a brilliant four-hitter, can't be lonely now.

"God, we won the World Series," he tried to say calmly as reporters clustered for his comments after the Pirates' 2-1 victory Sunday over Baltimore.

"I was carried away with the atmosphere of the playoffs," said Blass. "After the Series, I gave some thought to the last playoffs I had and decided I had to stay within myself emotionally.

"In the playoffs, I threw a lot of fast balls and struck out a lot of batters, and that's not my style," Blass said.

"And only for that reason did I have a talk with myself. I wanted to stay within myself and not embarrass myself or my team-mates."

When the Pirates were two games down in the Series, Blass picked them up with a three-hitter, the first of three straight victories in Three Rivers Stadium.

As the champagne flowed and corks popped in the mobbed Pirate dressing room, it was obvious that Bill Mazeroski's third was flickering back and forth between 1960 and 1971.

In 1960, Mazeroski was the hero after hitting the winning home run against New York Yankees in the seventh game.

In 1971, at the age of 35 and now a utility infielder, Mazeroski batted only once in the World Series—as a pinch-hitter.

As he clutched a bottle of champagne in the Pirate training room, he looked up and laughed.

"I was the inspirational leader."

Mets Hurt Worse

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles were upset in the World Series for the second time in three years, but it didn't hurt as much as in 1969.

"This isn't as tough to take as losing to the New York Mets," manager Earl Weaver said. "Pittsburgh didn't beat us four straight and this one went seven games instead of five."

The Orioles took the World Series last year and have won 318 games in the last three seasons, but much of that glory may have evaporated when the Pirates won the deciding seventh game 2-1

No-Name Pitchers Win Pirates Series

BALTIMORE (AP) — In the end it was a maligned pitching staff working without its top winner that turned the tables for Pittsburgh Pirates and made them baseball's world champions for 1971.

Steve Blass, his hair soaked with champagne, stood on top of a table in the bedlam of the Pirate dressing room Sunday and shouted: "We've got a no-name pitching staff but we're the champions."

Blass had just pitched the Pirates to the title, beating Baltimore Orioles 2-1 on a tension-packed four-hitter.

President Nixon called the Pirate dressing room after the game to congratulate manager Danny Murtaugh and his team on their first title in 11 years.

"He complimented me on looking so calm on the bench," said Murtaugh. "And he said that although the day belonged to Blass and Roberto Clemente, it took a real team effort to win the Series."

Nixon also phoned the Oriole dressing room to talk to Baltimore manager Earl Weaver, who often had lamented over not hearing from the president, despite the past successes of his team.

It was Murtaugh who manipulated the seemingly-thin Pirate pitching staff to the title. Deprived of his biggest winner, Dock Ellis, who worked only 7 1-3 innings in the Series, Murtaugh won it anyway with two sensational jobs by Blass, a shutout by journeyman Nellie Briles and a brilliant relief job by 21-year-old rookie Bruce Kison.

"Anytime you go into a Series like this, the emphasis has to be on the pitching," said Murtaugh. "They had four 20-game winners, but we had enough pitching to win our division and the pennant, so I thought we'd have enough now."

And while the Pirate pitchers, shelled for 16 runs and 24 hits in the first two games of the Series, suddenly shut off the Oriole offence, Clemente stepped into the hitting spotlight.

A veteran of 17 major league seasons, the slugging right fielder tore the Orioles apart, collecting 12 hits, one short of the Series record. He was the obvious choice as the Series' most valuable player.

"This means so much to me," said Clemente. "I'm 37, I might never get to play in another World Series."

Clemente's flawless fielding and a rifle arm kept the Baltimore baserunners wary throughout. And his big bat marked the eventual downfall of the defending champions.

It was Clemente's bouncing fourth-inning home run that put Pittsburgh in front Sunday. The shot was the first hit off loser Mike Cuellar, who had retired the first 11 Pirates in order.

"Now people in the whole world know how I play," said Clemente.

"I wanted to show people that the Roberto Clemente who swings bad in the playoffs against Cincinnati last year, is not the real Roberto Clemente. I was hurt and I couldn't swing the bat. I wanted to tell them what we started last year."

Clemente's homer woke the Pirates up.

"It was like an explosion in the dugout," laughed Murtaugh, who also managed Pittsburgh's last champions in 1960.

"I was rushing myself early in the game," Blass said. "Just a couple of the first innings. I fell into the same rhythm I had in the first game."

That was bad news for the Orioles, whose spin-out in this Series started when Blass beat them in game No. 3 on a three-hitter.

"I had two great days," said Blass, "and they happened to be in the World Series."

Blass rolled through the Orioles' array of hitters with ease.

Finally, in the eighth, the Pirates got Blass another run when Willie Stargell singled and circled the bases on Jose Pagan's double.

The Orioles got the run right back from Blass in the bottom of the eighth on hits by Ellie Hendricks and Mark Belanger, a sacrifice and an infield out.

That put Blass back in a one-run pressure cooker in the ninth with the heart of the Orioles' batting order—Boog Powell, Frank Robinson and Merv Rettenmund coming up.

"I thought about a homer on each of them," said Blass, "but I knew that would only be it. Nobody said anything to me before the inning. If they had, I would have shattered."

Powell rolled out, Robinson popped up and then Rettenmund hit a bouncer up the middle. But shortstop Jackie Hernandez dashed to his left, grabbed the ball and gunned it to first for the final out.

Blass leaped into his teammates arms in joy.

"It was ecstacy," the pitcher said. "There's no way to top that."

The last out sent the Pirates into bedlam that carried from their dugout into the dressing room. On the other side of Memorial Stadium, the Orioles sat quietly as Weaver tried to analyse the Pirates' victory.

"Without Blass," the Oriole manager said, "we might be popping the corks"

LOYALIST COLLEGE

Belleville's John McConnell attempts to poke-check Owen Sound forward Bob Tunstead in Saturday night's OHA Senior A contest but finds an unexpected stumbling block provided by Paul Domm's stick. The visiting Crescents weren't able to place enough stumbling blocks in front of the Quintes throughout most of the contest, however, as Belleville came up with a 7-1 victory. The win was the third in four starts for the Quintes this season.

Crescents Bite Same Old Line

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

It was the same old line, but the Owen Sound Crescents kept falling for it in a 7-1 OHA Senior A hockey loss to Belleville Quintes Saturday night.

Belleville's familiar forward combination of George Godson, Lorne O'Donnell and Al Ferguson showed the reason why they have continually been the club's highest scoring link by hammering home five of the seven goals.

The Quintes laced home four markers in the final period break open a 3-1 contest just when Owen Sound appeared ready to move into contention for the first time in the game. The Crescents had been pressing late in the second period and were rewarded when Bill Hibbits slipped a 10-footer behind Steve Reze. The Belleville goalie looked exceptionally sharp, stopping a number of difficult chances in the 25 shots he handled when the Quintes came up with some loose play in their own end during the first two periods.

Reze came up with the defensive highlight for the winners near the mid-way mark of the final period when he out-guessed Bob Tunstead on a penalty shot. The Owen Sound forward had been hauled down by Dan Creighton after breaking into the clear. "He played well tonight, but he's played well in all our games," said coach Gene Poirier of the Belleville goalie. "I knew he was going to stop that penalty shot. Sometimes you just get a feeling about these things."

The Quintes showed few effects of the previous night's bus trip to Owen Sound, which saw them arrive back in Belleville at 6.30 in the morning. Greg Marchen scored on a blue line drive after only 19 seconds of play. Godson added a key goal for the locals when he lifted a shot over netminder Tom Coughlan with the Quintes playing shorthanded at 8.51 of the first period.

The speedy centre didn't appear to be hampered in the least by missing most of the Quintes' training camp collecting two goals and as many assists for his night's efforts. Left winger Lorne O'Donnell added two goals and an assist to the production while Ferguson fired a goal and an assist.

Right winger Wayne McConnell shook off a bout of the flu to add a sixth Belleville marker, with Marchen's opening tally accounting for the other goal.

Defensively, veterans Marchen and Lionel Botly were the steadiest performers on the Belleville blue line.

After a rather chippy start, that saw Ray Johnston and Steve Gavaris scuffle in the opening frame, the game settled into a rather even affair with no majors being handed out in the five minutes.

Belleville was minus the services of rearguard Pete Stoutenburg and winger Perry Chittick from Friday's game. Stoutenburg re-opened a cut over his eye in Friday's win over Owen Sound, while Chittick was unable to replace his broken glasses for Saturday's bout. Both are expected back for next Friday's game in Woodstock. The only other casualty, defenceman Mike Reze, is expected to be out of action 2-4 weeks with a knee injury.

Brewer Back In Step

KINGSTON — Dan Brewer is no longer eligible for the three-legged race and Avril McDonald couldn't be happier. McDonald's seven-year-old pacer has been plagued with leg injuries during the past three years but seemed to be fully recovered Sunday by stepping off a 2:07.4 performance for a win at Frontenac Downs.

While Dan Brewer was making a comeback Hugh Wemp was merely picking up where he left off. The Centreville driver guided two winners to raise his leading dash record to 17 wins in 21 starts.

Fairway Letter First

PICTON (Special) — For two periods Sunday night, the hockey alphabet was a little bit scrambled. That is, B wasn't necessarily coming before C.

However the Belleville Junior B's straightened things out in the third period to record a 5-1 win over the Quinte Canucks Junior C entry. The Picton - based entry played tight defensive hockey for the first two periods to hold the Fairways to a 1-1 deadlock before four unanswered tallies gave Belleville had suffered a 5-3 loss to Peterborough in Friday's Eastern Ontario League opener.

"I guess the best you could say about the game is that we got the two points," admitted coach Mon Hunter. "We played as well as we had in." The Fairways' management felt that their team may had difficulty adusting to the smaller Picton ice surface.

Quinte goalie Tony Minaker, who played last year with the Trenton Golden Flashes, was a Belleville stumbling block all night facing 38 shots to only 18 for Bob Harrison in the Fairway nets.

Team captain John Mulvihill opened the scoring for Belleville in the first period with Danny Goreison replying for the home team.

Third period counters by Jim Cain, Dave Horwood, John Smith and Tiny John gave Belleville the victory.

Defenceman Kevin Dockrill seemed to action for the first time this season taking a regular shift in the third period and drawing an assist on Yohn's counter. "He was bumping pretty well out there, which is something we've needed," confided Hunter, who also revealed that rearguard Jim Cain has been battling a bout of influenza for the past week.

John Smit of the Golden Mile Olympics finds the kicking efforts of a Bob's Auto Olympic opponent enough to make his hair stand on end. Playing the Automen proved to be an all-round hair raising experience as Bob's administered an 8-1 beating to Golden Mile, giving them the championship of the Belleville Minor Soccer peewee division. The Canuck soccer club copped three of the four titles contested in Saturday's round of championship play.

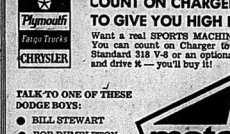
Canucks Grin and Barrett

The lineup for the Station Square Canucks, Saturday, consisted mainly of grin and Barrett. Most of the grins on the faces of the new minor soccer mosquito champs were put there by the work of Paul Barrett who counted all of his team's goals in a 4-3 title win over Jim's Pizzeria Flyers.

A pair of goals by Mike Evans and one by Mike Wright had given Jim's a 3-1 lead before Barrett started to work. He counted the winning goal after nine minutes of overtime play.

Another four-goal performer was Rick Barbeau of the Golden Mile Olympic peewees, who belped his team to an 8-1 route of the Golden Mile Olympics. Ralph Kollars supported Barbeau with a pair of goals with Tom Britton and Sterling Wilson counting the other. Stephen Edwards was the lone Golden Mile marksman.

In atom play, the LaModa Canucks got two goals from Michael McLeod and one from Brian Moynes to down the Flyers 3 - 1. Stan Wright scored the lone Flyer goal.



The Canuck soccer club got its third title in four divisions when the Station Square Canuck bantams stopped Richard Ellis Flyers 1-0 on a goal by David Smith.

In exhibition action Saturday the Falcons mosquitos and peewees earned a win and a tie against Trenton all-star squads.

The Falcons mosquitos remained undefeated this season with a 2-0 win over their Trenton counterparts. The Belleville team used solid team play to offset the individual efforts of the all-stars who licked the cohesion of the Falcons. Despite an edge in play the Trenton peewee all-stars were only able to emerge with a 1 - 1 tie against the Falcons because of failure to capitalize on their scoring chances.

Rangers Beat Habs to Keep Driver's Seat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers and, Chicago Black Hawks dominated the action in the National Hockey League this weekend, scoring double victories to lead their respective divisions.

The Rangers banded Montreal Canadiens their first setback of the season in New York Sunday 6-4, after gaining top spot in the East Division Saturday with a 3-3 victory over the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

The Hawks blasted Los Angeles Kings 4-0 Sunday on home ice, after claiming a 3-2 decision over Minnesota North Stars Saturday at Bloomington, Minn.

In other Sunday games, Detroit Red Wings posted their first win of the season by defeating St. Louis Blues 3-2 at Detroit, Toronto tied the Bruins 3-3 at Boston, Minnesota invaded Buffalo for a 3-2 decision over the Sabres and Pittsburgh Penguins trimmed California Golden Seals on the West Coast 4-2.

Saturday, Montreal whipped Buffalo 8-3, St. Louis trounced Detroit 9-2, Pittsburgh edged Vancouver Canucks 3-1 and Philadelphia Flyers nipped Los Angeles Kings 4-3.

Bill Fairbairn, who was troubled all last season by concussions, scored twice for the Rangers against the Canadiens to share double-goal honors with Vic Hadfield and Jean Ratelle.

Jim Pappin's two-goal effort for Chicago was supported by goalie Tony Esposito, who recorded his second shutout of the young season.

Leafs needed a rally to tie the Bruins after spotting them a lead on goals by Ken Hodge and Johnny McKenzie. Darryl Sittler and Jim Harrison replied for Toronto.

A two-goal effort by North Stars' veteran winger Charlie Burns helped send the Sabres down to their fourth straight defeat. The winning goal was fired by Bob Nevin.

Red Wings celebrated their first triumph over St. Louis Blues since February, 1970, on goals by Mickey Redmond, Nick Libett, Brian Conacher, Alex Delvecchio and Bill Collins.

Wayne Connelly was a two-goal performer for the Blues.

The Golden Seals' luck hasn't changed much under new coach Vic Stasiuk. At one point in the game when the Seals were leading, defenceman Ron Stackhouse kicked the puck into his own net, allowing Pennyout to tie the game at 2-2. Syl Apps was credited with the goal. Bob Leiter and Jean Pronovost got the winning and insurance goals in the third period.

The Rangers spread their goals among five players as they spoiled Leafs' home debut Saturday.

Other highlights of the competition Saturday included the two goals in 56 seconds by veteran defenceman Tim Horton that carried Penguins to victory over the Canucks and the Dryden brothers goal-tending duel in Montreal, where Dave of Buffalo came off second best to Ken in the Canadiens' net. Dave was peppered with 54 shots, while Ken had to contend with only 18.

Bobby Hull registered his 558th career point as his goal got the Black Hawks off to victory over North Stars. Cagey veteran Stan Mikita provided the other two.

Sunday the Hawks announced they were re-acquiring goal Gerry Desjardins from the Golden Seals in exchange for goalie Gilles Meloche and forward Paul Shmyr.

The Hawks had traded Desjardins and Jerry Pinder to California for Gary Smith, but Seals' owner Charles O. Finley claimed an arm injury suffered by Desjardins last season made the trade void and he lodged a complaint with the NHL head office.

Desjardins was acquired by the Black Hawks in 1969 from Los Angeles and he won all four games he played for Chicago.

Davis Plans Citizens' Information Office to Cut Red Tape

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis made three commitments Sunday, including reorganization of government structure, formation of a youth secretariat and establishment of a citizens' information office to cut through bureaucratic red tape.

In reorganizing government, Mr. Davis would create four or five cabinet ministers to set policy developments throughout government.

But he said the number of government departments would remain at the present 22 and the four or five ministers who set policy "will not form an elitist group . . . there is no super-ministry or ministry-elite."

In giving an example of the kind of work the policy developers would have Mr. Davis said:

"In the development of social policy, the concentration would be on such matters as health, welfare, social services and education.

"A second policy development area would be concerned with justice, public protection and consumer affairs. Other policy areas would include resources and environment and inter-government and financial affairs."

Mr. Davis told a news conference the new setup would allow his remaining cabinet ministers to concentrate on day-to-day administrative duties without having to spend so much time on policy.

He said the purpose of the citizens' information office would be to "provide individual citizens, through a central source, with a direct channel to the personal information they need as and when they need it."

"It will give every citizen a direct point of contact with the administration and it will inevitably make the Queen's Park administration more sensitive to the problems and needs of individual citizens," he said.

On the proposed youth secretariat, Mr. Davis said:

"I believe it to be of considerable importance that this secretariat be allowed to function with some degre of independence if it is to serve effectively the interests of our young people.

"For this reason, the youth secretariat will not be part of any specific department of government, but will report directly to the office of the prime minister."

The premier said that virtually every government department has developed programs that have some special interest to youth, so that a youth secretariat is needed to co-ordinate the programs.

He said the secretariat would "give early priority to the question of employment opportunities for young people."

He said the province would consult with young people with respect to development of the secretariat.

Nixon Maintains Roads Neglected

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Eastern and Northern Ontario cities have suffered from a lack of highway construction because of the "insatiable demands" of metropolitan Toronto, Liberal leader Robert Nixon said Saturday.

He told a news conference during an Oct. 21 Ontario election campaign stop here that the Liberals would take $550 million worth of highway expenditures away from Toronto and use the money to build roads for smaller centres.

"We hope to recognize the need of important communities like Peterborough, Owen Sound, Sudbury, North Bay, Brantford and Ottawa, which seem to have been squeezed out of the highway money trough by the insatiable demands of Metro Toronto," he said.

The Liberal leader said some small centres have suffered for a long time at the hands of the highways department, and the extra roads could be provided without additional expenditure.

Foreign Investment Is Issue

TORONTO (CP) — Although there are many similarities among the policies of Ontario's political leaders on economic nationalism, there is one basic difference between the old-line parties and the New Democrats.

Conservative Premier William Davis and Liberal Leader Robert Nixon take pains to state that regaining control of the economy should not be achieved at the expense of antagonizing foreign investors unnecessarily.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, also adopts this attitude, but adds that if foreign investors should be turned off by provincial restrictions it really wouldn't matter that much and could even aid in establishing Canada's economic independence.

Mr. Lewis's platform for the Ontario election on Thursday contains the argument that the huge amounts of capital Canada has imported have been more than balanced by a massive outflow of profits, interest payments, royalties and "a long list" of other payments to foreign corporations operating Canadian subsidiaries.

Another NDP argument is that Canadians have socked away something like $20 billion in life insurance, pension plans, bank accounts and some investments, and that if governments had access to this treasure it could finance an even higher rate of investment than could foreign funds.

Also, only six per cent, or about $127 million, of the total money invested in Canada comes from foreign sources and the rest is generated in Canada, by Canadians, he says.

Mr. Davis and Mr. Nixon take the view that, as the Liberal leader puts it, Ontario no longer will be for sale at "cut-rate prices" but foreign investment will continue to be welcomed.

The three leaders agree in a number of areas on means to bring about a repatriation of the economy.

All would see to it that Canadians are seated on the boards of foreign subsidiaries and that these branch plants would follow provincially-established guidelines—what Mr. Lewis calls a "code of corporate behavior."

100 Injured, 300 Arrested

Wild Scenes at Pittsburgh In World Series 'Celebration'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A huge World Series victory celebration exploded Sunday night into a rampage of destruction, looting and sex-in-the-streets.

Newspaper men reported two apparent assaults, some of them in full view of hundreds who cheered the assailants, and displays of public lovemaking.

At the height of the melee a police desk sergeant said he had calls reporting about a dozen rapes. But officials denied today that they had such reports.

More than 300 persons were injured and 300 others were arrested in the melee, which erupted after an estimated 100,000 poured into the downtown area.

There was scattered shooting, but only one reported wounding. Hundreds of jeopardizing caused by fireworks often were mistaken for gunshots.

A least 30 stores were looted and 30 or 40 more were damaged. More than a dozen cars were overturned and in some cases burned.

Reporters counted another 20 autos with roofs that had been crushed by the destruction-bent crowds.

The melee ended 10 hours after it began when flying wedges of riot-equipped police, some with dogs, slammed head-on into the crowds and drove them from the downtown section.

The rampage was triggered by the Pittsburgh Pirates' 2-1 victory Sunday over Baltimore Orioles in baseball's seventh and deciding game of the World Series in Baltimore. It began as a jubilant but non-violent celebration,"but quickly turned into a full-blown riot.

The wild celebration created the worst traffic jam in the city's history. At its height, cars were backed up for eight miles on one major freeway into the city and for six miles on another. Police finally sealed the downtown area in an attempt to relieve the tieups, but it was four hours before it had any effect.

At least two police cruisers were commandeered by rioters during the outburst, and police reported that a fire truck was stripped. Several other police cruisers were abandoned after crowds shattered their windows.

A crowd tried to overturn two city buses, but settled for breaking their windows. Seven taxies were destroyed.

At least three telephone booths and a corner news-stand were ripped from their foundations and thrown in the streets. And streetlight poles were toppled like goalpost uprights after a championship football game.

"Sir wild was the rampage that the Pirates cancelled a planned midtown victory parade. But some of the players, apparently unaware of the cancellation, somehow got downtown anyway and were mobbed.

One of the rapes occurred in the middle of Fifth Avenue when a gang of youths pulled a dark-haired young woman from a car and threw her to the street. Onlookers cheered and clapped. No one made any move to prevent the assault.

Canadians Approve War Measures Act

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian government should invoke the War Measures Act again if faced with a crisis similar to that of October, 1970, said the majority of respondents to a country-wide telephone poll conducted earlier this month.

The survey of 774 persons was done for the CBC television network program Weekend and the results were broadcast Sunday night.

Sixty-seven per cent of the respondents said the government should again use the War Measures Act and 72 per cent said it should again call in the army.

Twenty-three pe; cent said the act should not be invoked and 10 per cent said they didn't know. Sixteen per cent opposed calling in the army and 12 per cent said they didn't know.

Lewis Says Ontario Foreign Ownership Above Average

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis brought a crowd of 3,300 to its feet cheering Sunday night with his toughest speech on economic nationalism so far in the Ontario election campaign.

The 33-year-old New Democratic Party leader threw out two challenges as a major rally in the O'Keefe Centre, filled to capacity with supporters from 22 Metropolitan Toronto ridings.

He demanded that the federal government produce the Gray report on foreign ownership in the Canadian economy, which went to the cabinet in May. And he called on Premier William Davis to give his answers to "the single largest issue" in the campaign.

Then Mr. Lewis produced figures of his own, prepared by NDP researchers at Queen's Park and on Parliament Hill.

He said they show that 70.3 per cent of manufacturing in Ontario is owned by foreigners, six per cent above the national average.

Mining in Ontario was controlled by non-Canadians to the extent of 59.3 per cent, five points above the national average.

In other categories, he said, foreigners controlled 59.7 per cent of wholesale trade, 39.9 per cent of transportation, storage and public utilities, 36 per cent of retail trade, 25.6 per cent of financial institutions, 39.1 per cent of services and 19 per cent of construction.

"I have a question to ask: What does William Davis say to that? What are the Tory answers to the single largest issue in the election campaign?"

"We have to choose between going down the road to continentalism or making a strong thrust to economic sovereignty. And with the future of Ontario goes the future of Canada."

On a national basis, Mr. Lewis said, foreigners control two-thirds of Canada's resources and three-fifths of investment and manufacturing.

He said that:

—Between 1945 and 1967 the book value of U.S. long-term investment in Canada rose to $28 billion from $5 billion.

—From 1955 to 1970 U.S. investment in Canada annually rose to $750 million from $500 million.

—Ninety-five per cent of patents issued in Canada go to foreign owners, two-thirds of them to the U.S.

In 1945 there had been 28 mergers annually of foreign-controlled companies and 200 in the last three years.

He reiterated his promise to turn the trend on foreign ownership in Ontario "straight down the road to regaining economic, cultural and social independence" within his first term of office.

Agricultural Bank Proposed by Nixon

ST. THOMAS (CP) — An agricultural bank to help farmers cope with depressed farm prices was proposed Sunday by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon.

Mr. Nixon's nine-point agricultural program, spelled out in a single package for the first time in the campaign for Thursday's provincial election, was presented at a news conference in this town where Mayor Ed Fanjoy is the Liberal candidate.

Mr. Nixon rode in an open convertible with the mayor for a horn-honking cavalcade through mostly-deserted streets after his arrival by chartered plane from Kitchener.

The Liberal leader had a better reception in Kitchener, drawing about 1,200 to a rally in Dingaman Park Lodge.

Earlier, he campaigned in Toronto with Ken Reid, seeking re-election in Scarborough East, and True Davidson, mayor of East-York, who had a bonfire and apple cider for him and about 50 supporters at a small park.

Mr. Nixon said Mr. Saturday that both Miss Davidson and Mayor Fanjoy have been promised cabinet posts in a Liberal government. He has also promised cabinet posts to former Toronto mayor Phil Givens and Kingston surgeon John Hazlett.

Mr. Nixon said the agricultural bank would provide capital on a regular-interest basis as well as forgiveable loans for specific farm improvements, such as for new milking facilities.

Forgiveable loans, granted under the Ontario Development Corp. do not have to be repaid if certain conditions are met. The agriculture industry does not qualify for ODC loans.

Mr. Nixon said farm prices have fallen disastrously low, citing corn which sold for $1.16 a bushel last week and is $1.06 now. He said many farmers are taking 80 cents for field-grade corn.

The Liberals would also create marketing boards with power to act in emergency situations.

At Kitchener, Mr. Nixon predicted the New Democratic Party could win only 23 to 25 per cent of the popular vote, or 15 to 20 seats. He said NDP Leader Stephen Lewis has made one serious error in the campaign, a decision to try for second place.

The Liberals were not playing "silly games" like the NDP but were seeking to replace the Tories, who had "grown arrogant in the exercise of power."

GM Workers Want Work Week Reduction

OSHAWA (CP) — Resolutions to offset the effect of the announced layoff of 600 workers at the General Motors of Canada Ltd. plant here Nov. 1 recived unanimous approval from more than 500 members of Local 222 of the United Auto Workers at a meeting Sunday.

The resolutions, submitted and endorsed by the local's executive board, call for a reduction of the work week or work day without loss of pay so that the laid-off workers can return to their jobs.

They ask the federal and provincial governments to pass legislation requiring the auto industry to use the corporation tax cut of seven per cent announced Thursday to create full employment for all laid-off workers.

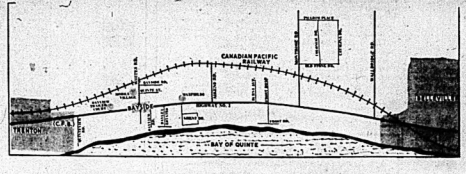
The resolutions say the safeguards in the 1965 Canada-U.S. auto trade pact must be maintained and improved and that the federal government should declare publicly that it is committed to such a policy.

Policeman Is Charged

TORONTO (CP) — The metropolitan Toronto police department has laid wiretapping charges against one of its plainclothes constables and the president of a security firm.

The two men, Constable Barry Chatfield, 32, and Richard A. Grange, 27, president of Canadian Driver Pool Ltd., were charged in connection with the alleged wiretapping of a Toronto union office.

Kin Lottery Won by Man At Cornwall



CORNWALL (CP) — Hotel maintenance man Romeo J. Morin of Cornwall won the first prize of $100,000 in the $300,000 Kinsmen lottery Saturday.

The 60-year-old former railway roadster said that he had planned to retire two years from now but because of his windfall will retire on Monday. His wife, Germaine, works as a police matron.

Second prize of $40,000 went to Mrs. F. Borland of Riverside Park, Ont. Toronto waiter Gus Alexopoulos won the third prize of $10,000.

Montreal March Staged to Protest Use of War Measures Act

MONTREAL (CP) — About 3,000 persons held a 2½ hour parade through east-central Montreal Saturday in support of a French-only Quebec and to mark the first anniversary of the proclamation of the War Measures Act.

Organizers had predicted at least 10,000 persons would turn out and delayed the march for 45 minutes waiting in vain for more supporters.

Aside from a few broken windows, few incidents marked the march until it officially ended and several hundred youths engaged in a rock-throwing battle with police which left six police injured and nine demonstrators under arrest.

The youths had attempted to march on the offices of La Presse, the French-language daily that has locked out composing room workers since July, but were repulsed by riot police ringing the building.

Five police were hit by projectiles as they rushed the makeshift barricades erected by the protesters while a sixth fractured his fingers trying to break down one of the barricades in nearby side streets.

Organizers of the march—the Common Front for the Defence of the French-language—held an immediate news conference to disclaim all responsibility for the incidents.

Reggie Chartrand, former lawyer and leader of the Chevaliers de l'Independance who helped co-ordinate 250 volunteer parade marshalls, said "our responsibility ended when the demonstration ended at Hydro-Quebec."

The marshals tried to curtail any acts of violence during the march and at one point in front of the east-end headquarters of Quebec provincial police, marshal Jean Heribeault stopped one youth just before he tossed a bottle.

At the end of the march during speeches in front of the Hydro-Quebec building where Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa has his Montreal office, outspoken labor leader Michel Chartrand scathingly denounced youths throwing bottles as "damn chickens."

"Pullists and the revolution—they're made with the people, not by throwing stones while hiding in a crowd."

Raymond Lemieux, former leader of a campaign for French-only schools in suburban St. Leonard and another organizer of Saturday's march, told the later news conference a small group of "Maoists adventurers and agents provocateurs tried to disrupt the protest and didn't succeed."

Despite the turnout, Mr. Lemieux claimed the demonstration was a complete success.

In other developments:

—Police confirmed they are investigating an alleged Front de Liberation du Quebec communique announcing the "Perreault cell" and threatening "exploiters of the people."

—Military vehicles moved through Montreal but Capt. W. K. R. O'Donnell, an armed forces information officer, stressed "it has nothing, absolutely nothing, to do with the

Toronto and Vancouver Groups Join in War Measures Protest

TORONTO (CP) — Police arrested nine men and two women Saturday night during a demonstration protesting implementation of the War-Measures Act a year ago.

Charges ranging from wilful damage to conspiracy were laid after 15 large windows were broken at the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. store on Yonge Street.

Police estimated damage at $15,000.

The demonstration started peacefully at Queen's Park. Later, a group of about 200 demonstrators paraded in the downtown area.

All 11 arrested were to appear in court today. Their ages range from 16 to 27.

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 100 chanting, placard-carrying demonstrators marched through the downtown area of the city Saturday night to protest the invokation of the War Measures Act one year ago.

Under police escort the group proceeded through Gastown, the restaurant-old sector of the waterfront, and on to the courthouse for a rally.

Although traffic was held up in the area, no incidents were reported and the crowd dispersed after hearing speeches at the courthouse.

To Your Good Health

High Fat and Protein Diet May End Post-surgery Dumping

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Six months ago I had a subtotal gastrectomy, 75 per cent (three quarters of stomach removed). My doctor said I had a "stormy" recovery but the surgery went well, which I'm sure it did.

My problem now is dumping syndrome and diarrhea. I have tried six medications and am now on three others, but my symptoms are getting worse. Can you help me?—M. L. S.

Perhaps. I hope so. And I'll help most by outlining some pretty important facts. "Dumping" can follow stomach surgery, and the more extensive the surgery, the more likely dumping will develop.

Keep in mind that normally the digestive process is an orderly one. Different parts of the digestive tract absorb different types of nutrition, and at differing rates.

When a substantial part of the stomach has been removed, the stomach, being smaller, cannot hold as much food for as long a time as it used to. Food and fluids therefore are passed along—"dumped"—into the small intestine faster than used to be the case.

Within half an hour after eating, the patient can have a variety of symptoms—flushing, sweating, dizziness, headache, nausea, diarrhea, or some combination of them. Because of the disturbed rate at which food moves through the digestive system, there is an alternation in sugar level, first a high level, then a decline to a low level. Folks with episodes of low blood sugar are familiar with this.

Your letter told how many medicines you have used, but medicine alone isn't too likely to solve the problem. Diet and eating habits are very important. Perhaps this has been suggested to you, but you didn't realize its significance.

My recommendation is that you eat a diet high in fat and protein, and low in starches and sugars. In addition, and this is important, too, eat frequent, small meals. This is a nuisance, perhaps, but your anatomy has been changed by the surgery, and what used to be the proper pattern of eating for you now is not.

I deleted from your letter your mention of having the Billroth II operation. Sometimes conversion to what is known as the Billroth I procedure corrects the situation.

But before considering that possibility, by all means try the eating pattern I have suggested above, and see whether that doesn't make a substantial improvement in the way you feel.

I'm not suggesting you stop using medication, but get all the benefit you can from changing your diet habits as well.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I bruise and bleed very easily. I can barely touch myself with something and either seem to bleed underneath the skin, or if I break the skin I bleed a lot. I find myself bleeding or bruised when I haven't even realized that I hurt myself. Can you tell me what causes this, or what I can do for it? I am 51.—Mrs. H.

Too-easy bruising quite often is attributable to lack of enough calcium or vitamin C, but when it happens to the extent you describe, I would suspect a problem involving the basic clotting mechanism of the blood.

I would, therefore, recommend that you have your doctor arrange for some very thorough testing of the quality of your blood. Proper treatment may stall off more-serious difficulty later.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter's ears "go shut" every so often and stay that way for weeks. What would you advise for this? She doesn't want to go to a doctor. She is 30.—Mrs. E. S.

If she doesn't want to go to an ear specialist and find out what is wrong, I don't suggest anything. If it were my hearing involved, I'd certainly want some expert advice. She probably has some plugging of the Eustachian tube.

What the Stars Say

For TUESDAY, OCT. 19

Aries (March 21-April 19). New trends are forming in partnership angles in the next few weeks. Old alliances on the rocks won't be patched up, but failed, but newer ties can offer some pleasant diversion.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). Cooperation and team effort will be the fastest way to improve your employment conditions. At least you won't be the only one who's complaining.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Your window on the world is still your heart. Romantic, creative expressions will come now with a stellar guarantee for success. Enjoy yourself.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Household upheavals have been mostly talk up to now. Events begin to unfold, however, that promise definite action in the next few weeks. Get the family to agree.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). You face a period of getting ideas sorted out, presenting them to the right people, tripping all around town tying up loose ends. Keep correspondence up to date.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Now's the best time to evaluate and revise your entire financial setup. Reapportion funds within your budget so that you can get yourself out of the red.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). Expect to receive the necessary authority, as well as a generous and valuable amount of sound advice from people at the top. Don't hesitate to use your powers.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Secret or behind-the-scenes agreements are a tricky proposition right now. Don't be too confident about maintaining the upper hand indefinitely.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The loner's approach may have been the best attack on trials in the past, but you can start to realize that you'll need partners in the future. Look for a suitable mate.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Authorities can be managed or compelled, but can be kept at bay, but not both at the same time. If opposing forces are being formed, don't try to fight.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You can find yourself out of town, if not physically, at least mentally very soon. Far-away places, education pursuits are highlighted.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Regardless of the degree of chaos that has infected the personal areas of your life, it's time to pick things up and start over again. Don't wallow in self-pity.

Today's birthday—There can be a constructive side to this year's belief that the whole world revolves around little you. Opportunities to revise your entire outlook, personality are being presented.

Opening lead — three of spades.

The opening lead can have a devastating effect on the outcome of some hands, but even when the best lead is found a defender may have to follow it up perfectly to exploit his initial advantage.

For a classic illustration of a good opening lead combined with a good continuation, consider th'i deal played in the national Life Masters Pair championship in 1969.

Meyer Schleifer, West Coast star, decided to tee off with a low spade, even though North had bid the suit. Had he made the more prosaic lead of a club, South would easily have made the contract.

Declarer followed low from dummy, hoping Schleifer had the J-9 of the suit, or at least one of them, but East won the trick with the nine and shifted to a low club.

Declarer made the normal play of the jack of clubs, which lost to the queen, and Schleifer bared aces(or identified A-K of spades again!

Declarer covered West's four with the ten, this time losing to the jack, and East continued with a deuce, permitting West to cash the A-K. Schleifer then led a club to East's ace and the outcome was that South wound up going down two on a hand where practically all the other North-South declarers in notrump finished with either one or ten tricks.

Schleifer's underlead of the A-K of spades at trick three was surely the right play, for declarer was practically sure to misguess the situation. However, the play required not only courage but imagination, and both of these are commodities with which all experts are well-endowed.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

Speed Sought On Tax Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Party house leaders say they're in the way to make the job easier for MPs when they tackle the government's massive tax bill.

With members scheduled to plow into clause-by-clause study of the bill today, house leaders were trying to agree on some ground rules to cut some procedural corners.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen met briefly Friday with three opposition counterparts in discuss the time-saving idea.

Stanley Knowles, of the New Democratic Party, says there should be a meeting this week to arrange an orderly system of dealing with the 707-page bill and the reams of proposed amendments—the government already has proposed 95, mostly technical.

"With 257 parts in clause one alone, there is nothing to prevent us from standing up and asking for an explanation on each one, said Mr. Knowles.

The legislation, which would end many exemptions for individuals and introduce a capital gains tax, among other changes, was introduced for second reading last June 30 as MPs prepared for summer vacation.

After 12 days of debate on general principles since the government resumed Sept. 7, the bill passed second-reading stage last Tuesday.

The following day, as the House went into committee for detailed study, Finance Minister E. J. Benson introduced the government amendments.

"Wait — we agreed not to interfere with their religious observances."

Metro Has Problem

Ceiling Stops French Classes

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says practically none of the $1.3 million federal grant to extend French instruction in Metropolitan Toronto in the last two years has been used for its intended purpose.

Instead, the newspaper says, the money has been used to ease the provincial government ceiling on school spending. The ceiling limits costs per student to $1,000 in secondary schools and less in elementary schools.

It says Robert Sweet, director of French teaching in Toronto schools, was asked what had happened to the nearly $325,000 that came to the city from the federal grant in 1970, and he answered:

"Frankly, much nothing. In Metro, we've followed the provincial guidelines but we've not necessarily followed the federal aims."

Because of the provincial ceiling on school costs, the paper says, the grant to French instruction is not as attractive as it may seem. For one thing, it isn't sufficient to pay for the extra teachers the boards would have to hire for the extended program and the boards themselves are held to too tight a budget to hire the teachers.

The paper quotes Douglas Spry, director of school administration for the suburban department, as saying the only way a board could extend French programs now would be to cut costs on other programs. It says the situation came to light after principals of one suburban district, the Dufferin Public School, complained publicly that they could not get more French instruction for their children.

Archbishop Tells Young To Seek Own Solutions

TORONTO (CP) — The spiritual leader of the Church of England Sunday urged discontented youth to seek their own solutions, apart from the staid methods of established religions.

Most Rev. Michael Ramsey, Archbishop of Canterbury, delivered his message to a packed crowd of students who waited outside St. Thomas Church for more than two hours while he preached a sermon inside.

The 66-year-old archbishop said:

"If you are bored with the way we do things in the old institutions, do it your own way as long as you do it better."

Dr. Ramsey questioned the young people about their activities and pursuits. Pointing to a friend in the jacket of Doug Warrick, 19, of Toronto, he asked him what the figure 74 represented.

Told it meant the youth was in the graduating class of 1974, Dr. Ramsey said:

"Which means you have three more years to play.

"I envy you all very much."

In his sermon to the congregation of St. Thomas' Church, broadcast on the CBC national television network, Dr. Ramsey said the Christian church is threatened by "powerful forces hostile to the church.

Among these forces, he told a reporter after the sermon, is materialism.

Dr. Ramsey arrived in Toronto Friday for an eight-day visit. He was invited by Trinity College, University of Toronto, to deliver the Larkin-Stuart Memorial Lectures tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Friday, he will visit Ottawa to mark the 75th anniversary of that diocese and will be the first Anglican archbishop to preach in the Roman Catholic basilica.

He returns to London Oct. 23, from Montreal.

Chess Game Suspended

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — The sixth chess match in the 12-game world championship series between Bobby Fischer of the United States and Tigran Petrosian of the Soviet Union was suspended Sunday night after 41 moves.

The two grandmasters will resume play tonight.

They drew the fifth game in the series three days ago and now have 3½ each.

Belleville City Alderman

ARTHUR KEEGAN

In a broadcast over Radio Station CJBQ recently explained his reasons.

FOR SUPPORTING LIBERAL CANDIDATE

GERALD WEAVER

In the provincial election for the Quinte seat. The following is the text of his remarks.

My fellow Citizens of Quinte it has been a good many years since I have seriously and actively taken part in Provincial elections. Since entering municipal affairs on behalf of the good people I represent in the City of Belleville, to be specific.

I believe you good people should judge this (Davis) government on its past record. This is why we have elections every four or five years. I am sure, however, this government under Robarts was aware their record would bring them defeat at the polls in the coming election. To try to win again they realized they must pick a new leader and also fill the vacancies created by these droppings out of the Cabinet and so on.

And so by setting up a new Cabinet they hoped to create the impression of a government revitalized to do a much better job for the people who are supposed to forget past records and discrepancies in office.

It would appear from THEIR advertising that one man — Mr. Davis — is the government. So how much will the members have to say? Has our own member, the Lion of Quinte, been stifled? Is he now as strong a government voice as he was?

I have lost all confidence in the present government of Ontario. I can not forget how Mr. Davis as Minister of Education apparently didn't give a damn what education was costing. But you and I, the grass roots people of this province, learned we'll be paying an enormous debt for a great many years to come. No wonder our taxes are exorbitantly high.

I have asked, on behalf of the people, a great many important questions but as yet it would appear it is none of our business because the answers are not forthcoming.

Mr. Davis suggests he is doing things for people. I would say this considering the incompetence and irresponsible spending of money on education when he was Minister he should change his slogan to read — I AM DOING THINGS TO PEOPLE. It is more appropriate.

Is Premier Davis a one man government? This philosophy is not the Conservatism I once know and supported all my life. But never again. I was always of the opinion Conservatives stood for, and I quote, "a Government by the people, for the people."

But when you neglect to consult the people on serious matters affecting the people . . . When he (Davis) makes decisions for them without consulting them, then his government is heading for serious trouble. And when the people realize what has happened to them he'd better be prepared to accept the consequences. So that's another reason I am compelled to support the Liberal Party in Ontario in this election.

Did this government consult the people when $140 million dollars was spent on the Spadina Expressway? No. But, then Mr. Davis never asked for the people's permission when he stopped it, either. At present it is an abandoned road leading from somewhere to nowhere. His decision on this matter is appalling to all people in Ontario.

Did this present (Davis) government sign agreements to clean up pollution in Lake Ontario and Lake Erie at an estimated cost of $500 million dollars without consulting (partners) the Mayors and Reeves of the province? The answer is YES although the municipalities will be paying the lion's share of the cost.

For years No. 2 Highway from Trenton to Belleville has shown the highest accident rate in this area. Improvements would normally take two years to complete and create necessary jobs for our people if this present government was really interested in jobs to help the unemployed. No one can understand why this important road hasn't been completed because to me the prevention of accidents is as important and badly needed as a convalescent hospital on Dundas Street East in Belleville.

I have every confidence in our youth today. They are better educated and stronger than we older people. But as a parent I object to festivals such as Mosport and Mado township affairs. These type of gatherings are for promoters to make money while you and I the people are forced to pay the bills. And without our consent parents cannot stand the county and township look in the matter although they were not supported by the present government's protective legislation. It's another case of the grass roots people in the township being let down. Nor did I hear of any objection to such affairs by the Honorable Minister who is in charge of programs for youth. Where on earth are our morals? Our spiritual values? Where is the leadership in these matters by our Member of Provincial Parliament?

This present (Davis) government has forgotten what municipalities have said and will continue to pay over the years for education. Some millions and millions of dollars. But the youth today, I am convinced is interested in finding a job after graduation. Not turning to drugs and so on. A government that will create jobs for our youth would improve the situation.

My friends in the Quinte riding, if you agree with me, then phone or contact me personally on how you can help. I would be pleased to hear from you.

While I have given you some of the reasons why I am supporting Gerald Weaver the Liberal candidate in this election I feel you should know that he is an outstanding business man. And men of his calibre are needed to run the business of this province . . . WITH YOUR PERMISSION.

Still the present (Davis) government must be judged on its record. The Conservative Party in the present state puts me in mind of an old deck of cards — a deck of cards that became worn so badly over the years.

And when the Party called for a new deck for this election the same old poker faces remained. THEY DO NOT FOOL ME. And I hope not you, either.

My friends if you really want a new deal in Ontario and in particular in Quinte and would like to achieve this, then contact me — Art Keegan — at home or the committee room on Campbell Street in Belleville. Thank you.
